Rev. J. M. Baker, who was a missionary for 35 years at Ongole, South India, under Baptist auspices, was the speaker Friday evening at the meeting of the Women's league of the Central Baptist church, which was held in the assembly room with a good attendance, invitations having been sent to neighboring Baptist churches. He declared that the remarkable work which he described in this mission field was an evidence of the working out of faith and prayer and a demonstration of how the faith of God can change the heart of a civilization on the other side of the world, which is as different from our civilization as darkness is from light.

Mrs. Henry A. Jatkowski, president of the league, introduced Rev. Mr. Baker after a short devotional service had been conducted by Miss Anna B. Storms, the church quartet had rendered an anthem, and Miss Jessie Guthrie had rendered a solo, The Lord Is My Light.

The mission station to which Rev. Mr. Baker referred particularly in his talk was that among the Telegu people, a nation of 23,000,000, among whom the first missionary work was attempted in 1795 by a French priest who stayed with them 30 years and then came home declaring it was impossible they would ever understand the principles laid down by Jesus Christ. Eleven years later the Northern Baptist convention sent out Samuel Day who worked for twelve years without a convert, came home and returned to the field with Lyman Jewett. The work went on with scant results until 1862 when Jewett came home. In 1865, John Clough opened the station at Ongole and in 1867 organized a little church with eight members of the most despised caste in that country. The climax of success came on July 3, 1878, when 2,222 converts were baptized on one day and in two months 10,000 were baptized. These people are hungering for God, said the speaker, and he asked that the churches in this country do nothing to diminish their support of the missionary work.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

THREE HUSBANDS, ONE WIFE GRANTED DIVORCES

Four divorces were granted and there was continuance in another petition which came before Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court at New London Friday. Three of the divorces granted were on the husbands' petitions.

Divorce was granted to Hazel Fairclough of this town, alias Hazel Martorino, from George Martin, alias George Martorino, fomerly of Norwich, now of parts unknown. She was also given custody of a minor child. The marriage of the couple took place Nov. 26, 1921, and desertion was alleged since Oct. 1925.

John T. Rogers of Groton was granted divorce from Alberta M. Rogers of Nashua, N. H., on the grounds of desertion on May 3, 1918. They were married March 29, 1916.

Divorce and custody of two children was granted to Joseph Mitchell of Waterford from Anna F. Silvia Mitchell, also of Waterford. They were married June 25, 1915, and the divorce was granted for a statutory offense. The couple had four children.

Russell Hanschka of New London was granted divorce from Edna Scheele Hanschka of Brooklyn, N. Y. They were married March 11, 1924, and desertion was alleged.

Thompson Democratic Nominations

The democratic caucus in Thompson Thursday night nominated Oscar Munyan and Esdras Blanchette for representatives and Fred A. Munyan for judge of probate.

GALES FERRY

Attendants for September at the library were Mrs. Eddie Simmons, Mrs. Joseph P. DeRusha, Mrs. J. Edmund Norman, Miss Caroline Freeman and Mrs. C. Alton Chapman.

Mrs. Chester D. Bonestell, of Los Angeles, Calif., is visiting her mother, Mrs. L. B. Aplin, and her brother, Frank A. Aplin.

Mrs. J. Edmund Norman and Mrs. Daniel Crouch were hostesses at a meeting of the W. A. S. club held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Norman.

Thirty-five were in attendance at a meeting of Gales Ferry Parent-Teacher association Tuesday afternoon at the Country club. Seven teachers from Ledyard schools were present, having been invited with mothers of the children from the several districts of the town. Mrs. Lucius I. Wightman, president of the association, presided at the business meeting and Mrs. Robert L. Percival, secretary-treasurer, gave her reports. Mrs. Wightman reported on the matter of a bus stopping for the school children as taken up with the public utilities commission in Hartford. A morning and afternoon bus is now stopping in front of the school house, the stop at the four corners on the Military highway being considered too dangerous for the young children. A book was offered by Miss Caroline B. Freeman to the child having the best note book in a reading contest in the school. Miss Freeman, Mrs. Alice Slater, teacher of the upper grades in the village school, Mrs. Avery Main and Mrs. Daniel Crouch were appointed by the chair a committee to consider plans and report at the next meeting. The matter of lessons in music was also presented by Mrs. Wightman. A discussion meeting with Miss Freeman in charge, was announced for the November session and for the December program Miss Grace E. Povey will give a talk on Reading Books For Children and Books For Mothers. Mrs. Wightman then introduced Mrs. Mildred C. Maher, of Williams street Norwich, the school nurse, who spoke on Why Do We Have a School Nurse? and Dr. Charles J. Prohaska, medical director of the state board of education. Dr. Prohaska read an interesting paper on Responsibilities of the Home in Connection With School Health Program. At the close a rising vote of thanks was given the speakers. Sandwiches and coffee were served under direction of Mrs. J. Edmund Norman, chairman of hostesses.

Miss Nete Anderson of Brooklyn, N. Y., who has been spending two weeks' vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Miller, returned home recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman A. Wulf, who have occupied their summer cottage on the Bluff for a few weeks on their return from spending the summer in Europe, left for their home in Norwich the first of the week.

EAGLEVILLE

The church school opened Sunday after the summer vacation with a large attendance. Officers were elected as follows: Mrs. F. O. Vinton, superintendent; Walter Adams, assistant superintendent; Mrs. Nettie Reynolds, secretary and treasurer; Murland Bradley, collector; Rosa Hamer, organist. Teachers: Rev. C. G. Johnson, Mrs. F. O. Vinton, Mrs. Nettie Reynolds, Mrs. F. McCollum, Mrs. Linderson. Cradle roll: Mrs. F. Lound. Entertainment committee for three months, Mrs. Flora Rosedale, Misses Elinor Hopkins, Elsie Labonte, Marjorie Thompson and Shirley Ashley. Arthur J. Joslyn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Joslyn and Lorraine Mary Bentley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bentley, were baptized during the morning services. Ten pins were awarded for perfect attendance.

Mrs. Flora Rosedale and daughter, Helen, who have been spending the summer with relatives in Canada, have returned home.

Mrs. Nettie Reynolds, noble grand of Violet Rebekah lodge of Willimantic, accompanied the lodge to Norwich last week where they were entertained by the Norwich Rebekahs.

Mrs. Christine Bentley of Willimantic, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bentley and daughter of New London, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Labonte.

Mrs. Carl Warren of New Britain, who has been spending a few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Warren has returned home.

James W. Green has moved his saw mill to Ashford.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Warren and son Adolf called on Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Warren in Hartford, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Joslyn and son of Groton are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Labonte for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Hamer are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Florence Bruen, in Beacon, N. Y.

Raymond Warren and a friend from Hartford were hunting in this vicinity Tuesday.

LEFTY DUGAS' ALL STARS TO PLAY WESTERLY INDIES HERE ON SUNDAY

Instead of one game as first planned Lefty Dugas' All Stars will play the Westerly Independents on Sunday at J. B. Martin field. On Saturday the Stars will clash with the Shyma club at the Providence street grounds.

The Westerly club is one of the strongest teams in Rhode Island and have been playing exceptionally fast ball especially during the latter part of the season. They hold victories over the New London Kaceys, the Polish Citizens and a number of other fast clubs. Sawyer, former pitching mainstay of the famed House of David team, will be on the mound for the Independents. Another pitcher is Kiddy who has been going well in semi-pro ball this season. The Independents have Panciera who was a third baseman with an Eastern league team during the past season.

Lefty Dugas, himself, will assume the pitching burden for his team on Sunday afternoon. Dugas has rounded together quite some ball club composed of all local players. His club will lineup as follows: J. Murphy or Jab Burns, c; Lefty Dugas p; Wilk 1b; Cimikoski or Cummings 2b; Normandin ss; Lemieux 3b; Lamorey, Pete Finn, Leo and Lloyd Jarvis outfielders. The veteran Chip Dugas may also get into the game.

The Westerly team will be: Hallard c; Sawyer or Kiddy p; Wilson 1b; Ruffo 2b; Babano ss; Panciera 3b; Shiller lf; Heming cf; Dabrowski rf. The game is called for 2:15 o'clock.

Saturday's Game

For the game at the Providence street grounds today Dugas will have an entirely different team to compete with the Shyma team. For today's game Pete Raymond will pitch against his former teammates of the Shyma club while Jab Burns will do the catching. Lefty Dugas will be at first base where he has played many games on the local diamonds. Mondi Normandin is slated for second base with Cimikoski in the shortfield. Chip Dugas will positively play third base which in itself is a factor that should pack the stands. In the outfield will be Snow, Benoit and Finn.

The Shymas will have their regular team with the exception of the battery, Rabbit Gauthier and Jimmy Murphy. In last Saturday's game Gauthier pitched well for the Shymas slow-balling the All Stars to death. The remainder of the team will be Wilk 1b; Cummings 2b; Lemieux ss; Finn 3b; Leo Jarvis lf; J. Raymond cf and Burelle rf.

This game is also called for 2:15 o'clock.

MANY NOTED DRIVERS AT MIDDLETOWN REGATTAS

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 10—(AP)—Speedy craft and drivers from every section of the country began gathering here tonight for the eastern and national outboard regattas, which will be held on the Connecticut river over the week end. The eastern championship regatta will be held tomorrow, while the national races will start Sunday and continue Monday.

Over 150 drivers and nearly [illegible]00 boats are expected to compete. An assault on his own world's outboard speed mark of 50.94 miles an hour, will be made by Ray Pregenzer, of Antioch, Ill. His attempt at a new speed record will be made during the national regatta over a two and a half mile oval course which he will circle six times.

At least five woman pilots will compete in the class B and class C events. They are Loretta Turnbull, Monrovia, Cal.; Hilda Mueller, Bay City, Mich.; Wilma Wynne, Jacksonville, Fla.; Alice Hallewell, Long Island and Mildred Hickey, Worcester, Mass.

A. T. Griffith, of Peoria, Ill., secretary of the Mississippi Valley Powerboat association, will act as referee of the three day racing.

BERG TAKES DECISION FROM BILLY PETROLLE

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Oct. 10—(AP)—Jackie Kid Berg, British lightweight, defeated his two time conqueror, Billy Petrolle, of Fargo, N. D., tonight, winning the decision in a ten round feature bout. There were no knockdowns.

Patsy Ruffalo, New York lightweight, won a ten round decision from Spud Murphy of Fargo, N. D., tonight as a part of the preliminary entertainment to the Jack Kid Berg-Billy Petrolle main bout. About 8,000 saw the show.

Ruffalo, weighing 132 1-2 pounds, knocked Murphy down twice for counts of nine with swinging lefts to the head in the ninth round. Murphy weighed 133 1-2.

Paul Landine, 146, of Argentina, won a six round decision over Murray Kezd, 143 1-2 of New York.

NEW NOTRE DAME STADIUM WILL BE DEDICATED TODAY

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 10—(AP)—Big moments have been many for Knute Rockne since he left Norway's rugged shores for his football Valhalla at Notre Dame, but tonight was his night of nights.

His football dream—a mammoth new stadium seating 55,000 spectators—was realized at last and thousands of the great and near-great of the gridiron world paid him a rousing tribute as part of the dedicatory program to be climaxed tomorrow afternoon before the battle with the big Navy dreadnaught.

Since the Viking became director of Notre Dame's football destinies 12 years ago and made the team one of the outstanding machines on the gridiron, there have been victory nights but in spirit and sentiment none surpassed this "Rockne night."

BALTIC MEETS JEWETT CITY IN SOCCER TILT SUNDAY

The Baltic S. A. C. soccer team will journey to Jewett City Sunday and play Jewett City at Ashland park. The kickoff will be at 2:30 o'clock and the following players are requested to report at the clubhouse at 1:30: Taylor, Greenhalgh, Simeneau, Robitaille, Foley, Deschamps, Dudley, Mathers, Sigrist, Sedon, Couillard, Robertson, Ridgeway, Stewart, Duhaime and Blanchette.

Von Porat Loses on Foul

COLISEUM, Chicago, Oct. 10—(AP)—Otto Von Porat, lanky Norwegian, returning to heavyweight competition after four months lay-off, lost on a foul in the first round of his scheduled eight round bout with Angus Snyder, Dodge City, Kansas, in the Coliseum tonight.

Sarazen Wins Mid-Atlantic Crown

BALTIMORE, Oct. 10—(AP)—Shooting a pair of 71's today, Gene Sarazen posted a total of 290 for the 72 holes to win the Middle Atlantic open golf championship at the Woodholme course.

The New York pro had a 77 in his first round yesterday and followed this with a 71 for the afternoon.

ACADEMY ELEVEN TACKLES HARDING TEAM TODAY

The Academy football team will play the fourth game of its series with Warren Harding high of Bridgeport this afternoon at Bridgeport and will be after its first grid victory over the Presidents in doing so. The schools first met in [illegible] and every contest between them has been a victory for Harding.

The Academy this year, though, enters this most severe test with a much better chance for victory than in any of the past years. The Wildcats, having won their first two starts over Chapman Tech and Hartford Bulkeley, look like a club that will be hard to beat. While not showing any great scoring punch in their work so far, they have been displaying an aptitude for taking advantage of all opportunities that present themselves and also have just as strong a defense as any previous N. F. A. eleven.

Their two victories have come from heads up ball in the pinch. They beat Chapman 18 to [illegible], on a recovered fumble and recovery of a blocked punt, while Bob Stockwell's interception of a pass was the only scoring play against the Hartford school.

The same lineup that has performed in the two previous games will start tomorrow, it is expected. This is Fitzgerald and Sheridan at ends, Cote and Crowell at tackles, Capt. Stevens and Goldberg at guards, Abugie at center, Zictoras at quarter, Stockwell and Geer at halves and Golembeskie at fullback.

THREE MAJOR GAMES ON AIR THIS AFTERNOON

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—(AP)—Radio's football season opens in earnest tomorrow with broadcasts of three important games by the two large networks. Various individual stations will put other games on the air. The National Broadcasting Co. will describe the Navy-Notre Dame game, the Army-Swarthmore contest and the Leland Stanford-Minnesota game, while the Columbia system will put on Navy and Notre Dame.

The schedule follows, all time being eastern standard:

NBC Chain: 2:15 p. m., Navy-Notre Dame; 2:15, Army-Swarthmore; 4:45, Leland Stanford-Minnesota.

CBS Chain: 2:15, Notre Dame.

At about 5 p. m. NBC plans to interrupt its Navy-Notre Dame broadcast for a 15 minute description of the Hawthorne gold cup races from Chicago.

YALE AND GEORGIA SET FOR BATTLE TODAY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 10—(AP)—Yale and Georgia today finished their training for their eighth football clash with secret practices in the bowl. Both squads held brief sessions devoted chiefly to signal drills.

Yale, playing its second consecutive intersectional game of the season, will start the same line tomorrow that was sent against Maine and Maryland. The starting backfield, however, will have three new men, Sullivan, Dunn and Crowley, who have been hooked up with McLennan. Sullivan and Crowley are sophomores, while Dunn was formerly on Albie Booth's backfield.

Georgia will start the same lineup which it used last week against Mercer.

A crowd of 40,000, including 8,000 Legionnaires who have been attending the national convention at Boston, is expected at the game, which is scheduled to start at 2:00 p. m.

CRIMSON HARRIERS WIN FROM NEW HAMPSHIRE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 10—(AP)—The Harvard varsity cross country team defeated New Hampshire, 19 to 44, here today over a new five and a quarter mile course. Ben Hallowell, Harvard, finished first, leading Hazen, of New Hampshire, to the mark by 30 yards. The winner's time was 28 minutes, 13 seconds. Five Harvard harriers finished ahead of the second New Hampshire runner.

The freshman race, a triangular event, was won by New Hampshire with 25 points. Harvard placed second with 44 and Holy Cross third, with 74. Raduazzo, of New Hampshire, led the field, completing the three miles in 16 minutes, 47 seconds.

OCKFORDS CLASH WITH WORCESTER STARS SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 10—The Ockfords grid outfit will make its third start of the season at Mercer field Sunday afternoon with the opposition composed of the strong Worcester All Stars. The largest crowd of the current campaign is expected now that football has the sports field all to itself.

Last year the local firemen beat the Bay Staters 12 to 6 and hope to repeat, but expect plenty of tough moments. The Ockfords will be re-enforced with two or three Coast Guard players.

STILL DISAGREE ON THE DRAFT PROBLEM

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10—(AP)—Agreement on the universal draft principle for the purchase of players by the major league from the minors, but a deadlock on the terms of purchase, was reported tonight as a conference between officers of the two groups here ended.

The two baseball groups reported a deadlock practically as strong as the one at the conference in French Lick, Ind., when the minor leagues supported the limited draft for selection of baseball players by the majors. The two groups must reach an agreement by December 1, next, or break off relations, it was said. This also applied to the dealings between the minor league clubs where players are farmed out by the majors.

The terms of acceptance of the universal draft, which the minors held out to the majors at the conference today, included that the price paid for players in the class AA leagues be increased from $5,000 to $10,000. The price for players from minors of lower classification would be graduated according to the class.

The minor leagues represented were the American association and the Pacific Coast and International leagues.

Included among the conferees were Judge J. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball; E. S. Barnard, president of the American league; Charles H. Knapp, president of the International, and Thomas J. Hickey, president of the American association.

FRENCH PITCHES ENS TEAM TO WIN OVER BANCROFT STARS

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 10—(AP)—With Larry French, Pittsburgh southpaw, and Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants hooking up in a pitchers' duel, a team of major league stars led by Jewel Ens, Pirates manager, defeated another collection of stars captained by Dave Bancroft 2 to 0 today in the first of a seven-game series in Cuba.

Hubbell let the Ens' team down with four hits while the Bancroft aggregation of stars collected six off French. Traynor, Pittsburgh third baseman, and Hurst, Phillies first baseman, scored the two runs, one each in the second and third innings.

The lineup.

HARVARD FACES RUGGED SPRINGFIELD TEAM TODAY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 10—(AP)—Harvard will receive its first football test tomorrow when a rugged Springfield team, which appears to have a powerful running attack, comes to the stadium. The Crimson, shy five regulars and a quartet of leading substitutes, was told by Coach Arnold Horween it must travel at top speed to outscore the visitors by two touchdowns.

Horween had high hopes that the conflict would uncover all of his team's soft spots, thereby giving him a week to harden them before tackling the Army here on Oct. 18. Both teams had a short signal drill today.

DARTMOUTH TO SEND REGULARS AGAINST B. U.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 10—(AP)—With most of his once injured regulars ready for action, Coach Jackson Cannell today appeared able to send his strongest Dartmouth team of the season against Boston university, here tomorrow on Memorial field. Cannell expects but little opposition from the Terriers, coached by Hilary Mahaney and Al Marsters, the latter one of Dartmouth's greatest football figures, and plans to use as many team combinations as possible to get his squad hardened for the following games with Columbia, Harvard and Yale.

VINCENT RICHARDS TO RETIRE FROM TENNIS

BOSTON, Oct. 10—(AP)—Vincent Richards, present holder of the American professional tennis title, today announced he would retire from that game next Monday.

COLUMBIA

Misses Phoebe and Georgette Kemp have returned to Brooklyn, after spending the summer with Miss Alice Clarke.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clarke left Wednesday morning for a motor trip through the White Mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Carpenter have returned after a week's auto trip through New England.

Mrs. Lillian Clarke left Thursday morning to visit her cousin, Mrs. Jennie Roberts, in Tenafly, N. J.

Rural Carrier Raymond Lyden motored to Boston, Tuesday, to take part in the parade of the American Legion. He made the trip with his brother, Harry Lyman, of Hartford, who also belongs to the Legion.

A meeting under the auspices of Tolland County Farm Bureau, was held Monday and Tuesday evenings in the town hall. Two group leaders from each town in Tolland county were instructed in adult games, that they may in turn instruct their various groups in the art of sociability and relaxation through like games.

W. C. Robinson, L. E. Winter, Aubrey Winter and C. E. Hunt went to Andover Wednesday afternoon as delegates from Columbia to the republican probate convention.

The republican caucus held Thursday evening nominated Clair L. Robinson for representative and Hubert P. Collins, W. C. Robinson and Donald Woodward for justices of the peace.

TWO MEN KILLED IN WRECK OF ILLINOIS CENTRAL FREIGHT

ARCADIA, La., Oct. 10—(AP)—Two men were killed in a wreck near here today of a west bound Illinois Central freight train in charge of Conductor J. L. Roan.

The men, unidentified, were believed to have been "beating" their way on the train. Train officers expressed the belief that there may have been at least one more killed in the wreck. Six cars plunged down the embankment.

The train was made up largely of tanks of gasoline but fire and explosion were avoided

NOTRE DAME-NAVY GAME HOLDS CENTER OF FOOTBALL SPOTLIGHT TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—(AP)—Standing out in the midst of the big intercollegiate football whirl which will be on in full swing throughout the country tomorrow are a number of games which transcend sectional boundaries and will go far toward determining ultimate supremacy.

For the second successive Saturday, Knute Rockne's stalwarts from Notre Dame hold a prominent place in the spotlight. Their suicide schedule carries them against the Navy in a big intersectional struggle in the new stadium at South Bend.

Mid-west and far west come to grips at Minneapolis, where Stanford's Cardinals hope to duplicate Vanderbilt's one-sided win over Minnesota.

Two of the best teams in the south—Georgia and Georgia Tech—sally northward to take on eastern opponents, Georgia endeavoring to repeat its victory of last year over Yale and the Golden Tornado heading for the hang-out of Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh.

The battle between the Bulldogs of the north and south will come close to filling the big bowl at New Haven where last Saturday a crowd of 50,000 turned out to watch Albie Booth turn a close battle against Maryland into a rout.

In another game between east and south, Pennsylvania is heavily favored to beat Virginia's unimpressive team at Franklin field.

The Centenary "Gentlemen" from Shreveport, La., much tougher than their name, rate close to an even choice against an Iowa eleven which already has met defeat. And Tulane may topple Texas A. & M. at Dallas. Washington and Lee, on the other hand, stands only an outside chance of stopping West Virginia at Charleston.

Out on the Pacific coast, Southern California fares northward to face the Washington State aggregation that upset California a week ago and California ventures against St. Mary's in a resumption of a rivalry that resulted in a scoreless tie last year.

Nebraska and Oklahoma, both contenders for the Missouri valley Big Six crown, oppose each other at Norman, Okla., and in the Big Ten the headline games are Northwestern-Ohio State at Evanston and Michigan-Purdue at Ann Arbor, with considerable interest also in the clash between Wisconsin and Chicago at Madison.

One of the best games in the east is that between Princeton and Brown at Tigertown. Last year, the Tiger lost to the Brown Bear by a single point and there is little to choose between them as they prepare to renew the conflict.

Many of the eastern leaders are content with another Saturday of practice games, the Army opposing Swarthmore; Harvard meeting Springfield; Cornell taking on Hampden-Sidney, of Virginia; Columbia playing Wesleyan, and Dartmouth facing Boston university.

But Colgate faces no set-up in Lafayette; Syracuse anticipates no walkaway against Rutgers, and New York university expects a struggle with Harry Stuhldreher's strong Villanova crew.

The remainder of the eastern headliners wheel into action against early season foes who offer fairly stiff opposition but little prospect of upsets. Army's powerful aggregation, with the newcomers, Ed Herb, Cy Letzelter and Ken Fields, wiping away memories of Red Cagle, will polish the new western attack against Swarthmore. Harvard prepares for rugged work ahead against Springfield. Columbia takes on Wesleyan. Dartmouth practices on Boston university. Syracuse meets Rutgers, and Colgate welcomes Lafayette. Pittsburgh has scheduled a trial horse in Western Reserve, Penn State should have little trouble with Marshall, and Holy Cross tackles Catholic U.

Some of the tightest action is scheduled among the smaller colleges in tilts between Johns-Hopkins and Lehigh, Wittenberg-Washington and Jefferson, Thiel-Geneva, Bowdoin-Williams, Tufts-Colby, Bates-Norwich, Amherst-Union, Maine-Connecticut Aggies, Hamilton-Rochester and Muhlenberg-Lebanon Valley.

VOLUNTOWN

About 9:30 Saturday evening, on Main street near the residence of Amos Phillips, a Ford roadster operated by Jean Paquette, of Taftville, and owned by Joseph Langlais, also of Taftville, was run into by a big sedan operated by Lloyd Barber, of Hopkinton City, R. I. Both cars were badly damaged. The Ford, which had been turned completely over, was a complete wreck. The Barber car lost a wheel and one of the doors was torn off. Glass and parts were strewn about the roadway. Miss Rose Bernard, of Taftville, who was riding with Paquette, suffered a sprained back and an injured left leg. Paquette received several cuts and bruises. Barber was arrested by Constable Edmond St. John, who turned him over to State Policeman Elton Nolan, of Danielson barracks, who checked up on the accident. Officer Nolan brought Barber before Justice of the Peace George B. Sheldon Sunday on complaint of Grand Juror McDonald, charged with drunken driving, not having an operator's license and driving an unregistered car. Judge Sheldon, on receiving a plea of guilty, fined him $100 and sentenced him to ten days in jail on the first count, and $10 on the second, and $5 on the third, to which was added costs of $17.50. Owing to the circumstances of the young man's family, $100 of the fine was remitted and Barber was taken to Norwich jail to work out the balance.

The republican party held its caucus in Marion's hall, Thursday evening, with a good attendance. The caucus was called to order by Chairman of the Town Committee Walter C. Tanner, who was chosen as chairman of the caucus, and Howard E. James was chosen to act as clerk. Miss Bertha Lewis and Thomas McDonald were appointed tellers. Nominations for a candidate for representative were called for and Walter C. Tanner was nominated and accepted the nomination in a brief speech. The following were nominated as justices of the peace: Warren E. Tanner, Thomas McDonald and William H. Kaufmann, after which the meeting adjourned.

A well-attended harvest supper was given Friday last in the Baptist chapel by Unity circle, No. 1250, Companions of the Forest.

The dirigible Los Angeles passed over town on Tuesday on its way to Boston. It was flying very low, giving the townspeople a splendid view of the giant airship.

The registrars of voters met Tuesday to receive applications of those who wish to enroll to vote in the November election and received a list of 34 new names, as follows: L. Armstrong, Lillian Armstrong, Bertha E. Bromley, John Brondson, Mary Brondson, Napoleon E. Blanchette, Ruth E. Blanchette, Ernest Carlson, Elmer Campbell, Gladys Campbell, Ethel Congdon, Edith Congdon, Frank Doherty, Anna Doherty, August Erickson, Albertine Erickson, Howard Gardiner, Albert Jolin, Rose Jolin, Joseph Langdon, Josephine Langdon, Lillian M. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Violette and family, of South Griswold, were Sunday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Violette and family were callers Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Violette.

HEBRON

Horace Porter celebrated his seventh birthday, October 8th, being given a party. Members of his class in school, second grade, were present and other young friends. The table was attractive with favors and goodies and a birthday cake with pink lighted candles. Many gifts were presented Horace.

Service was held Sunday morning in the chapel of the Congregational church, because of no heat in the church.

Rev. John W. Deeter's sermon subject was "Unoccupied Fields." There was a duet, "Sing of the Love of Jesus," by Mary E. Cummings and Albert W. Hilding, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Della Porter Hills.

The Bible Study class, which was postponed last week, met Thursday evening with Miss Marion Grott. The roll call and supper, of the Congregational church will be held in the church parlors this (Saturday) evening.

The Bridge club met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Mary F. Mitchell, two tables were played. Mrs. Gertrude M. Hough made highest score and Miss Clarissa Pendleton was second. They will meet next week with Miss Marion Grott.

George G. Munson of Hartford was in Hebron, Wednesday.

The airplane Waco, owned by Dennis A. Cox of Meriden, left The Hilding Brothers' field at 11 o'clock, Wednesday morning, after circling over the field three times for trial sailed gracefully off toward Meriden. Lieut. Markham, of Meriden Aircraft, and lieutenant of Connecticut's National guard, motored to Hebron Wednesday morning, arriving about 8 o'clock and found a broken push-rod. Mr. Cox and Lieut. Markham motored to Columbia, where Mr. Tucker repaired the rod and having replaced it in the engine Mr. Cox then in 30 minutes took off for Meriden. Mr. Cox has been pilot of airplanes for two years and has owned his blue plane Waco for nearly two years, without any trouble. Lieutenant Markham and Mr. Collins motored back to Meriden Wednesday noon after seeing Mr. Cox and plane out of sight.

A 3-months old fox-terrior, owned by May Garbich of Hebron, was run over by a hit and run driver Sunday evening. Dog lay stunned for over three hours. However no bones were broken and it is believed the dog will live. The same night Mr. Garbich lost his pet canary bird.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cournoyer and children Albert Jr., and Shirley, of Hartford, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Leslie F. Ward and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Bosly of New Britain, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sonnenberg, Plainville, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. K. Raymond and family Westchester, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Kibbe.

POETRY

Music Of The Rain

When the rain with rythmic cadence
Falls at night upon the roof,
Making music that is soothing—
Strangely holding care aloof—
Then I delve into the dearness
Of the thoughts they always bring,
As I lie and, musing, listen
To the tune the raindrops sing.

For the notes the raindrops fashion
Are intoning truant dreams—
Memory has long been hoarding—
Filled with mystic, glamour gleams,
And my heart, again, is knowing
Thrills and throbs of fancy, gone
When the raindrops, softly, sweetly,
Like a harpsichord, play on.

To the raindrops' dulcet chiming
Waken ghosts, in mem'ry's cleft,
Bearing love and joy of friendships
To the void, their going left.
And, to feel, again, their presence,
Bliss of heaven to me, brings,
When at night the constant rain's
On the roof, its music flings.

—Jessie Chandler in the Columbus Dispatch.

Fall Came Too Soon

Fall came too soon this year—I had not seen
The gorgeous grosbeak mothering his nest
While his brown mate goes in delightful quest
Amid the witchery of summer's green.

I had not seen the turtle-heads that preen
Their petals pearly-white, or felt the zest
Of the glad goldfinch singing in his best
Bright wedding suit, ere fall shall dim its sheen.

Fall came too soon—I had not walked with you
Along a little pathway, rose-entwined,
Where silence sings and there is time to hear.
Alas! a few swift smiles, a word or two,
And life sped on, too duty-bound to find
Time for the little thing my heart held dear.

—Grace Wight Buckle, in Boston Transcript.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Small Boy—I want a broom.

Druggist—What kind of a broom?

Small Boy—The kind daddy sweeps his hair with.—Buffalo News.

"Your son is accused of stealing. Have you anything to say for him?"

"Well, I'm glad he's begun to do something to support himself."—Optimist.

"Did you know your wife very long before you married her?"

"Oh yes, I've known her since we were the same age."—Echoes.

A toothpaste that removes the film from the teeth may be all right, but what we need is a hair oil that, when on the head, will remove the fog from the brain.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Have you got your horse paid for yet?"

"Almost. Two more payments and he will belong to the chap that bought it from the fellow I sold him to."—Syracuse Post-Standard.

Indignant wife (to incoming husband): "What does the clock say?"

Husband: "It shays 'tick-tock,' and doggies shay 'bow-wow,' and cows shay 'moo-moo,' and little pussy cats shay, 'meow-meow.' Now, are you satisfied?"—Reporter, Ashton-Under-Lyne.

Angus—Tavish Mactavish has a canny way of beatin' the mother-in-law game. He encourages his mother-in-law to live in his home instead of drivin' her away.

Sandy—I don't see how that trick solves the problem.

Angus—Why, mon, his mother-in-law is such a divvil his wife seems an angel in comparison.—The Pathfinder.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.

The Songs of the Frocks.

Reluctant to believe the summer has gone,
I dallied in putting away my frocks;
Now I find each one has a little song,
As I lay it away in its winter box.

The yellow organdy carols an air
Of when I met you upon the stair.
The blue linen sings of our good long walks
And the little white voile of some heart to heart talks.

The pink dotted swiss croons a little tune
Of when you first kissed me that night in June.
And the orchid hums with a minor moon,
'Cause you said it wasn't your favorite tone.

The peach frock chants of those days on the beach,
When heaven seem almost within our reach,
And I've dropped a tear on my grey chiffon.
For the day you left I had that on.

So it's good-bye to summer and good-bye, too,
To those dainty frocks—and good-bye to you!
Now I'm wondering what the winter will bring
And what songs winter frocks will sing in the spring.

Oct. 14—Club No. 2 meets in Buckingham memorial.

Oct. 21—Club No. 6 meets in North Stonington Grange hall.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES.

BETSY BOBBET: Letter sent as requested.

SHADY LANE: Your name has been added to the list of Social Corner members.

PROBLEMS BY THE PLANTS.

Dear Social Corner: Really I don't believe I have anything to say, but it begins to look as though some of us ought to emulate Sumac, or soon there won't be any Corner. I've been trying to follow Woodside's "rules of the game," but have given up in despair. Don't know just how many cans I have but think I'll call it enough.

Hope Prairie Chicken won't let such little mistakes keep her from writing. I think it was seven I counted in my last letter, but I don't mind, however, I'll correct one. Pernickety didn't send me a big basket of seeds but a big packet.

Have been looking over my garden to see what white flowers are left. Not many to be sure, but African daisy and Japanese aster still going strong, regardless of dry weather and two months or more of continous bloom.

Sister Rhody: My gailliardias and globe amaranth do not seem to mind the dry weather. The hardy ageratum you spoke of I see is also called thoroughwort in the catalogues. Is it like the wild thoroughwort? As for your hardy asters looking like wild ones I understand that the wild ones are garden escapes anyway, so no wonder they are alike.

Pedestrian: I have saved your letter on delphiniums and shall try it out on mine, as they have never done well. Have two year old plants that are not over six inches high, the large English hybrids, too. The butterfly dels did better as they have bloomed from seed sown this spring.

Wish Nonesopretty would tell us what flower she thinks of when she writes her name. I knew it as Johnny-jump-ups also, but Theoda has an altogether different plant in mind when she speaks of Nonesopretty (one I call catchfly) and I think Canterbury Bell thinks of still another. What about, C. B.? Also did you get the box of plants I sent and did they live? Part of those you gave me are living. I cannot be sure of the spirea until spring. If it doesn't come up then may I have another root?

Quid Nunc: Perhaps it may interest you to know that we found the real thing in Johnny-cake meal at a roadside stand in Rhode Island not long ago. If you would like to know more about it call me on the telephone, my number is 1868-2. It is the best meal we've had since we used to grind it ourselves.

Haven't met Pernickety and Sister Rhody yet, but have had the pleasure of meeting their mother. If they are as pleasant as she is they will make as acceptable an addition to the club meetings as they have to the Corner page.

WONDERS OF NATURE

Dear Social Corner Editor: I wish to thank you very much for my yellow slip and want you to know that I appreciate it very much. It is quite an inducement to get the members to write. I never gave it a thought that I would win a prize, but am pleased never the less.

While out in the garden one day picking beans I found something hanging to a dry stalk and upon investigating saw how pretty it was. It was pale green in color, and round and hung from the dry stalk by what looked like a black thread. This green case was decorated with gold dots and lines—real artistic, I thought, so I took it in the house, with the idea of giving it to a friend of mine who is a school teacher. I thought it might be interesting to her. Well I had it in the window in a flower pot so I would look at it every day and one day in particular I noticed it was a very dark slate color then the next day behold it burst and out came a lovely butterfly. It is so interesting to see the wonders of nature, how everything knows just the time to expand.

Now how gorgeous the hills and woods are with all the wonderful colors blending together and then how the leaves will fall down and make a carpet of many shades for us to walk on. Haven't we had a long summer? It seems that everything has had a chance to ripen before Jack Frost took them. Now if we will get the necessary rain to fill all wells brooks and ponds we will be ready for winter. Each season brings pleasant things and the cooler weather seems such a relief from such hot days as we have had. Cooler weather gives us more pep and energy. Health and happiness to all, from

WHEN 1492 STARTED TO SCHOOL.

Dear Social Corner Folks: Judging by the looks of our page some of us better get busy with our pens.

Bee True: Was much surprised to read in yesterday's paper you had two sons. When did that happen? I'm all behind the times.

Have been much interested in Pernickety's garden but I think I have one thing she hasn't. I planted some gladiolus bulbs left over from 1928 and they not only grew but one blossomed. They were not planted at all in 1929 but stayed in a paper bag upstairs in my front hall all of the time.

Reading Sumac's letter about going to school made me think of my first day in school. When school was called to order Mrs. D. told me I could sit in the front seat so I sat down on the recitation seat until Mrs. D. noticed me and put me in the right place. During the forenoon she asked me to come out and read and I truthfully told her I didn't know how to read. Then she told me to come out and learn how. We had no charts or other paraphernalia in those days. The teacher held a book in her lap and pointed to the letters with a penknife. How I used to admire that penknife. I don't remember but one blackboard in the room. The next year we moved into our new school house with blackboards all around the room and nice large pleasant rooms. Weren't we proud of them then! We went at 9 o'clock in the morning and stayed until 4 in the afternoon, never mind how small we were. There was no playing, no busy work and to draw a picture on our slates was almost an unpardonable sin.

Hope to see a nice long letter from Bonnibelle telling us about her trip this summer. What did you think of the country? I hope to take that trip again sometime. I liked out there very much. Did you see the open air market in Halifax? If you didn't you missed a treat. I suppose you went up on the fort and saw them fire the noon-day gun. Did you visit St. John's, N. B., and see the reversible falls? I'm a regular Yankee for asking questions. Won't ask any more now or the linotype man will think I'm a human question mark.

I'm glad, Last Rose of Summer, you had that nice trip to Provincetown. I've always wanted to go there but never have yet, but I keep hoping. Have you ever been to Plymouth? I always enjoy that place.

I wonder what has become of all of the writers in this place. I think they have either lost their pens, spilt their ink or have forgotten how to write. Perhaps it would be well to start an old-fashioned writing school.

After this letter has gone shall think of whole columns I wanted to say. Was always troubled with after wit.

CLUB 2 MEETS OCT. 14

Dear Cornerites: The meeting of Club 2 in Buckingham memorial, Tuesday, the 14th, makes our meeting for the second Tuesday come a little later in the month which I explained over the phone to several who called up. If you would get it fixed in your mind that Club 2's meeting is always on the second Tuesday. I hope all that have promised food will have it on hand; also that we hope for as good a company for dinner as we had at our September meeting. Come early and spend the day.

Catnip: I hope you will be with us again soon.

Golden Glow: I missed out seeing you. Saw Lonesome Pine in store in W. Thought you would be some where on street after coming from Club 1.

Strawberry: Guess you too were at Club 1. Saw you waiting to go home.

In Hartford I had a fine visit with Priscilla. Oh, how we chatted. Visited also Tiger Lily and her daughter, Burr.

We find Social Corner folks everywhere.

Trust Scottie is back home from Massachusetts visiting and will be with us again. Best wishes.

CALLA LILY (Club 2).

WIELDING THE PAINT BRUSH

My Dear Sisters and Editor: Now that the world series (Wilfred says, "World Serious"), is over, perhaps I can get a little work done. It seems as though the whole universe has turned upside down lately. Nothing happens as I think it is going to. At any rate, "I'm all up-sot."

I've been painting, too, if you please. I received a sample can of Nile green four-hour enamel. I had a tin tray that was quite heavy, but badly rusted, and I cleaned it and painted it two coats of the enamel. I pasted a picture of a bouquet of flowers in center and will shellac it. New tray!

Down at Beers house one day she gave me three cans, different sizes, that crackers came in. I painted them green and also a larger can I had myself. Hence a kitchen set to hold sugar, etc. Painted match-box, wall pocket, metal part of kitchen light and mirror frame all from same can, (sample, you know), of enamel, and still have a bit left. One day I found a can with some red paint, I didn't know what kind, but I painted the yard set that was made from bottle crates. A vase to be used for lamp, and my table lamp, it was polychrome, black with a touch of gilt, but now it is red and the shade is red too. My kitchen is painted yellow and tan and the green goes well with it. I have two larger cans for cake and bread but I'm afraid my can of enamel won't hold out for all of them. I wish some kind merchant would have another of those giving-away spells as I have a table made from a three-burner oil stove that I would like to paint green, too.

We are all very sorry to hear of the serious illness of high priest of Demeter, Charles M. Gardner. He is a bit better but it seems there is but little chance of recovery. He was to have been at Westerly grange for neighbor's night for the 12th consecutive year on Oct. 21. He has a wonderful personality as well as being an excellent speaker.

E. L. M.: We appreciated the ride a whole lot.

SUMAC, (Club No. 5).

GREETINGS FROM PRIMROSE.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Now that I have some new glasses and can write without tiring my eyes there is really no excuse for not sending a few lines to our beloved Corner. I have not seen or heard from many of our members since our meeting at Dayville. What a nice time we had! The location was ideal for such a gathering, right on the bus line and the hostesses were the best ever. The letters of late describing such wonderful trips have been very interesting and I would have loved to see some of the sisters' flower gardens we heard so much about.

Lady Neil: We were disappointed that you could not have us at your home but there is another summer coming. Hope you are much better than when you wrote me.

True Blue: The bed quilt pieces were received and forwarded to the sister who asked for them. Hope you can meet with us sometime, and I would like to visit at the Buckingham again.

Isadore: I take it you are living in the city. Long time since we met at Wildwood. Do you think we would recognize each other now?

Aunty Jane: I took your plate to Roseland Park's and had a nice visit with her.

Keziah Doolittle: Where are you and have you forgotten the slogan you once gave us, "Write short letters often?"

Last Rose of Summer: It is nice of you to share your war nurse with us. Perhaps you will tell us more about her at our next meeting. We shall be glad to write her. It is a little kindness one can easily do that will be appreciated.

Quite recently I read of a family who answered an advertisement of a welfare society asking to be notified of needy families. When the committee arrived at the address with their baskets they found the family in comfortable circumstances but they said, "We need neither food nor clothing, but we are suffering for kind attention. We have been here three months. We have been sick and lonely and no one has called or spoken one kind word. We are starved for kindness."

With best wishes, PRIMROSE.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

Dear Social Corner Friends: In the old days it seems to have been thought a simple matter to bring up children. But now we have the modern point of view of child development as a scientific profession and are slowly coming to realize that child training is a job for which thorough preparation is as necessary as it is for any other kind of work.

The child specialist now tells us "if the person can have the right physical, mental and social care through infancy and childhood, he will be perfect."

By this test we can see how seriously our work has failed, and how much we have to do now to bring human development up to standard requirements.

We need first to have the willingness to study each child as an individual and know that he has a personality constantly differing from every other child.

It does not do to say he has the same chance as the others and if he doesn't wish to be anybody I am not to blame.

We can learn much by studying children in general, but what we should do in any situation must depend on an understanding of all the forces acting on this particular child at this particular time and with a clear knowledge of what we expect to accomplish by our procedure now with this child at this time. Unless we have learned the general laws of child development we shall always be in danger of not understanding him and so of being unjust to the child.

No procedure is good unless it works for the best good of the child. That there can be no one patern of behavior for different children even for those of the same family has always been a surprise to one not used to children. But we know now that an infant comes into the world ready to respond to situations which call out strong feelings, to be afraid, to show pleasure at caressing motions, and that no two infants are alike in their ways of expressing their simple emotions. Individual differences appear at once, one baby is placid, another rebels at every new event. But no two children in a family live in the same environment, for no two children arouse from their parents' indentical responses in training and emotional attitude. Parental attitudes are affected by the parents' personal problems of the moment. Also the effect of each child's personality upon the other children of the family entirely changes the environment for each child. So being an individual is being different, separate from others—having one's own experiences which are different from those of other people. Personality is the sum total of an individual's responses to his environment—physical, mental, emotional.

Much interest is being taken in the work of the Yale School of Human Relations. They established their work in the public schools of the city nearly 20 years ago, but soon connected their work with the Yale Medical school. They said the physique of the school child is largely determined in the foundational years of infancy; but while the body grows the mind grows, too. Because of their interest in the early mental growth of infants, several hundred infants and young children from four months to five years of age where studied to ascertain their mental condition and development and their characteristic behavior at the different ages, and later a more intensive study of the mental growth of normal infants in the first year of life was undertaken. Their discoveries and teaching are very useful and helpful and any group may profitably study these common problems together and thus supplement their own knowledge by the experience and ideas of others.

MARJORY

SEASONAL ACTIVITIES.

Dear Social Corner Friends: The maple tree just over the pasture wall is beautiful this morning with all its brilliant coloring of red and orange. There are even a few patches of pale yellow on some of the limbs. I don't think the trees are as pretty this fall, do you?

I suppose it is a little early to dig gladioli but I wanted mine to dry out well before I stored them and the stalks were very dry, so the other night I got a fork and boosted them out of the ground. Some had increased a good deal and there were also many bulbs which had not grown to the size of the one planted. I have put them in a sunshiny room to dry and as soon as they are ready I will top them and put them in pasteboard boxes on a shelf down cellar.

My garden isn't as clean as I would like to have it but a few hours' work has improved its appearance greatly. There are more plants that need trimming and the paths should be scraped. There are so many apple trees near the garden that it doesn't need very much winter covering. The ash tree leaves come down from beside the road also.

I wish you might have seen the birds here a few days ago. They came to the gardens and the yard for weed and flower seeds. The cosmos were covered with goldfinches in their soberly pretty winter coats and sparrows were everywhere. Whole flocks of bluebirds—I really saw several—gorged themselves in preparation for their long trip south. These cool mornings make the chicadees happy and they have begun to sing more merrily and the bluejays are beginning to think about raids on the corn. I haven't seen any robins for two weeks but last night I heard a flock making a great racket down in the pines where they were evidently settling down for the night.

The portulacca on the wall are dead and the vines must be raked off. Did I tell you that wind and rains have planted seeds along the roadside? There were a number of plants that bloomed and I hope that there will be more of them next year.

Only one of the petunias I potted has bloomed yet and that is the oddest I ever saw. It has a green ruffled edge and a rose center. At first I thought that the green would fade out to white as the flower aged but there have been a dozen blooms and each has stayed green until it was gone.

PERNICKETY.

CLEARING THE GARDENS FOR WINTER

Dear Social Corner: Monday was such a lovely day for being outdoors that as soon as the wash was on the lines, William and I went to the garden to dig the dahlias. We left them to dry while we got dinner. Then we spent the afternoon digging the rest of our summer bulbs and putting them away. This is a task that I enjoy for it means the ending of one season's work and the beginning of another. In my mind I review this year's blossoms and plan how to raise bigger and better ones another season.

Like everything else, the dahlia plants suffered from the drought and the blossoms looked too wilted to pick. One new kind that I tried this year was Margaret Masson, a large, silvery pink of the decorative type. It was showy but was worthless for bouquets. I think this is a common failing of dahlias. The double show types are an exception for these are really good for cutting. Two kinds that I find very satisfactory are A. D. Livoni, a clear pink and Storm King, a pure white. Some gardeners seem to be afraid of robbing the plants for they pick only the flowers but when I want a bouquet of dahlias I gather whole branches with flowers, buds and foliage. I used to think that digging the tubers was a man's job but that was because I planted too large a clump in each hill. Now I have learned that the plants blossom more if smaller divisions are set out and moreover they are easier to dig.

As there has been no rain in over a month I thought it would be a good idea to harvest all the bulbs while the soil was dry. I find it easier to cut the gladiolus foliage before digging the bulbs. While they were in bloom I marked the gladioli with rags and wood labels. I also kept the faded flowers picked for the bulbs lose strength in ripening seed. It was interesting to see the differences in the bulbs. Some had none. I like to dig those that are a clump of four or five blooming size bulbs. The primulinus increase rapidly and I have more of these than I want.

Do you know why gladioli that are grown in mixture seem to deterioate, and finally contain only a few colors? Authorities state that there can be no mixture of varieties from use of corms for propagation. It is only by planting seed that new kinds are obtained. But when we plant the increase from the bulbs year after year, the more vigorous sorts will out number the weaker ones. Then we will not have the same proportion of colors that we had in the beginning. For several years I planted the bulbs saved from the same stock and my experience agrees with the statements given above. This year I bought a lot of new bulbs and enjoyed seeing them come into bloom. I took pains to keep these labeled for I am aiming to make them bloom even better next year.

This fall I shall have a plot manured and spaded. Then early in May I shall set the gladioli in rows a little wider than my steel rake. The bulbs will be set close together and by varying the depths of planting they will bloom over a long period. The large and small bulbs will be set in the same bed because that is another way to lengthen the time of blooming. I shall use the rake often to cultivate between the rows. A little commercial fertilizer will be worked in around the plants when they are about six inches high. The gladioli that I set out early this year did not seem to be affected by the drought. But I had some late planted ones that had small blooms because they needed more moisture. One year I set my bulbs in mulch paper and saved myself the labor of hoeing and watering them.

The bulbs and roots of yellow and orange montbretias, white summer hyacinths, rose fairy lilies, red oxalis, and red and yellow cannas are all dug and stored in the cellar to rest until spring. If any of you have tried raising tigridias I wish you would write about them.

Sumac: Do you know whose husband you were hitting in that last paragraph of your letter?

Woodside: Don't you feel the need of a vacation after doing all that canning? I received your letter and will answer it soon. And I promise not to forget Black-Eyed-Susie.

CLUB 6 MEETS OCT. 21 AT NORTH STONINGTON.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: The October meeting of Club 6 will be held at North Stonington Grange hall Oct. 21 with Lauret as hostess. Come all who can and don't forget your cup, plate, knife and fork; also something for the dinner.

Woodside: Would like to write to you. Will you send me your address?

Sumac: Too cold to swim, isn't it?

E. L. M. and Prairie Chicken: Glad you enjoyed the account of my trip. To the lady—Mrs. W. D. R. of Norwich—who wrote me about the trip: Thank you for the nice letter. Will answer as soon as I can.

Don't forget the place and date of the next meeting.

Lee: Try and come-down.

WESTERLY

RUBBISH FIRE CALLS OUT LOCAL DEPARTMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 10—A fire starting in a rubbish heap at the rear of the store of the Montgomery-Ward company, 13-19 Canal street at 11:50 a. m. Friday was the cause for sounding the whistle alarm of the Westerly fire department from Box No. 57, corner High and Canal streets. The Seagraves and Ahrens-Fox pumpers and Hook and Ladder truck, with force of firemen and Fire Chief Robert Bonner and Third Assistant John Patton were soon on Canal street only to find that to reach the scene the trucks and firemen had to proceed up High street and take the driveway at the rear of the United Theatre.

The heap of rubbish made up of pasteboard boxes and packing material made excellent fuel for a fire thought to have been started from a carelessly thrown cigarette and was located in a bad place just at the rear of the large doorway leading to the elevator. Manager F. E. McKnight directed the use of four hand fire extinguishers upon the blaze and the fire was out upon the arrival of the firemen at the scene. There has been a campaign conducted recently on both sides of the Pawcatuck river to have the menace of such rubbish piles removed and a number of Westerly merchants have been warned to abate such nuisances.

Real Estate Transfers

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer:

Oct. 9, Otis H. Chapman to Ethel N. Chapman an undivided five-sixth part interest in a certain tract or lot of land on the south side of the Boston Post road, bounded easterly by land of Chase heirs, southerly by land now or formerly of M. A. Chapman and westerly by land now or formerly of James B. Thompson.

FUNERAL

Miss Ellen C. Donahue.

Funeral services for Miss Ellen C. Donahue whose death occurred at her life-long home in Westerly on Tuesday, were held on Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock at her late home, 15 East avenue. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. J. B. Capesius, S. M. During the service Martin H. Spellman sang "Thy Will Be Done."

Interment was at St. Michael's Old Cemetery, where the committal service was also conducted by Fr. Capesius. The bearers were C. Leo Higgins, James McCormick, Thomas H. Morrison, Thomas Holliday, John Fuscaldo and James Lynch.

Harold W. Merrill Post Legion auxiliary on Wednesday held its annual meeting with the president, Mrs. Abial Brown, presiding. There were 25 members present. Chairmen of the various standing committees presented their annual reports.

One application was accepted. Another application for membership was received.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Fred Raithel; first vice president, Mrs. Harold Wennberg; second vice president, Mrs. John Taillon; secretary, Mrs. Fred Young; treasurer, Mrs. John Sullivan; chaplain, Mrs. Arthur Clemens; historian, Mrs. Joseph Sicilian; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Maurice Laing; executive committee members, Mrs. Abial Brown and Mrs. Grover King.

Chairman Everett A. Kingsley of the Westerly republican town committee, who was a Westerly visitor in Wickford, R. I., on Friday, is making progress on plans to take the place of the old-time redfire torchlight parade and street corner rally of other days—something more in keeping with modern times. It is the very latest wrinkle in campaigning, the dinner-dance rally.

The republican town committees of Richmond, Hopkinton, Charlestown and Westerly will meet Monday night in Westerly town hall to discuss plans for the dinner-dance rally which has been set tentatively for Halloween night in the state armory in Westerly.

It is hoped that United States Senator Jesse H. Metcalf, Governor Norman S. Case and some other speaker of national prominence will be present to deliver addresses. Lieut. James G. Connolly will be invited to preside at the dinner as toastmaster.

Columbus day observance will be held in Westerly on Sunday when the week end activities will begin on this (Saturday) night with a dance to be held at the state armory on Dixon street from 8:30 o'clock until midnight. Music will be furnished by the Lawrence Ballroom Boys of New London.

The main celebration will be on Sunday, and the day's program will open with a big street parade at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The members of the various societies in the procession are asked to assemble at 12:45 o'clock.

The start of the parade will be on Broad street and the line of march will include Granite street, Grove avenue, High street, Broad street, West Broad street, Liberty street, Stillman avenue, Canal street, Pleasant street and Pierce street, terminating at the High street athletic field.

At 2:30 o'clock, following the parade, there will be a football game between the team of Narragansett council, No. 21, K. of C., and the Woodhill Tigers of Providence. A band will furnish music between the halves.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Arnold of New York city arrived in Westerly on Thursday night to be the guests of Mrs. Alice T. Rathbun.

Mrs. Arthur L. Perry was a business caller in Providence on Friday.

S. Wesley Macomber was a visitor in Providence on Friday.

The Misses Mary L. Burdick and Ruth C. Burdick were week end visitors in Rutland, Mass., the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Kelsey.

Robert Drysdale was a business caller in Providence on Friday morning.

George E. Phillips returned to Providence on Friday morning after a short visit at his Misquamicut beach summer home.

Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, has been confined to his Elm street home the past week end by illness.

Councilman and Mrs. Isaac G. Smith and sons, Isaac, Jr., and Gordon W., were Westerly motor visitors on Friday afternoon in Worcester, Mass.

Miss Lina Beckwith of New London, formerly of Westerly, was a visitor in town on Thursday.

STONINGTON

John Lopes returned on Thursday from Boston.

Westerly College club met with Mrs. William N. Palmer at her home, Rocky Ledge, Wednesday afternoon. A paper entitled "Paul Robeson, the Negro," was read by Mrs. D. E. G. Taylor. A social hour followed the session. Tea was served by the hostess.

Mrs. H. S. Babcock is visiting friends in Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mason and family closed their home here Friday and returned to New York for the winter.

Ocean View commandery conducted a whist party after the meeting in the rooms of the Holy Ghost society Thursday evening.

Commander Harold Hubbard, of James Harvey post, American Legion, returned Thursday from the convention at Boston.

The town school board held a meeting Wednesday evening and organized. Thomas B. Platt was chosen chairman and Loranzo D. Fairbrother secretary.

To Arrange for Whists

Miss Emily Robinson, Miss Evelyn Briggs and Mrs. Louis Conrad have been chosen a committee to arrange for a series of whists to be held this winter by Barbara Frietchie council, Daughters of America.

Delegates from the First Baptist church of Stonington will attend the Baptist church convention which will be held in the First Baptist church at New London, Oct. 16, 17 and 18. The church will be represented by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rathbone and the Sunday school by Charles O. Ryon.

The burial of Jean Pendleton, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Avery Pendleton, of South Orange, N. J., took place Friday afternoon in Stonington cemetery.

The board of relief of the Stonington Fire district, Edward Monjo, Alexander P. Loper and Joseph A. Vargas, will hold a session Monday evening.

STAFFORD

Dr. and Mrs. F. P. Batchelder returned to Boston Monday after spending a week in town.

Mrs. J. Hough who has been visiting at Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pinney's was called away by the death of a cousin.

The water situation is getting serious; a number of wells are dry.

There was no mid-week service this week as the work has not been completed.

Mrs. Maro B. Hatch spent Monday with relatives in Willimantic.

COMMUNIST CANDIDATE FINED FOR HOLDING STREET-CORNER MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 10—James Reid, of 854 Atwells avenue, Providence, announced as the communist party candidate for United States senator from Rhode Island, appeared in the 3rd district court as his own attorney today. He was charged on Sept. 30th with the use of certain highways, namely, Dixon street and Railroad avenue, for assemblage and public gathering in violation of an ordinance passed recently by the Westerly town council.

"I plead not guilty and admit sufficient evidence to convict and give notice of appeal," said Mr. Reid in answer to the complaint. Prosecutor Ferguson intimated that a plea of "nolo" was meant as he had never heard of a "not guilty" plea as above. Mr. Reid said that was not his intention as he did not desire any leniency and then said he would plead guilty and admit sufficient evidence to have an appeal taken as he wanted a test case. He said he had written the Westerly police department that he did not want costs in the case mounted up by the placing of a large number of witnesses on the stand by the state.

Police Lieutenant George H. Champlin was the first state witness called and testified to having been present in front of the Dixon street state armory in Westerly the night that Mr. Reid made his address standing on an orange crate with a gathering of some 40 or 50 listeners and although sidewalks were not blocked street traffic was slowed down and the speaker had no permit for the gathering. Upon cross-examination Lt. Champlin said he did not ask for a permit and upon further inquiry from Prosecutor Ferguson that he did not hear an altercation the speaker had with one of his listeners.

Mr. Reid said that he had legal talent engaged to represent him in Westerly but when so many attornies are running for public office they did not want to jeopardize their political aspirations by getting entangled in such a case and his advice had been to have his case go to a higher court. Mr. Reid said that in Connecticut communists had a similar experience in not being allowed to hold public assemblages and that the higher courts had decided that certain restraining laws were un-constitutional. He said that the stopping of the public assemblages was a conflict of the lesser political interests of the state and in many cases laws were followed by many in an insipid, slavish accord where they were only enacted by a few to which Prosecutor Ferguson drew his attention that the town ordinances are passed by the town council which is elected by the people, and that Mr. Reid's statement "he did not believe in abject surrender to the laws" was met by Mr. Ferguson with the rejoinder "That's why you are here." Mr. Ferguson reviewed the seeking of a permit by Mr. Reid on the evening of the meeting and his answer that it should be asked for in writing and through proper channels, and declared in his belief there had been no violation of public rights on the highway when the permit was denied at 7:30 p. m. on the evening in question. He said that he was a believer in free speech as all were believers in free speech but that the sentiments uttered should be such that they were not likely to cause a public disturbance and the meetings held so as not to obstruct traffic or jeopardize the lives of those legally on such highways. The prosecutor said that the chief of police under certain circumstances might have granted a permit to hold a public assemblage but when the sentiments of the communists' speaker were those of communistic Russia they were wholly detestable to all those who were a liberty loving people. If the sentiments uttered were objectionable, riots would follow and then the public rights would be violated.

Mr. Reid said it was unfair for the state to inject into the case evidence which he was not prepared or the state prepared at the time to contend. Judge Williams declared the accused was not before the court for what he had said and although he "had sought no quarter by his own statement" and "had thrown down the gauntlet to society and to the state" nevertheless he would not allow him to depart the court thinking that he was a martyr, and that "this court is disposed to look with great leniency on what he had said and done". Mr. Reid said he did not wish to appear as a martyr but wanted to hold a political meeting as other parties had done and that several previous requests had been made the police to hold meetings and they had met with refusal. Mr. Ferguson said the requests were to hold communist meetings.

Judge Williams found the accused guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $5 and costs. Notice of appeal was given and bond continued.

Other matters before the court were: New writs entered before the calling of the docket—Lewis Silverstein vs. Joe Stedman. Unanswered and continued two weeks.

MONTVILLE

ONE DRIVER IS IN JAIL—DENIED RIGHT OF WAY

In Montville justice court before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church Friday afternoon, Grand Juror Walter J. Auwood had two cases to present. Clarence Clark of Maple street, Palmertown was arrested by Officer Howard Lamphere of Montville early Wednesday morning on a charge of failing to grant right of way. Clark caused a truck which is owned by the Connecticut Power Co. of New London, operated by Christopher Beebe to crash into a state highway fence at Pequot. The accused was fined $5 and costs. In default of payment Clark was taken to the county jail in Norwich by the arresting officer to serve a sentence of about 20 days.

Appeals From Fine

In the continued case of Stanley Radgowski, of Montville, arrested by State Trooper John Smith on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor last Saturday evening, counsel demurred to the complaint. The demurrer was overruled and the court fined the accused $100 and costs. An appeal was taken by the youth's attorney, Thomas M. Shields, of Norwich. A $200 bond was posted by Radgowski's father for his appearance at the next session of the court of common pleas.

Mrs. Scott Rood, of Lisbon, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Eva Burdick, and sister, Miss Ethel Burdick.

ROBT. HALLISEY DEAD—WAS NATIVE OF NORWICH

Robert Hallisey, 54, of Old Mystic, died suddenly Thursday night. He was stricken with a shock at his home and Dr. Leon, of Mystic, was called. Finding him in a serious condition, the doctor ordered him removed to the hospital. The Stonington ambulance rushed him to Westerly hospital, but Mr. Hallisey died before reaching there. He was born in Norwich, Sept. 9, 1876, the son of John Hallisey and Sarah Cummings, and came to Old Mystic to live when about 14 years of age. He had been employed in the Mystic Woolen Co.'s mill in Old Mystic, until the closing of the mill recently. He is survived by two brothers, William and Daniel Hallisey, and a sister, Mrs. Walter E. Burdick, all of Old Mystic. He was a member of St. Patrick's church in the village.

Hunting in New Brunswick

Dr. Chester R. Chapman left Thursday morning for a hunting trip in New Brunswick, Canada. In the party were several other men, including Roy Robinson, of Mystic, and Dr. Chapman's brother-in-law, Francis Allanach, of New London.

Notices that the list of taxable property in the town must be filed with the board of assessors on or before Nov. 1 have been posted in the village. Those who neglect to hand in their list will be subject to an additional 10 per cent. The board of assessors is Frank Buckley, Walter Wolverton and Albert Joel. The last two named were elected to the board Monday.

A fire drill was held in Noank grammar school Thursday afternoon. The alarm was sounded by the caretaker, James Ashbey. The 204 pupils and teachers vacated the nine rooms in 30 seconds. This is the best time made by the pupils in their fire drills.

The Shaw family has moved from the Fitch house on Elm street to the Rathbun house, Front street.

A number from the village attend-ed the democratic caucus held in the town hall in Poquonoc Wednesday evening. Moses W. Rathbun of Front street was nominated one of the candidates for representative in the general assembly and Judge Arthur P. Anderson was renominated as their candidate for probate judge. George M. Fish was nominated for justice of the peace.

Scouts Going On Pilgrimage

A meeting of the Boy Scouts was held Wednesday evening. A number of the local scouts are planning to attend the annual pilgrimage to the grave of President Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, L. I. The trip is to be made on a coast guard destroyer from New London. Scoutmaster George LaRargue will accompany the boys. The scouts are to wear their uniforms. The coast guard band will accompany the boys.

Several local members of the auxiliary to the Lawrence Memorial hospital in New London attended the reception given Wednesday afternoon at the Mohican hotel by Mrs. Nicholas Pond.

A series of popular Sunday evening services at the Baptist church is being arranged by the pastor, Rev. Ernest F. Weise, to continue through the fall, winter and spring. It has been decided to merge the young people's society with the evening congregation so that there will be one evening service instead of two, which will be at 7 o'clock. It has been planned to hold a live, wide awake, popular service for one hour, in which the devotional period will be in charge of two members of the Young People's society. There will be a chorus choir made up of young singers about 12 years old, who will be chosen from the members of the Young People's society and the Sunday school. The later part of the meeting, each Sunday night will be varied from week to week. One night of each month the feature will be a musicale by the senior choir of the church. Another night, each month, a visiting pastor will speak, one with whom Rev. Weise will exchange pulpits. The third Sunday night the feature will be a stereopticon picture celebrating special days, which will include Columbus day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and Lincoln's birthday. The fourth Sunday will be given over to the review of the month's current events in the light of religious interests, by some member of the church. The service will have a special appeal to each age group in the community. The first Sunday night service, Oct. 12th, will be a patriotic program in celebration of Columbus day with stereopticon slides beautifully colored and shown on the screen. The pastor will speak on the subject America in story and song.

90 ACTIVE ISSUES AVERAGED GAINS OF 3.5 POINTS IN STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.— (AP)— The stock market changed its mind swiftly today, but not until it had given Wall street some anxious moments.

Prices declined broadly under active selling during the first three hours, then turned about and rallied more rapidly than they had broken. Closing prices averaged 3.5 points net higher in 90 active issues, although net gains of 3 to 8 were numerous.

Total sales of 6,296,918 shares, more than 1,000,000 above yesterday's turnover, indicated the turmoil in the market. During the decline stocks were dumped overboard with a persistence reminiscent of last November; on the advance they were bought with equal eagerness as the shorts sought cover.

Other markets also improved. Wheat and corn closed 1 to 2 cents higher, while bonds recovered substantially from their early fit of weakness. Cotton worked higher after encountering some pressure and finished with net gains of 10 to 12 points.

Once more the stock market's depression seemed to come from within, for the business news was hardly of a character to encourage such feverish liquidation. Wall street had expected a soft session in view of yesterday's failure of a member firm, but it was not prepared for so violent a demonstration of nervousness and timidity. The rally, which was the most vigorous upturn since October 1, seemed to do much toward bolstering confidence.

The most important development of the day off the stock exchange was the steel corporation's tonnage statement. As everyone had expected, this showed a substantial decline, amounting to 155,866 tons for September, as compared with the August loss of 441,851 tons. It was pointed out that the September 30 backlog of 3,424,338 tons, the smallest, incidentally since May, 1928, was on the whole, reasonably satisfactory considering the present condition of the industry which still lacks the support of railroad and automotive buying.

Automobile production in September, as estimated by the industry's national chamber of commerce, revealed the expected decline. The number of units turned out was placed at 226,361, a decrease of 3 per cent from August, of 47% from the September, 1929, total and of 40 per per cent from the five-year average for that month.

Reviewing the week in trade, Dun's noted a quickening of retail business which, however, was termed a "wholly seasonal trend," Bradstreet's labelling the general situation as "fair," found real trends difficult to measure and called attention to the recent weakness of the speculative markets.

The government crop report revealed that the recovery in corn from the drought damage had been larger than was thought probable a month ago, for the October 1 estimate of 2,047,000,000 bushels was 64,000,000 above the September 1 forecast. In wheat, the estimated increase aggregated 2,000,000 bushels.

The weakness of stocks in the morning again was accompanied by orderly trading, although some confusion appeared around noon when some of the amusement shares broke sharply. U. S. Steel, General Electric, Consolidated Gas and American Telephone made new lows of 2 to 4 point losses, but these breaks were much smaller than scores of others. Fox Film, General Theatre Equipment, Utilities Power and Light, Loew's, Allied Chemical and others were off 5 to 10, and there were larger recessions in issues having thinner markets. Industrial Rayon, for example, tumbled 18.

The recovery, making its debut in the motion picture group, ran quickly throughout the list. U. S. Steel, dropping to 144 1-2, closed at 149 1-2, the top, for a net gain of 3 1-8.

Allied Chemical, Worthington Pump, Air Reduction and Eastman Kodak turned their losses into advances of 6 to 8 points. American Water Works, American Can, General Electric, Johns Manville, Westinghouse Electric, Consolidated Gas, Electric Power and Light, and New York Central closed 3 to 4 higher and Union Carbide, American Telephone, United Aircraft, Columbia Gas, Woolworth and Pennsylvania rose 2 to 3 above the previous final. Auburn Auto and Case were up 5.

Weak spots were well scattered through the list at the close, but they were mostly in inactive shares, although DuPont finished with a loss of nearly 6. Boston and Maine was down 18 and Youngstown Sheet and Tube 5. Fox, General Theatre and Utilities Power and Light A were off 1 to nearly 3.

Wheat was helped by large weekly exports as well as by the turn in the stock market and finished 2 1-8 to 2 3-8 cents higher. Corn rose 1 to 1 1-4.

Foreign exchanges eased, and South Americans were quoted slightly lower. The Argentine paper peso made a new minimum.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.— (AP)— Wheat prices developed notable strength today after early setbacks, and climbed as much as 3 3-8c a bushel from the day's bottom level. Active buying on the part of previous sellers was an outstanding feature. Diminishing receipts of wheat and liberal export clearances attracted special attention of traders, and so likewise did statements by a leading authority here that wheat values had been thoroughly deflated months ago, that commodity purchasing power was the lowest since 1850, and that there was absence of intrinsic connection between stocks and grain.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1 7-8a2 3-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 3-4a1 3-8c up, oats at 3-8c up, oats at 3-8a1c gain and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 25c.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to downturns in hog values.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP) —Commercial failures in the United States increased this week to 473, R. G. Dun and company reports. The figure is 26 in excess of last week's total of 447 defaults, and 105 more than the 368 insolvencies reported in the corresponding week a year ago.

Public offering is expected shortly of a block of 39,641 shares of class A common stock of Municipal Telephone and Utilities company by the investment affiliate of the company, Municipal Utility Investment company. These shares represent treasury stock and will bring the total number of outstanding class A common shares to 82,100, with 200,000 authorized.

A special meeting of stockholders of Creole Petroleum corporation has been called for November 7 to vote on a proposal to increase the authorized capital stock from 6,000,000 shares to 7,000,000 shares, the additional funds to be used in furthering the development of the company's Venezuelan concessions.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Oct 9—(AP)—Treasury receipts for October 8 were $3,589,976 29; expenditures $13,240,296.25; balance $286 750,572.72.

MONEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.— (AP)— Call money firm, high 2; low 2; ruling rate 2; close 2 per cent. Time loans steady, 60 days, 2 1-4a2 1-2; 3-4 months, 2 1-2a3; 5-6 months, 3. Prime commercial paper 2 3-4a3. Bankers' acceptances unchanged.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.— (AP)— The swing of the pendulum in speculative sentiment converted a selling movement into a rally in the curb market today, coincident with the sharp reversal on the big board. While the closing was irregular, bulls took heart from the manner in which shorts had been forced to cover as the market leaders rebounded after plumbing new depths for the current decline.

The market experienced the busiest session in many months, sales for the day totalling 1,607,700 shares. In contrast with the dullness that has developed in many previous upturns, there was no slump in activity during the afternoon as prices shot upward.

Utilities made a strong finish, virtually every pivotal stock in the group showing a net gain. Electric Bond and Share finished at 59 1-8, 3 3-8 above the previous close, and six above the low of the day. American Super-Power and Niagara Hudson were up 3-4 each. American Gas and Electric soared 4 3-4 on a large turnover. Utilities Power and Light recovered about half of its loss, and was off 1 3-8 at the close.

Standard of Indiana and Cities Service were the leaders of the petroleum group which closed fairly steady. Cities Service slumped to 22 1-2 but rebounded to 25, for a 1-2 point gain. Standard of Indiana reacted 1 3-4 in the morning but regained all but 3-8 of its loss. Humble was 1 higher, and Gulf, and Vacuum were unchanged. Cosden was the weak stock of the group, finishing at 7 3-4, a new year's low.

The downward movement in the early hours brought a sharp reaction in investment and holding company shares but most of the losses were wiped out later, and in some instances converted into gains. Goldman Sachs dipped to 9 and closed at 12, up 1 1-2 net. Ungerleider was depressed to 13, compared with a previous low of 17 but regained all but 1-4. Blue Ridge, and Shenandoah were virtually unchanged at the close. Prince and Whitely Trading common moved narrowly and was 1-8 higher. The preferred sold off 6 points and regained 5.

The sharpest losses among miscellaneous industrials were on thin sales. Loews rights dropped 25 points. Grosse and Zlackwell preferred 26, and Crowell Publications 27 3-4. Deere was a strong stock in the specialty group, rallying 6 points. Driver Harriss, Dresser Mfg. A, American Cyanamid B were steady to firm.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—For the fifth successive session, South American bonds continued to decline today and many European issues were weak.

In the domestic list, there was a mixture of gains and losses and on the whole, the price movement was somewhat improved, finding some relief from the pressure of the past few days, in the strong finish of equity issues. Some bonds which moved down sharply during the morning closed steady or in some instances with net gains.

Savings banks and other institutions were reported to be very active on the buying side, and the market experienced the busiest session in months, total turnover of $19,680,000, representing a $2,000,000 increase over the previous day.

Losses in the South American list were on the average from 1 to 4 points, and there were extreme declines of 14 points in Columbia Mortgage bank 7s, and Porto Alegre 7 1-2s, and a 19 point slump in Rio Grande Do Sul 8s, which at 51 is off 58 points from its year's high.

Brazilian 6 1-2s found good support and both issues were up a point or two. Sao Paulo 8s of 1936, and the 7s of 1940 were steady but the 8s of 1950 sagged six points. Rio De Janeiro 6 1-2s slumped six points. Brazilian Central Electric Railway 7s slumped 3.

As in previous sessions the liquidation extended to obligations of many South American countries. Argentine 6s of February 1961 and May, 1960 were firm but other issues of that country sagged 2 to 5 points. Bolivian 7s of 1958 were off 5, and the 8s dropped 3. Chile government and mortgage bank issues were sharply depressed. The six per cent bank issue of 1962 lost 7 points. Uruguayan bonds were mixed. The 8s rallied 2; the 6s lost 5.

Buying support that appeared for some of the government issues that have been under pressure gave the European group a slightly better tone, but the majority of changes were on the downside. The best recovery developed in German 5 1-2s, Italy 7s, and Austrian 7s. German 5 1-2s sagged nearly 2 points during the day but closed 1-4 net higher. Weak spots in the European section included German 7s, down 1 7-8 to a new year's low, Belgium 7s and 6 1-2s, Greek 6s, New South Wale 5s, and Rumania 7s.

The domestic section was generally lower although the pressure against prime bonds lessened and buying support enabled a few to regain small gains. Many losses of 1 and 2 points were sprinkled through the list, and the turnover in some railroad and stock privilege issues ran into large figures. American and Foreign Power 5s which have been weak, rallied 2 points and other domestic bonds affected by the South American situation were generally improved. International Telephone bonds held steady for the first time in several sessions.

U. S. governments were steady to firm.

MOOSUP

The seven o'clock service at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening next will be one of novel and especial interest with elements of the worshipful, the dramatic and the instructive featuring the program. One or two worth while books will go to somebody in the audience, this to be the beginning of a free distribution of some of the best and newer books by the pastor. Dr. Tingley will give the first in a series of "Glimpses From Broadway," the presentation being "The Last Mile" or "The Six Men of The Death House," drawn from the play of the same name that has been running for nearly a year in New York. There will also be ten minutes given to the question box, the following questions to be answered: "Who are the reds and what is their desire in this country?" "Would you consider it sensible for all the people of our town to gather in the churches and pray for rain?" "Why did President Hoover need such strong protection when on his visit to Boston?" "Why is Sir Thomas Lipton so beloved by all nations?" "Why was Mr. Hearst recently expelled from France?" The service is public. Transportation both ways will be available for those coming from Central Village. This will be "Husband and Wife" night.

Voting Lists Posted

Printed lists of the voters in the town of Norwich, which have been prepared by Registrars Tyler D. Guy and Joseph B. Downes, have been posted in the main corridor at the court house for public inspection. The registrars advise that persons who have changed their residence from one district to another consult the lists to see if their names are in the right district.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Political meetings and parades were the rage in Norwich fifty years ago. Companies of the Garfield and Arthur Guards, the Garfield Cadets, etc., were meeting, electing officers, selecting gay uniforms and making plans for torch light processions. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of October, 1880, are as follows:

Monday, Oct. 4, 1880—Chief Hendricks of New Haven presented to Chief Engineer Carrier of this city with a piece of leather hose, 53 years old. It was in good state of preservation. It was closed with a hand sewn seam formed over a welt. It will be an interesting relic to firemen.

Hand picked winter apples are selling at retail in this city at $1.25 a barrel.

Grapes were selling in this city, Saturday, at five cents a quart.

Mr. Cunningham of Boston, proprietor of the Norwich Horse railroad, ran the horse cars free on Saturday for those people along the line wishing to be present at the firemen's parade. It was the opening day of the Falls branch of the road.

The trustees of the Bill library of Ledyard have engaged the Rev. Charles T. Weitzel of Norwich to deliver a lecture on the "Famous Libraries of the World" which this year will be on Wednesday at 10.30 a. m.

Tuesday, Oct. 5, 1880—Mr. Fred H. Butts of Norwich Town, a young gentleman with many friends, left for Boston, yesterday, to engage in the heavy hardware business with Messrs. Hinckley and Bradlee. Lots of good wishes go with him.

The following officers were elected at the regular meeting of the Arcanum club, last evening: President, Walter Fuller; vice president, Fred A. Byrnes; secretary and treasurer, C. W. Lanman.

At a meeting of the Garfield Cadets last evening, the following officers were elected: Captain, J. W. Blackburn; first lieutenant, S. W. Evans; second lieutenant, E. M. Gallup; orderly sergeant, C. D. Wilcox.

Wednesday, Oct. 6, 1880—The largest American flag in the state was quietly thrown to the breeze from the premises of Mr. George Hall on Laurel Hill avenue, yesterday. It bears the name of Garfield and Arthur and is the first campaign flag that ever waved over that section of the city.

The horse cars will commence running on the Falls route Thursday and will make nine trips a day, each way.

"Fatinitza," the first of the peoples' course of entertainments, is to be presented at Breed hall, this evening. Well rendered, it is an excellent opera. Undoubtedly it will be largely patronized in this instance.

The New London fire department has its annual parade today. Five bands have been engaged to furnish the music. The New London Northern Railroad Co. will sell excursion tickets to all that wish to attend at a greatly reduced price.

Thursday, Oct. 7, 1880—The Wait Fire Zouaves have adopted for their uniform a blue coat, with red vest, red pantaloons, white sash, white leggings, and white hat, trimmed with a red tassel. They are to meet Friday evening in Ripley's building to drill and receive their uniforms.

The schools of the West Chelsea district closed yesterday for the week, to afford an opportunity for the teachers to attend the teachers' institute at Westerly, which opens today and continues through Friday, under the supervision of the commissioner of public school of Rhode Island.

A delegation of members of the Norwich Literary society attended a social gathering at the residence of Mr. Nelson Packer of Preston, yesterday afternoon. There were some 60 persons present.

The old soldiers gathered for duty in the republican service, last night. One hundred and five veterans signed the roll and they will make their first appearance next week, on Friday evening as an escort to Gen. Joe Hawley, whom they ever delight to honor.

Friday, Oct. 8, 1880—At a meeting of Co. D, of the Garfield and Arthur Zouaves, last evening, Orderly Sergeant George Marsh was elected second lieutenant, vice, Horace Saunders, resigned. Charles Bennett was made orderly sergeant in place of George Marsh, promoted.

A splendid regalia of purple and gold, the property of Dr. O. G. Bailey, member of Palmyra Encampment, I. O. O. F., of this city, is on exhibition in the window of Mr. H. E. Haskell on Main street. It is said to be the finest outfit ever owned in these parts.

About 20 members of the Blackstone Hose company visited New London on Wednesday and were royally entertained by the Konomocs.

Twenty-two names were added to the Garfield veterans list yesterday. The veterans meet this evening at republican hadquarters to perfect their organization.

Saturday, Oct. 9, 1880—The Garfield Rockets propose to be on hand at the next republican parade. The factory at which the rockets are made, at Bridgeport, has just burned down and the manufacturers are unable to supply them. But sufficient have been picked up around the country to enable the club to make a good show next time.

The greenbackers in this neighborhood held their congressional convention in Uncas hall yesterday. Thomas E. Ryan of this city, presided. Dr. Wolfe of Mystic was nominated to represent this district in congress.

A grand republican torchlight parade is contemplated for this city on or about the 29th. At least 1,000 Boys in Blue are desirous of coming here

"SAY WHEN"

A COLORFUL ROMANCE BEHIND THE FOOTLIGHTS OF A NEW MUSICAL SHOW

"ONE, two, one, two, kick!" shouted Sammy Martin as the chorus again went into motion. "Don't forget that break in the refrain! One, two, one, two—now—the break!"

Scattered about in the semidarkness of the theatre sat the principals of the cast. In a box seat a slender blond girl was talking quietly to Larry Hill, the leading man. Gladys Bennett was very young and lovely. Though she was only the star's understudy, her heart was centered in the success of the show. In an aisle seat near the orchestra pit Harry Marks, the producer, sat beside John Dale, who had written the libretto of the musical comedy.

"Sammy doesn't seem to be doing so well with that number," remarked Dale, his eyes upon the chorus at work on the stage. "I'm getting worried, Harry."

"I'm not worried about Sammy Martin," said the producer. "He's the least of my troubles. He's worked with me before. Give him three more rehearsals, and he'll have these girls stepping off their numbers like clockwork. It's the principals that are worrying me."

"Why, what's wrong with them?" asked Dale in surprise. "I haven't noticed anything."

"It's Joyce Day," said Marks. "She's just walking through her part. We've been rehearsing for two weeks and she went up in her lines in the second act yesterday." The producer glanced about him, striving to peer through the semidarkness of the theatre. "She's not here yet —and rehearsal was called for 1.30."

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked Dale. "Isn't she satisfied with her part?"

"If she isn't you'll hear about it," Marks laughed grimly. "She'll be after you to rewrite the whole book if she doesn't think she is getting all the breaks. I'm afraid of Hill, too. You've given him a light-comedy juvenile role and he's going to 'mug' it to death; he always does."

"I'm afraid I don't get you, Harry. Remember, this is the first show I've been actively connected with; all my work has been along the novel and short-story line. What do you mean by 'mug,' or whatever it is?"

"Mugging? Why, that means that he's going to make faces and overact every chance he gets, and if he does Day is going up in her lines. She's a temperamental idiot when she thinks some one is tryingto kill one of her speeches." Mark shook his head. "She's probably lunching with young Keen Farnsworth again today. The boy doesn't realize it, but he's letting her make a fool of him."

"Is he in love with her?"

"He thinks he is, but I doubt it. I can't say very much, though. As you know, John Farnsworth is backing the show—and the boy means everything to the old man."

"Yes, I realize that," said Dale, thoughtfully, as he continued to watch the chorus go through the number. "Just how does that little Bennett girl fit in the picture? I haven't been able to figure that out yet!"

"Gladys Bennett? It's a funny situation—and when I say that I don't mean there's any big laugh in it for me. From what the old man tells me, Keen used to be quite crazy about the girl, and Farnsworth still likes her a lot. Farnsworth refused to back the show unless Gladys had the star part, so I had to agree."

"Then what's Joyce doing in the cast?"

"Simply this. I don't believe that the little Bennett kid can handle this part; I'm afraid to open with her playing the lead. We're handing the old man a lot of bunk. When he drops around to see a rehearsal I let Gladys take the part and he's satisfied. When he's not here Joyce plays the lead just as she will do when we open."

"What are you going to do if Farnsworth gets wise?" demanded Dale.

"There will be the dickens to pay. But I've got a lot of money of my own tied up in this thing, too, and I'm not taking any chances of the show being a flop. Joyce steps in when we open and it will be too late for Farnsworth to kick very much then."

"So the old boy is pulling the 'angel' stuff with the little Bennett girl, eh?" remarked Dale.

"You would think of that," Marks grinned. "You're all wrong, John. The way I get it, Farnsworth was an old friend of Gladys' father before he died. He knows the kid's heart is centered on the stage and he wants to give her a break. I have a sneaking idea that he wouldn't be hysterical with grief if his son fell in love with the girl."

"Then Farnsworth's not so hot on this infatuation of Keen for the leading lady?"

"You said something. The old man's no fool. He knows that Joyce is playing the boy for his money."

The piano and the chorus ceased abruptly as a man who had been sitting across the aisle from Marks and Dale got quickly to his feet and moved down so that he stood just beyond the orchestra pit. He was tall and gray-haired and seemed to be very much in authority.

"Let that number go now, Sammy," he called. "We won't wait any longer for Miss Day." He turned and glanced behind him. "All right, Harry?"

"Sure," called Marks. "Go ahead, Ed; you're directing the show."

"O K." The director turned again to the stage. "Everybody on stage!" he called out loudly. "First-act people only." He glanced at the box at his right. "Miss Bennett, will you run through Miss Day's part, please?"

The piano player started the opening notes of a tender little love song as Larry Hill and the fat comedian disappeared. Gladys Bennett sighed and shook her head as she came slowly down stage and began to sing. As she finished the verse and started the refrain the chorus came dancing out from the wings.

There was a faint flutter and a whiff of strong perfume as Joyce Day finally made her appearance, hurrying down the aisle to where Sprong, the director, stood.

"So sorry to be late," she said as she reached him. "Don't you think I'd better do that number myself?" she smiled. "Not that Miss Bennett isn't capable, but there's no need of her bothering to go any futher now that I'm here."

"Rehearsal was called at 1.30 prompt, Miss Day," said Sprong impatiently. "It's nearly 3 now."

"I know," said Joyce as Harry Marks strolled down and stood nearby. "But I've been lunching with Keen Farnsworth. I'm sure Mr. Marks understands."

"Certainly," said Marks quickly. "I guess it's all right this time, Ed."

"Now listen, Harry," Sprong's tone was impatient. "If you want me to stage this production every one must be on time for rehearsals—including Miss Day."

"Oh!" exclaimed Joyce angrily. "I'm tired of these scenes—this constant argument. If it happens again—I—I'll walk out!"

"Now, Joyce," Marks' tone was pleading. "Don't say that—the show can't open without you." The producer frowned and shook his head as he caught the director's eye. "I'm sure that Mr. Sprong did not mean to offend you."

"Of course not," said Sprong quickly. "I'll ask Miss Bennett to let you take the role at once."

"Thank you," Joyce's tone was very cold and polite.

Sprong glanced at the stage. Gladys Bennett and the chorus were just finishing the number that they had been going through while the others were talking.

"That's fine, Miss Bennett," the director called, "Miss Day is here now. I'm sure you won't mind if she takes the part herself."

"Not at all, Mr. Sprong," said Gladys.

Joyce had already started toward the stage. Her smile was just a trifle forced, it seemed to Gladys, as she passed the leading lady at the stage door.

THE girl dropped down in one of the seats in a stage box. She sat there watching all that went on about her. Gladys did not like the trick that the whole company was playing on Keen's father. He had always been nice to her, treated her almost as though she were his own daughter. It was not quite fair to John Farnsworth to make him believe that she was going to be the leading lady in the show when she wasn't to be at all. Secretly, Gladys wished that she might be able to play the part all of the time, not just when John Farnsworth came to rehearsal and at intervals, such as the one that had just passed, when Joyce had failed to appear.

As she sat there Gladys found her thoughts dwelling upon Keen. He was such a nice boy and they had had such good times together when he had been in college. Then they had drifted apart. Keen had gone into the banking business with his father in New York and Gladys had spent two seasons with a stock company in the west. At first there had been letters, many of them, and then the times that she heard from Keen grew less and less frequent and at last they had ceased altogether. The girl had been too proud to write, for she felt that the boy had lost all interest in her.

Now, after two years, Gladys had come to New York and succeeded in getting a part in "Say When." The producer of the show had brought John Farnsworth around to one of the first rehearsals in the hope of getting the banker to take a financial interest in the production. Then Keen's father had discovered that the daughter of his old friend was a member of the cast. He had been delighted and had told Marks that he would back the show if Gladys were given the leading part.

Keen's attitude had hurt Gladys. They had been such good pals during his college years, but now it was so different. They were still friends —good friends—but Gladys knew that the old companionship was gone. Keen had changed in those two years since last they had been together. He had become lost in the glamour of Broadway and its people.

Gladys realized the change in the boy far better than he did himself. She knew that he was madly infatuated with Joyce Day, and the knowledge was not easy to face, for Gladys had found that deep in her heart she loved Keen Farnsworth. It had been her love for the boy that had made her willing to go through with her part in the deception of the elder Farnsworth in regard to the real leading lady of the show. Inwardly she rebelled against the idea of tricking John Farnsworth, yet she knew that by doing so she was pleasing Keen; and, after all, that mattered most to her.

GLADYS sighed as the rehearsal progressed. Then she suddenly brightened as a tall and good-looking chap dropped into a seat beside her.

"Hello, Keen," she said softly.

"Lo, Glad," said Keen, in an undertone. "How's it going today?"

"Fine," answered Gladys, her eyes upon the stage, where Joyce was going through a little love scene with the leading man.

"Joyce certainly puts that part over, doesn't she?" There was a note of admiration in Keen's voice. "She's a great actress!"

"Wonderful!" said Gladys softly, trying to keep a faint hint of bitterness from her tone.

She knew that Joyce was not making any effort to play the part as it should be done. She was merely speaking her lines and making very little attempt to act. Her work was uninterested, stilted.

"You know, Glad," said Keen softly, "sometime, when you've been on the stage as long as Joyce has, you may be able to play a part as well as that!"

"I wonder if I will?" Keen did not detect the faintly scornful note in Gladys' voice.

"Of course you will," said Keen earnestly. "I'm sure of it."

"Thank you." Gladys smiled at him, and then she grew serious. "Keen, I don't like this trick that we are all playing on your father."

"What do you mean?"

"The way I always take Miss Day's part when he comes to a rehearsal."

"Oh, that," Keen laughed. "No harm done at all. Dad has quite a crush on you, you know; your father and mine were such good friends."

"That's just it," said Gladys. "And it's because of that friendship that I hate the idea of deceiving him. Keen, wouldn't it be better if he knew just what was going on?"

"Of course not." There was a note of alarm in Keen's voice. "You mustn't even think of anything like that, Glad. Why, that might make dad so angry that he would refuse to back the show—and then we'd all be sunk."

"And you think it's fair not to tell him?"

"Yes, it's quite all right," Keen smiled, his eyes upon the stage. "Besides, I promised Joyce that I wouldn't tell him—ever!"

"Oh, I see." Gladys found it hard to speak.

Keen seemed to have only one thought, and that was Joyce. He was willing to deceive his father, to let him be tricked as he was being now, merely because the leading lady had asked Keen not to say anything.

"You must promise me not to say anything to dad," said Keen. "Will you, Glad?"

"All right," Gladys answered softly. "I promise."

"Fine," Keen laughed. "I'm sure we all want the show to go over with a bang. I know that Joyce can put it across!"

Before Keen more than half realized what had happened the girl had left the box and rushed through the stage door to seek the seclusion of the dark understage passageway and there give way to tears.

Keen frowned. He did not understand Gladys at all lately. She had always been such a good little pal. Her idea of telling his father about the deception that the company was practicing alarmed Keen. That would never do. He forgot the girl for the moment as he heard the director speak.

"Can't you put just a little more life in that scene, please, Miss Day?" Sprong demanded. "You are supposed to be heartbroken when you learn that the man you love thinks you've deceived him."

"Just what would you like me to do, Mr. Sprong?" demanded Joyce coldly as she came down to the footlights.

"Act!" answered Sprong tersely. "I don't like to be finding fault all the time, but you're just walking through the part——"

"Wait a minute," called out Marks as he came hurrying down the aisle to where Sprong stood. "Put Gladys in the part, quick. Farnsworth's secretary just phoned and said that he had left for rehearsal."

"I'm very glad of that," said Joyce, glaring at Sprong. "I'm not in the mood for argument today!"

"This idea of changing the lead every time Farnsworth comes around is going to ruin the show," said the director impatiently. "But you're the boss, Harry."

"Good, then put Miss Bennett in the part."

"Miss Bennett? Somebody call Miss Bennett," shouted the director.

When John Farnsworth reached the theatre a few minutes later the rehearsal was again in progress and Gladys was playing the part of the leading lady.

"Everything is going fine," said the producer. "Miss Bennett is getting better and better in the part all of the time."

"Splendid," said Farnsworth with a pleased smile. "I was sure that Gladys had talent if she was given an opportunity."

"You were quite right," said Marks hastily. "Don't you want to sit down and watch the show for a while?"

"Certainly." Farnsworth's expression was very thoughtful as he caught sight of his son. The latter was sitting close to Joyce, his eyes upon her face and listening eagerly to every word that the leading lady said. Apparently they were both oblivious to the presence of any one save themselves at the moment.

Farnsworth frowned. He was afraid that Keen might lose his head over Joyce Day, might even marry her, and he felt that would never do. He had thought that by giving Gladys a leading part in this show he might revive his son's interest in the girl, but apparently his plan had proved futile. The elder Farnsworth realized the only thing he could do was wait and hope that Keen would tire of the leading lady.

As further rehearsals continued things grew more and more difficult. It was Harry Marks and Edward Sprong who found more to worry about in the situation than anyone else concerned. So engrossed was Joyce with the constant attentions which Keen paid her that she displayed even less interest in her work than before. She continued to go through her part in a casual, indifferent manner. The result was many stormy scenes with Sprong—verbal battles during which both the director and the leading lady threatened to walk out and leave the show. Each time they were persuaded to remain through the pleading of Harry Marks.

IT WAS not until the night of the dress rehearsal that the situation reached a climax. Marks had been right in what he had said about Sammy Martin's work with the chorus. They now went through their routine like clockwork.

An hour before the start of the rehearsal all of the cast had reached the theatre. Most of them were already made up and dressed, ready to go on. Tonight the theatre was different than it had been during all the weeks of rehearsal. Now there was an orchestra in the pit and the cast was all ready to go through the show just as it would be presented to the public the following evening. The stagehands were at work. The electrician's crews was ready and waiting for their light cues. In the audience sat a few friends of the producer and the cast who had been invited to attend the dress rehearsal.

Harry Marks came hurrying back to where Sprong stood in the wings just a few moments before the rehearsal was to start. The director wore an anxious expression upon his face. He looked at the producer nervously.

"Well?" he demanded abruptly. "What did you do about old man Farnsworth? Will he be here tonight or can we put Joyce in the part and really get this show into shape?"

"We're safe," said Marks with a smile. "Gladys Bennett is taking care of Farnsworth. She has told him that the dress rehearsal won't be until tomorrow afternoon. He believed her and is taking her to dinner and then to a show. So there's no danger of his being around here tonight. It sure would spoil things if he was!"

At a flash of a light near his stand the orchestra director started the overture with a wave of his baton. Three minutes later they swung into the introduction of the opening chorus and the curtain rose on the first act of "Say When."

Both the producer and the director had moved out front and they now sat in a lower box, watching tensely.

At the finish of the opening number there was a bit of dialogue between Ted Green and Larry Hill.

Then Joyce came on and promptly forgot her lines.

"She's terrible!" remarked Sprong softly, his eyes upon Joyce.

Harry Marks did not answer. He was mentally losing all the money invested in the show.

The dress rehearsal went on, but it moved haltingly. More than once Joyce forgot her lines, and there were pauses that in the actual performance would have been painful. As time passed the leading lady grew worse and more nervous.

The rest of the principals, and there were a number of them besides Larry Hill and Ted Green, were becoming unnerved by the leading lady's faulty performance. Before the first act was more than half over, Sprong had rushed back stage and from the wings he halted each scene that did not go smoothly and had the actors run through it again.

It was nearly 3 in the morning before the second act came to a halting close. Sprong was wild. He blamed everything upon Joyce, and Marks was forced to agree that the director was right.

As the final curtain went down Sprong rushed out on the stage to where Joyce stood smiling as though she felt she had given a splendid performance.

"This is the worst thing I've ever seen in my life!" shouted Sprong, glaring angrily at the leading lady. "Miss Day, I thought you could act. If we play the show like this when we open tonight it will be the worst flop that ever moved from Broadway to the storehouse!"

"Don't you like my acting, Mr. Sprong?" demanded Joyce coldly.

"Acting?" exclaimed Sprong. "Do you really call it that?"

"That's quite enough," said Joyce, her eyes flashing as she turned to Marks, who now stood behind Sprong. "I'm through, Mr. Marks! I wouldn't go on with this show for all the money in the world. I've never been so insulted in all my life!"

"But—" stammered Marks.

"Never mind pleading with me," said the actress impatiently. "Nothing you can say will make me change my mind. I won't play in this production, and if you don't like it, you can see my attorney in the morning." Her tone was scornful. "Good night, gentlemen!"

Joyce turned and started for her dressing room. Keen, who had hurried back stage at the end of the act, met her in the wings.

"Joyce," he exclaimed, "what's wrong?"

"I'm quitting, Keen," she answered. "I can't stand such treatment as this!"

"But, Joyce, what about the show? I hoped that you would put it over —for dad's sake. He has a lot of money tied up in the production, you know."

"Please, Keen, don't bother me now," said Joyce hastily, and she smiled at him appealingly. "See me tomorrow at my hotel, dear boy. Now I'm too excited and angry to think of anything—but I won't go on with the show!"

KEEN nodded as she moved away. He felt that she might have gone through with it for his sake, for the sake of his father. He was beginning to wonder if Joyce was quite as glorious as he had thought her to be. She appeared to be a good bit more self-centered than he had realized.

"And that's that," said Sprong to Marks. "If Joyce Day wants to walk out I don't try to stop her, not after the performance she gave tonight."

"Nor will I," said Marks. "But what are we going to do, Ed?"

"There's only one thing that we can do. Put Gladys Bennett in the part."

"What? Why, you're crazy!" exclaimed the producer. "You mean to say you're willing to let that kid open cold tomorrow night with the few rehearsals she's had?"

"Yes, and I think she can get by all right. She knows her part, anyway!"

"Good!" said the producer, and then he shook his head. "They say a rotten dress rehearsal usually foretells a good opening performance. I hope they are right!"

It was the opening night of Harry Marks' latest production, "Say When." Already the theatre had begun to fill with the usual first-night patrons that made a Broadway opening such a colorful affair.

Back stage the callboy was already rushing about knocking on dressing-room doors and giving the first call for the overture. All of the cast were in a frenzy of excitement. They were all very nervous, for they felt that the whole success of the big production rested upon the slender shoulders of Gladys Bennett and they were afraid that she might fail.

The girl realized how much depended upon her, knew that by doing her best she would be helping the man who had been so kind to her—and the father of the boy that she loved. She had made up her mind to put her part across or die in the attempt. So intent was she upon that one thought that she did not give herself a chance to realize the slightest bit of stagefright.

KEEN stood in the wings as she rushed up from her dressing room. He caught her hands in his as she reached him.

"Luck, Glad," he said softly. "I'm rooting for you!"

"Thank you, Keen," she whispered as she heard her cue coming from Ted Green as he made his exit.

Gladys made her first entrance, smiling vivaciously; spoke her few lines and then began to sing her number.

Harry Marks was standing beside Keen now in the wings, watching and listening tensely.

"She's good!" he said, half to himself. "If only she can keep it up!"

"If only she can keep it up," repeated Keen as he watched the slender girl, and his words were almost a prayer.

Gladys was good. She was putting all of her heart into the part, bringing out everything that there was in it. Her role was that of a timid, lovesick schoolgirl, and Gladys was giving a remarkably clever and finished performance. From her first number the audience was with her, finding something new and satisfying in her fresh young charm and beauty.

By the middle of the first act Marks was in a very excited state.

"She's a wow!" he murmured to John Farnsworth, who sat beside him in the back of the house. "She'll have Broadway eating out of her hand before the piece is playing a week. We've got something in this show—and that little girl is putting it over with a bang!" The producer turned smilingly to Farnsworth as Gladys made an exit. "Listen—hear the hand they are giving her. She's a riot!"

"I hoped she would be," said Farnsworth quietly.

All through the performance Keen stood there in the wings watching tensely. He suddenly knew that Gladys was very dear to him. He had found Joyce in a very disagreeable mood that morning, and now he realized that his infatuation had been a very foolish thing. Joyce had but one thought in life and that was herself. But Gladys—she was different. He did so want her to make good—wanted it more than anything in the world —and he felt that she was doing so now. They had always been such good pals.

The performance went on at a swift pace. Now, in spite of the faulty dress rehearsal, the opening was moving with exceptional smoothness. The others in the cast evidently found Gladys' pep and ginger contagious, for they, too, were getting everything that they could out of their parts. Larry Hill had caught the tempo from the girl and he was playing his role with a deft, whimsical touch that bore no trace of the exaggerated facial expression which Marks had feared when he had spoken of the leading man's inclination for "mugging."

THE show ended in a riot of applause. "Say When" looked as if it were going to be one of the biggest musical-comedy hits of the season.

"Glad," exclaimed Keen as he caught the girl coming off stage. "You're wonderful!" Then suddenly, before either of them quite realized what had happened, he held her close in his arms and was raising adoring kisses upon her lips. "I love you—I—love you!" he murmured.

Gladys had forgotten everything save that she was in Keen's arms and that he was telling her that he loved her. Nothing else mattered now. He loved her—he loved her.

"What's this?" demanded a voice from behind them.

Keen quickly released the girl and turned to find his father standing there smiling at him.

"I love her, dad," said Keen quickly. "I guess I've always loved her, but I've been such an idiot that I didn't realize it before."

"And I love him, too," said Gladys shyly. "So much."

"Knowing that only adds to my delight at your success tonight, Gladys," said Farnsworth. "I knew that I was right when I insisted that you be given the leading part of this show."

Gladys and Keen looked at each other intently, and each knew that the other would not tell John Farnsworth how close he had come to never seeing Gladys play the lead in "Say When."

"You were wonderful," exclaimed Sprong as he came hurrying up to where the others stood, with Marks close behind him.

"Glorious!" said the producer with a faraway look in his eyes. He was mentally making money.

And it was a very angry leading lady by the name of Joyce Day who read the glowing write-ups that the critics gave the opening performance of the new musical comedy, "Say When."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At The Y. M. C. A. Sunday

The popularity of the moving picture services for several seasons past has led the management of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. to arrange for another series this season.

On the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock in the large "Y" gymnasium the first of the series will be held and the adult public is specially invited. Boys and girls fifteen and over will be admitted.

On this occasion the first half of the very high grade picture, "Noah's Ark," will be shown and the last half of the feature will be shown on the following Sunday. This fine screen production has been greatly enjoyed by large audiences in many places, and doubtless many Norwich people will be present tomorrow afternoon.

This picture is not the Biblical story of the same title. It is true there is a certain amount of symbolism in it, showing how the heart of man has changed little through the fifty centuries which intervened between the flood and the great war.

The story begins just before the outbreak of the war and the victims of a train wreck, on reaching Paris, find the conflict is on. Then they are carried into the tumult of the nations. At one point a bomb hits a building where they have taken refuge and they are thrown into the cellar. There a Chaplain begins to tell them of Noah and the Flood and as they are carried back to the ancient time, the story is made a reality. Appropriate music will be furnished by Mr. Waldo Newbury, and a brief talk will be given.

Ten pounds of flake ice has been found to melt twelve and one-half times as fast as a 10-pound block.

ETTA KETT — There's Always a Way— —By PAUL ROBINSON
I HEARD YOU'RE TOSSING A LITTLE PARTY ETTA — IS JACK GOING?
NO - POOR BOY IS WORKING IN A RESTAURANT TO PAY HIS WAY THRU SCHOOL AND THIS IS HIS NIGHT TO BE ON DUTY WAITING TABLE - ISN'T THAT A SHAME?
YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE TOLD HER THAT - SHE'S GOT A CASE ON JACK AND IT'LL JUST TICKLE HER PINK IF YOU HAD TO CALL OFF THE PARTY BECAUSE HE COULDN'T COME!
WHO SAID I CALLED THE PARTY OFF?
LOOK THERE SHE GOES - STRAIGHT FOR THE RESTAURANT SO HE CAN WAIT ON HER - LET HER GO SHE WON'T GET IN -
- BECAUSE WHEN JOHN SAID HE COULDN'T GET OFF - I CALLED UP HIS RESTAURANT AND RESERVED ALL THE TABLES - I'M STAGING THE PARTY THERE TONIGHT

CENTRAL VILLAGE

The republican caucus held in the town hall Thursday evening was not largely attended. The call of the meeting was read by Stuart M. Ellsworth. Frank Sheldon was elected moderator and Harold Lewis, clerk. The following were nominated to be voted on at the state election: Representatives Walter Cleland, of Plainfield, and Peter Chabot, of Wauregan; judge of probate, Roy Playdon, of Moosup; justices of the peace, James Royal and Arthur Dennis and Arthur Mathewson, of Plainfield, Frederick Johnson and Addison Tracy, of Wauregan, Bradford W. Danielson and Richard Daggett, of Moosup, George R. Torrey, of Central Village. No town elections will be held this year in town.

Ulysses G. Cooper, of Point Judith, R. I., is in town today.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Turcotte, who have been making their home with Mrs. Turcotte's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Tillinghast, since their marriage, are going to keeping house in Moosup.

Announce Engagement

Mrs. Earl Bragg and Mrs. George W. Loring were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Lawton, in Brooklyn, at a bridge party given by their daughter, Mrs. Catharine Lawton Tingsley. During the evening the engagement of Mrs. Tingsley to Donald H. House, of Hartford, was announced.

Accident in Fog

Four young men in an automobile coming from the south about midnight Thursday night met with an accident near the boarding house corner. Probably on account of the dense fog, the machine was driven against the sidewalk curbing, breaking the windshield glass and breaking off two of the wheels. None of the occupants seemed to be seriously injured, although one had his leg badly cut. He was taken into the home of Wilfred Paradis who lives nearby. A state cop investigated.

Miss Minnie Newport, of Hartford, is visiting relatives here, where she formerly lived.

The Texas state health department has begun a campaign to have children inoculated against contagious diseases.

FIRST SPEECH OF NEW LONDON MAYOR IS TO WELCOME THE STATE C. L. OF C.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 10. — The two-day meeting of the 16th biennial convention of the State Catholic Ladies of Columbus began this evening when the delegates assembled at the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service. There were about 60 delegates in attendance and they were welcomed to New London by Mayor E. Frank Morgan, who made his initial address since becoming mayor last month. Mrs. Mary Herlihy, president of the local assemblage, presided at the opening of the meeting and then turned the gavel over to Miss Margaret Crane, Hartford, state president of the order. Most of the evening was occupied in degree work. The meeting will continue throughout Saturday.

Comdr. W. N. Derby, U. S. coast guard destroyer force, Division No. 3, based at Boston, visited the state pier today and conferred with officers of the local destroyer force.

LIEUT.-CMDR. JEWELL ASSUMES COMMAND OF C. G. SECTION BASE

Lieut.-Comdr. R. C. Jewell assumed command of the United States coast guard section base here today, succeeding Comdr. C. H. Dench, who has been transferred to command of the cutter Tallapoosa, which will be based at Juneau, Alaska. The Tallapoosa is now being overhauled at Baltimore and when the work is completed the cutter will perform patrol duty in the vicinity of Behring sea. Comdr. Jewell was until recently executive officer at the state pier and in this city has been succeeded by Lieut. F. C. Pollard.

About 100 Boy Scouts in this city will be given a trip, two weeks from tomorrow, to Oyster Bay to the grave of President Theodore Roosevelt, conducting a brief service at the grave. The scouts will be taken to Oyster Bay on one of the coast guard destroyers and will be accompanied by the coast guard band.

C. A. Hamilton, 57 Franklin street, this afternoon reported to the police that he had lost his pocketbook, which did not contain money, but did contain his driver's license, membership card in the American Legion and papers valuable only to the owner.

Ramistella Boy Missing

Ernest Ramistella, 42 Jefferson avenue, reported to the police tonight that his son Benedict was missing from home and requested that he be given assistance in finding the youth. The boy, who disappeared yesterday, is described as being 15, about five feet four inches in height and medium build, light hair, blue eyes. When he disappeared the boy wore a riding suit, with leather puttees, and wore no hat. He was seen this afternoon riding on a motorcycle with two companions, headed towards Hartford.

Mrs. Wanda Ryane Recovering

Mrs. Wanda Ryane, 34 Brewer street, who attempted suicide several nights ago by swallowing poison after a quarrel with her sweetheart sailor, Louis Weibel, continues to improve at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. It is believed that she will be discharged within a few days. A warrant for the arrest of Weibel on a charge of adultery has been issued by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer and the sailor is under arrest at the submarine base. As soon as advices are received to that effect, Weibel will be delivered to the custody of the civil authorities and he will be prosecuted in the police court. It is also probable that Mrs. Ryane, whose husband is a sailor on the U. S. Eagle boat 35, will also be arrested on the same charge whenever her condition warrants such action. Ryane and his wife have been estranged for several months.

CORNERSTONE LAYING OF A. M. E. CHURCH TODAY

Arrangements have been completed for the laying of the cornerstone of the A. M. E. Zion church, Belden street, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The several pastors of the New London churches and others interested in religious work, have been invited to attend the services, which will be conducted by Grand Master Graham, New Haven and according to Masonic rites, assisted by state officers and members of Jeptha lodge. Music will be furnished by the Salvation Army band.

Mrs. Herbert L. Crandall, of 69 Granite street, was hostess at a luncheon bridge at Lighthouse Inn yesterday.

Normal Alumnae Meeting

The New London branch of the Normal School Alumnae association held its annual banquet at Norwich Inn Thursday night with about 50 members in attendance. Dr. J. Lawrence Erb of Connecticut college was the speaker on Music in the Home, which he illustrated with selections on the piano. Mrs. Walter E. Canfield gave a summary of the work of the organization since its beginning in 1922. Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Campbell entertained with piano duets. Mrs. Errentz Maxson sang. Attending were Agnes E. Edwards, Sarah H. Anderson, Mrs. Benjamin E. Titus, Eleanor B. Sims, Grace R. Lamb, Grace A. Haney, Martha Neumann, Beryl L. Beckwith, Mrs. Frank A. Comstock, Mrs. William D. Harris, Mrs. James H. McIninch, Thelma Douglas, Catherine R. Bowler, Helen V. Donovan, Mary C. Moriarty, Theresa St. Germain, Jean Herindeen, Mrs. George S. Gadbois, Eleanor M. Gracey, Sylvia Keeney, Minnie E. Caulkins, Harriet E. White, Lila J. Seeley, Millicent V. Smith, Katherine L. Stick, Dorothy C. Neilan, Dorothy C. Bennett, Anna D. Hall, Marjorie P. Maxson, Mildred Williamson and Helen S. Glidden.

WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE EXECUTIVE COM. MEETS

At the October meeting held yesterday by the New London League of Women Voters' executive committee, the following chairmen of the standing committees were appointed: Efficiency in Government, Miss Edna L. Tyler; International Co-operation, Miss Beatrice Reynolds; Child Welfare and Social Hygiene, Miss Gertrude Osborne; Women in Industry, Miss Edith Newcomb; Education, Mrs. Edward P. Eccleston; Legal Status of Women, Mrs. George P. Fenner; Publicity, Mrs. Walter A. Peck; Membership, Mrs. O. E. Clark; Finance, Mrs. John B. Baxter; Immigration, Mrs. James H. Bennett. The committee on registration consists of Mrs. I. N. Bragaw, Mrs. Frank A. Comstock, Mrs. Benjamin B. Gardner, Mrs. E. L. Douglass, Mrs. Julian G. Ely and Mrs. Waldo L. Miner. Mrs Robert Williams is the chairman of hospitality for the citizenship school, which will be conducted at Connecticut College for Women Oct. 21-22.

Miss Margaret Remsen, of Glenwood avenue, entertained yesterday at luncheon in honor of her sister, Mrs. Winfield Scott, of New York, who is visiting here several days. Those attending were Miss Amelia Stephens, Mrs. David Banks, Mrs. Alfred Mitchell, Miss Frances Ogden Jones, Miss Louise Barnard and Mrs. Charles A. Sackett.

At Pennsylvania Meeting

HENRY INDERFUTH MAY HAVE A FRACTURED HIP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 10.— Henry Inderfuth, residing on the New London road, Mystic, sustained a possible fractured hip, with other injuries, principally concussions and bruises this morning. He was driving his automobile on Stanton hill, Groton, when the car collided with a machine driven by Theodore Lanx, of Newark, N. J. Both automobiles were damaged. Inderfuth was taken to the office of Dr. A. Joseph Leon, in Mystic, where his injuries were treated after which he was taken to his home. The accident was investigated by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh. Neither Inderfuth nor Lanx was arrested as there was no evidence of recklessness on the part of either driver.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of William McKinley Osborne, 114 Glenwood avenue, and Edward J. Walsh, 194 Shaw street.

Mrs. Lawrence McDonald and infant daughter, 9 Lee avenue; Antonio Tudisca, 11 Moore court; Mrs. Joseph Denison and infant son, Waterford; Matthew Racci, 28 Denison avenue, Groton; Gloria Albina, 91 Truman street; Marie Rivett, 101 Thames street, Groton; Edward Sullivan, 29 Eighth street; Mrs. Eleanor Randall, Old Lyme, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Raymond Dayton, Broad street extension, Waterford, was arrested today by State Police Officer John Smith, charged with driving with improper markers. Dayton will be in the court tomorrow.

WATROUS HOUSE, GROTON, BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE

New London and Groton had a series of fires, three of them, today. The most serious blaze occurred in Groton, where a residence was badly damaged. The two fires in New London were of small consequence, although the department was called out for both.

The Groton fire occurred about 10:50 o'clock when the two and a half story residence of Ernest T. Watrous, 41 Benham road, was discovered a mass of flames. An alarm was responded to by Pioneer Hose company and after the hardest kind of work by the firemen the blaze was subdued, but not until the roof and attic had been destroyed and the second story partially damaged by fire and water. When the fire was discovered the flames, which had been burning some time, had broken through the roof and in a short time the entire upper part of the dwelling was in flames. The hose company was stationed at a hydrant, corner of Benham and Poquonoc road, and pumped two streams upon the burning building, the deluge finally stopping the progress of the flames at the second floor. The origin of the fire has not been determined, but it is believed that it started from a defective chimney. Before the arrival of the firemen, volunteers succeeded in removing numerous pieces of furniture from the house.

Blaze Due to Carelessness

The first of the two fires in this city occurred at 9:15 o'clock and threatened the People's store, 143 Bank street, dealers in men's apparel. The damage was trivial for the fire itself did not damage the building or stock, but smoke caused trifling damage to the stock. The fire was discovered when clouds of smoke filled the store, entering from the cellar. An alarm sent in from Box 32, corner of Bank and Golden streets, was responded to by Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus. The fire was located between the boiler of the furnace and the woodwork surrounding it and was quickly extinguished with chemicals. The fire originated from paper and other inflammable material being allowed to drop through a register in the middle of the store, where it collected from time to time around the boiler. A fresh fire was started when the store was opened at 8:30 and the heat was so intense that it ignited the paper.

Smoker Blamed for Fire

The second fire was at 11:20 o'clock when an automobile became ablaze, corner of Bank and Spring streets. The machine which carried New York markers was being washed and gasoline was used as a cleanser. During the process of cleaning the auto a smoker caused the gasoline to ignite and in an instant the car was in flames. An alarm was sent in from Box 41, corner of Bank street and Jefferson avenue, and Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus responded. Before the firemen arrived, however, the blaze had been extinguished by automobile workers, without damage of consequence.

The session of the police court today was of short duration, for the only cases tried, three of them, were for intoxication. A man who had been before the court 31 times, was sent to jail to stay for 30 days. He was arrested on Huntington street last night by Patrolman Dennis Murphy, following complaint of residents that he was going from house to house, making himself obnoxious by the persistency he evidenced in soliciting money. A Montauk avenue resident, who was arrested on Bank street yesterday, was given suspension of judgment. The third man, who is employed at Fishers Island, was not prosecuted, for he was ordered discharged by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer.

Tried to Steal Power Boat

Patrolman Clyde Murphy discovered the office of the Dumont Marine Service, Inc., on the municipal pier, broken into last night, when the officer was making his final rounds, about 7:30. Two windows of the building were broken. Investigation revealed that after the crook had obtained entrance to the office an attempt was made to steal one of the power boats used to transport passengers about the harbor or to nearby points. The key to the motor of the boat had been taken from the office and in his effort to start the engine the crook had rendered the battery useless.

Mrs. Percy C. Eggleston and daughter, Miss Katherine Eggleston, Vauxhall street, have returned home, having made a brief visit in New York.

Miss Mary Sullivan, 5 Rosemary street, is spending a month with her sister in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Gregory Davison, formerly of Montauk avenue, now residing at Huntington, W. Va., is spending a few weeks at her summer residence in Lyme. Mr. Davison was formerly an official of the New London Ship & Engine Co.

Would Not Increase Tuition

Members of the city council, sitting as a committee, convened in the office of City Manager William A. Holt last evening for the purpose of discussing items contained in the proposed budget for the ensuing year and with a view to reducing the amount of some of the tentative appropriations. No action, however, was taken and another meeting will be held next week. At last night's meeting, at which were present the trustees of Williams Memorial institute and Bulkeley High school, an effort was made to have the trustees increase the amount of tuition of students not residents of the city, but to this suggestion the trustees would not agree.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Local Dance Studio

After a busy summer in New York getting the newest dancing steps and methods, Miss Helena Frances Crandall is back home and very busily engaged in getting her classes organized for work in her studio at Odd Fellows' hall.

New equipment is being installed for acrobatic reducing and other work. Classes in ballroom, musical comedy, tap, toe and interpretive work will also be given.

In addition to winning a silver medal for excellence in the technique of teaching this year at Chalif's, she won a silver medal last year for general excellence in artistic dancing.

As in the past, Mrs. Wm. G. McCord is in charge of the enrollment. The high school and the adult classes will have an orchestra for all their work the same as last year.

Miss Crandall also attended the Connecticut Normal School of Dancing in Hartford in September and her pupils as well as herself have been in a prominent place on local programs during the past year. Advance enrollments indicate that this will be her most successful year in her art.

Broadway Theatre

Harry Bannister, who plays the important role of Jack Rance, the sheriff, in "The Girl of the Golden West," which opens at Warner's Broadway today, entered the talkies through chance, but also as a direct result of his appearance in "Strange Interlude" as presented by the New York Theatre Guild.

Bannister went West for a long engagement in the Theatre Guild company presenting this play in California. His wife, Ann Harding, went West to be with him and to take a rest and a vacation. Instead she was summoned for a screen test for a role in an important picture. Bannister accompanied her to the studio and read the lines opposite her in a little skit. As a result he was signed up for a number of talkie roles as soon as his engagement with "Strange Interlude" ended. His first role was opposite Miss Harding in "Her Private Affair."

"Girl of the Golden West" includes in its cast Ann Harding, in the title role, James Rennie, J. Farrell MacDonald, George Cooper, Arthur Stone, Arthur Housman and many others. The story is adapted from David Belasco's famous drama of the same name. John Francis Dillon directed.

Palace Theatre

"Whoopee" which comes to the Palace theatre Sunday where it will be shown through Wednesday of this week is the first talking and singing picture in which Eddie Cantor has ever appeared.

Taken from the musical show of the same name in which Cantor scored such a huge success on Broadway and on the road, "Whoopee" was photographed entirely in technicolor and was made under the supervision of Florenz Ziegfeld.

"Whoopee" is not a review but like the stage production is a lavish and elaborate presentation. The cost of the production was estimated at a million and a half dollars but by the time that it was finished it was nearer the two million mark. The filming called for seventy-four changes of scene many of them taken in such world-famous beauty spots as Zion National park, with 512 changes of custume and scenes including four or five hundred people. So elaborate are some of the costumes that their cost reached a thousand dollars.

The cast of "Whoopee" is that which played on Broadway and among the stars are Dorothy Knapp who has been known as the most beautiful girl in the world and who has been starred in many Ziegfeld productions. Eleanor Hunt is a beautiful red-head who is entirely new to the screen and Chief Caupolican a real Indian with a marvelous baritone voice.

The Palace will present the double feature combining "Hell Harbor," a melodrama with Lupe Velez and Jean Hersholt, and "Sweethearts on Parade," a comedy with Alice White and Lloyd Hughes, supported by a large cast, for the last time today.

"My poor woman," said the Vicar, meeting one of his flock in widow's weeds. "I had not heard you had again suffered bereavement."

"Nor I ain't, sir," was the reply, "but my old man annoyed me this morning so I'm paying 'im out by going into mourning again for my first 'usband."

The after-dinner speaker had waxed eloquent for 15 minutes.

"After partaking of such an excellent meal," he continued, "I feel that if I had eaten any more, I would be unable to talk."

Two absent-minded fishermen from Hamilton, Ontario, can thank Chief Police J. C. Johnston, of Port Credit, for saving them much discomfort. An excited feminine voice over the telephone urged the chief of police to catch her husband and son, who were driving along the highway toward their favorite fishing ground. "They have forgotten the groceries, and they can't buy any up there, and they'll starve," she insisted. Chief Johnston halted the fishermen as they were passing through the town and directed them to a grocery store.

REV. MR. NORRIS TO BEGIN NEW SERMON COURSE

Numbers of people are perplexed, others embittered by the doubt creating experiences of life, and are earnestly searching for the way of peace and assurance. Rev. E. J. Norris, rector of St. Andrew's church, begins Sunday morning at 10.30 this course of sermons as follows: Oct. 12, "The Problem of Pain, Is Pain Purposeless?" Oct. 19, "The Problem of Prayer; What As to Our Unanswered Prayers?" Oct. 26, "The Problem of Providence, Is There a Divinity That Shapes Our Ends."

Noted 80th Birthday.

Tuesday marked the 80th birthday of Mrs. E. Zahn of Fourth street and the occasion was noted by a large number of her friends tendering her a surprise party at her home. During the afternoon musical numbers were rendered and refreshments were served by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. William A. Karkutt, assisted by Mrs. H. Rebowske. Mrs. Zahn was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, including flowers and a linen luncheon cloth from those present. A shower of birthday cards from her many friends came throughout the day. Mrs. Zahn is very active and healthy despite her age and is about daily doing her own housework. Her many friends wish her many more pleasant and happy birthdays.

Andrew Bellefleur, of Boston, is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Bellefleur, of Fourth street.

Greeneville School Wins.

The Greeneville Grammar school defeated Broadway school in a football game by a score of 18 to 6 at the Mohegan park this week. The touchdowns were made by Quinley and Malogrides. Barry, at tackle, played a brilliant game. The Greeneville lineup was: John Kissel c, Welter Zorokowski rg, Edward Krevolt lg, Frank Palowicz rt, Barry, Johnson lt, Edward Kormachi re, Joseph Varonacki le, Chester Pavrok qb, Dena Melogrides lhb, Lee Quinley fb, Edward Pinkoski rhb.

Jeremiah Mahoney of Hartford was a visitor in Greeneville Thursday.

The Ladies' guild of St. Andrew's Episcopal church met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Howard Gordon on Boswell avenue with a large number present. Regular business was transacted with the president, Mrs. Charles Erwin, presiding. During the meeting it was voted to hold a food and cake sale in the near future. Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Gordon.

Stephen Shegoda has returned to his home on Durfey street after spending a few days at Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Stanton have returned to their home in New Jersey after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Brittin, on Boswell avenue.

In honor of their daughter, Miss Lois Flynn, on her eighth birthday, a party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Flynn, of Boswell avenue, Wednesday evening with many of her little friends attending. Many games were played and enjoyed and piano and vocal solos rendered. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Flynn, assisted by Miss Flynn's grandmother, Mrs. John Flynn. Miss Flynn was the recepient of numerous and useful gifts. The party broke up at a late hour, all present wishing their hostess many happy birthdays.

Joseph Ryan, of Central avenue, has returned after attending the world's series at Philadelphia.

William Thiebault, of New Bedford, spent a few days with relatives in Greeneville recently.

A new list of the to-be-made voters is placed at all the prominent stores in the third ward.

Jacob Goldblatt of Central avenue spent a few days with Worcester relatives.

Edward Gleason has returned to his home on Golden street after spending Wednesday at Worcester. While there he called on Earle F. Brigham, who was formerly coach at the Norwich Free Academy. Mr. Brigham left recently to accept a position as director of high school athletics in that city.

The October meeting of the Greeneville Community Workers was held at the home of Miss Ellen Hayes of Fourth street on Thursday afternoon. The reports were read and one quilt has been pieced, tied, and sold since the last meeting. Some very pretty fancy work was brought in by the ladies to be sold at the Christmas sale to be held December 3. Miss Hayes served a very delicious luncheon, the center piece being a large birthday cake beautifully decorated to celebrate the birthdays of two of the members. Games were played, the prizes going to Mrs. John MacDougall and Mrs. John McNeely.

EISENSTEIN WINS NOMINATION IN CONTEST IN DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS

By a vote of 91 to 72 Irving E. Eisenstein defeated Meyer Blumenthal in a contest over the nomination for first representative on the democratic ticket at the party contest Friday evening in the town hall. After the announcement of the vote Mr. Blumenthal moved that the nomination be made unanimous. Raymond Girard of Taftville was unanimously nominated as the second candidate for representative to the general assembly.

Jeremiah J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the democratic town committee, called the caucus to order at 8 o'clock and asked for the selection of a chairman. On motion of T. J. Kelly, Edward G. Moran was named chairman of the caucus. Applause greeted Mr. Moran's selection to preside.

On assuming the chair Mr. Moran said: "I think on occasions of this sort it is not out of keeping and it seems customary to thank such a group for the honor of being appointed chairman. We are on the eve of a state election. Some of us are wondering what the outcome will be. Some are quite confident of victory and some are rather pessimistic.

"It is my contention that over a period of years during which the republicans have held sway in the state, they have not held sway because of any achievements, but because of a well oiled machine, aided somewhat by indifferent democrats. You have a ticket this year of which you may well be proud. You have an opportunity which may not come again for a long period of time. Your indifference is the thing that will put them, the republicans, back in power. I urge this group of democrats and I urge them to urge their fellow democrats to approach this election with a spirit of determination that knows no down. If that be the case the republicans will have more to think about than even their leaders realize. Get behind your party. You have your ticket. We need cooperation.

"Last night the republicans held their caucuses. No doubt you read some of the remarks of their candidates. I am confident of one thing, and that is that they amused you. There is no party liability for present conditions—so say the republicans all through Connecticut in their meetings. What I want to know is this. Why is the republican party ever ready to take credit for prosperity? Why did the republican leaders in 1928 tell you that a democratic victory would bring about depression? They tell you now that no party could bring about such conditions. I do not lay the blame at any man's door. I ask only for fairness and a little consistency on the part of the republicans."

Speaking of Judge Barnes remarks Thursday evening at the local republican caucus over which he presided as chairman, in regard to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, reading President Hoover's address over the radio, Mr. Moran said the president's address went off the air in favor of the world series baseball game. "How much better it would have been had the president read it himself, rather than having it read by the president of the American Federation of Labor," he said.

"I beg of you all to instill in yourselves," Mr. Moran said, "a feeling of confidence, a determination that knows no defeat, so that our ticket, headed by a man of whom the only republican criticism is that he is a college professor, will be victorious. The primary business of this caucus is to complete a well balanced ticket," said Mr. Moran in closing, "and I will call for the selection of a clerk."

Oscar Silverman nominated Joseph B. Downes for clerk and he was selected to that office. After the clerk had read the warning Mr. Moran called for nominations for first representative on the ticket.

"I wish to present a candidate for representative who has been selected by the democratic town committee," said Maurice W. Meyer. "He is very popular, a man you will all be proud of and a man, who if elected, will serve your interests." Mr. Meyer than nominated Irving E. Eisenstein, and the nomination was seconded.

"Are there any other nominations?" asked Mr. Moran.

Edward T. Kirby arose to nominate Meyer Blumenthal. After complimenting the chair on his address, Mr. Kirby said he had been asked to nominate an old friend of his. "He is a friend to a great many people in the hall," Mr. Kirby said. "He is a man you all know. We must have an organization, but, of course, we do not all agree." Mr. Kirby went on to say that his candidate is a man who has always worked for the party. "It is all right to support the young men, but the older men ought to have a chance," he said, as he placed Mr. Blumenthal's name before the caucus.

"In justice to us all I move that the vote be taken by passing in front of the chair," said Mr. Blumenthal.

"Has the nomination been seconded?" asked John E. Fitzgerald.

"Not yet," he was informed by the chair.

Edward Sullivan then seconded the nomination.

The chair named Joseph B. Downes and John H. Craney as tellers for the voting which then started. The result of the vote:

Total number of votes cast 163
Necessary for choice 82
Mr. Eisenstein 91
Mr. Blumenthal 72

As soon as the result of the vote was announced Mr. Eisenstein arose to thank the caucus for the nomination. He complimented the chairman on his address and said the caucus had conferred on him a great honor in selecting him as candidate for the legislature. He said that if elected he will serve Norwich properly and will work for the best interests of the town.

Chairman Moran spoke very highly of the candidate. He said he resides in the same house with Mr. Eisenstein. "You will notice" he said, "that I kept the chair during the voting in deference to a neighbor, Mr. Eisenstein and in deference to an esteemed friend, Mr. Blumenthal.

Mr. Blumenthal took occasion to thank those who voted for him for their support. "It is now a question to see that we elect every candidate on our ticket, nationalwise, statewise and locally," he said. Mr. Blumenthal pledged his support to the ticket and then moved that the nomination be made unanimous.

"A contest in any party does it no harm," said Chairman Moran. "It shows a feeling of interest," he added. "Mr. Blumenthal, since 1895, has been a faithful democratic worker. He has never done more than he is doing now in accepting, in the spirit he does, the vote of this caucus. He is not only a man of excellent character, but a democrat of the deepest water," Mr. Moran said.

Nominations for second representative on the ticket were then called for. P. T. Connell nominated Raymond Girard of Taftville, and the nomination was made unanimous.

The only other business before the caucus was the nomination of justices of the peace which were made as follows by Miss Anna Connell: Patrick T. Connell, Joseph B. Downes, John E. Fitzgerald, Anton Grymkowski, William F. Hill, Charles V. James, Thomas J. Kelly, Earl Mathewson, Edward G. McKay, Maurice W. Meyer, Edward G. Moran, Henry F. Parker, Gilbert S. Raymond, Harold T. Robinson, Thomas M. Shields, William H. Shields, Jr. The nominations were unanimous after which Mr. Kelly moved that the town committee be empowered to fill any vacancies that may occur in the ticket. After adopting this motion the caucus adjourned at 8:50 o'clock, having been in session 50 minutes.

Mr. Eisenstein and Mr. Girard will run in opposition to Josiah Greenstein and Fred Knowles, the republican nominees in the election next month.

Mr. Eisenstein is an accountant in business in this city, is married and resides at No. 49 Otis street. Mr. Girard resides in Taftville and is employed by The Schwartz Furniture Co.

GAVE INTERESTING TALK ON STAFFORDSHIRE FIGURINES

The October meeting of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church was held Friday afternoon in the parish house parlors. Mrs. W. Tyler Browne led the devotional exercises and presided at the business meeting.

Mrs. Aurin W. Payson sang in her usual charming manner a group of lovely old English songs, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Colt.

Mrs. Richard H. Snow gave a delightful talk on Staffordshire Figurines and displayed many from her own collection, describing each in a very entertaining way.

When porcelain and pottery were first made in England over two hundred and fifty years ago, the secret of their manufacture was carefully guarded and one family and then another monopolized the business for years. Most of the figurines came from Staffordshire and are associated with such names as Dwight, Wedgewood and the Woods. The French later took up this modeling and their work is very clever, daintier and carried out in more detail than that of the English. Among Mrs. Snow's models were fascinating rural groups, religious groups and famous characters in history, some very old.

Tea was served by Mrs. Raymond D. Sherman assisted by Mrs. Theodore M. Shipherd, Mrs. Louis Walden and Mrs. Howarth Collins. Mrs. Herbert T. Branche and Mrs. Albert Van Wagenen poured.

ANNUAL REPORTS MADE FOR WOMEN VOTERS

Annual reports for the Norwich League of Women Voters were made when it held its first meeting of the season this week at the home of Mrs. Willis P. Austin of Uncasville. Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, the new president, was in charge of the business meeting, which was followed by a social hour, duirng which tea and cake were served by the hostess. Miss Bernice Willey poured.

R. W. Perkins Returning Home

Robert W. Perkins, vice president of the Connecticut Light and Power company, who was seriously injured on Sept. 10 in an automobile accident near Middletown, is to be discharged from the hospital there today (Saturday) and will return to his home at 60 Broad street in this city.

His many friends here will learn with great pleasure of his recovery from serious injuries.

NORWICH TOWN

The program committee of the League of Service of the First Congregational church began activities Friday afternoon in the chapel, when the first meeting of the fall and winter season was held at 3 o'clock. Mrs. John L. Browning, Mrs. Carlos Ricker and Mrs. Charles Barber were the committee in charge of the session, which opened with hymns, prayer and responsive reading. Miss Susan C. Hyde, chairman of the program committee, and Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, chairman of the work committee, spoke in the interests of each.

Mrs. Browning was appointed secretary to succeed the late Miss M. Jennie Case, who had held this office for many years. Mrs. Browning will serve temporarily, until such time as a permanent secretary is elected. The House by the Side of the Road, a neighborhood house in Japan, was the first reading, by Mrs. Charles W. Chapin; a talk on The Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, located in Springfield, was given by Mrs. Carlos Ricker; a reading on India, For of Such is the Kingdom, was by Mrs. Charles Barber; Medical Secretary in Foreign Countries, was the theme of the talk by Miss Susan Hyde; John the Baptist of the Philippines, was considered by Miss Elizabeth Avery. The Old Rugged Cross was sung by Miss Elizabeth Browning; Light Out of Darkness was the topic of the reading by Mrs. Yerrington. In closing, a poem entitled Did You? was read by Mrs. Browning. A social hour followed, when the committee in charge served crullers and coffee.

Rev. Charles E. Reeves, of Norwich Town, is to preach at the First Congregational church Sunday morning.

Able to Leave Hospital

Johnny Haun, youngest son of Mr and Mrs. A. Lee Haun, of Town street, returned to his home Friday afternoon, after several weeks as a patient at Backus hospital, where he was taken after breaking his leg while playing football at Huntington school early in September. His playmates are greatly pleased that he is recovering. He is able to sit up, although not as yet able to get around.

RURAL ASSOCIATION BEGINS ITS 61ST SEASON

The Norwich Rural association has entered its 61st year, actively interested in all that pertains to the welfare of the community. This coming year, in addition to the usual care of the trees, shrubs, and grass on the green, the association plans several events, chief of which will be a Halloween celebration, lighting the Christmas tree, the singing of carols on the green Christmas eve, and the community picnic in the spring. As in the past, the association is dependent upon the contributions of its members and friends. A reminder of this fact has been sent out by Willard P. Haugh, the president, and Russell B. Waldo, the treasurer.

TRUCKS AND TROLLEY INVOLVED IN COLLISION

Shortly before 8 o'clock Friday morning, two trucks and a trolley car figured in a collision on West Main street, in front of the Socony gas station. A Standard Oil truck had driven from the gas station intending to turn into West Main street. As the driver, Carl Davis, could not make the turn, he started to back his truck and the truck and a New London bound trolley car came together. The impact pushed the truck against a truck owned by the Peck & McWilliams Co., which was standing in front of the Peck & McWilliams building. Both trucks were damaged and a window in the trolley car was broken.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOM

REBEKAHS

Hope Rebekah lodge No. 21 will hold their next meeting on Wednesday evening Oct. 15 in Odd Fellows' hall. After the business meeting the entertainment committee, Mrs. Susan Lillibridge chairman, will put on a couple of plays, after which refreshments will be served. Those who stay at home will miss a treat so the officers are looking for a large attendance.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS

Sebequnash council, No. 11, met in the Buckingham Memorial Wednesday evening, Rose Carter presiding. Plans were made for the great session to be held Oct. 14 and 15 at Winsted. A number of members are making plans to attend the big time in Westerly the 18th of October. After the meeting a public whist and pinochle was held. The prizes went as follows: In whist, first, Mrs. R. Carter; second, Mrs. O'Brien; third, Mrs. G. Leonard; gentlemen, first, Jack Strom; second, Mrs. I. Clifford; third, Mrs. McKelvey; pinochle, first, Mrs. Hunt; second, Mrs. L. Manchester; third, Mrs. Prodell; gentlemen, first, Mr. Taylor; second, Mr. Brendo; third, Mr. Sinacore. The chairman in charge was Ida Clifford.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart Legion held their regular meeting in Moose Home Thursday evening with Senior Regent Margaret Comire presiding. As it was Past Regent's night, the meeting was open to visitors.

As the past regents were introduced by the guide the senior regent welcomed them in behalf of Norwich chapter. Past Regent Beaver in behalf of all the past regents made the following response: "Senior Regent, Legionnaires and friends, In behalf of all the past regents I thank you for your welcome to us here tonight, and to thank you for the entertainment you are to have in our behalf. Isn't it a grand thing, when we stop and think we are mothers to about 13,000 little children at Mooseheart and before I say any more I'd like to read this letter from one sister, Ida Eccleston, at Moosehaven who was sent there by Norwich chapter.

Dear Friend Mrs. Beaver, I just had to write and tell you how wonderful they are to us here at Moosehaven. I have charge of the linen department. My lameness is fast disappearing in this wonderful climate. The doctor is giving me treatments every day which includes 1-2 hour during which I am baked in an electric machine of some kind. And every day I have to take a sun bath for one hour in the solarium, a building which cost $27,000. It is doing me a world of good, I want to thank all the sisters for what they have done for us and I hope Norwich chapter will grow and prosper.

Continuing, Past Regent Beaver said: "Now doesn't it make every one of you filled with enthusiasm to work for such a wonderful order when you know that when we are old and down and out we can go to such a wonderful home as Moosehaven? I am proud to be able to say I have the great honor of being a past regent of the Women of Mooseheart Legion. Doesn't it make each and every one of you want to get out and work as you never worked before. Isn't it worth working for? Think it over.

After Past Regent Beaver's response, remarks were heard from Past Regents Alida Boyens, Rose Carter and Minnie Smith. After the meeting a program was given in honor of the past regents. Mrs. Mary Edwards was the soloist of the evening with Miss Gladys Cote at the piano. The entertainment was in the form of tableaux which as the different songs were sung were acted out by the legionnaires: Bicycle Built for Two, by Helen Ericson and Nellie Barrows; Pal of My Cradle Days, with Mrs. Sourbier as the mother and Mrs. Nora Willett as the wayward son; Two Little Girls in Blue, Margaret Mehrholz and Nellie Barows; Where Did You Get That Hat, by Mrs. Mary Edwards; Goodbye Dolly Gray, by Nellie Barows as the soldier and Margaret Mehrholz as Dolly Gray; Little Annie Rooney, by Margaret Comire and Nora Willett; Darling I Am Growing Old, by Mary Edwards and Mrs. Sourbier; The Parson's Fee by Mary Edwards as the parson and Nora Willett and Margaret Comire as the bride and groom; Reveries of a Bachelor, by Mary Edwards as the bachelor and Margaret Mehrholz, Nellie Borrows Helen Ericson and Nora Willett as sweethearts and Margaret Comire as the bride; Just a Song at Twilight by all; a monlogue entitled Miss Penelope Prescott Takes Tea, by Teresa Watters.

The entertainment ended by all singing, There's No Place Like Mooseheart. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and fruit punch were served by Legionnaire Marie Retkovske.

The first in a series of home card parties will be held at the home of Mrs. Minnie Smith of Fitchville. The entertainment was voted a hugh success each one taking her part perfectly, and the old fashioned tandem bicycle, which was made by Ellsworth Watters of Jr. Legion No. 92, caused much merriment. Courtesies were extended by Loyal Order of Moose, Silberman Furniture Co., Cummings & Ring, Fred Leffingwell, John LaValle, George Crocker, Mrs. Krohn and Miss Ruth DeGrenier. Past Regent Teresa Watters was in general charge.

B'NAI B'RITH AUXILIARY.

A regular business meeting of the Rose of New England auxiliary, No. 40, B'nai B'rith, was held Thursday evening at the lodge rooms. The meeting was opened in due form by the president, Sister Bettie Pasnik.

The entertainment committee gave a report concerning a dance in November and plans for the usual card parties were discussed.

Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed by the members. Several of the sisters assisted in serving refreshments.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS.

The regular meeting of Clara Barton tent, No. 7, D. U. V., was held at the Buckingham Memorial Tuesday evening, with the senior vice president, Mrs. Helena M. T. Church, presiding. An invitation was received to participate in the Armistice day parade and accepted, final plans to be made later. The committee reported that the memorial for the Clara Barton home at Oxford, Mass., was finished and is to be presented Saturday afternoon, and all who can attend, are urged to be present. Plans were made for various sales to be held later. All officers are asked to be present at each meeting for rehearsals to be prepared for inspection night, which is to be Nov. 18th. After the business session the meeting closed in usual form by the salute to the flag.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

The regular meeting of Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, No. 16, was held in Buckingham Memorial Friday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Iola Bjurstrom, in the chair. It was the annual inspection of the corps and Mrs. Ethel Tourtellotte, department inspector, complimented the officers of the corps on their floor work. Two candidates were initiated. At recess refreshments were served. Nineteen visitors from New London and Putnam were present. The inspector received a handsome gift. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich Grange, No. 172, held its regular meeting Wednesday evening with Worthy Master Albert W. Lillibridge presiding. The special business of the evening was conferring the first and second degrees on a large class of candidates. A special meeting will be held Monday evening, Oct. 13, at 8 o'clock for the purpose of conferring the third and fourth degrees on those who wish to take the fifth degree (Pomona), as Pomona meets in Grange hall Tuesday, Oct. 14. The sixth degree will be given at Lisbon, Oct. 18. A masquerade dance is being planned by a committee for Halloween with prizes to be given for the best and the funniest costumes.

The Ladies' auxiliary held a meeting Wednesday afternoon to elect a new treasurer. Miss Eva Wilcox was unanimously chosen to replace Mrs. Jennie Davis, who has been a most efficient treasurer and a devoted worker of the Grange auxiliary. A delightful supper was served to members of the auxiliary in honor of the president, Mrs. Alida Boyens, who is soon to leave for a three months' trip to Pennsylvania. A little token of esteem was presented to her by Mrs. Christine Hommell on behalf of several friends.

The attendance at the evening meeting was 173 members and 14 visitors. Division B served delicious refreshments of banana salad, saltines, fancy cookies and coffee. Mrs. Hattie Woodmanse, chairman.

ODD FELLOWS

Shetucket lodge, No. 27, held its regular meeting Tuesday night with Noble Grand Charles E. Rogers presiding. Routine business was transacted and the usual benefits voted. The lodge voted to accept the invitation of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, to take part in the Armistice day parade and the noble grand appointed a committee to act with a like committee of Uncas lodge in formulating plans for the event. The committee comprises Vice-Grand Leonard Staubley and Past Grand Robert H. Donahue. Next Tuesday night the first degree will be worked in full form by Degree Master Robert H. Donahue and staff.

LADIES' AUXILIARY, A. O. H.

At the last meeting of the Ladies' auxiliary, A. O. H., No. 54, arrangements were made for the next whist and pinochle in the officers' series, Mrs. Julia Breen, vice-president, to be chairman. It was voted to hold a Halloween masquerade and social soon, final arrangements to be completed at the next meeting. The election of officers will take place Wednesday evening, Oct. 15, and it is expected that all the members will be present.

At the evening of cards given Friday in A. O. H. hall by the auxiliary for which Mrs. Julia Breen was chairman, assisted by Miss Mary Fallon and Mrs. Annie Brooks, the prizes in whist were taken by Mrs. Nellie O'Brien and Miss W. Clabby, Mr. McKelvey and John Sullivan. In pinochle the prizes went to Miss Mary Peccini and Miss Galysh, John Murphy and Edward Brown.

MOVING OLD LANDMARK FROM HEBRON GREEN TO LOCATION IN NORFOLK

(Special to The Bulletin)

OLD POST STORE
As it Looks Today, Windows Enlarged and Double Door Instead of Single Door

HEBRON, Oct. 10.—The old Post house and store, on the corner of Church street, Hebron Green, is nearly ready to be moved to Norfolk. Starling W. Childs, of Norfolk, bought the house, store and other buildings, and land on the highway from Middletown to Willimantic for a distance of 67 1-2 feet; on the highway from Hebron to Colchester, 162 1-2 feet and 97 feet deep at the south end, Sept. 8, 1930, of Charles I. Tennant, of Dawson, Yukon territory, Canada.

Deeds were recorded in Hebron Town Record Book, page 236, Sept. 13, 1930.

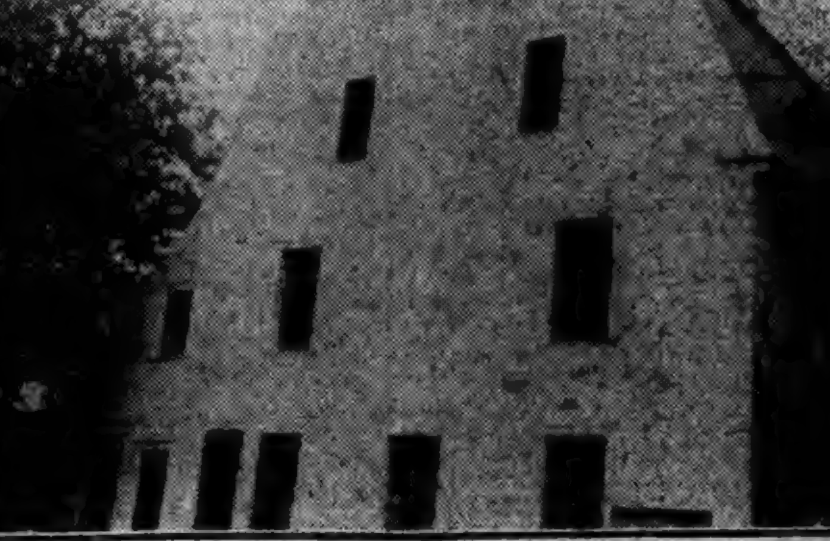
This house is one of Hebron's prominent homes and has been very conspicuous because of its unusual gabled roof and immense old-fashioned stone chimney, having a base 12 feet by 12 feet and at the third story, 4 feet by 4 feet square. The attic contains a very large smokehouse attached to the stone chimney. The house, better known as the Old Post House years ago was a yearly stopping place for Indians. About 1832 Indians coming through Hebron would sit around the old fireplace of this chimney, smoke their peace-pipes and tell their stories. They would only stay one night, and in the morning travel on. This interesting story was told Bessie Cummings, when about 8 years old. Mary Jane Post told about the Indians revisiting Hebron. She once lived in the old Post house.

Mr. Childs' son, Winton Childs, of Norfolk, plans to live in the house after it has been moved from Hebron to Norfolk.

The crew of carpenters engaged on the work comprises Foreman J. J. Roberts, of Norfolk; Albert Carlson, of Norfolk; George B. A. Christinat, of Norfolk; Ralph Meggison, of Winsted; Levi Gondelli, of Canaan; contractor, Harry D. Atwood, Norfolk. They commenced tearing down the old Post house, Sept. 22, 1930, but they are progressing slowly because of the rusted hand-wrought nails. They expect it will take them all of six weeks or more to finish their work of tearing down the buildings.

The following people have once owned the old Post house and store: Builder Joel Jones, sold Nov. 20, 18[illegible], to Robert Russell; Robert Russell to Hannah Kast, 1827; Hannah Kast sold to Charles Post and Clarissa Way, Nov. 21, 1832; Daniel Post to John L. Way, March 20, 1905; John L. Way to Charles I. Tennant, June 9, 1911; Charles I. Tennant to Starling W. Childs, Sept 8, 1930.

People of Hebron will greatly miss this old-time landmark, although neighbors understand why Mr. Childs so greatly admired this quaint and attractive house.



SOUTH SIDE OF OLD POST HOUSE

TAFTVILLE

Miss Nellie Garvey, of Hartford, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Matthew Garvey, and family, of South B street.

Sister Marie has returned to her home in Beatrice, Neb., after visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. William Penner, and family, of South Second avenue.

Charles Burdick, of New Bedford, Mass., is a guest of Henry J. Kendah of Lisbon.

The Lisbon Community club met Wednesday evening at the clubhouse in Lisbon. John Thoma was in charge of the entertainment, which consisted of a musical program.

With a large attendance, the regular business meeting of the members of St. Veronica's society was held Wednesday evening at their rooms on Providence street.

LUTHERAN CHURCH SERVICE TO HONOR THE AGED

There will be a special service in the First Lutheran church Sunday in honor of the aged members and friends, who will be brought in autos to the church by younger members and special floral decorations will be put in the chancel. The pastor, Rev. Carl Stores, will have a special text: "At evening time there shall be light," Zechariah 14:7. The service will be in the German language and will be held from 10.15 to 11. The Sunday school is at 9.15.

BRAZILIAN REBELS GAIN GROUND NORTH AND SOUTH

All Brazil Northeast of Rio Sao Francisco Is in the Hands of the Revolutionary Armies—Pernambuco is Calm Under Revolutionary Rule—In the South the Insurgent Army Claims to Have Advanced Over a Wide Front Along the Frontier of Sao Paulo and Parana—Federal Government Reports Defeat of 2,000 Rebels in the State of Sao Paulo

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, Oct. 12.—(AP)—All Brazil northeast of the Rio Sao Francisco today is in the hands of the revolutionary armies, who, heartened by tremendous popular acclaim, are beginning an offensive into the states of Sergipe and Bahia, still loyal to the federal government in Rio De Janeiro.

The state of Alogoas fell before forces commanded by Captain Juarez Tavora, aided by enthusiastic volunteers of Pernambuco and Parahyba, much as did Pernambuco just a week ago. Two thousand citizens of the two states enrolled for the movement against Macelo and Ciudad Alogoas, and now will assist in the invasion of the south.

Both army and volunteers left here in trucks, multitudes gathering in the streets and cheering them on their way. Food, cigarettes and flowers were showered on the departing forces, who took Macelo with little opposition and organized a revolutionary junta there.

Two American ships in the port were not molested.

Pernambuco, after a week of revolutionary rule, is calm. The people and minor officials of the old regime are returning to their occupations. The provisional government is keeping several of the old officers in their posts. A former sub-inspector of customs has assumed direction of the customs offices.

Ships and mail planes from the south are forbidden to enter Pernambuco by the federal government at Rio De Janeiro, although the revolutionary government guarantees nonmolestation of foreign ships calling here. The new government is determining validity of the debts left by the old government, and is resuming payment of employes and teachers

Advices reaching here from the state of Ceara say that the governor, or president, so-called, has been made prisoner. No details were learned.

Captain Juarez Tavora, commanding the army of the north, has charged his troops to avoid anything in the nature of reprisals in retaliation for alleged wrongs of the Washington Luis regime.

ALL CLASSES SUPPORT REVOLUTION IN BRAZIL

By CAPTAIN JUAREZ TAVORA
Commanding Northern Revolutionary Army
(Copyright, 1930, in the United States and South America, by the Associated Press.)

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, Oct. 12—(AP)—The revolution is not mutinous in character, but is supported by all classes, including rich farm-owners, manufacturers, the middle classes, and working men. All Brazil northeast of the Sao Francisco river is in our hands.

We are pleased to inform all nations, through the Associated Press, of the constructive purpose of the revolution, which hopes to restore morality of administration, and to re-establish Brazilian credit aboard, by not abusing loans and practice of severe internal economy.

It is entirely false that the movement has any connection with bolshevik politics. It is important to note that the red badges worn everywhere are the badges of the old distinctive liberal party, containing an enormous conservative strength.

REVOLUTIONARY ARMY ADVANCES IN THE SOUTH

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil, Oct. 12—(AP)—The southern revolutionary army claimed today to have advanced over a wide front along the frontier of Sao Paulo and Parana, with their vanguard in some places in possession of several Sao Paulo towns.

In several instances there have been skirmishes between the rebel advance guard and the Sao Paulistas, but official announcements here say the federal forces have fled.

As a consequence, they have avoided the major battle which the insurgents had expected in the vicinity of Castro, and which now is expected to occur nearer Sao Paulo frontier, or within that great coffee-growing state.

Radio dispatches from Bello Horizonte, capital of the state of Minas Geraes, assert that troops of that state are continuing an "impetuous" advance into the state of Rio De Janeiro. Garrisons of federal police which they are encountering are said to have mutinied and disbanded, quitting their defense of the federal government. Twenty thousand Minas Geraes troops were said to be engaged in the movement from that state against Rio De Janeiro.

Bello Horizonte advices stated that a detachment from northeastern Minas Geraes had cut into the state of Bahia, above Espirito Santo, and had taken the small port of Caravellos.

A radio message from Rio De Janeiro, intercepted by rebel stations here, contained orders to all naval vessels, some of which are stationed outside Florianopolis, or Desterro, to proceed with all speed to the federal capital. Meanwhile rebel troops advancing down the coast of Santa Catharina after their victory at Joinville, occupied Blumeneau, a few miles north of Florianopolis One hundred twenty-five additional prisoners have been taken at Joinville with surrender of a federal contingent which had held out there.

Troops under General Miguel Costa, of the Rio Grande Do Sul army, have occupied both Ponte Ribeira and Aurinho, in the state of Sao Paulo, their leader notified insurgent headquarters here. The way, he said, was opened for capture of Itarare.

FEDERAL GOVT. REPORTS DEFEAT OF 2,000 REBELS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 12—(AP)—A government announcement today said that federal troops had defeated 2,000 rebels at Punto Ribeira and Itarare, in the state of Sao Paulo, near the Parana frontier.

The statement also asserted that a federal force of 2,000 volunteers had attacked insurgent forces at Jacarezinho, in northern Parana, and defeating them, had continued their advance into Parana toward Colonia Mineira.

In the state of Goyaz, the announcement said, military police defeated a rebel column raised by Pedro Ludovici, taking him and 70 followers prisoner and putting 200 others to flight.

Caravellas, in southern Bahia, which rebel forces in broadcasts from Porto Alegre claimed to have taken, remained in federal hands, the statement said, after military police defending that port had beaten back an attack of insurgents from Minas Geraes. Three leaders and many of the ranks were captured in the encounter.

Persons arriving in Rio De Janeiro from Bello Horizonte, capital of Minas Geraes, were quoted as saying a discouraged spirit had begun to prevail in that state because of the apathy of the general public toward events. Lacking support, it was claimed, fighting spirit of the revolutionary forces has dropped perceptibly.

VARGAS IN FULL CONTROL OF THE REVOLT IN BRAZIL

PORTO ALEGRE, Rio Grande Do Sul, Brazil, Oct. 12—(AP)—Dr. Getulio Vargas, president of this state, and defeated liberal candidate for the national presidency in the last election, has taken over entire control of the revolutionary movement against the Rio De Janeiro government.

He has delegated presidency of this state to Osvaldo Aranha, liberal politician, and has left for the front, where he will assume active charge of operations against the state of Sao Paulo. He was accompanied at his departure by General Flores. Both were acclaimed by multitudes wishing them success.

It was expected that Dr. Vargas would make his headquarters for operations against Sao Paulo at Curityba, capital of the state of Parana. Before leaving here he issued a call to citizens of the republic everywhere to join with the revolution and to make common cause against the government at Rio De Janeiro.

SUGGESTS FLOGGING FOR BANDITS AND RACKETEERS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—(AP)—A paper written by George W. Wickersham, chairman of the national commission on law observance and enforcement and read in his absence before the American Prison association convention here tonight, suggested that a careful inquiry be made into the merits of flogging as a punishment to combat banditry and racketeering.

The paper was read by E. R. Cass, of New York, general secretary of the association.

In a discussion of the various forms of punishment used to combat crime, Mr. Wickersham wrote: "In England, and in Canada, flogging by birch or by 'the cat' also is inflicted. I know of only one state—Delaware—in the United States where the whip is used.

"A careful inquiry into the results of flogging as a punishment for certain offenses and a prevention of further wrongdoing may well be made to determine the desirability of employing it in the war against banditry and racketeering. As a deterrent to others, flogging would seem a priori to present great advantages, but it would be unsafe to assume that as a fact without inquiring into the subsequent career of the flogged offenders as well as into the general effect upon the volume of crimes of the character thus punished."

LISBON, PORTUGAL, WAS FLOODED BY RAIN STORM

LISBON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—This city was drying out today after one of the worst storms of the last decade yesterday, during which some streets were flooded to a depth of six feet. A thundershower unloosed such a downpour that all activity was at a standstill for hours.

High winds ripped off roofs, leveled trees, and toppled telegraph poles. A number of persons were injured by falling tiles, torrents of water burst into store basements and did considerable damage. Basements of the ministries of interior and war, and the mint, were flooded. Officials, taken by surprise, had to climb to the tops of their desks until fire brigades could pump the water out of the rooms.

Lighting and telephone services were disrupted, and all cable and telephone connections with Spain and the outside world were lost. Vaults of the Bank of Portugal were injured. Torrents of water dashing down a hill knocked down a wall and injured two persons.

HOLD UP OF GROCERY STORE AT YONKERS, N. Y.

YONKERS, N. Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—Two men held up the Grand Union grocery store last night and got away with $40 although a detective had been planted in the back room to prevent just such a performance. An investigation was started today to discover just what went wrong.

The detective, Richard Hurley, said the thieves escaped him because he misjudged the time to spring his surprise attack.

SPANISH GOVT. ASSURES NAVY OF ITS GOOD WILL

LISBON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—An official statement today decried reports "malevolently spread" that the government holds the navy in disfavor, and that some sailors had been shot as a consequence of the ill-feeling.

The statement declares that the government wishes to assure the navy of its complete good will and disclaims any solidarity with individuals who have attempted thus to disrupt the public order.

Jack 'Legs' Diamond Was Shot Five Times

In Room in Hotel Monticello, New York—Denied That He Knew His Assailants

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP)—Five bullets from the pistols of unidentified assailants today struck down Jack "Legs" Diamond, suave gangster, racketeer and beer runner who recently gained world-wide notoriety when several European countries refused to permit him in their domains.

The former bodyguard to Arnold Rothstein, slain underworld financier, was taken in a private ambulance from the Hotel Monticello in West 64th street, where the shooting occurred, to Polyclinic hospital, where surgeons were unable to perform a planned operation because of his weakened state. Four bullets had struck him in the chest and sides and one in the scalp and his condition was grave.

A short time later, when police learned of the shooting, a huge detail of detectives was assigned to the case but met a baffling wall of mystery similar to that surrounding the killing of Rothstein.

In the room where the picturesque gangster was shot police said they found no sign of disorder and no evidence of gambling or drinking. All day the hotel and hospital swarmed with detectives led by high officials of the department, including Commissioner Mulrooney. Practically every one in the hotel was taken to a police station for questioning.

Diamond, growing weaker every minute, was pressed to tell who shot him.

"I was seated on the edge of the bed," he declared, "I registered at the hotel last night. I was awake this morning and partly dressed. The door was closed but not locked. Suddenly it opened and there were three or four men in the doorway and they all fired."

"Do you know who shot you?" a police lieutenant asked.

"It came so quick I did not recognize anyone," the gangster replied.

Commissioner Mulrooney said he believed Diamond knew the men. He added that a chambermaid saw two of the gunmen race down the stairs after the firing and that he had ordered her held for questioning.

While he lay on the operating table Diamond requested that his wife, who is at the luxurious Diamond summer home at Acra, N. Y., be notified. Police complied.

The hospital to which he was taken was the one in which Rothstein died after being mortally wounded in November, 1928. Police contended Rothstein was shot during a card game in the Park Central hotel but were never able to establish their contention or bring the slayer to justice.

Provisional Loan For German Govt.

Credit of $125,000,000 is Subject to Favorable Action By the Reichstag

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., announced today that a group of international bankers had put a credit of $125,000,000 at the disposal of the German government, subject to action by the German reichstag authorizing the credit and providing a method of repayment.

The announcement said a syndicate of banks had been formed by the Reichsbank in Germany to participate in the credit. In the United States a syndicate has been formed by Lee, Higginson & Co., in which certain foreign participants also will be included.

The credit, it was said, will take the form of German government six-months treasury bills. The various syndicates have agreed to discount these bills in the amount of $125,000,000, and have granted the German ogvernment the option to renew the paper three times.

American institutions participating in this credit are: Lee, Higginson & Co., the Chase National bank of the city of New York, Bankers Trust Co., International Acceptance Bank, Inc., Continental-Illinois Bank & Trust Co., Chatham Phenix National Bank & Trust Co., the New York Trust Co., Irving Trust Co., the Marine Trust Co. of Buffalo, the Bank of America, N. SEARCHING FOR FOUR NEGROES, ONE A WOMAN, FOR MURDER

STEGENEVIEVE, Mo., Oct. 12—(AP)—A widespread search was on here today for four Negroes, one a woman, who shot and killed Harry Panchot, 45, and critically wounded Paul Ritter, 38, after robbing them at Little Rockboat Landing, about two miles north of here early today. The Negroes threw the men into the Mississippi river and threw rocks at Ritter when he did not sink.

Authorities anticiated mob violence if the Negroes were found. Crowds gathered outside the jail after 20 Negroes were rounded up, but at noon only small groups remained.

Sheriff Louis Zeigler swore in ten deputies.

Panchot, a service car driver, was engaged by the Negroes to take them to Little Rockboat Landing early today and Ritter, a stationary fireman, went along for the ride. On reaching the landing the Negroes paid Panchot, Ritter said, and then started shooting. They took $16 and a watch from Ritter and a small amount of money from Panchot's pockets. Panchot was killed by a bullet through the heart and Ritter was shot through the abdomen by a bullet which entered is spine, paralyzing his legs. When he attempted to swim the Negroes hit him on the head with rocks.

A watchman on a boat heard his cries and rescued him. The Negroes fled. The watchman also recovered Panchot's body from shallow water. Ritter is in a St. Louis hospital in a critical condition.

EXPLOSION DURING FILMING OF A PICTURE

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Two of 15 persons seriously injured by a premature charge of black powder and dynamite during the filming of a motion picture here yesterday were in a critical condition today. The other 18 victims were recovering in Flagstaff and Tuba City hospitals.

Twenty-five others were slightly injured, but were treated at the scene by physicians.

William F. Wallace, of Flagstaff, a chauffeur, may not survive his injuries, doctors said. He suffered a fractured skull and possible internal injuries. A powder man and electrician named Garland, the other seriously injured, is at Tuba City with a fractured skull.

The company had been sent to Arizona by Pathe Studios, Inc., to make a desert picture which called for a landslide. Powder and dynamite had been placed in the side of a cliff and cameramen were spotted on points of vantage.

Suddenly the charge exploded, hurling rocks and debris in all directions, shattering two of the cameras, ruining the sound equipment and knocking members of the company down.

ROUND-UP OF COMMUNISTS AND AGITATORS IN SPAIN

MADRID, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The government of Premier Berenguer today continued to round up and arrest radical labor agitators and so-called communists in Madrid, Barcelona, Seville and other places, announcing that it had suppressed an extremist plot for anti-government strikes and uprisings.

The total number of arrests has been kept secret but is believed to be several hudnred. Semi-official information yesterday was that 50 radical leaders had been arrested, and that 300 in Barcelona alone were being sought.

The authorities believe that the alleged plot centered in Barcelona, center of the Catalonian separatist movement and fertile field for radical agitation.

Its leaders are supposed to include communists, influential men in the most racial labor groups, extreme republicans and the Catalan separatists agiatiors.

TWO MEN ARRESTED FOR $2,000 THEATRE ROBBERY

GERMAN GOVT. TO FACE VOTE OF NON-CONFIDENCE TODAY

National Party Has Decided to Introduce Resolution At the Session of the Reichstag Today—Yesterday the Social Democratic Party Held a Gigantic Demonstration Against Fascism and Dictatorship—Fascists Are to Wear Brown Shirts; the Communists Red Shirts

BERLIN, Oct. 12—(AP)—On the eve of the opening session of the new reichstag, with its heavily reinforced fascist and communist deputations, the social democratic party today held a gigantic demonstration against fascism and dictatorships.

While the bourgeois parties nervously awaited the opening session, Dr. Paul Loebe, social democratic president of the reichstag, addressed tens of thousands of German socialists and warned their oppenents that "the social democrats will oppose the fascists with iron will, and if necessary with workmen's fists."

The only other important political event of the day was the decision of the nationalist party to introduce a resolution of non-confidence in the Bruening government after the Reichstag opening.

The 107 fascists and the 77 communists of the new parliament have made plans for taking their seats in a fashion that bodes ill for the tranquility of the session.

Despite contrary laws of the state of Prussia, the fascists will attempt to enter the hall in a body, wearing the brown shirts and uniforms of the Hitler movement.

The communists will wear red shirts. The deputies can conceal their regalia under overcoats until they enter the building or can dress in the party committee room. Once inside they are immune from arrest.

The gravity of the issues to be debated in the reichstag weighed specially heavily upon the bourgeois parties forming the coalition supporting Chancellor Heinrich Bruening.

It was generally recognized that parliamentary government was getting what probably would be its last chance in Germany. If the reichstag fails to solve the complex financial economic and political problems burdening the country, anything from a "putsch" to a revolution may follow.

A fight has begun already over the presidency of the reichstag, which is symptomatic of the bitterness among the parties.

Traditionally, the largest party supplies the president, and Dr. Loebe is the choice of the numerically strongest party, the social-democrats.

It is universally agreed that Dr. Loebe is able and normally would be automatically reelected. But both the fascists and the communists have announced that they will offer objections to him and have therefore charged the atmosphere with electricity at the very outset.

As an extra precaution, and in addition to police measures, the reichstag building has been made safe for democracy by removal of the inkwells from the desks of the deputies, many of whom have a fondness for using them to drive home their arguments.

The first business tomorrow will be the roll call, after which the session probably will be adjourned. Election of the presidium, and constitution of the standing committees, will take several days.

By Thursday, Chancellor Bruening probably will go before the house and demand approval of his drastic financial reform and economy program.

VICTORIES FORESHADOW END OF CHINA'S CIVIL WAR

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12—(AP)—Conclusive victories claimed tonight by Nationalist government officials foreshadowed the end of China's latest civil war.

Nanking's military machine now is operating solely in northwestern Honan province, seeking to crush the government's one remaining formidable openly hostile faction, General Feng Yu-Hsiang's Kuominchun.

Nationalist military headquarters said that during the last 48 hours Marshal Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist troops had achieved a series of brilliant victories over the rebels along the Haichow-Tungkwan railway and west of Chengchow. They were said to be occupying the important city of Honanfu, smashing the Kuominchun grip throughout extreme northwestern Honan.

The military also said that north of Chengchow government troops had routed the weakening Kuominchun and "Nationalists have crossed the Yellow river, capturing and disarming 60,000 rebels while the remainder have fled northward before our advancing troops."

BULGARIA'S BACHELOR KING GREETED BY HIS FIANCEE

SAN ROSSORE, Italy, Oct. 12—(AP)—Bulgaria's bachelor monarch, King Boris, arrived at the Italian royal palace here tonight from Sofia and was greeted by his fiancee, Princess Giovanna, the royal family and high court officials.

The king, whose train reached Triest early in the morning, arrived at the Pisa railway station at 8 p. m., and immediately came on by automobile to San Rossore. His car was preceded by motor trucks carrying a number of brilliant blue trunk, containing his effects and those of his suite.

Despite bad weather, a large crowd of villagers stood outside the entrance to the royal grounds and gave King Boris a rousing ovation as his automobile entered.

While he is visiting his fiancee, the king will inhabit a small palace known as the "Gombo," about half a mile from the "Cascine Veocchie" villa of the royal family.

N. L. SUB BASE TO HAVE TEN LESS SUBMARINES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—A reassignment of the 55 submarines to be kept in service under the new operating plan was announced today by the navy.

The new assignments, under which 25 submarines will be withdrawn from the fleet, follow:

Nineteen at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, in place of 20; nine at Coco Solo instead of 11; six at San Diego, where originally there were 18, and nine at New London, where there had been 19. The status of the 12 with the Asiatic fleet remains unchanged.

HERBERT HOOVER, JR., IS "DOING VERY NICELY"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—President Hoover returned to the white house tonight from his mountain lodge in Virginia after an unusally fast run through the heavy Sunday traffic.

WATERBURY MOTORISTS ARRESTED AFTER CHASE

NAUGATUCK, Oct. 12—(AP)—Dr. Bernard O'Hara, Waterbury dentist, and Frank P. O'Connell of Waterbury, were arrested tonight by State Trooper Howard Thomas, of the Beacon Falls barracks following an automobile chase of nearly 10 miles in which several shots were fired.

The dentist, owner of the car, was charged with breach of the peace. His companion was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor reckless driving, and evading responsibility. Their automobile traveling according to police, at a high rate of speed and along a devious course attracted the state trooper at Woodbridge. Thomas gave chase on his motorcycle. In Bethany the speeding automobile sideswiped another car and continued its flight through Naugatuck and then toward Union City. On the Wolcott road, Dr. O'Hara and O'Connell abandoned the machine and attempted to escape on foot, but were overtaken by Thomas.

FIVE GUNMEN SHOT UP KINGSTON, N. Y., POOL ROOM

KINGSTON, N. Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—Fives gunmen shot up a pool room during a dice game here early today and escaped after killing one man and wounding two others. Four hundred dollars was lying in plain sight on a pool table, but the assailants did not molest it.

The dead man was Frank O'Connor, 36, justice of the peace and town clerk of Rosendale, near Kingston. Thomas Dolan, 37, and Warren Miller, 57, each was wounded in the right leg. They are in Kingston hospital.

William Connor, proprietor of the pool room, said he did not know any of the gunmen and was unable to describe them. He could offer no motive for the attack. Police said the shooting was probably in revenge, but what for they did not say. Witnesses of the shooting were reluctant to talk, it was said.

BANDIT WAS SHOT IN DOCTOR'S HOME IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A robber admitted to the home of Dr. Louis Steinger, Brooklyn, as a patient today, was shot and captured after he had shot and wounded the doctor's 62-year-old father, Jacob.

After entering the home, the bandit demanded jewelry after taking $71 and forced the physician into the next room where his father was asleep. Dr. Steinger warned his father.

The robber fired, wounding the aged man in the shoulder. The aged man leaped at him and bit him in the finger. The robber dropped the pistol. The physician picked it up and shot the robber in the back as he fled into the next room.

The prisoner was taken to a hospital where he identified himself as John Parish of Brooklyn. He may die.

FISHING SCHOONERS READY FOR RACE TODAY

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 12—(AP)—The Sabbath was a day of intense activity for the Lunenburg schooner Bluenose, which tomorrow will meet Gertrude L. Thebaud, fastest fishing schooner out of this old port, in their second race for the Sir Thomas Lipton international fishermen's trophy.

Captain Ben Pine, skipper of the Thebaud, had little fault to find with the trim Golucesterman after her victory in the opening race last Thursday, although if light airs continued he planned to remove about seven tons of ballast tomorrow morning before the race.

FINED FOR SLAPPING THE FACE OF POLICE OFFICER

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 12—(AP)—Prince Karl Odescalchi has been sentenced to pay a fine equivalent to about $300 for slapping the face and generally assaulting and abusing a police officer who attempted to arrest him for reckless driving.

The judge stressed that the prince previously had been fined for running over and killing a pedestrian and that he 12 times had violated traffic regulations.

MISS JOHNSON BECOMES BRIDE OF H. S. SIMONDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 12.—Miss Mildred S. Johnson became the bride of Harold Stearns Simonds, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Simonds, of 288 North street, at a brilliant wedding performed at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus H. Johnson, of 113 Bridge street. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, pastor of the First Congregational church, officiated, the single ring service being used. Mrs. Charles H. Beebe played the wedding march. The attendants were Mrs. Harry B. Read, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and Otis S. Chapman of Rockville, as best man. The rooms were decorated with palms, ferns and yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride was gowned in white satin with a veil of white tulle and lace cap caught at the sides with orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of bride's roses. Her attendant wore a gown of nile green satin and carried talisman roses. Mrs. Johnson wore black chiffon velvet and the mother of the groom wore wine-colored canton crepe, trimmed with ecru lace.

The reception was held at the home immediately following the ceremony, with Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Kirtland catering. There were 50 guests, coming from Hartford, Springfield, Mass., New York, Boston, Mass., New London, Rockville, Bristol, Monson, Mass., and this city. Mr. and Mrs. Simonds left in the evening on an unannounced wedding trip, the bride wearing rust canton crepe on her departure. After Oct. 20 they will be at home at 111 Broad street, New London, where the groom is employed by the Southern New England Telephone Co. As individual gifts, the bride and groom exchanged wrist watches. The bride gave her attendant an aquamarine necklace and the groom presented his best man with an engraved cigarette case. Numerous gifts were received by the couple.

The groom is a graduate of Windham high school, class of 1924, and of Dartmouth college, class of 1928. He is a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity and the Dragon society. The bride graduated from Windham high school in 1924 and from the Willimantic State Normal school in 1926. She has been engaged since that time as a teacher in West Hartford, Tolland and Somers.

Dr. Craig Endorses Hospital Project

Dr. D. Allan Craig of New York, who was a director of the American College of Surgeons for several years, has given whole-hearted endorsement to the plan to build a $500,000 hospital of 115 beds in this city. Dr. Craig points to the need of such a hospital as being of vital importance, not only to this city, but to the whole northeastern section of Connecticut. While St. Joseph's hospital has a Grade A rating, the highest given by the college, Dr. Craig believes that the institution is too small to meet the needs of the district which it serves. "Willimantic is the largest city in the northeastern area of some 1,400 square miles that is now entirely without a 100-bed hospital of its own and is the most central and logical location for a large modern hospital," said Dr. Craig in an interview.

Legion Renames Officers

Present officers of James J. Shea post No. 19, American Legion, have been renominated for the annual election in November. They are: Commander, Abraham Sussman; first vice-commander, Arthur W. Swanson; second vice-commander, Joseph Roux; adjutant, Walter W. Taylor; finance officer, Edmund J. Peckham; sergeant-at-arms, Oscar Keith; chaplain, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock; publicity officer, Roy W. Downer; trustee for three years, Harry Cohen; assistant adjutant, Charles W. Hill; assistant finance officer, Levi G. Goss; state aid fund officer, Dr. Charles A. Jenkins. Several Legionnaires attended the fourth district meeting held in Ellington this afternoon.

E. B. Hughes, a book salesman of St. John's New Brunswick, has been booked at police headquarters on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. The arrest was made upon complaint of C. Dubois of 60 Church street and on an allegation that Hughes has been collecting $1.69 for book orders instead of 69 cents, according to the terms of the concern he represents.

Officers of the local branch of the W. C. T. U., elected for the ensuing year, are: Mrs. Mary L. Stearns, reelected president; Mrs. E. J. Morgan, vice-president-at-large; Mrs. Ella A. Card, Mrs. Mary C. Hanna, Mrs. Idella Morse, Mrs. Frank Pendleton and Mrs. Grace Harvey, vice-presidents; Mrs. Jennie R. Scripture, recording secretary; Mrs. F. A. The delegates to the state convention are Mrs. Lena Davis, Mrs. Lottie Beckwith and Miss Caroline Lester. Mrs. Ida Marcy, formerly of this city, is now an inmate in the Wallingford Masonic Home for Widows.

A docket of five cases was presented in police court Saturday morning with Deputy Judge Russell A. Andrews on the bench and Attorney Harry S. Gaucher prosecuting. In the case of Stedman Nichols, 16, of 1027 Main street, presented on a technical charge, a continuance until Oct. 18 was ordered. Charges of assault and taking a car owned by Frank Tiffany without permission, were dismissed in the case of Louis Rondeau of 203 Main street, arrested on complaint of Mrs. Mary Tiffany of 63 Ives street.

A nolle on payment of costs was ordered in the case of A. E. Cline of Scotland, charged with driving without a license. Prosecutor Gaucher stated that Mr. Cline possessed a license but had lost the certificate before his apprehension.

The case of Angelo Larmote, 18, of West Main street, charged with misconduct, was heard in chambers. The accused was committed for observation to the state insane asylum at Norwich. The fifth case was that of a vagrant who received a suspended jail sentence with orders to get out of town.

Ellen Grey of Hartford, department president, conducted the annual inspection of A. C. Tyler auxiliary No. 14, at a meeting held in G. A. R. hall Friday evening with President Rachael Gallagher in charge. The auxiliary was complimented on its floor work. Among state department officers present were: Mary Stewart of Wallingford, national assistant guard, and Anna Hoffman of New Britain, department assistant guard; Minnie Flynn, past department president; Catherine Joyce, department chaplain; Marcelline English, department aide; and Emma Doyle, department musician, all of this city. The auxiliary received the gift of a table cloth from Mrs. Ida Loughlin in appreciation of the kindness shown her during a recent illness. The meeting closed with a covered dish supper. Arrangements were in charge of President Mrs. Gallagher, Mrs. English, Mrs. Mary Benoit, Mrs. Flynn, Mrs. Henrietta Judge, Mrs. Emily Jolie and Mrs. Doyle.

Wood—Roy

Miss Leona Roy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Roy of 101 Mansfield avenue, and Burton Wood, son of Mrs. Lulu Wood of 318 Valley street, were married at St. Mary's church rectory at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Rev. E. A. Mathieu officiated. Gerard Ahern was best man and Miss Isabelle Roy, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The reception was held in Storrs in the evening, with about 50 guests attending from this city, Hartford, Providence, New Haven and other cities. Upon returning from a wedding trip, the couple will reside at 318 Valley street. The groom, who is a former resident of New York, is a chef by occupation.

100 Voters Made

The elector's oath was administered to 100 new voters, about one-half of whom were women, at a session of the selectmen and town clerk, held Saturday to qualify voters for the state elections in November. There are 400 names on the list to be made, indicating that after duplications and errors have been corrected there will remain a possible 250 to be made at the next and final session next Saturday.

Machines driven by Jacob Brettschneider of 136 Chapman street and George V. Sulkowski of Mansfield Center collided on Jackson street Saturday morning, causing damage to both machines. Officers William Hurley and Joseph Lariviere investigated.

Director Edwin F. Cross of the 22nd annual Old Folks' concert to be held at the Methodist church early in November, announced over the week-end that the soloists will include Mrs. R. G. Remington, Mrs. Louis LaFleur, Mrs. Ruth H. Williams and Mrs. Ruth Shedd. Mrs. Charles H. Beebe will give readings and will preside at the piano. The chorus will include 40 voices and an eight-piece orchestra will assist.

Banks and town and city offices will be closed Monday in observance of Columbus day. Manufacturing plants, mercantile houses and other forms of business will not close, however. The delivery of mail will be according to regular schedules.

Sedans operated by Margaret R. Young of South Coventry and Ernest Asselin of Friendship street, this city, collided with some damage on Bridge street, shortly after the noon hour Saturday. Asselin was emerging from the driveway of the New Haven railroad freight yards at the time. Officer William Hurley investigated.

Meetings of the Brotherhood of the First Congregational church will be resumed next Thursday evening at the church house when Dr. Joseph E. Root of Hartford will speak on Experiences and Observations in Alaska. Dr. Root has traveled and hunted extensively in Alaska. John B. Sullivan will preside.

Samuel Chesbro attended the funeral of William E. Fansworth in Hartford Saturday afternoon. The deceased, who was a drug salesman for over 35 years, was well known to drug store proprietors here.

Mrs. Alice Billings Makepeace, home demonstration agent of Putnam, instructed in the making of bridge lamp shades from parchment at a home economics meeting held at the home of Mrs. J. Raymond Smith in Windham Center Friday.

A Ford sedan owned by Leopold Rock and parked on the street near his home at No. 74 Church street, was badly damaged by a hit-and-run driver at 1:15 o'clock this morning. Officer Ralph Burchnall heard the crash and rushed to the scene but the machine doing the damage had disappeared. The sedan was pushed some 20 feet onto the sidewalk.

St. Joseph's hospital of this city is on the list of hospitals in this state meeting with the requirements of the American College of Surgeons as insuring safe and efficient service to patients.

The application of a new coat of white paint to the exterior of the First Baptist church is nearing completion. Painters were at work on the 125-foot spire Saturday.

Within exactly one hour of each other, two men were arrested on identical charges, at the same location and by the same officer, at 7 and 8 o'clock, respectively, Saturday evening. At 7 o'clock, Officer Ralph Burchnall arrested Martin Zoldak of Lafayette street for passing a traffic signal against a red light and for failure to have a driver's license. Just one hour later he arrested Joseph Deller of Storrs and Pittsburgh, Pa., on the same charges. Zoldak and Deller are scheduled to appear in police court Monday morning.

John Buck, son of Selectman and Mrs. William A. Buck, and a student at Marietta college, Marietta, Ohio, has been selected as one of the cast in the first Players' club production of the present term.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Norton are week-end and Columbus day guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Norton.

Mrs. Leo Prue returned to her home on Spruce street today, after having been a patient for ten days in St. Joseph's hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Tryon and Mr. and Mrs. Grover Williams spent the week-end with Dr. and Mrs. Robert Wilcox in Pascoag, R. I.

Russell Potter and Sherwood B. Potter, Jr., played in an invitation golf tournament in Hartford Sunday.

George R. Gaudreau of Prospect street has enrolled as a student in Bay Path institute, Springfield, Mass., for a two-year course in business administration.

Miss Jessica Fenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, is visiting Mrs. Worthington Platt and family in Flushing, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hurlihe and daughter Marion, and Walter Sullivan, left Saturday for a three-day trip over the Storm King highway with Danbury friends.

Rev. and Mrs. Arthur S. Wheelock had as week-end guests his sister, Mrs. Lloyd Stickney, and husband, of West Roxbury, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ahern and son Francis, a student at Wesleyan university, attended the Yale-Georgia football game in New Haven Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood B. Potter were week-end visitors in Plymouth, Mass.

FRANKLYN YOUTH WINS STATE SKEET CHAMPIONSHIP AT WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 12.—Frank Rockwood, Jr., of Franklin, captured the Connecticut state skeet championship at the championship matches conducted at the range of the Willimantic Gun club, on upper Ash street, this afternoon. Rockwood, a member of the Willimantic club, scored 97 out of 100, and broke his last three strings straight, 75 out of 75, taking the honors against the field of 19 competing marksmen from all sections of the state.

The young marksman was awarded the championship prize of a Browning automatic shotgun, 16-gauge, given by the Browning Arms Co. J. A. Olson of East Hampton and A. B. Gully of Bridgeport were tied for second place with 96 out of 100, and George E. Sivers of Bridgeport and A. Linn Weatherhead of Willimantic were tied for third with 95 out of 100. In the shoot-offs, Olson beat Gully and Sivers beat Weatherhead.

Four cash prizes were awarded to the respective winners. The five highest scorers, two of whom are members of the Willimantic club, were declared Connecticut's official skeet team for 1930. A gallery of over 200 witnessed the shooting in which some excellent scores, comparing favorably with any in the state, were made.

The total scores of the new state team are 479 out of 500, this being considered one of the best scores on record. There were no handicaps, all of the shooters being in Class A. Rockwood and Weatherhead paved their way for the state team, the former to the championship, with 20-gauge guns, Rockwood using a Winchester and Weatherhead a Remington.

Other good scores were made by Mert Chapman of Stonington, 94; George Northnagle, Bridgeport, 93; Louis Ortman, Norwich, 91; Frank Rockwood, Sr., Franklin, 87.

There were several Rhode Island visitors who joined Connecticut marksmen in informal shooting, the total pigeon "fatality" for the day being 3,200.

The official referee was Field Captain Carl E. Rice and the shoot was in charge of A. L. Weatherhead, both of the local club. Robert Mitchell of Westerly was official scorer.

Dr. Eugene M. Clifford of Hartford was visiting friends and relatives here Sunday.

A number of local grangers are planning to take the fifth degree at the meeting of New London County Pomona grange to be held with Norwich grange Tuesday, October 14 and the sixth degree at Lisbon Saturday.

Old Folk's Concert

A large number attended the fine concert of old-time songs presented at grange hall Friday evening by the Westchester Congregational church choir, fifteen taking part. The proceeds were equally divided between the Westchester church and the local grange.

Mrs. Wallace Prann of Deep River visited over the week end with her mother and brother here.

All of Silver

A dozen small oak leaves made of silver may serve many purposes, since they may be used for ash receivers or individual nut or candy dishes.

For the Guest

A large bottle with a small neck made of greenish glass is arranged so that it can be used for a wall decoration by means of a metal hook and brace.

Space Saver

A small vanity box mounted on a stand, with a roomy drawer beneath and a very little square stool to sit upon, is a boon where space is limited, since it can be moved about so easily and takes up so little space.

For Closet Efficiency

New devices are now available to add to the beauty and convenience of a lady's closet or wardrobe. There are new ring hangers, prettily covered in chintz or silk, through which nighties, that they will not suffer from stretching on an ordinary hanger. New skirt lingerie or sweaters may be slipped so hangers resemble the familiar trouser hangers; and there is a combination type of hanger to hold a dress and its slip. There are also cylindrical bags covered in chintz which are ideal for a fur scarf.

Stafford Springs

John Sullivan of Litchfield, was penalized $10 and costs for speeding and $2 for not having a Connecticut operator's license while driving a Massachusetts car, when he appeared before Judge Heald in the borough court Saturday morning. The fine and costs were paid. Mr. Sullivan claims that while coming down Rockwell hill several days ago he fell asleep at the wheel. His car overturned and was considerably damaged, but he suffered no personal injury.

Started Fire—Sent to Jail

At the some session of court Joseph Luka was found guilty of starting a fire in the open air without having permission from the fire warden. Mr. Luka set fire to the dry grass and bushes on land adjoining the Glenville road Friday morning. As he was unable to give a satisfactory reason for so doing he was committed to jail for thirty days. Luka is a native of Austria.

Miss Alba Lorenzett, student nurse at St. Vincent's hospital, Bridgeport, has been spending a few days with her parents.

J. Arthur Taylor of Springfield was a recent visitor with borough relatives.

Miss Mary Quinn has been spending several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Quinn, at their home on Brenden Heights.

About ten tables of whist were in play at the American Legion room in Warren Memorial hall Friday evening. Prizes were won by Alex Fontanella and Mrs. Lionel Bousquet. Mrs. Rose Greene was chairman of the committee in charge of the affair, which is one in a series of whists under the auspices of the woman's auxiliary to the American Legion.

Mrs. Emma A. Fuller is a guest at the home of Miss Mary A. Howard on Westford avenue.

Arthur Kelley of Willimantic was in Stafford Springs on business Saturday.

Miss Rita Jacian of Broad Brook was a recent visitor with relatives in town.

To Exhibit at Fair

The Girl Scouts of Stafford are completing plans and preparations for Stafford fair. The Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts in uniform will march each day of the fair and will be accompanied by the Bugle and Drum Corps. Several branches of work done by the Girl Scouts will be on display in exhibition hall. Demonstrations will be given in spatter work, blue prints and smoke prints. There will also be exhibitions in tin can cookery. The Girl Scout tent will be located near the poultry building.

The democratic caucus for the nomination of candidates to the general assembly and justices of the peace will be held this (Monday) evening.

Miss Florence Nothnick who is employed in Hartford spent the week end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph A. Nothnick.

Miss Margaret Taylor, teacher in the local grammar school, is spending several days at her home at Beverly Hills, N. Y.

All business places in Stafford will be closed today (Monday) after eleven o'clock in order that Stafford Springs people may have an opportunity to attend the opening day of the fair. The schools will be closed during the three days of the fair. Wednesday will be Children's day when all children will be admitted free.

Make Candles Last

If you want candles to last half as long again as usual try the following plan: Take each candle by the wick and give it a good coating of white varnish. Then put the candles away for a day or two to harden. The varnish prevents the grease from running down, and so preserves the life of the candle.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Market quiet and native produce, with the exception of apples and potatoes, generally light and selling at prices little changed. Potatoes were being sustained with difficulty.

The Connecticut Market Bulletin reports that fancy, large eggs have made spectacular price gains in New York since the opening of the week. Quotations advanced as much as 11 cents per dozen for some grades. Local markets are lightly supplied with eggs of similar grades, which is expected to cause price advances for Connecticut eggs in the near future. Traders were not looking for as radical price gains locally but the opinion was general that the upward price swing would be resumed.

Eggs which were not full sized and fancy were meeting with a slower demand and showing some price declines. Cold storage quotations were lower generally and medium to pullet sizes on markets of the state were so freely offered that sellers in some cities were reducing prices in order to clear receipts.

POETRY

Columbus

St. Stephen's cloistered hall was proud
In learning's pomp that day,
For there a robed and stately crowd
Pressed on in long array.
A mariner with simple chart
Confronts that conclave high,
While strong ambition stirs his heart,
And burning thoughts of wonder part
From lip and sparkling eye.

What hath he said? With frowning face,
In whispered tones they speak,
And lines upon their tablets trace,
Which flush each ashen cheek;
The Inquisition's mystic doom
Sits on their brows severe,
And bursting forth in visioned gloom,
Sad heresy from burning tomb,
Groans on the startled ear.

Courage, thou Genoese! Old Time
Thy splendid dream shall crown;
Yon Western Hemisphere sublime,
Where unshorn forests frown,
The awful Andes' cloud-wrapt brow,
The Indian hunter's bow,
Bold streams untamed by helm or prow,
And rocks of gold and diamonds, thou
To thankless Spain shalt show.

Courage, World-finder! Thou hast need!
In Fate's unfolding scroll,
Dark woes and ingrate wrongs I read,
That rack a noble soul.
On! on! Creation's secrets probe,
Then drink thy cup of scorn,
And wrapped in fallen Caesar's robe,
Sleep like that master of the globe,
All glorious—yet forlon.

—Lydia Huntley Sigourney.

New England Sabbath

The smell of pines along the way
To church; a blue glimpse of the [illegible]
The nearer waters of the bay
Lap at the marsh grass lazily;
Whispering breezes call to me
Soft-voiced across the lowland sod
Like imminent divinity—
"Be still, and know that I am God."

I catch the scent of ripened hay,
I hear the low drone of the bee;
I watch the tiny insects play
On the warm walls in humble glee;
The lichened rocks, the barberry,
The spires of early goldenrod,
All speak in glowing ecstasy—
"Be still, and know that I am God."

Why must man meet this lovely day
With solemn face and anxious knee?
All the earth quivers in the ray
Of the kind sun, and only he Walks downcast-eyed. More wise than wee
Is every bud and bloom and pod;
These hold Creaton's secret key—
"Be still, and know that I am God."

Soul of all growing things, to Thee
I raise my spirit's litany,
You answer me from every clod—
"Be still, and know that I am God."

Shopkeeper: "Why not try one of our Rip Van Winkle rugs, madam?"

Prospective purchaser. "What kind are they?

Shopkeeper: "They have an unusually long nap!"—Echoes.

"I tell ye," said Pat, "the ould fri'nds are the bist, afther all, and, phwat's more, I can prove it."

"How are you going to prove it?"

"Where will ye find a new fri'nd that has sthud by ye as long as the ould ones have?"—The Pathfinder.

"Born among 'em, sir."—London Express.

A small boy asked his father how wars began.

"Well," said his father, "suppose that England quarreled with France—"

"But," interrupted the mother, "England mustn't quarrel with France!"

"I know," he answered, "but I am taking a hypothetical instance."

"You are misleading the child," said the mother.

"No, I am not," he answered.

"Yes, you are."

"No, I am not."

"Yes."

"No."

"All right, Dad," said the small boy, "I think I know how wars begin."—Pullman News.

DANIELSON

STATE POLICE GATHER MORE CLUES TO HOLD-UP

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 12.—Over the week-end, state officers of the Danielson barracks, the investigation in charge of Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer here, continued to work on and unravel the tangled skein of information that likely will eventually lead to the clearing up of the hold-up case that took place at South Killingly early last Monday morning. Local state officers have the cooperation of the Providence and Warwick police in this case.

It appears, from the arrests already made, four men being held at the present time in connection with the matter, that the officers have bored in on considerable of a gang. There was the prospect, it was guardedly stated here today, that other arrests are to follow. There is also the chance that the revelations of this case may bring to light some other material that may explain certain other mysteries that the police would like to know about, this pertaining to Rhode Island.

With all but a small amount of the silver stolen from the truck recovered, the officers are now concentrating their energies on rounding up the people who are supposed to have been responsible for as daring and well-planned a hold-up as has occurred in this territory in many years.

The three prisoners arrested Tuesday at Shawomet Beach, R. I., at a summer cottage where $6,500 worth of the silver stolen from the truck was recovered, are due to appear in the town court here Tuesday to answer to a charge of committing robbery while armed. Still another person, Basil Compopiano, of East Providence, is held by the Rhode Island police in connection with the case, and is fighting extradition.

An angle of this case that has not been explained as yet—by the police, if they happen to know about it, is how those who robbed the truck of the silver were so well informed as to the fact that the shipment was to be made, as to who told the robbers what time the truck would leave Waterbury for Providence and as to the route it was to follow. The hold-up men most certainly had all of this information and worked their plans to get the silver out to a T.

Celebrates 83rd Birthday

Joseph B. Stetson, Brooklyn's best known octogenarian, had a birthday party at his home in the western part of that town, near Stetson's Four Corners, today.

It appears from the records that Mr. Stetson arrived in this country just exactly 438 years to a day after Columbus discovered America, which is another way of saying that Mr. Stetson was observing his 83rd birthday today.

Twenty-seven people, the majority of them relatives, came to do him honor, and many of them traveled comparatively long distances to be with him for the day. Mr. Stetson said this afternoon that he was enjoying the day immensely, though he was bothered a bit by a slight cold.

Mr. Stetson is a descendant of a long line of old-time New Englanders. His parents were James and Dolly Witter Stetson. His mother was a daughter of Capt. Eben Witter and a granddaughter of Nathan Witter, who blazed a trail from Griswold into the then unknown land that is now Brooklyn and had only the axe marks he made on trees as he came along through the forests to guide him back to the region in which Jewett City is the bright outstanding jewel at the present time. When all of this happened people were living in the year 1745.

In all of the years that have elapsed, Stetsons have lived on the place where Joseph B. Stetson observed his 83rd anniversary today. He and his ancestors have witnessed the development of this section of eastern Connecticut from primeval forest land where Indians roamed to what it is today.

Twigs that his forefathers set out have grown to giant trees that have shaded generations of people. At the Stetson homestead, where there are many beautiful trees and plants, there is a wisteria vine that was grown from a slip taken on the home grounds of Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Mr. Stetson is a widower, his wife having died in 1922.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Adelbert Perkins

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning the death of Mrs. Louisa Perkins, 84, widow of Adelbert Perkins, occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Graves on Mechanic street. Mrs. Graves is a daughter of Mrs. Perkins, who had been in poor health for a long time past.

Mrs. Perkins was a native of Germany, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stephens. As a child of but two weeks of age she was brought here by her parents, and had been a resident of Danielson for more than two generations. She recalled through many years hearing her parents tell of the voyage of weeks from Germany to this country that they made while she was too young to realize that she was being brought to this country.

Mrs. Perkins, whose husband died eight years ago, leaves, in addition to her daughter, Mrs. Graves, a son, Adelbert H. Perkins of New York, two grandchildren, several great-grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. William A. Burrows, the latter a resident of Danielson for many years past.

Louis J. Kalinosky

Louis J. Kalinosky, 62, died during last night at his home in the Daniel's Village section of Killingly. He succumbed after having been ill a long time from a disease that he developed as the result of work he did while employed in New York—an occupational disease. About six weeks ago, Mr. Kalinosky and his family came into this territory and went to live on a farm, where he hoped he might regain his health. This hope was futile. He has failed gradually for a long time past, notwithstanding that he lived out in the country and was engaged in farming.

He was a native of Hungary, but had been a resident of this country for years. He leaves his wife, Anna; a son, Theodore, and a sister, Mrs. Martha Menas, of New York. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy and is to be forwarded to Yonkers, N. Y., for burial.

Armand Bussiere of Dyer street has sold a lot on Franklin street to Eugene Mabbcouf.

Mrs Mary Taylor of Webster was a guest here over the week-end of her sister, Miss Katherine D. Aylward, of Academy street.

On this beautiful October day, without rain, like all others of the month, it may be mentioned, the mercury ran up to 81 degrees in Danielson.

Hundreds of people watched, on Saturday night, the parade of visiting guards that came here from various parts of southern New Engand, and later attended the dance and drill in the town hall.

This afternoon a considerable number of Danielson people were in Providence to see the professional football game, Arthur "Pop" Williams, Jr., a former Connecticut Aggie star, being a member of the Steam Rollers of Providence.

Hunters have it all figured out. A week hence—on Oct. 20—they will be out on the first day of the season for taking protected game birds—pheasants and the like. Game wardens are warning that quail must not be killed this fall. They are protected throughout the coming open season for hunting.

Probably incident to the fact that this happens to be Columbus day, traffic mounted to mid-summer peak as early as this morning and continued so throughout the day. Many hundreds of Rhode Island and Massachusetts cars rolled through Danielson between 9 this morning and sunset tonight.

Flights southward of wild geese are being reported, and with that goes the suggestion of cold weather near at hand. But there arises the prophet who says there cannot be much really cold weather until the rivers and ponds are full, and there is close to a water famine in the surrounding countryside now, but not in Danielson, where the water resources are ample.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

Arthur Pontbriand of Webster who was summoned to appear in court after the car he was driving had collided with a car driven by Alfred Dumas, of this town, Tuesday evening, appeared before Judge P. P. Tourtellotte Wednesday night. After the witnesses, Mary McKeon, Henry Harper, Fred Lapierre, had testified, he was found guilty of failure to grant the right of way and ordered to pay the costs of the court. The accident happened about 5:45 p. m., Tuesday, when Dumas, who is employed in the cloth inspecting department of the Grosvenordale company, accompanied by his wife and Miss Mary McKeon, was coming out of the mill yard onto the state road. He had gone about 45 feet toward the mill office, when the Webster car going in the same direction, crashed into him. Miss McKeon was thrown against a window which broke and cut her on the forehead. She was taken to Dr. Lapalme's office for treatment. The cut is not serious.

Another case tried Wednesday night was that involving Miss Mary Minarik, 18, of Webster, who on the morning of Sept. 29 struck a White truck driven by Ernest A. Barker of 72 Vine street, East Providence. Barker was proceeding from Thompson hill toward Kenney's corner where his car was struck and overturned, in making a right hand turn, by Miss Minarik's car, travelling south. Miss Minarik was summoned to appear in court after investigation by State Officer Lionel Poirier, who charged her with failure to grant right of way. A fine of $5 and costs was paid by Attorney Shaugnessy of Webster, who represented the defendant.

Burt Tourtellotte of Worcester visited his brother, P. P. Tourtellotte, Wednesday.

At the democratic caucus Wednesday night, held in the town hall, the following were nominated: Judge of probate, Fred A. Munyan; representative, Oscar Munyan, Esdras Blanchette; justice of the peace, Frank A. Pelletier, Bernice Welch, Frank O. Tourtellotte, James Mack, Byron Tefft, Katherine Haggerty, Frank Bates, Clarence Stevens, P. Depelteau and William St. Marie; town committee, E. J. Keegan, D. Derosier and P. Duhamel, William Flannigan, James Mack.

The senior class of Tourtellotte M. H. S. has set Oct. 17 for the first senior hop of the season, which will be held at the Community house. A five piece orchestra from Webster has been engaged to furnish music. The committees in charge are: orchestra, Phyllis Nelson, Mary Brew, Gladys Evans, Lois Strait; bids, Phyllis Nelson, Martha Strand, Doris Bousquet, Mary Brew; refreshments, Phyllis Nelson, Pauline Bell, Virginia Talabac. The proceeds will be added to the Washington trip fund.

Miss Helen R. Mack, domestic science teacher at the high school and Eurania Perkins motored to Pawtucket, Tuesday.

The Woman's Home and Foreign society of the Swedish Lutheran church met in the church parlors Tuesday evening. A lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Emma Skotchless, Mrs. George Carlson, Mrs. Carl Anderson and Miss Carrie Anderson. A social hour followed.

Mrs. Prudence Greene of Worcester, Miss Thyra I Walker, Mrs. Nancy Walker and Mrs. William Frank and daughter, Lois Anne, motored to Willimantic Tuesday and visited Mrs. Morin.

Miss Eleanor Guigley, instructor in science at Tourtellotte high, is in charge of the morning assembly exercises this week.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church were guests of Mrs. Edward Cassells Wednesday afternoon. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Armand Beausoleil entertained Mrs. Louise Cartier, Miss Rolande Cartier of Putnam and Edward Cartier and brother, Rudolph, of New York recently.

The Girl Scouts, Pine Cone troop, will sponsor their first dance at the Community house, with the cooperation of the American Legion during November.

Falling down an elevator shaft at Redondo Beach, Cal., from the second floor to the basement with no other injuries except a slight cut on the head, was the experience of Albert Gummerman, ten-year-old newsboy.

A DIURETIC FOR THE KIDNEYS

BROOKLYN CENTER'S CHIEF WATER SUPPLY DECLARED UNFIT FOR USE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 12.—Pity the residents of Brooklyn Center—and keep away from the water in the town pump over there. It's just taking a chance if you drink any of it. That's the warning issued today by E. C. Babson, health officer of Brooklyn.

Mr. Babson is not given to indulging in useless public scares. He has, however, had the water in the town pump at Brooklyn Center tested in the bureau or laboratories of the state health department at Hartford and the return reports on the tests are not too favorable.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Babson had a test made of the water from this particular pump as far back as last June. More water from the pump was sent to Hartford for testing in late September, and on Oct. 1 this report on the water came in: "We note that this well has been thoroughly cleaned and the water treated by the addition of chloride of lime, and also that the water in the well had been thoroughly pumped out twice, approximately six weeks preceding the collection of this sample.

"The results of the chemical examination do not differ materially from those of a preceding examination of a sample of water from this well reported on July 12. The figure for nitrates and chlorides continue to remain high. The results of the bacteriological examination at this time are unsatisfactory and show the continued presence of organisms of the coli-aerogenes group in the well water.

"The continued presence of this group of organisms in this well water causes us to classify it, at the time of collection, as polluted to an extent to render its use for drinking purposes as undesirable."

Because of the great drought, losing the use of the water from the Brooklyn town pump is a real handicap. There is no water system about Brooklyn Center, and many of the wells over there have gone dry.

PENDLETON HILL

Letters from Mrs. Annie Cook in Pensacola, Fla., indicate that she was enjoying life there and is improving in health.

Mrs. George Palmer is visiting her son, Marvin, who is working for the Vito Construction Co., at Eastford, where he is keeping house. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Palmer and sons, George and Kenneth, were week end guests of their parents and attended the Sunday services.

Miss Carrie A. Ryder, Mrs. Sarah Brown and Weston Ryder were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Thompson Sunday and attended morning services at the Miners' meeting house.

Mrs. Clifford R. Thompson and her degree team are practicing for the fifth degree which is to be given in Norwich at an early date and which her daughter Kathryn will take.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson and family have fifty named varieties of dahlias which have blossomed profusely and are still in full bloom. They have many times that number of gladioli, also among them rare bulbs, one being the Mary Jane, a most expensive tuber. It is a delight to see their flower gardens, also interesting to inspect their most luxuriant turnip patch of more than an acre.

Miss Mildred Johnson's large flower garden is one of the most luxuriant of this lovely display of flowers, fruit and vegetables.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kenyon and daughter, Barbara, and Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Kenyon were Sunday afternoon callers at the Palmer homestead.

Mrs. Sarah F. Palmer was a recent dinner guest of Miss Carrie Ryder at Ferndale, and at a later date of Miss Jennie Thompson, at L'Anglaire.

BALTIC

BALTIC ACADEMY DEBATERS DISCUSS H. S. SORORITIES

The senior debate committee of Baltic academy made its debut last Saturday evening when the members thoroughly discussed and debated a subject of current interest: Resolved, That High School Sororities Should Be Abolished.

Miss Yvonne E. Benac, Taftville, chairman, opened the discussion by a short and clear exposition of the question to be discussed.

The affirmative side was ably upheld by Miss Rose Maderese, of Westerly, R. I., and Miss Maureen V. Quinn, of Versailles. For the negative, Miss Ruth Picard, Westerly, and Miss Virginia L. Bonntant of Hartford, argued with ability.

The debaters, realizing the importance of this topic to all high school girls and to the parents of said pupils, had gathered much interesting and valuable material.

The judges were Misses Ihabel Barranco, New York; Edna Cyr, Fairview, Mass., and Mary Diamond, of Meriden.

Their joint decision after thoughtful consideration of the merit and subject matter of both sides was rendered in favor of the negative That High School Sororities Should Not Be Abolished.

The debaters on the negative discussion dealt with the question so comprehensively, and presented such excellent points in favor of Sororities that their auditors were completely won over to their point of view.

This is the first of several such debates planned during the coming year, for the debating team intends to consider many of the real problems of the day, in presenting educational and instructive discussions.

Guests At Beach Cottage.

Mrs. Albert Hilton, of Depot Hill, who has been spending the past winter at her cottage at Groton Long Point, entertained the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church during the week. The trip to the beach was made in private cars through the courtesy of Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. Geer and Mrs. Stinson, leaving from the church at 10 a. m. Shortly after arriving at the cottage Mrs. Hilton served a delicious dinner of clam chowder, egg salad, ham, cheese and olive sandwiches, sliced tomatoes, mustard pickles, apple pie and cheese, squash pie, cake, cookies, tea and coffee. Mrs. Hilton was assisted by Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Stafford and Mrs. Stinson. Mrs. Crewshaw said grace. The day was spent in boating and clamming and some of the guests strolled along the board walk, enjoying the crisp, ocean air. About 4 o'clock tea was served, with potato salad, rolls, celery, cake, cookies and doughnuts. Before departing for their homes the visitors gave a rising vote of thanks to their hostess for her hospitality. Mrs. Hilton is treasurer of the Ladies' Aid society and an interested worker. Present were Mrs. George Geer, Mrs. John Hannon, Mrs. William Stinson, Mrs. M. Summerscale, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. James Senart, Mrs. Leonard Firth, Mrs. William Crawshaw, Mrs. Mathew Bailey, Mrs. Charles Barnes, Mrs. William Barlow, Mrs. Samuel Stafford, Mrs. Martha Houghton, Mrs. Adam Geirgenvile, Mrs. Joshua Heap and Mrs. Edward Robinson.

PUTNAM

BURGLARS GET $40 IN GAS STATION ROBBERY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 12—Sometime between the hours of 10 o'clock Wednesday evening and 7 o'clock Thursday morning, burglars made their way into the Cities Service filling station on School street and secured a haul consisting of cash and merchandise, the value of which is estimated by I. K. McNally, station owner, at about $40. Police are investigating circumstances of the robbery.

Entrance to the station was made by the prying open of a window in the rear of the building. That the perpetrators of the break were familiar with the layout of the interior and the customary routine for the hiding of funds is evidenced by the fact that a small cash box containing $17 in currency was secured with apparent ease from a confectionary show case, where it was believed to have been cleverly concealed. Bars of candy, cartons of cigarettes and a half a box full of cigars were also stolen from the case.

An amusing incident in connection with the rifling of the cash box came to light with the discovery of the break. Mr. McNally had made a small personal loan to a friend, who assured his benefactor of the return of the money by giving him a note written for the face of the amount loaned. Mr. McNally jokingly accepted the paper and placed it in the cash box. Upon discovering the break Thursday morning, the so-called "I. O. U." was all that the rifled strong box contained.

That the thieves made a careful study of what to take and what not to take out of the filling station, was seen in the unexplainable gesture of removing several piled up tires from a stack in order to procure a second hand "shoe" which was in the center of the pile. Nothing else of value was taken, as far as could be learned. No arrests in connection with the break have as yet been made, although police are concerning themselves with the classifying of tell-tale finger prints and other clues of minute nature in an effort to bring about the arrest of the culprits, who are thought to be novices.

POMFRET DECORATOR HANGS HIMSELF IN WOODS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 12—Joseph Walter Arnold, 61, a painter and decorator and for many years a resident and well known citizen of Pomfret, committed suicide by hanging today. His body was found early this afternoon hanging from a sapling about 300 yards from his house on the Pomfret-Woodstock road. It is believed that he had been dead for about two hours before the body was discovered.

The death of Mr. Arnold was first made known this afternoon when a few men, alarmed at his failure to return for dinner, after organizing a small party came upon the body in the nearby woods. Mr. Arnold was thought to have been in good health and his death came as a great shock to the members of his family and intimate friends, who were at a loss to advance any motive for his act.

Dr. S. B. Overlock, medical examiner for the town of Pomfret, made an examination and gave permission for removal of the body. Tonight he officially pronounced death to have been caused by hanging.

Mr. Arnold was born in Woodstock on Oct. 6, 1869, the son of Joseph Arnold and Adeline Warner. He has made his home in Pomfret for a number of years, where he was successfully engaged in the painting and decorating business. He is survived by his wife and several children.

The democrats of Putnam meet in caucus Monday evening for the purpose of naming their part of the state ticket. Unless the proposed slate undergoes drastic changes during Monday's last minute conferences, the names of Representatives Leon Talbot and J. Otis Fox will be presented to the voters and in all probability will be nominated. Both Mr. Fox and Mr. Talbot have declared themselves to be in the race. That both men will be the unanimous choice of the party in democratic circles today, was a foregone conclusion, and the attitude was termed responsible for majority of interest in the caucus being focused upon the possibility of the party naming a candidate to oppose Judge Henry N. Benoit, republican candidate for election to the office of judge of probate. The recently adopted policy of the democrats of filling their ticket, which is believed by members of the party to be largely responsible for the undermining of the local republican organization, caused many today to be of the opinion that a candidate for this office will be nominated. James J. Charron, local business man, who opposed Judge Benoit two years ago and was defeated by the narrow margin of 54 votes, said last night that he would not be a candidate this year. Party leaders when interviewed Saturday, were unable to throw any light on this situation with statements which were to the effect, that no democrats aspiring for the judge of probate nomination have as yet revealed their plans.

Pedro DeClarke, colored, of this city, today began the first routine of his long term of not less than 8 nor more than 15 years in the state prison at Wethersfield, to which he was sentenced two weeks ago in superior court. DeClarke was transferred from the county jail in Brooklyn, where he has been since last April following his arrest, to the state prison, by Sheriff Charles A. Gates and deputies, Saturday. With him were Charles O. Fitts of Hampton, who began a sentence of one to three years; Francisco S. Souza, alias Frank Hanner, sentenced to five to six years. All were convicted at sessions of the September term of criminal superior court at which Judge Newell Jennings presided. William Hallion of Willimantic, convicted of an automobile theft was transferred from the jail to the state reformatory at Cheshire, to which he was sentenced to serve an indefinite term.

Saturday morning at 9:55 o'clock a general alarm from box 113 on lower South Main street called the fire department to extinguish a fire which started near the city pumping grounds and burned for several minutes with such intensity that danger of nearby property taking fire was imminent. The blaze was quickly put out by the firemen.

A dance given Friday evening in Odd Fellows hall on Pomfret street, under the auspices of the Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows and for the benefit of the Day Kimball hospital nurses home fund, proved a huge success financially and socially. At 10:30 the programme of dance music was interrupted for several minutes by the appearance of Miss Edith Peckham of Thompson, and Alex, of the Murray Studios of New York city, who danced the new ball room tango.

County Agent Raymond E. Wing of the Windham County Farmers association has given notice of the 24th quarterly county poultry meeting to be held Friday, at the grange hall in Brooklyn. The programme outlined by Agent Wing is certain to be of especial interest to all poultrymen. Speakers of statewide prominence in the field of agriculture are scheduled to address the gathering at which the public is invited to attend. Roy E. Jones, extension poultry specialist at Storrs; Homer L. Huntington of Winsted and A. E. Anthony of Mansfield, are among those slated to speak.

Dr. Graham, of London, who spent many weeks in this city last year, visited with friends here Friday and Saturday before leaving for Virginia where he plans to remain during the winter months.

Ernest Ericault of Woonsocket, was a visitor in Putnam, Sunday.

The American Legion headquarters at the Putnam Inn, conducted by members of the Anslem Mayotte post, will close Monday after the adjournment of the national American Legion convention in Boston.

Members of the board of selectmen in session with the town clerk on Saturday examined several applicants who were desirous of becoming voters in order to participate in the state election on November 4. During the morning and afternoon sessions more than 40 were examined to whom the voters oath was afterwards administered.

Members of the chamber of commerce and other city officials are preparing for the reception of the members of the Brunswick Fox club who are to hold their annual field trials in Putnam this week. The band of clubmen will begin to arrive here Monday morning. A large sign has been hung over Main street between the Union block and E. W. Mullan buildings, which publicly extends a welcome to the members of the club.

Lester Herlihy, Charles and William Croake were among the Putnam football enthusiasts who witnessed the Holy Cross gridsters work out a 27 to 6 victory over the Catholic university eleven at Fitton field Worcester, Saturday.

Farmers in the Pomfret street section of the town report that their water supply is gradually dwindling for the lack of sufficient rain. They are also being forced to keep a close watch on the woodlands for fear of forest fires breaking out, and for this reason are warning hunters not to trespass on their lands.

Contractors in charge of the reconstruction work of the city water system are now engaged in laying a line of pipe from the intersection of Sabin street to the Day Kimball hospital in Pomfret street. The work though only

Mr and Mrs. Wilfred Dore are spending the week with relatives in Boston, Mass., after attending the American Legion convention.

Mrs. Rose Bromley and daughters Ellen and May, of Willimantic were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ashley.

Mrs. Arthur Noble of South Coventry spent Tuesday with her daughter, Mrs. Archie Dore.

ABYSSINIA BOUND, WEARS WALK-RIDE-FLY SUIT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—A wardrobe ranging from flying suits to evening dresses and adapted to both summer and winter climates of 14 countries is necessary for Mrs. Harriet Chalmers Adams, president of the Society of Woman Geographers on her [illegible] journey.

Mrs. Adams is en route to Ethiopia where she will be a guest at the coronation of Emperor Haile Selassie I.

From there she will visit a number of colonies in Italy, sail the Red Sea, visit Palestine and various other countries. Part of the trip will be made on horseback and part by airplane.

On a trip such as this one lasting 10 months, she must take along clothes which pack into small space and can be put to various uses. So Mrs. Adams has evolved a neat combination of flying-riding-walking costume.

The skirt, which she wears in countries where trousers on women are considered odd, can be converted into a cape for warmth when it is cold.

With the addition of a helmet, the shirt, breeches and boots, it can be used for flying. The boots are specially made and be used for walking as they are minus the high heels of the ordinary riding boot.

After much experimenting during her world travels Mrs. Adams has found that rajah silk and lace are the most practical materials from which to fashion the bulk of her wardrobe. So she has sport, street, afternoon and evening dresses made of them.

"In out of the way places one has to consider the question of laundry," says Mrs. Adams. "Rajah silk and lace can be washed out in a bowl, pressde with an iron and come out looking fresh and dainty for next day's wear."

Besides her exploring activities in the countries she will visit Mrs. Adams will be a guest at numerous social functions, hence the necessity for clothing ranging from leather to lace.

Attic Treasures for Trim.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP)—Finishing touches for smart winter frocks will be pulled out of more than one attic this fall, for bits of flat fur are being added in devious ways as trimming for the new dresses. Galyak, Persian lamb, and caracul are the favorites. They are used for little collars, small bows near the shoulder, wrist bandings and scarf collars.

Knitted Suits for Golf.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Younger members of the diplomatic set have taken up miniature golf with enthusiasm. The girls favor the knitted suit with matching beret for this sport. They start playing about 10 p. m., quit at midnight and go to some home for supper.

JEWETT CITY

INDIAN MORTAR BIRD BATH BROUGHT FROM MOUNTAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 12.—Mrs. John Potter is to have at her home in Griswold a bird bath of which there will be no duplicate. It is a section of ledge from near the east peak of Rixtown mountain, which contains hollowed into its rough and angular face, an Indian mortar, fashioned by the aborigines of who shall declare what time or age? The History of Griswold, by Daniel L. Phillips, reads: "Near the top of Rixtown mountain whose altitude is about 700 feet, close to our southern boundary and not far from the angle where Preston, North Stonington and Griswold touch each other, are found two mortar-like cavities hollowed out of the living rock. It is supposed that here with a stone pestle, fastened to a convenient branch of an overhanging tree, a primitive people pounded the maize of their own planting into the meal which furnished the basis of their daily food. Probably these relics of the stone age had their origin during a period covering many centuries and may include the products of the skill of many peoples. It is not probable that the Indians found here by the first white settlers were to any extent the makers of these implements but, rather, the last to use them in the economy of daily life, so that they remain the reminders and the monuments of the existence and handiwork of a pre-historic race." John Potter, whose interest in the history of his native town impels investigation into these Indian legacies, acted as guide (Saturday) when a party from Jewett City ascended the locally famous Rixtown mountain to see the two strange creations of another age, that still remain intact. During the process of some upheaval, or due to other disturbing forces, a portion of the original stone formation became broken from the main ledge. This detached section, which contains one of the most perfect of the three mortars, Mr. Potter, after gaining permission of the land owner, has taken to his home. The rock which was removed, weighing about 500 pounds had to be teamed down the mountainside to the roadway, some 500 feet below, on a stone-boat, with a horse sometimes used to pull, and at other points in the narrow trail which was hewn through the small mountain growth and under brush, the animal was needed to hold back. As one of the party remarked Saturday, "It isn't the mere fact of the deep hollowed cavities in the ledge, but rather, it is actually standing face to face, with this rude handiwork of a race whose craft has survived the centuries that makes one glance guardedly at the adjacent thickets!" When, in Mrs. Potter's garden next summer a passing robin may tarry to sip from this ancient mortar, he will be close in touch with an age far in the remote past.

TOWN IS TO PAY ALL HONOR TO SELECTMAN D. F. FINN

All places of business are to be closed today (Monday) during the hour of the funeral of First Selectman Daniel F. Finn, veteran storekeeper in this town. He was also a member of B. P. O. E., No. 430, of Norwich and many of the Elks will attend the services. In town he was a member of Ashland lodge, A. O. U. W., and A. O. H. Div. No. 1, also of the electric light commission and town nurse committee, member of the soldiers' monument committee and a former member of A. Young Jr. Hose and Ladder Co. No. 1. Members of the Holy Name society and other local orders, as well as the town and borough officials are to attend the funeral.

Charles Saunders, of Marlboro, Mass., was a week end visitor in town.

Invitations have been received from the Mansfield Center church which is to commemorate the 220th anniversary of its foundation at an Old Home week end, on the 25th and 26th of this month.

Thefts From Cemetery

Supt. Frank I. Ray, of Jewett City cemetery, reports the theft of a large number of flower pots and pans Friday night from the cemetery grounds. The thieves carefully lifted the plants from the containers and set them on the spot occupied by the pots. In all probability someone has stocked up for their winter window garden, or outside porch, and no doubt sold some to their friends.

Dorcas circle of the King's Daughters meets at Mrs. F. E. Robinson's Tuesday evening.

Travelers over the River road are admiring the georgeous autumnal foliage displayed. All along the bend in the Seven-mile curve below Round hill, and on the eastern bank of the Quinebaug, the yellow of the birches, the crimson maples and dark red oaks are furnishing a full pageant worth while to see. Here and there as one comes upon a sassafras tree, a touch of color is added which is of surpassing beauty.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS PLAN BIG COLUMBUS CELEBRATION

This (Monday) evening, in the Knights of Columbus rooms in the Finn block, the Knights will observe Columbus day. This is the first of their social gatherings for the fall season and judging by plans of the committee it is going to go over big. Lou Morey will furnish music, assisted by others. The committee will make the night enjoyable. John O'Brien will be at his post to prompt for the old time dances. Refreshments will be served. This is an open night for all the K. of C. and their friends, a reunion of the world-famed slogan, "Everybody welcome, everything free."

The Hollywood Girls' club gave a surprise party at the home of Miss Eileen Nichols Friday night for Miss Ellen Dempsey who is leaving for her home in Jackson, R. I. She was presented a silver mesh bag. An enjoyable evening was spent with games and dancing. Refreshments were served. Those present were: Mary Nowakowski, Jennie Mialaszik, Felicia Kusek, Julia Nowakowski, Helen Skoczylas, Lorraine Derusha, Sophie Nowakowski, Mrs. Dempsey, Grace Burda, Mrs. Nichols.

Miss Alice Gagnon spent the week end at her home here. Miss Gagnon who has been a student nurse at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, is now at the isolation hospital, Hartford, as a part of the course.

Ralph and David Goodenough spent the week end in Ledyard as the guests of their sister, Mrs. Carl Holdredge.

Short Sleeved Wraps

PARIS, Oct. 12—(P)—Short sleeved evening wraps testify to the continued vogue of long gloves.

Even the long fur wraps which dressmakers show for evening frequently have elbow or half-sleeves, which indicate gloves capable of warmth as well as decoration.

COLUMBUS DAY

As time has gone on down the centuries there has been an effort to find out more about Christopher Columbus, who backed him, what he did and what he didn't do. As we celebrate the anniversary of his discovery of America today, it will not be difficult to find those who are in dispute as to his nationality and, of course, those who maintain that others landed in the new world before he did.

Just how the correctness of all of these claims is going to be established is difficult to see. The solution would seem to lie in the past rather than in the future, if other than the accepted answer is going to be obtained.

But there doesn't appear to be any question but what Columbus reached America in accord with historical claims, whether others had touched some other point in the western hemisphere previous to that time or not. It was inevitable that someone would do it and he was one of those explorers whose efforts are sooner or later marked by success.

Whether other claims ever amount to anything, or whether the efforts to upset the generally accepted story concerning his westward trips are successful, there is no reason why we should not keep his accomplishments in mind and accord them the attention and respect which they unquestionably deserve.

It is a long time since he first set foot on American soil. There is much more to the western hemisphere than he ever dreamed of, some of it being very little known to those of the present day and generation. But as we are today observing Columbus day, we cannot fail to wonder what the discoverer would think and say if he could see the manner in which the Atlantic is being crossed these days, and make a trip through North, Central and South America.

MORE JUDGES

This country has grown and there has been a growth of business in the federal courts, though there may be no direct connection between the two.

Back in 1924 there were developments of a similar character and the dockets of the federal courts were getting so clogged with business that 20 new district judges were urged and by act of congress they were obtained. They were particularly sought because of the large amount of business that was being thrown upon the courts by prohibition. It was thought that they might not be needed permanently, so provision was made that vacancies should not be filled. In other words, they were not to be permanent appointments and the arrangement is that there are now 14 of those judgeships vacant, death and resignations having removed all but six.

Naturally, those six cannot do what 20 were needed to accomplish. Cases have been piling up and Chief Justice Hughes, in a recent judicial conference at Washington, was able to point out that the growth of the civil, criminal, private and bankruptcy in the past year has increased the number of cases on the dockets to 198,475, or nearly 10,000 over the total at the close of the fiscal year in 1929.

It is thus felt by the chief justice that there is need for more judges, that the temporary idea should be abandoned and that, in addition to making permanent the 20 additional judgeships authorized six years ago, five more should be provided. In addition, he would have the attorney general make a survey of the judicial districts of the country with a view to making such changes therein as would promote economical and efficient administration of justice. It is quite evident that with the passage of time and the changes in population that districts can be readjusted with good results.

Chief Justice Taft was deeply interested in establishing improved procedure and the speeding up of cases in the federal courts. He accomplished much in that direction and it appears to be the purpose of Chief Justice Hughes to further the good work, the responsibility for it resting on his shoulders.

COULD HAVE HAD HELIUM

From such discussion as has been indulged in concerning helium exportation, since the R-101 disaster, the impression might be gained that the government had been declining to permit any of our helium supply to go out of the country.

That this is not the case is set forth by President Hoover, who points out that every application for exporting licenses has been granted during the past two years and, in addition, private industries manufacturing the gas have been urged to develop the foreign market.

It was Admiral Moffett who put stress upon the use of helium gas, following the crash and burning of the R-101. He directed attention to the fact that, under such conditions as were experienced in France where the airship crashed, there would have been no such explosion with helium as there was with hydrogen gas. Further than that, he took advantage of the situation to set forth that this country has such a supply of helium gas that it can meet foreign requirements, and urged that it be furnished to the British and German interests which have taken such a leading part in dirigible development.

According to the president's statement, there is no question but what the British and German dirigible owners could have obtained helium gas if they had desired it. They know its value by being non-inflammable, but they apparently considered hydrogen had a greater lifting power, and they did not anticipate any such disaster as occurred in France. They even permitted smoking in the hydrogen-inflated dirigible.

Whether they will give greater recognition to the necessity of guarding against fire in the future remains to be seen, but they cannot disregard the loss of the R-101, and it has been made clear now that there has been no recent opposition on the part of this government to allowing such exportation of helium as would have provided for the lost British dirigible.

In all probability, the availability of American helium was known to those who might have used it and that reasons of a different character operated against its use. That the protection furnished by the use of helium will not be sidetracked in the future seems probable.

DR. SAMUEL H. HOWE

One could not labor so long and successfully in the ministry in any community, as did Rev. Samuel H. Howe, D.D., of this city, without gaining the admiration and esteem of his fellow citizens.

His was an unusual pastorate that was continued actively with unflagging zeal and devotion for 46 years. Of southern birth and with early ministerial experience in western pulpits, he came into the east as pastor of Park Congregational church back in 1883. It witnessed many changes and developments. It accomplished a steady growth, it covered the goings and comings of several generations, and it meant the spreading of an individual influence in church and community over a period that is permitted to but few.

Dr. Howe was a scholarly preacher, whose sermons were an inspiration to large numbers outside his congregation. They were eagerly sought by readers at a distance or those kept at home by infirmities. He was particularly devoted to his church activities, but it was never difficult to enlist his support for any good cause. His views on any question of the day, as well as those of a theological character, were always regarded with full appreciation of his convictions. He was firmly grounded in his theology and not only found his work but his recreation in the service which was closest to his heart and with which his life was filled, even beyond the four score and ten years.

Sincere in all his endeavors, Dr. Howe exerted an influence that made of him one of Norwich's leading and deeply respected citizens, and his removal by death at the end of a long life of rich accomplishments means a distinct loss to the community. The influence of such a life cannot be quickly effaced.

TAXI DRIVERS

The public has reason to expect that taxicab drivers will be efficient in the handling of their machines, but it must also expect them to be men of good character. They come in contact with the public in a manner which requires such qualifications and their employers as well as their patrons should insist upon men whose records will give assurance of safety and protection to all riders.

When it is pointed out by the New Haven Register that 69 men who have been licensed to drive taxicabs in that city have been summoned to answer charges that they have hidden previous criminal records when seeking licenses, there is justification for the belief that something is radically wrong and that, while a single person managing "now and then to get past investigators under such a licensing law as the one in question would not be anything to cause worry, but when such a host as is indicated by the number of summonses are found to have accomplished the trick it becomes a matter of deep concern to the public."

Taxicab service means the transportation of the public. The expectation is that it will be done safely and expeditiously. The public has a right to demand drivers in whom they can put full reliance. They do not want to place themselves at the mercy of those who have been engaged in criminal activities.

The examination of the New Haven drivers will be followed with interest. It should disclose where the trouble lies and why it is possible for so many to cover up their past without detection for so long. As the Register says, "if the hearing discloses the fact that it is as simple to fool the department issuing these permits as it would seem to be under the circumstances, then steps must be taken to make the regulations much more rigorous and the investigations something other than setting down answers, the truth of which is never inquired into." Reckless taxi drivers would be bad enough, but that is one of the jobs where former criminals cannot inspire business or confidence.

NOT SO FAST

He was a smiling blue-eyed blond. His little roadster was struggling hard to keep up with Jerry's long, graceful sport car. So Jerry didn't have the heart to step away from him. It rather amused her. It was like a little terrier trying to keep up with a greyhound. She smiled at him over her shoulder. He waved back at her.

Down the Wisconsin highway they sped, shooting past groves of trees and rolling fields. Then suddenly a line of cars loomed up in front of them. There had been an accident—no, it was a railroad crossing. A string of freight cars was leisurely rolling past. Jerry eased her car up behind the line. The small roadster pulled up beside her.

"Nice buggy," the smiling young man called. Jerry was not in the habit of talking to strangers, but she just couldn't keep from smiling back at him.

"I'll pace you another ten miles," he offered. "I'm only going as far as the Royal Fir Country club."

"Great! Why, I'm going there myself. We ought to make it in five minutes. I'll stay right behind you."

The line started up. Jerry shifted into second. But the little roadster nosed ahead of her on the pickup. Oh, he was trying to show her up, eh? Well! Jerry pressed her foot down. The car responded. She passed him, passed one car after the other until she had an open highway. Then she pressed her foot down to the board. She had recovered her sophisticated arrogance. He was going to her club eh? Probably a bus boy or head caddie or groundskeeper or something.

So the roadster was left behind at sixty-five. Jerry's Mercury could do ninety-five with ease.

And Jerry promptly forgot the young man although he had strangely attracted her.

She spent the afternoon with Bob Farrell and another couple on the golf links. Just her luck she had to run into that Ethel Manning. But when she came down to dinner she was in a light mood. She had scored over Ethel all through the game. She just couldn't get along with Ethel or her sister.

During the dinner she managed to avoid them entirely and immediately afterward she went out with Bob. Once or twice during the evening her thoughts strayed back to the smiling young blond and his terrier roadster. But she hadn't seen him at the club and guessed her suspicions were correct.

The following morning she was up bright and early. It was the day of the season's first speedboat race and Jerry was to race against the Manning entry. Her boat was tuned up to make first place and she resolved to see to it that it made it.

The gun barked. Six first-class speedboats started out. They had given Jerry a slight handicap, and she decided to keep that distance away from her rival. But the Manning boat continually crawled up on her. Five times around the nine-mile course they raced. Jerry lost distance. There was a man at the controls of the Manning craft and he certainly knew how to handle a speedboat. On the last lap he fairly walked away from Jerry, winning the race by three-quarters of a mile.

Indignantly Jerry came forward to shake hands with the victor. She stooped dead. Why, it was the blue-eyed blond, the smiling young man in the roadster!

"Oh, Miss Saunders," Ethel Manning said, taking Jerry graciously by the hand, "I want you to meet my brother Reginald. He has just come west after completing Yale."

Reggy beamed. He took Jerry's hand warmly. "Say, you sure slipped a fast one over on me yesterday. But you'll pace my little wagon more considerately next time, won't you?"

Jerry smiled in spite of herself.

"I guess so," she said, "if you promise to pace my speedboat!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—Spotting Burge McFall, former long time "AP" news staff colleague, at a club table, the Bystander hastened to pre-empt the vacant seat.

Mac is so full of memories of Mexican revolutions that you always get something interesting when you get him started. He traipsed all over Mexico on the heels of various revolutionary or federalist armies clear back in the last days of Porfirio Diaz; watched at first-hand the rise by revolution of the ill-fated Francisco Madero; went through the "ten days' tragedy" in Mexico City when Madero was slain and Huerta seized the government; and was in Vera Cruz when American naval forces landed.

Behind The Scenes

And there was that in the news this day that might stir Mac's memories.

"I suppose you noted the death of John Lind, Mac?" the Bystander said.

"Yes, of course."

"So ends the career of that one time man of mystery, 'Silent John Lind,'" the Bystander added.

"Silent?" said Mac. "Where do you get that? John Lind was one of the most loquacious men I ever knew."

"That's not the picture the news files paint of him. I've been looking 'em up. You find over and over again reference to his refusal to talk of his mission in Mexico as President Wilson's personal representative. I saw the evidence of your own fine Italian hand in those AP reports on Lind's activities from Vera Cruz and elsewhere. And he was 'Silent John Lind' to you then. How come?"

Mac chuckled.

"Oh, of course, he was silent for publication. But privately he just could not help talking.

"The AP ordered me to stick to him like a burr while he was in Mexico, and I did. Of course, we got friendly. And Lind would say to me again and again: 'I've just got to tell somebody about this.' Then he'd shoot stuff that would make a bank up story.

"Of course, I could not use it. It was a tough job for a newspaperman to know what was going on, see many of Lind's confidential reports to Wilson before they were sent, yet to have to write again and again that 'Mr. Lind declined to discuss his mission in any way.'"

Favored Intervention

"Did you see his 'recognize Carranza or intervene' report to Wilson?"

"Yes. And I could not even say for publication that he had sent on a report, much less tell what he had said."

"Which alternative do you think Lind himself favored?"

"Intervention."

"But he was essentially a liberal, an anti-militarist, wasn't he?"

"Yes, but Mexico and Mexicans were utterly beyond the comprehension of his orderly mind. I think he was hopeless of any other course."

What a news story that would have been in 1913-14!

A young bride who had just forsaken the teacher's desk in the school room to give all her attention to home making was telling at her club the other day her experience in cookery.

YOUR HEALTH

Mental Disease Not a Disgrace

By Frederick W. Parsons, M. C., Department of Mental Hygiene, Albany. (From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Those better informed no longer believe that mental disease carried unpleasant implications or that the insane are possessed of devils, but some unfortunate ideas of mental disease still prevail. Especially harmful is the notion that mental illness is a disgrace and that a stigma attaches to those who require treatment in mental hospitals.

Mental disease is no more blameworthy than physical disease. Most physical disorders produce mental symptoms such as irritability, peevishness, delirium, or depression, and when these occur no one thinks either of disgrace of stigma. In what people call insanity the symptoms are, as a rule, exaggerations of normal behavior or mood. Generally the condition comes on through no direct act of the individual. Why, then, the thought of reproach? Why consider stigma?

Through education and experience the people have corrected false ideas regarding general hospitals. They no longer dread them but make use of their facilities with increasing frequency and with growing confidence. No one thinks there is odium attached to treatment in a general hospital for surgical operations, or for pneumonia, typhoid fever, or other physical diseases. Why should there be any such thought regarding the treatment in a hospital for mental diseases simply because the sickness affects the brain?

People now realize that mental and physical disease are regrettable conditions which should be prevented, and that when they occur, both should be promptly treated and the sufferer afforded every possible assistance, encouragement, and support, and without thought of reproach in either condition.

False notions of mental disease cause much unhappiness to the families of patients and result in positive harm to the patients themselves, for frequently needed help is not promptly procured. Secrecy and indecision often prevail and valuable time is lost by delay. Mental disease does not usually come out of a clear sky. Its development is usually gradual and, as in tuberculosis, early treatment produces the best results. Seek your physician's advice without delay for yourself or the individual in your family who demonstrates early mental symptoms. In many cases serious attacks have been prevented because the patient at the beginning of his mental difficulty was wise enough or fortunate enough to obtain and follow sound advice.

Pauline Herr Thomas

There is a youthful arbiter on our street. At nine years of age she has all the tact of a seasoned diplomat. The idol of boys and girls alike, she supervises the play of both, ironing out the most delicate difficulties. It follows that she is rarely to be seen in a difficulty herself. I predict a future much above the average for her. She has gone a long way toward mastering at nine, what few adults succeed in mastering at all.

The ability of controlling one's emotions to the point of being able to withdraw from an argument at the auspicious moment, to settle a controversy without becoming embroiled in it oneself, to lead without usurpation, and to hold, meanwhile, the regard of one's associates — all these would appear to be traits of character amounting to genius, and genius, we know, is inborn. I have no doubt that this child has a natural endowment of tact and good sense. But let us hear what her mother has to say of her.

"Mrs. Thorpe," said I to this mother one day as we chatted, "your little daughter seems to be unusually well blessed with a quality we may all envy. She is a born diplomat."

"It is gratifying indeed to hear Ruth spoken of in such a fashion, Mrs. Thomas," she answered, "and although I should be still more gratified to be able to agree with you that she is 'a born diplomat', I am, I think, justly proud of the fact that what degree of success she has attained in that direction is largely the result of development rather than endowment. She seemed indeed to be born with sufficient lack of diplomacy to make it my clear duty to find out what might be done about it.

"To cite one phase of my procedure: I wished to avoid interfering in her difficulties with other children and yet prove to her the futility of argument and the advisibility of concurrence occasionally. I remember an occasion when she had a heated argument with a playmate which wound up with a fist fight. After sufficient time had elapsed for emotion to cool, I explained to her that if she had chosen to drop the argument early enough it would not have resulted in blows.

"'But Mother', objected Ruth, 'she would have gotten the best of the argument then.'

"'No, not if you had suggested to her that you both ask someone who knew better than you. It would not do you any good to get the better of any argument only to find you were not right. On the other hand, even though you are sure you are right, keeping up the argument will only make your playmate less willing to agree.'

"This is only one of many suggestions I made to her. Just yesterday, I heard:

"'Please, Virginia, let me use the iron now; you have had your turn.'

"'No, I want it.'

"'Now listen, Virginia, you know the only way to play right is to play fair. Look at the pendulum of that clock. When it stays a longer time on one side than on the other you may have a longer turn.'

"There was silence. Then I heard Virginia laugh and after a moment or two Ruth was saying: 'Thank you, Virginia.'"

That precocious bit of diplomacy, if a fair sample, shows, I think, that Mrs. Thorpe may justly feel proud.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Argentina.

Three thousand Americans, approximately, make up the United States colony in Argentina, the big business republic of South America, scene of a recent change of government.

"But Americans are only a drop in Argentina's bulging bucketful of outlanders," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. "One-quarter of the entire population of 2,250,000 individuals are foreign born.

"Argentina's melting pot has been diluted with Europeans more freely than United States' ever was; and yet more come. Immigration bars erected in North America deflect the immigrant stream to South America, particularly to Argentina.

"Italians vie with Spaniards for numerical superiority: Belgians, Swiss, English, French, Germans, Jews, Russo-Germans, and Russo-Jews season the Argentine scene as the races of Europe blend in the blood of North America. Because the old North American colonial war cry, 'All good Indians are dead Indians,' echoed also over the pampas, the Argentine republic is more strongly European than any other state of South America.

"Spanish in language and outlook, Italian in its wine-drinking habits, taking Paris for its model in cities, and the United States for its model in business management, Argentina tries to live up to the fact that A comes first in the ABC group of South American leaders; Argentina, Brazil, Chile.

"Cow country extra-ordinary, Argentina has made cattle raising her principal industry by a long range triple trade play; U. S. to B. A. to G. B. Capital and scientific skill in meat packing have been thrown into Buenos Aires by the United States; Buenos Aires completes the play by tossing shiploads of beef and mutton into Great Britain's kitchens. All three participants score; Britishers satisfy their hunger, Argentinians roll up fortunes to spend in Paris; Americans cash dividend checks.

"Argentina has more cattle per capita than any other country in the world. Its record of three cattle per person is much higher than the United States and even higher than the ratio in our western cattle-raising states. Horses that escaped from the Spaniards multiplied on North American plains; both wild horses and wild cattle multiplied on Argentina's pampas. The Argentine gaucho became a hunter of free-roaming cattle and horses while his Kansas cowboy cousin became a herder. Cattle stealing was never the serious crime on the pampas that it was in the North American wild west because in Argentine cattle were free for the taking. No great ranch owner objected if a gaucho killed and ate a cow out of his herd; but it was bad form not to turn in the hide. Only the hides were valuable.

"Cattle was king and bids fair to continue a reign in the Argentine that never could last in the United States. The natural evolution in the use of good rich land from cattle to sheep to wheat to corn and pigs and diversified farming has been checked on the pampas temporarily, at least, not by any force of nature, but by the good old Spanish custom of landlording on a large scale.

"Early colonists collected flat pampa land in bulk; blocks hundreds of square miles in area have been held with remarkable tenacity. Division among the children of ranch owners has cut the great holdings down, yet estancias as large as the District of Columbia are not uncommon. Unlike the American farmer the Argentine ranch owner seldom lives on his land. Buenos Aires or Paris for him, while a manager runs the 'farm.' Pure blood cattle, now popular, demand better food than pampa grass, so he grows alfalfa. But the land will not support successive crops of alfalfa indefinitely so he rents out—never sells—acreage to an Italian immigrant on fifty-fifty shares, specifying that the Italian must grow wheat. Five years of wheat, the Italian renter is dismissed; back to alfalfa again and more cattle. High prices for land cannot lure an Argentinian to part with his acres; he has a sure thing and he knows it.

"The fertile pampa, as a result, is populated by cattle instead of people. Immigrants pouring into Buenos Aires are forced to try their fortunes in less productive regions where the chances of success are slim, where drought sears the crops, cattle die of fever, and the locusts eat everything in sight. Except for a few colonies established for the land hungry immigrant, there is no opportunity for him to introduce intensive agriculture in the richest acreage of the country.

"It is this set of circumstances which keeps meat products the leader of Argentine's billion dollar expert trade. Wheat, virtually a by-product of cattle raising, comes second. Italians have carried their skill in wine making to the semi-arid regions around Mendoza, irrigating their vineyards with ice fed streams from the Andes. Tucuman forges ahead with Virginia tobacco, while the far north of Argentina strives to cut down the country's dependence on Paraguay for yerba.

"Yerba is to Argentines and some other South Americans what tea is to an Englishman, coffee to a Brazilian, chocolate to a Frenchman, and oatmeal gruel to a Scotchman. Among the upper classes in Buenos Aires, where European customs are in vogue, the mate, or gourd from which yerba is drunk does not appear in public. Yet figures on consumption show that Buenos Aires consumes its share of the 80,000 tons of yerba mate annually required to supply the national demand.

"Although it goes under the term yerba mate, yerba is the leaf of the shrub, Paraguayan tea, which is put into the gourd or mate. Hot water poured into the mate makes the infusion which the drinker sucks through a silver tube. The end of the tube is capped by a perforated ball which prevents particles of the leaf entering the mouth. Yerba mate is best after the fifth addition of hot water, say connoisseurs. Various attempts to induce yerba mate to North lieved, because Americans have not

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Smith & Cooley, Stafford Springs.

In 1850 William Smith, a Connecticut Yankee, began buying foreign flocks and selling them to American manufacturers of woolen cloth. He soon had enough trade to warrant the equipment of a small building with crude machinery for treating and improving his flocks. He took his son-in-law, William H. Cooley, into partnership in 1866, admitted his son, William H. Smith in 1878, and the firm name of Smith & Cooley was adopted in 1881 following William Smith's death.

They courageously came through a staggering financial crisis when Stafford's flood of '77 swept away their entire plant and stock-in-trade. To their flock business they added the re-claiming of wool fiber from new clippings and old rags. This product was then called shoddy, an abused and misunderstood word.

In later years it has been greatly improved and refined, and now, known as re-worked wool, has won for itself something of the respect it deserves in the economic world. Growth of the business required the purcrase of a second mill and water-power, erection of larger buildings, and installation of better machinery for making better products. The founders developed their projects sanely and soundly, and left behind them a healthy business and high personal reputations for integrity, public spirit and honorable business dealings.

The business descended to the present partners, Robert W. Smith and Benjamin P. Cooley, who are grandsons of the original founder and sons of his junior partners. So we find the third generation carrying on in the same places, with a son of the fourth generation now on the executive force. The firm counts as its customers many of the better textile manufacturers of New England and a large number of nationally known makers of various articles outside the textile field.

A list of their products now includes wool flocks, cotton flocks, reworked wools, dyed stocks, and mill wastes. These articles are little known by the general public for the reason that they are sold only to other manufacturers to be used as component parts of other articles. But an informative and interesting story could be told, if space permitted, about the uses of these products. It could be demonstrated that their reworked wool is better than much so-called virgin wool, and that it enters into highgrade cloths of proven worth, to the benefit of the ultimate consumer.

It would be surprising to learn that flocks are used not only in cloth but in a wide variety of composition articles, such as shoe soles, poker chips, phonograph records. More fascinating would be the knowledge of how coated papers, rubberized fabrics, dotted voiles, and other things are produced in beautiful effects through using special flocks.

The full record of uses for the products of this small Connecticut manufactory would be an absorbing story of transformations, all beginning in by-products or waste material, and all ending in finished goods of genuine value or real beauty for use by countless people.

The officers of the company are: Robert W. Smith and Benjamin P. Cooley, partners.

SCOUT EXECUTIVE BOARD TO HOLD IMPORTANT MEETING

The executive board of the eastern Connecticut council, Boy Scouts of America, with headquarters at room 304, Thayer building, will hold an important meeting this (Monday) evening in the chamber of commerce rooms at 7:30 o'clock. Reports will be heard from special committees and the chairmen of standing committees. Action, it is hoped, can be taken on the acquisition of a hiking site for the Norwich scouts.

A number of important matters will come before the board for consideration. A special invitation has been extended to the district committees of Stafford Springs, Willimantic and Putnam to be present. The delegation putting in a bid for the next meeting of the board will probably secure such a meeting in their territory.

LEASE OF 8,000 ACRES OF LAND FOR HUNTING

The completion of negotiations for leasing 8,000 acres of land for public hunting purposes in New London county was officially announced by officers of the Connecticut Hunters' Protective association at an outing of sportsmen held Sunday at the Buck Horn Coon club in Old Lyme.

Officers of the association, collaborating with other sportsmen's clubs in this county and County Game Warden Walter S. Watson of Baltic, made it known Saturday that the Connecticut fish and game commission has acquired leases on more than 20 tracts of land in the center of the county to be open to hunters during season.

The land represents almost a continuous tract within easy reach of any part of the county. It is expected that 2,000 more acres will be leased before the project is definitely completed.

Representatives of the fish and game commission will start posting the land at once.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. William H. Fitch.

(Contributed by Parish Aid of Trinity Episcopal Church.)

The recent death in Hartford of Mrs. William Huntington Fitch has recalled to her many Norwich friends her unfailing interest in everything connected with Norwich and its interests.

Louise Caroline Smith was born Dec. 3, 1844, in Bozrah, a daughter of Captain Wm. Smith. For many years after her marriage she made her home in Fitchville, later removing to Norwich Town. She was a devoted member of Trinity Episcopal church, interested in every phase of parish life, and a most generous friend, in all its activities. Always interested in the Y. M. C. A., she was a busy worker in the auxiliary, especially during the World war. Mrs. Fitch was a member of the Mayflower society and for many years a member of Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R. Her friends all recall her devotion to her sister, Mrs. Wells Haughton, in whose memory she presented one of the bells to Grace church, Yantic. This brief tribute is written as a slight appreciation of Mrs. Fitch's many kindly deeds by her fellow-workers in the Parish Aid society of Trinity church.

Mrs. William J. Phillips

Mrs. Effie M. Phillips, widow of William J. Phillips of New London, died Friday at St. Luke's hospital, New York city.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Frances Pilkington, and two sisters, Mrs. Alfred J. Weaver of Hartford and Mrs. Charles H. Curtis of Plainville.

Mrs. Phillips was for some time employed in the ticket office at the Union railroad station in New London. Her husband was ticket agent there. Following his death she accepted a position with the National Bank of Commerce.

William J. Dynon.

The death of William J. Dynon occurred at his home, No. 29 Dunham street, at 7 o'clock Saturday evening. Mr. Dynon has suffered some two years from an aggravated heart trouble. He bore his suffering with great fortitude and patience and was cheery till the last moment.

He was employed for a number of years in the International Silver Co., later he became an auto mechanic and was one of the best in New England. His last occupation was salesman for several automobile agents, The Frisbie Co., Ring Bros., and the Charles Olson Co.

Mr. Dynon was born in Rockville, the son of William and Sarah Arnold Dynon. The family moved to Thamesville when Mr. Dynon was nine years of age. He was educated in the public schools. He was united in marriage to Julia J. Sullivan in St. Patrick's parish, Nov. 10, 1910, by the Rev. Hugh Treanor. Four children were born to the union, John Edward, William Benjamin, Mary Sarah and Agnes Eileen. He is survived by his wife, his children and his mother.

REV. SAMUEL H. HOWE, D. D.

REV. DR. S. H. HOWE, PASTOR EMERITUS OF PARK CHURCH, DIES AT AGE OF 92

Rev. Samuel H. Howe, D.D., 92, pastor emeritus of Park Congregational church, dean of the clergy in Norwich and one of the oldest, if not the oldest preacher, in point of service, in New England, died Saturday evening about 6 o'clock at his home, No. 21 Chelsea court. Rev. Dr. Howe, who was for nearly half a century pastor of Park Congregational church, and who resigned the pastorate two years ago, had been in failing health for some time, due to his advanced years. His condition became alarming about two weeks ago and since that time he gradually lost strength, death claiming him early Saturday evening. Announcement was made Sunday that the funeral service will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Park church. Rev Theodore M. Shipherd, D.D., pastor of the church, will conduct the services, assisted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, of New London.

At the Sunday morning service at Park church. Rev. Dr. Shipherd announced to a visibly moved congregation, the news of the death of their pastor emeritus, and Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth also announced the revered clergyman's death to his congregation at the First church in New London.

Rev. Dr. Howe was born in Fleming county, Ky., Dec. 18, 1837. He graduated at Hanover college in Illinois in 1861, just at the outbreak of the Civil war. Prior to his graduation from college, for a period of two years, he taught Greek and mathematics in McNair's academy in Louisiana. He pursued a course of theological studies at Princeton, graduating from the theological seminary there in 1864.

The following year he was ordained a Presbyterian minister and in his early life occupied four pastorates in Presbyterian churches. His first field was at Vincennes, Ind., where he remained for two years. In 1867 he settled at Independence, Mo., occupying the pastorate there until 1869.

Coming east in 1870, Rev. Dr. Howe settled in Cortland, N. Y., and in 1872 he accepted the pastoral charge of the church in Georgetown, D. C., and continued his pulpit ministrations there until 1883. In 1877 he received the degree of D.D., his scholarship and attainments entitling him to that recognition. He became pastor of Park Congregational church, in this city, in November, 1883, and for 45 years he occupied the pulpit there.

In 1923, Rev. Dr. Howe submitted his resignation as pastor of the church. At that time, however, the church committee asked him to withdraw it and when earnestly urged by the members of the congregation he acquiesced to their wishes.

Five years later, Sept. 16, 1928, Rev. Dr. Howe again submitted his resignation. Due to his long and faithful service and a decline in his health, the resignation was regretfully accepted and Dr. Howe was made pastor emeritus of the church.

During the two score and five years that Dr. Howe occupied the pulpit at Park church, many notable and outstanding events occurred which are recorded in the records of the church. The activities of the church, under Dr. Howe's long ministration, were many, and the parish was then, as it is now, in a flourishing condition.

In November, 1923, Dr. Howe preached his 40th anniversary sermon as pastor of Park church, before a large congregation, taking for his subject, Forty Years in a New England Pastorate.

At Cohoes N. Y., May 14, 1873, Dr. Howe was united in marriage with Catherine B. Buss, who survives him. There are also two sons, S. Henry Howe, Jr., of New York, J. Ralph Howe of Norwich, two daughters, Miss Louise C. Howe at home, and Mrs. Brownell Gage of Suffield, Conn., and seven grandchildren, Marshall Howe of New York, Miss Catherine Gage of Suffield, Mrs. William Sloan, now in Paris, Miss Eleanor Gage of Suffield, and the Misses Patricia, Margaret and Edith Howe, of Norwich.

Dr. Howe served the New London Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers through the years, willingly and efficiently. He was to the church a tower of intellectual and spiritual strength. Scholarly ability and literary charm characterized, always, his utterances, and he was often referred to as the dean of Congregationalism in this part of New England The dignity of his personality, his loyalty to the church, his kindly spirit and the warmth of his Christian fellowship won him the respect and admiration of men, women and children of all creeds. His death is a distinct loss, not only to the church, but to the entire community. News of his passing from earthly life was received with profound sorrow by his friends and acquaintances, who were legion. The sympathy of all is extended the family in their bereavement.

BULLET THROUGH ABDOMEN WHILE HUNTING SQUIRRELS

Alexander Izbicki, 17, of No. 21 Berkley road, is in a critical condition at the W. W. Backus hospital, suffering from bullet wounds in the abdomen and back, received late Sunday afternoon when he accidentally shot himself while hunting in the woods at Tunnel Hill on the Jewett City river highway in the town of Lisbon. The wounds, which are considered very serious by the attending physician, Dr. George H. Gildersleeve, were inflicted by a bullet, a .22-long, from a .22-calibre rifle.

According to the story told, Izbicki, accompanied by another young man was out hunting Sunday afternoon on Tunnel Hill and seeing a gray squirrel running along on top of a stone wall put chase after it, with intentions of shooting at the animal, as he had his rifle cocked. In doing so, Izbicki slipped and fell, the butt end of the gun falling from his hands and away from him, apparently, causing the rifle to discharge The bullet entered the right side of the abdomen, went through and came out in the left lower back.

Izbicki was taken in an automobile to the home of his parents by a man named Steffanson and later was removed to the hospital in the ambulance upon order of Dr. George H. Gildersleeve, who was summoned by telephone by Joseph Izbicki, a brother of the wounded man. Upon examination of Izbicki's wounds at the hospital it was found that the bullet had punctured the abdominal organs in 15 places. The punctures were sewed up by Dr. Gildersleeve.

Incidentally, it may be said that Izbicki was breaking the state law by hunting on Sunday.

DOROTHY M. BEETHAM, N.F.A. '30, STUDYING MUSIC AT YALE

Miss Dorothy M. Beetham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Beetham, of Wauwecus Hill, has returned to New Haven, after spending the week-end at home. Miss Beetham is a student at Yale Conservatory of Music, majoring in violin study. Although only 17, she was graduated from Norwich Free Academy in June and had played violin for the whole four years in the Academy orchestra.

SEVEN REPEATS IN CALLS FOR WARD ST. BRUSH FIRE

Apparatus from the fire department was called to the vicinity of Ward street and Avery street extension on seven different occasions on Saturday and Sunday to combat with a brush fire in the wooded section there. The fire is believed to have originated from a carelessly discarded cigarette butt, but the subsequent blazes probably were kindled by sparks from the first blaze. Brooms and pump cans were used to subdue the blazes, which found ready fuel in the tinderlike moss, leaves, etc.

The first call was received at 3:10 p. m. Saturday. The property is owned by John Cotter and others and is located off Ward street and Avery street extension. The department was again called out at 5:45 and 6:45 o'clock on Saturday afternoon and still again at 6:44, 10:03 a. m., and 12:25 and 10:37 p. m. on Sunday to the same section to squelch blazes that had started. About every piece of apparatus, together with either Chief Henry R. Taft or Deputy Chief Dennis Brennan, responded to calls for these brush fires and others during the week end.

Another call on Saturday, received at 6:10 p. m., was for a false alarm rung in from Box 143, corner of Spring and Mechanic streets.

A supposed fire in the residence at No. 259 Central avenue gave the department another run on Sunday morning. A passerby noticed a large volume of smoke in a vacant store in the building and called the department. The firemen discovered that this was caused from a backdraft in the heater, in which paper was being burned with the draft closed. The building is owned by John A. Klukowsky.

RECREATIONAL MEETING BY GIRLS' CITY CLUB

The Girls' City club, under the auspices of the Woman's City club, had a very large attendance at the recreational meeting held at No. 8 Washington street last Friday night. Several girls applied for membership. The business session was presided over by the president, Irene Combies, with Helen Purple acting as secretary. Plans were completed for the annual Halloween party, to which each member will invite a guest.

Following the business session there were two tables of bridge with instruction and other games were played. A period of group singing was enjoyed during which the girls learned several new songs. The three members of the girls' work committee, the Misses Constance Raymond, Margaret Leith and Esther Evans were present. Last Tuesday night the club organized one class in dressmaking and one in dramatics, at which the girls showed a great deal of interest and energy.

SAYS DRYS' WATCHWORD IS NOW "FORWARD MARCH"

The watchword of the Anti-Saloon League of America is "Forward March," declared the league superintendent, Dr. F. Scott McBride, who was the speaker Sunday night at a union service held at the Central Baptist church before a good-sized congregation For a text he said he would take the following words: "If this thing be of God ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found to fight against God."

At the opening of the service the Scripture lesson was read by Rev. C. H. Ricketts of Greeneville Congregational church, prayer was offered by Rev. A. N. Foster of the Church of the Good Shepherd, and Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt, pastor of the church, presented Rev. Myron E. Genter, a member of the national council of the Anti-Saloon league, who introduced the speaker.

Superintendent Scott said there were five or six reasons why the league's watchword at present should be "Forward March." First, because prohibition is not a question but an answer. It is the best means yet proposed to solve the alcoholic liquor problem and none of the alternatives proposed by the wets will solve the problem. Under government control in Canada the liquor traffic is growing by leaps and bounds, he affirmed. Secondly, prohibition is based on prevention rather than cure and thirdly there is the fact, he said, that in the election of President Hoover, in which prohibition was a dominant issue, there has come a mandate to government officials to enforce and to citizens to observe the prohibition law. While the wets have been promising from year to year that they would gain in the senate and congress, but the opposite has been the case, and Superintendent McBride predicted that in the next congress there would be a gain of from ten to 15 drys in the senate and from 30 to 40 in the house. Another reason for marching forward is that prohibition is succeeding, said the speaker, who declared that the psychology that prohibition is a failure is born of the wets and the way for the drys to counteract it is to stand up and be counted. Speaking of what he knew about Chicago, he said Chicago was a new city under prohibition regime and that at its worst under prohibition was better than the best under the liquor traffic. The bootlegger and the gunman are what are left of the old time liquor problem. The speaker commended in the warmest terms the issue of prohibition information with government authority by Mr. Woodcock, national director, and went to say no one takes seriously the statement of the wets that they don't want the saloon back.

Finally, he declared that the watchword should be "Forward March," because prohibition is right scientifically, economically, civically and morally, and the drys propose to fight for church, home and state until the liquor traffic surrenders to the law.

OPENING SUNDAY SERVICE AT NORWICH Y. M. C. A.

Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock the first Sunday service of the season was held at the Y. M. C. A., and notwithstanding the very warm weather a good number attended. The meeting opened with the singing of "America" and "The Battle Hymn" from the screen. Prayer was offered, after which the very touching and interesting moving picture (first half) "Noah's Ark" was shown with very good effect. During the service Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk and he spoke in part as follows: "We see in print and hear very often these two words, 'safety first.' There are in every city and town red lights that warn of danger, and we do well to heed the warning and be safe. You have all seen the large sign at a crossing, 'Look out for engine when the bell rings.' In most of the factories of this day and time, many safety devices have been installed that accidents may be averted, and such has been the case While many have learned to heed the warnings against danger to the body, it is strange that so many fail to heed the more important warning for the safety of the soul, 'Avoid the appearance of evil' is one of those warnings, but alas, so many ignore it and their lives are spiritually damaged and in many cases absolutely ruined. The scripture warning that what we sow we must reap is passed up by far too many, but its truth is sadly told in broken lives and lost souls. The parents' warnings are heeded far less than they should be and the result is boys and girls in many cases become prodigals Every one of you is building some kind of a life; what are you building? A true and noble life, or the opposite? "Be careful how you build, for your future weal or woe depends upon the way you build now."

Waldo Newbury furnished appropriate music for the service and Gerald Payne operated the picture machine. The last half of this noted picture will be shown next Sunday.

326 VOTERS MADE ON FIRST DAY BY BOARD

There were 326 men and women who were qualified as voters by the Norwich board which was in session on Saturday in the council chamber at the court house. This leaves 651 yet to come before the board out of the 977 whose names were on the to-be-made list. These will have opportunity to come before the board next Saturday.

A few who were of foreign-born extraction appeared without their naturalization papers and will have to come back next Saturday. There were several also who came to be made but had not had their applications on the to-be-made list and consequently could not be made, and will not be able to vote in the coming state election.

Of the 326 who were made, over 175 were men and the others women.

WEDDING

Franks-Black.

Mrs. Grace Franklin Black, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. William Buel Franklin of 405 Park avenue, New York, and Black Point, Conn., was married to Robert A. Franks, Jr., of New York, Friday afternoon at the home of her parents. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. John Herman Randall in the presence of relatives and intimate friends. Mrs. Franks had her two small daughters, Mary Grace Black and Thelma Black, for her only attendants. Jerome Franks was best man for his brother.

After a wedding trip by motor Mr. and Mrs. Franks will live at 163 East Eighty-first street, New York.

The bride's father was appointed commanding officer of the New York Naval Militia by Governor Roosevelt in 1929.

ANNUAL COMMUNION BY MERCIER ASSEMBLY, C. L. OF C.

Once each year Mercier assembly, No. 12, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, publicly displays one of the original motives of its organization, the manifestation of all that stands for true, honest, Catholic womanhood, by receiving, in a body, holy communion. The date for this occasion is always the Sunday nearest Columbus day and they were particularly fortunate in having it fall on Columbus day this year.

In St. Patrick's church Sunday the holy sacrament was given to 200 members.

During the services, the hymns "Come Holy Ghost," "Onward Christian Soldiers" "Mother Dear, O Pray for Me," "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name," were sung by the Mercier members accompanied at the organ by Henry LaFontaine. Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May, chaplain of the order, celebrated the mass and delivered an inspiring address on the purpose of the organization.

Following the church services, the members drove in private cars to the Norwich Inn for a communion breakfast. Here covers were laid for 120. The following menu was served: Chilled orange juice, marmalade, muffins, doughnuts, creamed chicken, O'Brien potatoes, coffee.

The following program was then carried out: Prayer, state honorary president, Mrs. Margaret Dutton; "Come Holy Ghost," entire gathering; address of welcome, Miss Margaret R. Sullivan; Toast to Our Clergy, Miss Katherine Buckley; Toast to Our State Officers, Miss Elizabeth Callahan; Toast to Our Past Presidents, Miss Maude Quinley; Toast to Our Assembly, Miss Margaret Murphy; song, "When It's Springtime in the Rockies"; Toast to Our President, Miss Helen Toomey; Toast to Our Officers, Miss Alice Hoar; Toast to Our Charter Members, Mrs. James McNerney; song, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart"; remarks, Mrs Margaret Dutton; song "Till We Meet Again"; Toast to Our Departed Members, Mrs. Julia Casey.

The speaker of the day, Edward G. Moran, was then introduced. He very eloquently and fittingly addressed all present on the ideals of true womanhood.

The program closed with the presentation of a dainty corsage bouquet to the president from the local and state officers and members. This was followed by the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," after which all adjourned.

Miss Julia Ulrich was chairman and was assisted by Miss Mary Maloney, Mrs. Nellie McHale, Miss Mary Ulrich, Mrs. Anna Nelson, Miss Mary Weller, Miss Loretta Gadle.

SEVEN SHOOTERS QUALIFY AS EXPERT RIFLEMEN

Members of the Norwich Rifle club shot outdoors for first time Sunday, at the 200-yard range near Jewett City, using the regular army Springfield rifle, and cartridges furnished by the government through the National Rifle association to train civilian riflemen. Of eight men shooting, all qualified, seven making highest rating of expert rifleman, and one making marksman. Out of a possible 250 points, 224 must be made to make expert, 214 to 223 to make sharpshooter, and 190 to 213 to make marksman. Medals are given by the government to N. R. A. Rifle club members making these grades.

DUGAS' ALL-STARS GET EVEN BREAK IN WEEK END GAMES, DUGAS IS STAR

Lefty Dugas and his All-Stars split even in their week end ball program, but in doing so they won the game they wanted most. After dropping a 5 to 1 decision to the Shyma club, Saturday, they came back and just edged out the Westerly Independents Sunday. The Saturday game was played at the Providence street grounds and Sunday's at J. B. Martin field, before a fairly large turnout.

Dugas Has Five Hits.

Lefty played first base Saturday and pitched on the Sabbath. His contribution over the week end was five hits, two on Saturday, a double and a home run, and two doubles and a single on Sunday.

Dugas had to pitch with everything he had on Sunday for his team made six errors behind him which kept him continually in trouble. Lefty struck out eight Rhode Islanders.

The Stars piled up a six run total in the first two innings after the Indis had scored once in the first. Westerly came back with three in the fourth to make it 6 to 4, but the locals got busy again and collected what were really the winning runs in the seventh, scoring twice.

Dombrowski Hits Home Run.

They did not seem to be needed at the time but in the ninth with one away and two on bases Walter Dabrowski, one of Lefty's teammates two years ago of the champion Bleachery team in the City league, walloped a home run between left and center and sent the count to 8-7. Emmet doubled on the next pitch but Lefty retired Panciera and Bardone to close the game.

Jimmy Murphy shared hitting honors with Dugas Sunday, also having three in four. Wilk, young Shyma player, played a nice fielding game at first base. He had a bit of tough luck with a couple of drives at bat but shaped up as a coming player.

Eddie Sawyer started in to pitch for the Indies, but was relieved in the seventh. Kiddy took his place and finished in good shape.

The Indies are the team that recently took a series from the New London Kaceys in two out of three heats and also boasted an early-season victory over the Polish Cits. They were claiming Eastern Connecticut-Southern Rhode Island honors. The teams may meet at Westerly next Sunday in a return game.

Saturday's Game Well Pitched.

Pete Raymond pitched against his brother, Sammy, Saturday, and was slightly the better. The Shymas collected ten hits against six for the Stars. Sammy fanned five and his brother, six.

The Shymas put on a three-run outburst in the fifth that clinched the outcome after scoring once in the first, and third. Dugas homered in the ninth. Scores:

MURPHY LEADS SCORERS IN EASTERN FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 12— (AP) —Although he has played in only two games while most of his rivals have been out three times, Jim Murphy of Fordham leads the ball carriers of the east in scoring. Murphy has piled up a total of 54 points to lead Wables Hewitt of Columbia by one. Eyth of Carnegie Tech and Viviano of Cornell are tied for third place with 48 points each.

Murphy has scored all his points by carrying the ball across the goal line for nine touchdowns. Hewitt, Eyth and Viviano each have made eight touchdowns and the Columbian has added five extra points.

Two of the high scoring stars, Macaluso of Colgate and Wilson of Washington and Jefferson, have scored eleven points after touchdowns but both must yield in that respect to Dreshar of Carnegie Tech, whose total of 14 points comes entirely from tries after touchdowns. Only one field goal is credited to a scoring leader. Scalzi of Georgetown made the boot.

LEADING WOMEN GOLFERS READY FOR NATIONAL AMATEUR

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12—(AP)—Eager for the start of the women's national amateur championship competition tomorrow, all but a few of 100 feminine golfers spent today resting and making final preparations for the six day grind.

During the practice rounds, only one of the contestants made the 18 holes under par. Marion Hollins, Santa Cruz, Cal., and 1921 national champion, turned in a card of 38-42—80, yesterday, one under women's par. She came to the sixteenth hole with three 4's for a 74 and a new course record, but took an 8 on the sixteenth when her ball found an unplayable lie.

Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., who has been shooting consistently in the low 80's, equalled par with an 81. Both are considered threats to the championship crown won four times by Glenna Collett of New York city.

Miss Maureen Orcutt of New York, the Canadian women's champion; Mrs. O. Hill of Kansas City, 1929 western women's champion, and Miss Peggy Wattles of Buffalo, N. Y., had 83's Mrs. Harley Higbie of Detroit shot an 86.

While today was by mutual consent a day of rest, several of the women went to the course for a few final shots.

It was considered probable today scores in the low nineties would prove sufficient to make the qualifying list of 32 for Tuesday's first round of match play.

OCKFORDS AND WORCESTER BATTLE TO SCORELESS TIE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12—The Ockfords and the Worcester All-Stars battled through four hectic periods to a scoreless draw at Mercer field this afternoon. The All-Stars had two chances to win the game in the second half, on the first occasion being stopped by an offside after the pigskin had been taken over the line after which they were held for downs within the five yard line. The other time they had the ball on the Ockford's ten-yard stripe but could not penetrate the stonewall that the local firemen presented. The largest crowd of the season was on hand.

Our Gang Wins

Our Gang defeated the Slater Hawks in a game of football Saturday on Slater's grounds, with a score of 24 to 12. Our Gang would like to play any football team not over fourteen years of age at the Ashland grounds.

THE POLITICAL LEXICON

Politics—A sort of game of "you-scratch-my-back-and - I'll - scratch-yours," a last resort for those who can't make good in anything else.

Republican Party—The cause of the business depression, prohibition, the drought and other evils.

Democratic Party—The same as above if they were in power.

A Political Issue—A ballyhoo about something the other party has neglected to mention in their platform.

Platform—A list of issues which are forgotten as soon as the elections are over, not a speaker's rostrum.

A Political Candidate—One who passes around cigars and pats you on the back before election and never recognizes you afterward.

Caucus—A gathering of voters which names the man who has passed around the best cigars as a candidate; a place where you can tell your neighbor what you think of him without a libel suit.

Political Address—A speech made by a candidate for political office in which he tells what he'll do if he's elected and then prays that everybody'll forget what he's said.

Voter—A male or female who pays $2 per year for the right to pull a lever once or twice a year or stuff a pink piece of paper with a lot of marks on it in a ballot box; a person at whom all the political hokum is directed.

Election—The grand finale of a political campaign when everyone forgets everything the candidates have said and votes as he sees fit; a great chance to give your neighbor a kick in the pants without him knowing it.

PROPOSE BOUT BETWEEN VIC DARR AND AL KOZIOL

Negotiations are underway to bring together Vic Darr and Al Koziol in an eight round star bout at the opening indoor boxing show of the Shyma Boxing club later in the month. Koziol is reported to be contemplating a comeback this winter and a bout with Vic Darr would make a very suitable opponent to start with. If Koziol gets by Darr he would have a good chance of going further as Darr has built up quite a reputation while Koziol has been enjoying a long period of idleness.

This bout has been considered in the past but owing to Koziol being too light the match was never consummated. Koziol has taken on considerable weight during his layoff and now intends to box at about 143-145 pounds as he finds it difficult to make the 135 pound limit. Darr through his one-round knockout of Julio Rossi and his great fight against Peterson would make Koziol a very acceptable opponent. Koziol also put up a good battle against Peterson which would show that the two local youngsters are about evenly matched.

This bout if arrangements can be made to bring it about would be a feature that would rival the Koziol-Kop feud of a few years ago.

ACADEMY GRIDSTERS TO SEE BROWN-H. C. GAME

The Academy football team's annual pilgrimage to a big college football game will be made this year to the Brown-Holy Cross game at Providence Saturday, the 25th. There is no game scheduled for the Saturday of that week as the Wildcats will meet Westerly at Westerly on Friday.

Indus Wins Grand Criterium

LONGCHAMP, France, Oct. 12—(AP)—Indus, a fine colt by Alcantara out of Himalaya, owned by Edward Esmond, won the Grand Criterium stakes, the autumn classic for two year olds over the mile distance at the Longchamp track today. Four In Hand was second and Pearl Cap, third. The winner, ridden by William Scanlan, paid two to one. The race was worth $6,000.

SUAREZ-KAPLAN BOUT IS WEEK'S HEADLINER

NEW YORK Oct. 12 —(AP)—Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia, recognized in his own state and in New York as flyweight champion, has injured a hand in training and as a result the first title bout of the new indoor season has been called off.

Wolgast was scheduled to battle Frankie Genaro of New York, who holds the title recognition of the N. B. A., over the 15 round route in Madison Square Garden Friday night. The bout was cancelled today and Madison Square Garden officials announced that the date will be filled by the meeting between Justo Suarez, sensational Argentine lightweight, and Louis Kid Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., former holder of the world's featherweight championship, originally scheduled for Oct. 22. The revised arrangements for the preliminary programme have not been completed.

Despite the loss of the championship battle, the fight faithful of the nation will have two champions to entertain them this week. Al Singer, lightweight title holder from New York, heads the card at the Chicago stadium Tuesday night in a ten round bout with Eddie Mack of Denver. King Levinski, light heavyweight slugger who recently stopped Leo Lomski, and Tom Kirby, Boston heavy, meet in another ten rounder on the same card.

Mickey Walker, who holds the middleweight championship but does not fight as a middleweight, battles Tiger Johnny Cline of Fresno, Calif., for ten rounds at St. Louis Friday.

Kid Chocolate, the Cuban featherweight flash, heads the list of big-time performers who appear on the non-championship part of the national schedule. Chocolate meets Benny Nabers, New York youngster, in a ten rounder at the Olympic club, New York, Thursday.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Monday—At Philadelphia arena—Rene Devos Belgium, vs Joe Anderson, Covington, Ky., middleweights, ten rounds; Young Firpo vs Jackie Pilkington, lightweights, six.

Tuesday—At Chicago stadium—Kid Francis, Italy, vs Harry Fierro, Chicago, bantamweights, ten. At New York, St. Nicholas arena—Ted Sandwina, Sioux City Ia., vs Ralph Ficucello, New York, heavyweights, ten; Allie Wolff vs Milton Hunter, middleweights, six. At Cleveland—Babe Hunt, Ponca City, Okla., vs Frankie Simms, Cleveland, heavyweights, twelve. At Indianapolis—Roy Wallace, Indianapolis, vs Len Darcy, Grand Rapids, Mich., light heavyweights, ten. At Spokane, Wash.—Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., vs Eddie Edelman, Portland, Ore., bantamweights, six. At Seattle—Ham Jenkins, Portland, vs Ray McQuillan, Denver, middleweights, six.

Thursday—At New York, Olympic—Black Bill, Cuba, vs Freddy Lattanzio, flyweight, ten.

WHOLE FOOTBALL SQUAD TO BE VACCINATED

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 12—(AP)—Coach Dick Hanley led 100 members of the Northwestern university varsity and freshmen football squads through a wholesale vaccination treatment today in an effort to preclude the spread of the smallpox attack that sent Captain Hank Bruder to a hospital.

The athletic department personnel from Athletic Director Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson, down through the coaching staff, players and trainers, to the humble water boys, passed through the hands of two physicians in the stadium, where yesterday the Bruderless Wildcats ripped through Ohio State to a 19-2 triumph.

In addition, the 50 brothers of Bruder in the Delta Upsilon fraternity were inoculated. Classmates of the stricken captain will be vaccinated tomorrow.

BANCROFT'S CLUB NOSES OUT ENS' STARS 5 TO 4

HAVANA, Oct. 12—(AP)—Chuck Klein's single in the tenth scored Wally Gelbert with the run that gave Dave Bancroft's All-Stars a 5-4 victory over Jewel Ens' contingent of major leaguers in the third game of the series today. Bancroft's team now has won two of the three games played.

SEVERAL UPSETS MARK SATURDAYS PLAY ON THE COLLEGE GRIDIRONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP)—Another football Saturday has passed into the record books and left the sectiona or national title hopes of a dozen outstanding college teams scattered by the wayside.

October 11 may yet go down in football history as the "day of the big upsets" for not in the memory of the oldest inhabitant has there been such a series of smashing form reversals as thrilled the spectators and jolted the experts yesterday.

Yale, Southern California, Georgia Tech, Missouri, Nebraska and Purdue all were beaten and Stanford tied in the games carrying the greatest element of surprise.

In the east, a fighting, aggressive Georgia eleven came from behind in the last two minutes to pound Yale's line to pieces and push over the touchdown that meant an 18-14 victory. At Pittsburgh, Wally Steffen's veteran Carnegie Tech Tartans served notice on Knute Rockne in particular and the world in general that they must be reckoned with by rolling up a 31-0 count on Georgia Tech, making 26 first downs to three, and gaining 461 yards to 49. Brown upset Princeton, 7-0, for the second successive year; Penn scored five touchdowns in the last half to swamp Virginia, 40-6; West Virginia upset Washington & Lee, 33-7; Cornell jolted Hampden-Sidney, 47-6, and Colgate, another powerful eleven, crushed Lafayette, 41-0.

Some of the hardest fighting of the day took place in the middle west. As far as Big Ten competition is concerned, Michigan's magnificent 14-13 triumph over Purdue, champions a year ago, was the biggest surprise, but Fritz Grisler's Minnesota outfit, badly trounced by Vanderbilt a week ago, took some of the glory by holding Stanford to a scoreless draw, turning back seven distinct Cardinal scoring threats with a stubborn defense that refused to yield. Notre Dame played up to expectations in beating Navy, 26-2, as Joe Savoldi cracked the Midshipmen's line for three touchdowns.

Northwestern, despite the loss of Hank Bruder, who is suffering from smallpox, brushed aside Ohio State, 19-2. Pug Rentner's passes accounted for two Northwestern touchdowns and he scored the other himself after intercepting an Ohio State aerial. Wisconsin exhibited a powerful offensive to beat Chicago, 34-0. Iowa fumbles paved the way for a Centenary triumph, 19-12; and Indiana got no better than a 7-7 tie with Oklahoma A. and M., of the Missouri Valley conference.

In the Big Six, Oklahoma's Sooners upset the dope by turning back the husky Nebraska Cornhuskers, 20-7, while Missouri was beaten for the second time by a non-conference foe, St. Louis, 20-0.

Washington State's mighty eleven nosed out Southern California, 7-6, in a bitter battle that established the Cougars as favorites for the Pacific coast conference title. California, beaten by Washington State a week ago, showed a reversal of form in beating the strong St. Mary's College of Oakland, Calif., an undefeated team last year, 7-6.

In the southwest, the Texas Aggies accepted a 19-9 trouncing from Tulane of the Southern conference. Texas Christian rolled up a 40-0 count on Arkansas in a Southwestern conference game.

Colorado university battled the Utah Aggies to a scoreless tie in the Rocky Mountain conference as the Colorado Aggies gave Denver a 15-7 beating. Colorado college, another member of the "Big Six" group within the conference, trounced Western State, 45-7.

In the Southern conference, the most spectacular game saw Johnny Branch run 94 yards in the last period with the touchdown that enabled North Caroline to beat Maryland, 28-21. The teams were deadlocked at 7-7 at the end of the first period; 14-14 at the end of the second; 21-21 at the end of the third, but Maryland couldn't match North Carolina's last score. Vanderbilt swamped Virginia Poly, 40-0; South Carolina just beat Louisiana State, 7-6; Alabama rallied in the last quarter to run up a 25-0 count on Sewanee; Florida eked out a 7-0 verdict over Auburn; Clemson whipped North Carolina State 27-0 and Tennessee beat Mississippi, 27-0, in other conference games. Citadel nosed out another conference team, Virginia Military, 7-6.

EIGHT WORLD'S RECORDS BROKEN AT OUTBOARD RACES AT MIDDLETOWN

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 12—(AP)—Eight new world's outboard records, two of which were toppled shortly afterwards, were established today as the national championship two day regatta got under way on the Connecticut river. Finals were held in classes A and E.

Today's events marked the second day of racing, following yesterday's eastern division regatta in which 15 new records were established, five of which were superceded by new ones later in the day and three of which fell in today's racing.

Julius Petriak, of Gary, Ill., and Ray Pregenzer, of Antioch, Ill., holders of the records in class E division 2 and class E, division 3, respectively, saw their marks shattered only to re-capture them shortly afterwards. Fred Mikkelson, Milwaukee, Wis., sped over the five mill course at a speed of 41.37 miles per hour to beat Petriak's record of 30.32. The latter, however, again became the record holder by making the run in 41.66.

Pregenzer's mark of 40.25 was shattered by Kenneth C. MacKenzie, New Haven, 15 year old pilot, with a run of 41.09 miles per hour. The Antioch driver, however, came back to get a new mark of 42.505.

Other new records made today were:

Class A, division 1, Fay Irey, Detroit, 31.91 miles per hour. Old record 31.08, held by Gordon Knapp, Bay Shore, N. Y.

Class A, division 3, Miss Hilda Mueller, Bay City, 32.315. Old record 30.82, held by Frank Sheehy, Detroit.

Class B, Division 2, Walter Jankowski, Locust Valley, New York, 34.47. Old record 29.04, held by Charles McCue, Seattle.

Class B, division 3, H. L. Miers, Rosedale, Kas., 41.07. Old record 39.04, held by George Cost, Birmingham, Ala.

Gov. Trumbull and State Senator Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, participated in a special race which was won by the latter's runabout driven by Miss Mueller. The governor's boat was piloted by Miss Alice Hallewell, of Flushing, N. Y. This race was witnessed by John Coolidge, son of Calvin Coolidge, and Mrs. Coolidge, the former Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor.

Champions crowned today were: Class A, division 1 and 2, Fay R. Irey, Detroit; class A, division 3, Miss Hilda Mueller, Bay City, Mich.; class E, division 1 and 2, Julius Petriak, Gary, Ill.; and class E, division 3, Kenneth MacKenzie, New Haven.

Class C, division 3, first group, won by John Stiles, Philadelphia, 41.76; second, Harper Chance, Port Morris, N J., 40.81; third, John Maypole, Sr., River Forest, Ill., 40.17.

Class C, division 3, second group, won by E. H. Patterson, Jr., Troy, N. Y., 41.19; second, B. R. Risley, Jr., Pleasantville, N. J., 40.35; third, C. W. Clemen, Danvers, Mass. 37.04.

FARRELL-TURNESA TEAM BEATS AMATEUR COMBINATION

BRONXVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—Johnny Farrell, of Mamaroneck, and Joe Turnesa, of Elmsford, defeated Jess Sweetser, of Bronxville, and Gene Homans, of Englewood, finalist in the national amateur golf championship, in an 18-hole pro-amateur exhibition at the Siwanoy club, today. The pros had a best ball of 33-32—65 against 34-33—67 for Sweetser and Homans and led two up at the turn. The individual scores were Turnesa 69, Farrell 70, Homans, 70, Sweetser, 73.

LOCAL GOLFERS TIE FOR 4TH IN PRO-AMATEUR

WALLINGFORD, Oct. 12—(AP)—Lindsey Campbell, of Wethersfield, by virtue of brilliant support from Walter Twiss, amateur champion of the local club, led the field in the final pro-amateur tournament of the Connecticut Professional Golfers' association at the Wallingford Country club, here yesterday afternoon. Campbell had a best ball score of 65.

Back of the Wethersfield pro came Joel Smith, professional at the borough club, with 66, and the other three money winners were Jack Williams, New Haven, Captain C. H. Perkins, of Wampanoag in Hartford, and Massie Miller, of Norwich. Williams showed a best ball of 67, with Perkins and Miller tied for fourth and fifth, with 68 each.

Other professionals in the tournament and their best ball scores: George Hunter, Meriden, 69; Arthur Reid, Farmington, 69; Ernest Doerring, Middletown, 71; Pete Rossi, Wallingford, 71; Carl Schmidt, Cheshire, 71; Jack Perkins, Wampanoag, 74, Peter Manning 75; Maurice Kearney, Tumble Brook, 76; Bob Smith, West Hartford, 77, Jim Bracken, Milford, 79.

The Wallingford pro covered the course with the best score in the tournament, shooting a 67, one under par, and was helped on but a single hole by his amateur.

COLGATE LEADS EAST IN SCORING HONORS

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)— Andy Kerr's, mighty Colgate array, has jumped into the lead in the race for eastern scoring honors with 178 points in three games. Closely pressing the Maroons are Cornell with 174 and Dartmouth with 173 points, respectively.

Of the 26 unbeaten and untied teams in the east, 13 boast uncrossed goal lines, including Colgate and Dartmouth.

Although Colgate heads the scoring table, Fordham has compiled the best average with 144 points in two games, or 72 per game.

MERCIER TEAM GAVE DRILL AT CONVENTION

The drill team from Mercier assembly, No. 12, of this city gave a feature exhibition drill in connection with the degree work at the state convention of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus, which was opened Friday night in New London in the headquarters of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service. The convention continued through Saturday and closed with a banquet at the Mohican hotel in the evening.

The delegates were welcomed at the opening of the convention by Mayor E. Frank Morgan, who in his address dwelt at some length on the life of the late Rev T. P. Joynt, well known and loved in New London, in whose honor the New London assembly is named.

Mrs. Mary F. Herlihy, president of Joynt assembly, presided at the opening of the meeting and welcomed the delegates in behalf of her assembly. She then turned the meeting over to Miss Margaret Crane of Hartford, the state president, who conducted the remainder of the session.

Talks were given by Rev. Timothy M. Crowley and Rev. R. J. O'Callaghan of St Mary's Star of the Sea church, both of whom talked about the ideals and principles of the order.

Others who spoke briefly were Miss Crane and Miss Charlotte M. Holloway, state councilor, from New London.

ACADEMY EASY PREY FOR HARDING TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 12—Warren Harding high ran roughshod over Norwich Free Academy's football representatives Saturday afternoon at Harding field and handed the Rose City eleven its worst gridiron shellacking in the last five or six years. The score was 28 to 0. Norwich being clearly outplayed from start to finish.

Harding hopped to it almost from the first kickoff and quickly ran up three touchdowns in the first period, then added one more in the final period. Harding made the four extra points. The nearest the Wildcats could come to scoring was the 20 yard line.

This was Harding's fourth football victory in as many tries at the N. F. A. boys and was the worst. It was the first defeat of the season for the Academy after they had beaten Chapman Tech and Hartford Bulkeley.

HAGEN BEATS ARMOUR IN MICHIGAN FINALS

PONTIAC, Mich., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Walter Hagen defeated Tommy Armour, 3 and 2, in the 36 hole finals of the Michigan P. G. A. tournament today at Birmingham Golf club to win his first championship of the year.

Hagen and the present National P. G. A. champion fought a close battle during the morning round and neither was more than two up until the 11th hole in the afternoon. Hagen took the tenth and eleventh holes to become three up and ended the match at the sixteenth as Armour found a tree between his ball and the cup and got into two traps before he picked up.

In defeating Armour, Hagen made up to some extent for a lean season. Armour has won the Canadian open in addition to the national professional title and some big money tournaments, including the $10,000 St. Louis open.

TWO ESCAPE INJURY IN RACE TRACK CRASH

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Johnny Hannon, 23-year-old driver from Norristown, Pa., making his first appearance on a board track, lost control of his car in the time trials before the Columbus day classic today and was saved from almost certain death by a cable. His car ripped up 35 feet of the guard rail and caused postponement until Oct. 26 of the feature race. He was not injured.

Frank Farmer of Philadelphia also struck the guard rail in the trials, turned over twice and escaped with a scratched arm.

FRISCH SUFFERS LEG INJURY IN EXHIBITION

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12—(AP)—Frankie Frisch, captain and second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, National league baseball champions, suffered a bruised leg muscle in an exhibition game here today that may end his present barnstorming tour.

Frisch, playing with an all-star aggregation against the Black Sox of Baltimore, collided while running to first with the Black Sox right fielder, who had come in to attempt a double play. He was carried from the field. The player's spikes tore the flesh of the Cardinal captain's leg.

With Frisch on the all-star team were Charley Gelbert, Cardinal shortstop and Johnny Neun of the Boston Braves. The score was 10 to 0 in favor of the Black Sox.

DANIELSON TROUNCES PUTNAM IN E. C. SOCCER GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 2.—Sunday afternoon, the Danielson Yellowjackets defeated the Putnam Silk Spinners, 7 to 0. Danielson completely played Putnam off their feet. Putnam tried hard but Danielson was not to be denied. Labriole and Ross were the highlights for Danielson, booting in two each. T. Scungio, Danielson fullback, also played a great game and accounted for one of the goals.

Next Sunday the Yellowjackets will play at home.

THREE TIE FOR FIRST IN KICKERS' HANDICAP

Three tied for first prize in the kickers' handicap at the Norwich Golf club over the week-end. They were Lawton Brayton, D. W. Morton and Edward G. McKay, each having a net score of 79. The blind par was 80.

In the finals of the Labor day tournament played Saturday afternoon, E. G. McKay defeated D. W. Morton 2 and 1.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Enlists Help

With friends in trouble, needing aid,
There is no time to be afraid.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was greatly distressed. Over in the Green Forest, Lightfoot the Deer and another Deer of about his own size had fought until at last their antlers became locked; and there they were, head to head, unable to separate. All the Green Forest knew about it. It seemed as if every one had paid that part of the Green Forest a visit. Peter Rabbit had not heard of the fight in time to see it, but he had heard of the acident, and, of course, he had hurried over there. Peter's heart was filled with pity.

Peter knew that, if only Farmer Brown's Boy would come along, all would be well. Peter has great faith in Farmer Brown's Boy. So he had done his best to try to think of some way of getting Farmer Brown's Boy over there. Finally Peter saw Sammy Jay. Sammy flew over and alighted quite near Peter.

"Do you know where Farmer Brown's Boy is right now?" inquired Peter.

"No," said Sammy, "I don't know where he is right now, but only a little while ago he was over in the Old Orchard picking apples. What do you want to know for?"

"I want to get him to come and help Lightfoot," said he.

"Don't be foolish, Peter," said Sammy. "If those two fellows can't get themselves apart, Farmer Brown's Boy certainly can't get them apart."

"I believe he could," replied Peter. "Anyway, he would try, and that's more than any one else is doing."

"What makes you think he would try?" asked Sammy.

"Did you ever know him to let any of the little people of the Green Forest or the Green Meadows stay in trouble, once he had found them in trouble?" demanded Peter.

Sammy looked thoughtful. "I believe you're right, Peter," said he. "But I don't see what even Farmer Brown's Boy could do for these two fellows. If they cannot pull themselves apart, he certainly cannot pull them apart."

But Peter was not to be discouraged. "He may not be able to pull them apart, but he'll get them apart somehow," he declared. "The thing to do now is to get him over here."

"That ought not to be difficult," replied Sammy. "My cousin, Blacky the Crow, and I can get him almost any time, if he isn't too busy."

"Do you know where Farmer Brown's Boy is right now?" inquired Peter

"What are you all talking about?" demanded Ol' Mistah Buzzard, as he dropped down on the ground beside Peter.

Peter told him. Then Sammy Jay explained what he proposed to do. "I'll get my cousin, Blacky the Crow," said he, "and some of his flock, and I'll get two or three of my family and we'll all set up a great screaming. Farmer Brown's Boy will know that something has happened and he'll want to find out what it is; and if he isn't too busy, he'll come over to find out."

"Ah reckon that's a good plan, Brer Jay," said Ol' Mistah Buzzard. "Ah reckon Ah can help. Ah'll just sail round and round up in the sky right over those two silly Deer. Farmer Brown's Boy will hear you-all, then he'll see me, and Ah reckon he'll hurry right over."

"Goody!" cried Peter. "That's just the very thing. Hurry and do it right away."

So Sammy Jay went to look for Blacky the Crow and pass the word along to members of his own family; and Ol' Mistah Buzzard mounted up in the air and began to sail round and round, and round and round, right where Lightfoot the Deer and the other Deer lay.

WESTERLY

THREE ACCIDENTS TO AUTOS OVER WEEK-END

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 12.—Automobiles figured in at least three Westerly Sunday morning occurrences. Some time between the hour of midnight and 7 a. m., Sunday, the large automobile of Peter Nardone was taken by unknown parties from his High street garage and driven on the old Potter Hill road, coming in contact with an electric light post and badly jamming the auto and smashing the glass. The car was abandoned in the middle of the highway, where it was reported to the police, who have sought the occupants.

At about 9:30 a. m., Sunday, the Ford roadster of the Westerly Lumber Co. was taking gas at the yard pump on Oak street when flames were observed leaping through the dashboard. A telephone call brought the Ahrens-Fox pumper, Fire Chief Bonner, and other assistant engineers and firemen to the blaze. A line of hose from the booster tank kept the flames down and from spreading to nearby buildings until a line of fire hose could be laid to a hydrant, and the blaze was soon out. Previous to this time, the firemen and apparatus had just returned to the central fire station on Union street from a 6 to 8 a. m. visit to the Westerly Athletic field, where the grounds and surroundings were given a thorough wetting down.

At about 10:30 a. m., a west-bound Massachusetts Chevrolet coupe driven by a woman struck the rear end of a bus of the Rhode Island Coach Co lines as it had just rounded the Dixon square traffic beacon to proceed up High street. Police Officer Robert Kessel investigated the crash and allowed the cars to proceed.

Real Estate Transfers

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer:

Oct. 10. Nathaniel B. Groton, of Whitmarsh, Mountgomery Co., Pa., to John M. Groton, New Bedford, Bristol Co., Mass., an undivided one-half interest in a tract of land together with all buildings and improvements on the east side of Elm street, former owner, Hannah B. Groton.

Westerly Square and Compass club, No. 176, National League of Masonic clubs, with rooms in the Potter Langworthy block on High street, is planning events for the fall season. The board of directors has named the following members of the nominating committee to choose a slate of officers for the club to take office the first of January, and the 1931 club year: William H Browning, Samuel Bailey, James H. Blackler, Robert F. L. Barr and Ernest Ozanne. A committee consisting of President John R. Oppy, Vice-President Charles M. Lamb, L. Ward Alger and Dwight L. Freeman, will have charge of a club night with entertainment, to be held some Friday night in October. For the annual club bridge whist tournament the committee members are Capt. Albert Rohdin, Fayette F. Freeman, George Smith and William T. Stillman.

Columbus Day Observance

The annual Columbus day observance in Westerly, closing on Sunday night with an elaborate display of fireworks on the Westerly Athletic field on High street, was carried out as by program published in Saturday morning's Bulletin. On Saturday night the observance began with a dance at the State armory on Dixon street. There was a record crowd in attendance and dancing was enjoyed from 8:30 o'clock until midnight. Music was furnished by the Lawrence Ballroom Boys, of New London.

On Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock the street parade start was made on Broad street and the line of march was over Granite street, Grove avenue, High street, Railroad avenue, Canal street, High street, Broad street, West Broad street, Liberty street, Stillman avenue, Canal street, Pleasant street, Pierce street, and to the High street athletic field.

A police lieutenant was in charge at Dixon square with extra officers and Motorcycle Officers Kessel and Button headed the formation with Motorcycle Officer Madison the rear.

Salvatore Sanquedolce was marshal of the street parade, and the order of march was as follows: Committee in charge of arrangements; picture of Columbus, carried by four Sea Scouts; Luzzi's band; Narragansett council, No. 21, K. of C.; Iolanda Margherita lodge; Sons of Italy; Operai lodge; International Hod Carriers' union, No. 15; Sea Scout band and Sea Scouts; Foresters of America; Calabrese society; Italian Welfare club.

At the Westerly Athletic field the explosion of aerial bombs ushered in the afternoon sports program as had marked the day's opening at 6:30 a. m. The football game between the Westerly Knights of Columbus eleven and the Woody Hill eleven of Providence resulted in a 7 to 0 victory for the Westerly players.

OBITUARY

Otis Henry Chapman

On Saturday occurred the death of Otis Henry Chapman, at his home, 19 Summer street, where he had resided for the past 40 years. Mr. Chapman, who was in his 71st year, underwent an operation about seven years ago, and he had been in failing health since that time.

He was born at the Chapman farm on the Shore road, where the Watch Hill Riding club is now located, on April 8, 1859, being the son of the late Harris P. and Bridget Ann (Kenyon) Chapman.

For many years he was employed by Maxson & Sons, contractors and builders, and he later worked for Kenyon's. For about the last ten years he was in the contracting business for himself.

Mr. Chapman was a prominent member of Misquamicut tribe, No. 19, Improved Order of Red Men, being a past sachem of the organization. He was also an active member of the Golden Cross and the First Baptist church.

On May 29, 1883, he was united in marriage with Isabelle Nash, of Stonington, who survives him. He also leaves a daughter, Miss Ethel Chapman, a teacher in the schools of Rahway, N. J.; two brothers, Arthur Chapman, of New York city, and Israel Chapman, of Westerly, and two sisters, Mrs. Fred P. Babcock and Mrs. Mary Brown, both of Westerly.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Vincenzo Faillace

On Saturday morning the funeral of Mrs. Vincenzo Faillace, 39, who died Wednesday at the Westerly hospital, was held at 8:30 o'clock from her late home on the North Stonington road. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock at St. Michael's church by Rev. William Brewer.

Interment was at St. Michael's New cemetery, where the committal service was also conducted by Fr. Brewer. The bearers were Cataldo Bevacqua, Biaggio Dimaggio, Frank LoCrasto, Antonio Digangi, Giovanni Adamo and Philipo Testa.

Mrs. George F. Nye

Funeral services for Mrs. George Franklin Nye, 81, life-long resident of Westerly, who died Wednesday at her home in Avondale, were held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 46 Granite street. Rev. Arnt L. Schoning, pastor of the Broad Street Christian church, was the officiating clergyman.

Interment was at River Bend cemetery, where the committal service was also conducted by Rev. Schoning. The bearers were Maurice Nye, Leo Nye, Raymond Nye and Cleveland Clarke.

William D. Cameron and J. Lee Brown, of Stamford, were Westerly week-end motor visitors, the guests of their sister, Mrs. Edward W. Pitcher, and family, in Westerly.

Miss Bernice E. Whipple, teacher in Spanish in the public schools of New York city, was the Columbus day vacation guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Whipple, in Westerly.

The Misses Helen Louise and Margaret Buffum arrived at their home in Westerly on Friday, after a summer vacation tour of Europe. They were passengers on the Cunard line steamship Carmenia, which sailed from Havre, France, on Sept. 27.

Miss Alice Reader, of New Brighton, Pa., the coach for the play, "Aunt Lucia," presented at the Broad street grammar school on Thursday and Friday nights to packed houses, in the interests of the Westerly Sanitary corps, left Westerly on Sunday for Orange, Mass., where the play is to be produced, Miss Reader having come to Westerly from Haverhill, Mass.

Joseph Clancy, Charles J. Butler and John Pescetello were among the Westerly football fans on Saturday, who attended the Yale-Georgia football game at New Haven.

Joseph H. Whipple, the Misses Bernice E. and Mary M. Whipple and Miss Ann Elizabeth Carr left Westerly Sunday on a Columbus holiday vacation motor tour.

Miss Louise Carr leaves Westerly this week on her annual vacation to visit with relatives in Raynor, Pa.

FRANK WILLIAMS CROWDS CAR OF J. J. CASEY, NORWICH

Frank Williams of Uncasville was arrested by State Trooper Donald Brown, of Groton barracks on a charge of failing to grant right of way, Sunday afternoon, on the Norwich-New London highway in Montville. The Chevrolet coupe which Williams was operating figured in a slight accident with a Plymouth coupe operated by James J. Casey, of the Shannon building apartment, Norwich. Mr. Casey's wife was badly shaken up and was treated by Dr. J. J. Donahue, of Uncasville. The case will be tried in the Montville justice court this (Monday) morning.

Wheeling Back To Alabama.

Edison R. Thompson, who has been a guest for three weeks of Gilbert Bunnell, of Palmertown, left for his home in Clinton, Ala., Saturday afternoon by bicycle. Mr. Thompson on his trip here three weeks ago covered the 1500 miles in 12 days and traveled at a rate of 12 hours per day. He expects to accomplish the return trip in ten days.

SNITCH SNYDER'S PLACE YIELDS WET GOODS GALORE

A detachment of state troopers from Groton barracks, consisting of Arthur Whitmarsh, William E. McKenzie and Eric Swanson, swooped down on the liquor establishment of Snitch Snyder about 1.30 Sunday morning at the place at Haughton's Cove, Uncasville, which Snyder opened about seven weeks ago. The troopers secured a truck-load of booze which they took with them to the barracks, there to be kept until the court orders them destroyed.

Snyder, who has married recently, was a former gob, being stationed at the Submarine Base and was discharged about nine months ago. Snyder was brought before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church, who put the accused under $1,000 bonds for his appearance in the Montville justice court Monday afternoon, at 4 o'clock. Bonds were furnished by Mrs. Jacques of Norwich.

ONLY 33 VOTERS MADE— OTHER 192 FAILED TO APPEAR

The three members of the board of selectmen, Ambrose Sullivan, C. Everett Chapman and Jerome House, with Town Clerk Dan H. Home, administered the elector's vote to 33 new voters Saturday, at the first session of this board, held in the town hall at Palmertown, from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. Another meeting, the last one to be held, will be the coming Saturday for the purpose of examining the qualifications of the remainder of the to-be-made voters and administering the oath to them. There remains a total of 192 who did not appear before the board. Of those applying, none was found to lack the necessary qualifications.

Catholic Parish Interests.

There is to be a requiem high mass this (Monday) morning at St. John's church for the repose of the soul of Mrs. Daniel Sullivan.

YOUTHFUL WESTERLY COUPLE DIE IN SUICIDE PACT NEAR CHARLESTOWN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 12.—In carrying out what Rhode Island authorities believe to have been a pre-agreed death pact, murder and suicide caused the death of Miss Hilda Nowell, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nowell, 15 Lester avenue, Pawcatuck, and George Edward Haggerty, 19-year-old plumber apprentice and son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Haggerty, 89 East avenue, Westerly. Their lifeless bodies were found in each other's embrace seated in a Ford coupe, about 7:45 a. m., Saturday, the car being parked just off the driftway on the beach bank between Charlestown pond and the Atlantic ocean in a lonely section at the extreme east end of Quonochontaug East Beach and about a mile west of the now closed Charlestown pond beachway.

That the death of the young people resulted from gun shot entering the abdomen of each was evinced by the butt of the double-barreled 12-gauge shot gun which rested on the edge of the partly opened door with the muzzle pointing toward the bodies.

The discovery was made by two duck hunters, Thomas Terranova and Wayland Currie, both of Bradford, R. I., who reported passing the parked auto in the dim light about 6:30 a. m., as they went on the marsh and again in the same place with occupants in the same position on their return about 7:45 a. m. Their suspicions were aroused and receiving no response they proceeded around the car to the ocean side to make their gruesome discovery. On the driver's seat, with his back braced against the door, sat Haggerty with his arm about the girl, who sat stretched out on the seat. The duck hunters drove to Westerly and notified Lieut. George H. Champlin, acting Westerly police chief, who immediately notified the Hope Valley barracks of the Rhode Island state police, and Sergt. Ernest F. Stenhouse and Trooper J. F. Kennedy came to Westerly and accompanied Lieutenant Champlin to the beach.

On the officers' arrival, disturbance of the car was deferred until the arrival of the medical examiner and when Dr. Frances Kenyon, the Charlestown official, was unable to be found, Westerly Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, of Westerly, went to the beach and viewed the bodies, finding that the gun shot had entered the abdomen of each as they sat braced in the auto. An empty shell was found on the floor of the car and an exploded shell in the other barrel chamber. On the floor of the auto, close at hand, was a .22 rifle of cheap make with a single cartridge in the chamber.

Slipped in a crack in the windshield was a note which read: "Mother: Your son died at 4:10 a. m." and Sergeant Stenhouse also found two other notes, one of which gave the information that the girl died at 4:15. But little gas was in the car and the rear right tire was flat, and on the running board was chewing gum. The steering wheel of the car was found lying beside the car in the roadway and was thought to have been removed to permit the shot gun barrel to be held against the bodies. The clothing on the boy was found to be charred and burned by the powder from closeness of the muzzle.

While the officers were making their investigations, Charlestown Deputy Game Commissioner A. S. Pendleton, residing near Haversham Inn on the Boston Post road, reported that on the previous Friday morning, when going down to the pond eeling at about 5:30 a. m., he saw the auto parked as found and the officers were convinced that the bodies had been in the auto at least 24 hours before being found. The bodies were brought to undertaking establishments in Westerly and late Saturday afternoon were ordered released by Sergeant Stenhouse when he became certain that the deaths were suicidal.

Besides her parents, Miss Nowell, an attendant at the Christ Episcopal church, is survived by two sisters and two brothers. The young man attended the Immaculate Conception church. They had kept company for over a year but were reported as having had several quarrels and both have been missing from their homes before.

GALES FERRY

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Parker and daughter, Miss Margaret H. Parker, returned early last week from a motor trip to Philadelphia Friday to attend the marriage of Mr. Parker's niece, Miss Nada Doyle and Fred Johannes, in that city, Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Parker and daughter visited Caldwell, N. J., and New York city en route. They were preceded here by Mr. and Mrs. Johannes on their honeymoon trip.

Mrs. E. W. Jones is entertaining Mrs. William Rowe, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., for a few weeks, at her summer cottage on the Bluff. They were joined there by Mr. Jones and son, Vincent, for a visit over the week end.

Rev. Harold H. Critchlow was in Uncasville Monday and Tuesday in attendance at the fall session of the Norwich District Ministers' association held at the Methodist church.

Miss Ruth T. Russell, home demonstration agent of the New London county farm bureau, conducted a class in millinery at the home of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, Thursday. Ten were in attendance during the day. Seven new hats were made and five were remodeled.

Callers the first of the week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Turner at Long Cove were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. William Edwards, of Waterford; Mr. and Mrs. Marius VanGelder and son, Marius, Jr., of New London, with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rogers and daughter, Miss Virginia, of Norwich.

WEDDINGS

Woodworth-Burrows

At 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Burrows of West Mystic, their daughter, Miss Ruth Clarissa Burrows became the bride of Oliver Fuller Woodworth, of New London. The house was decorated with autumn foliage and flowers. Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, D. D., pastor of the Methodist church in New London, officiated. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Walter Spencer of New London. During the ceremony, Miss Helen Eastland, also of New London, sang Oh Promise Me and At Dawning. The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Clarence Saunders of Westerly. The bridesmaid was Miss Katherine Fleming of Groton and the best man was Edward Perkins of New London. The ushers were William Jacques of New London and Albert Burrows, brother of the bride. The bride wore a lovely old-fashioned gown of aquamarine taffeta and net, with puffed sleeves, and hat to match. She carried a bouquet of yellow and pink roses. Her attendants were gowned in pink point d'esprit over aquamarine silk. They wore hats to match and carried old-fashioned flowers. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Woodworth left on a motor trip to the south. The bride has been very popular and her friends wish her great happiness in her wedded life.

Brady-Pendleton

Saturday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris A. Pendleton of Mystic, their daughter Miss Elizabeth Bauer Pendleton became the bride of Harris Chapman Brady, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Brady, of Ashaway, R. I. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William G. Fagan, pastor of the Congregational church, in the presence of about 65 relatives and friends. The house was decorated with fir trees, autumn foliage and flowers. The attendants were Miss Mildred Estelle Pendleton, sister of the bride, and John William Brady, brother of the groom. The bride wore a lovely gown of white lace over white georgette and carried bridal roses. Her attendant wore yellow georgette with lace and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Following the ceremony luncheon was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Brady left on a trip through New York state and New Jersey. On their return they will reside in Ashaway where the groom is employed. Mrs. Brady or Betty, as she is called by all her friends, has been a willing worker in the local Congregational church and Mystic grange. She will be missed, but all will unite in wishing her a very happy married life.

The Triple Link Aid association held a whist in Odd Fellows' hall, the other evening, with 18 tables in play. High scores in bridge were made by Mrs. Truman Jewell and Harry Meyers. Mrs. Henry Ritzie and Walter Prescott, were second. High scores in straight were made by Miss Callie Chapman and Albert H. Wilson. Mrs. Nathan Brown and C. D. Meservy were low. Refreshments donated by a pie company of Hartford, were served.

Mrs. Chester Chapman, Miss Dorris Bindloss and Mrs. Clifford E. Holmes were in Westerly Saturday afternoon.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A bright spot in a week of confusing and discouraging developments in business and finance has been indication of a brisk acceleration of activity in the textile industry.

This is viewed as significant by The Annalist, which says, "an outstanding characteristic of the 1921 depression was that revival in the textile industries preceded recovery of business in general."

Pessimism, nevertheless, was reported by many observers as having reached the blind depths of 1914 and 1921, when few could foresee the periods of unparalleled prosperity which were in the making. The premature forecasts of recovery so numerous a few months ago were said to be making illusions difficult to dispell at this time. Political disturbances abroad, which might be viewed with equanimity in prosperous times, have caused much nervousness.

Most discouraging of the week's business statistics was the American Iron and Steel institute's figures as to steel output in September, showing a new low for the year, although July had been widely regarded as the bottom.

Bradstreet's reported that building gained over August in September, the first time September has shown an increase over the previous month since 1917. Sales of radio sets and miscellaneous merchandise of that character were reported as in large volume.

A firmer tone in the New York money market was regarded as indicating increasing commercial demands to finance accelerating activity. Freight car loading, as reported for the latest week, again declined, although the drop was slight.

Declines in commodity prices, along with unsettlement in the stock market, were aggravating developments, although wheat, after getting close to the September lows, developed a better tone at the end of the week. Copper held at 10 cents a pound, and as expected, the statistics for September showed an increase of nearly 16,000 tons in stocks on hand. Buying of copper and other non-ferrous metals was in fair demand, however. Lead prices were under pressure.

JAMES SEXTON, NEW LONDON, DIES SUDDENLY ON STREET SUNDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12.— James Sexton, about 59, died suddenly this evening when he collapsed while walking on the street. Death, it is believed, was caused by heart disease, but an autopsy will be performed to determine positively the cause of the man's sudden passing, especially as Sexton had apparently been in sound health and had been seen about the streets this afternoon and evening. Sexton was at the home of his sister, Mrs. Richard Mansfield, of Colman street, this noon and was not complaining. He was about the streets later and in jovial spirits. About 7 o'clock, while walking on North Bank street, corner of John street, he collapsed, falling, but regaining his feet, only to fall again. He was seen by Alice Zaneski, a young girl, residing on North Bank street, who ran to headquarters less than a block away and notified the police. Patrolman Dennis Murphy went to where Sexton lay and with the assistance of pedestrians carried the man to headquarters, but he was dead by that time. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was summoned and after interviewing witnesses ordered the body taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital morgue that the autopsy might be performed. Coroner Edward G. McKay, of Norwich, was notified of the circumstances attending Sexton's death.

HARTFORD CHILD'S SKULL FRACTURED; CAR HITS HIM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12. — Roger Standow, 4, of 97 Arundel avenue, Hartford, sustained serious injury this afternoon when hit by an automobile owned by Charles Zamse, 21 Eastern Point road, Groton, and driven by James Zeppieri, 135 Fairview avenue, Groton. It is believed that the child has a fracture of the skull and he is now a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital. Zeppieri was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh, charged with failing to have a driver's license in his possession. Zeppieri will be in the police court tomorrow. The child, accompanied by his parents, came to New London today and they were guests at the Colonnade hotel, Pequot avenue. The child was allowed to go from the hotel and started for the opposite side of the highway just as the automobile was about to pass. Zeppieri swerved the car to the side of the avenue in an effort to avoid hitting the child, but the boy was struck by the fender. Zeppieri placed the child in the auto and speeded to the hospital.

Joseph Marsans was arrested in Waterford this afternoon by State Police Officer John Smith charged with vagrancy. Marsans was brought to New London and locked up and will be presented in the Waterford town court Monday.

ITALIAN SOCIETIES PAY HONOR TO GREAT DISCOVERER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12—Columbus day was celebrated here today by the Italian population, the celebration comprising a street parade, speaking at Tyler square and a band concert this evening. The parade, with the three Italian societies in line, left Odd Fellows' hall, Bank street, at 2:30, moved through Bank street, to State street, to Huntington, to Jay, to Truman, to Bank to Tyler square. There several speakers addressed the large crowd assembled, the speakers including Mayor E. Frank Morgan and Councilor Cornelius D. Twomey. This evening from 7 until 9, a band concert was given and concluded the celebration.

FUNERAL

Cyrus Avery

The funeral of Cyrus Avery, well known Poquonoc Bridge resident, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Poquonoc Bridge Baptist church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Included among the mourners were delegations of members of Pomona grange, Fairview lodge of Odd Fellows of Groton and Charity Relief lodge of Masons, of Mystic. Burial was in Smith Lake cemetery, Poquonoc Bridge.

Philip M. Wade and Frederick W. Fowler, strangers, were arrested today by Special Agent John Anderson of the New Haven railroad, charged with train riding. The men were locked up and will be presented in the police court Monday. The train riders were detected riding between the locomotive and the baggage car of one of the early morning trains.

CARL E. BURGESS CHARGED WITH EVASION AND DRINKING

Carl E. Burgess, 48 Henry street, a carpenter, was arrested this afternoon by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and evasion of responsibility. He was locked up in default of a surety on his bond of $500 and will be in court Monday. Burgess was driving on Denison avenue about 1:30 o'clock and the auto collided with a truck driven by Louis Benoits of Oakdale. Burgess did not stop, but continued to drive to Montauk avenue where at the corner of Denison avenue the auto crashed against a machine driven by Barney Belgrade, 202 Montauk avenue. The auto driven by Belgrade was hit with such force as to cause it to overturn on the tracks of the Connecticut company. Burgess' auto was damaged also. Following the crash, Burgess jumped from his machine and ran away. He was found later walking along Willetts avenue extension by Sergeant Cavanaugh and was taken into custody. Belgrade was taken to the office of a physician, where his wounds, consisting of lacerations and contusions, were dressed.

Jewett City Driver Heedless

Charles Giraro, East Main street, Jewett City, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Joseph Sullivan, charged with failing to stop at an automatic danger signal, corner of Bank and Shaw streets, and will be in court Monday.

BURGLARS GET AWAY WITH 15-POUND CARIBOU HEAD

The club-house on Pequot avenue, owned by A. H. & A. L. Burr, was entered by a thief Saturday night and a caribou head, valued at $100 and weighing about 15 pounds, was stolen. The theft was not discovered until this afternoon.

Taftville Driver Heads List

The police Saturday night arrested several auto drivers for violation of the city ordinance, which prohibits the parking of cars on Pearl street. The drivers were: Andrew F. Jarry, 493 South B street, Taftville; Rinaldo Suessell, 2 Bruggerman street, Mystic; Herbert D. Grenley, R. F. D., Mystic; Edna B. Dickson, Pleasure Beach, Waterford; Charles D. Liquore, 42 Pierce street, Westerly; John W. Diamond, R. F. D., Waterford. The drivers were released upon furnishing a surety on their respective bonds of $2 for their appearance in the police court Monday.

An automobile owned by Robert Simpson, 28 Warren street, has been stolen from its parking place, rear of the Exchange building, Bank street. The car is a 1929 DeSoto sedan.

Herman Quandt, 89 Vauxhall street, reported to the police today that a large billboard on Lower Boulevard, near Hillside road, had been knocked down for the second time within a few weeks. The manner by which the advertising sign was toppled over is believed to be the act of some person with malicious intent.

Picking On Rutberg

Samuel Rutberg, 172 Shaw street, apparently is marked for the attention of thieves for today he reported to the police that his garage was entered last night and seven baskets of apples stolen. Friday night Rutberg notified the police that a thief had stolen several automobile tires from the yard at his home.

Edward J. Walsh, charged with speeding, was arrested Saturday night on Ocean avenue by Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray.

WEIBLE FINED $50 AND COSTS— WAS UNDERSTUDY HUSBAND

Louis Weible, a sailor stationed at the submarine base, was in the police court Saturday, charged with lascivious carriage. He was fined $50 and costs. Weible had been under arrest at the base for several days as a result of a warrant having been issued by the civil authorities following the attempted suicide of Mrs. Wilda Ryane, 24, with whom Weible had been living as man and wife, and he was given into the custody of the police earlier in the day. Mrs. Ryane, who will be discharged next week, will also be arrested, either on a charge of lascivious carriage or adultery.

Joseph Vocalino, a youth residing at 53 Prest street, was charged with theft, but the count was nolled. Vocalino and Joseph Sammataro, a Shaw street youth, were arrested in June and after they had gone to the pier of the Hotel Griswold and stolen a power boat owned by Spencer Borden, of Fall River. The boat was brought to Shaw's cove and stripped of its engine and equipment, which was taken to the cellar of Sammataro's home. Both youths were arrested at the time and Sammataro was sentenced to six months in jail, but Vocalino's case was continued until today.

Francis Redden, 361 Bank street, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, had his case continued until the 13th inst. He furnished a surety on his bond of $200. Redden was arrested late Friday night by Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolman Lawrence Fardy.

Raymond Dayton, Broad street extension, Waterford, was charged with driving with improper markers and was fined $10, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Dayton was arrested Friday by State Police Officer John Smith.

Mrs. James Kelly, and infant son, 27 Sherman street; Mrs. Walter Henrici, 12 Elliott avenue, Ocean beach; Mrs. Pauline Ferro, 3 Chelsea street; Dr. George Andrews, Escoheag, R. I.; Felix Manetska, Uncasville; Mrs. David Coffey, 44 Linden street, Harry Sharaf, 85 Vauxhall street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

FRED. VINAL, MIDDLETOWN, GOES TO JAIL FOR 3 MONTHS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12—Frederick Vinal, 264 Court street, Middletown, was charged with reckless driving and driving without a license. Because of Vinal having defied the orders of the court since his arrest, he was fined $100 and costs on the first count and on the second charge a fine of $3 and costs was imposed. Vinal could not pay, so he went to jail to stay about three months unless friends go to his assistance. Vinal was arrested on Main street the latter part of last month. The next day he failed to present himself in court. The case was again continued in order to permit the young man to appear and defend the charges. This he failed to do so a warrant for his arrest was issued. Friday night Vinal was arrested in Hartford and Saturday State Police Officer William MacKenzie went to that city and brought the prisoner back to New London.

WEDDING

Barber—Winship

Robert Stanton Barber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard N. Barber, of Westerly, and Miss Elizabeth Winship, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. Oliver Winship, Lower Boulevard, were married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents and in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. John Huber, Jr., of Buffalo, N. Y., was best man and Miss Dorothy Winship, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Ann Dumont, of Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Dorothy Jones and Miss Peggy David were bridesmaids. The ushers were Raymond Camp, Norwich, and Albert C. Woodruff, Jr., of this city. The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin and wore a veil held in place with a lace cap and which was worn by her great-grandmother. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies. The gown of Miss Dorothy Winship was turquoise chiffon velvet, with hat to match, and she carried yellow chrysantemums. Miss Dumont was attired in rust colored chiffon velvet with hat to match and carried pale bronze chrysanthemums. Misses Jones and David wore dresses of peach colored chiffon velvet, with hats to correspond and carried pale bronze chrysanthemums. Upon the conclusion of a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Barber will reside at Winship place. Mr. Barber is employed as draftsman by the C. B. Cottrell Co., Westerly.

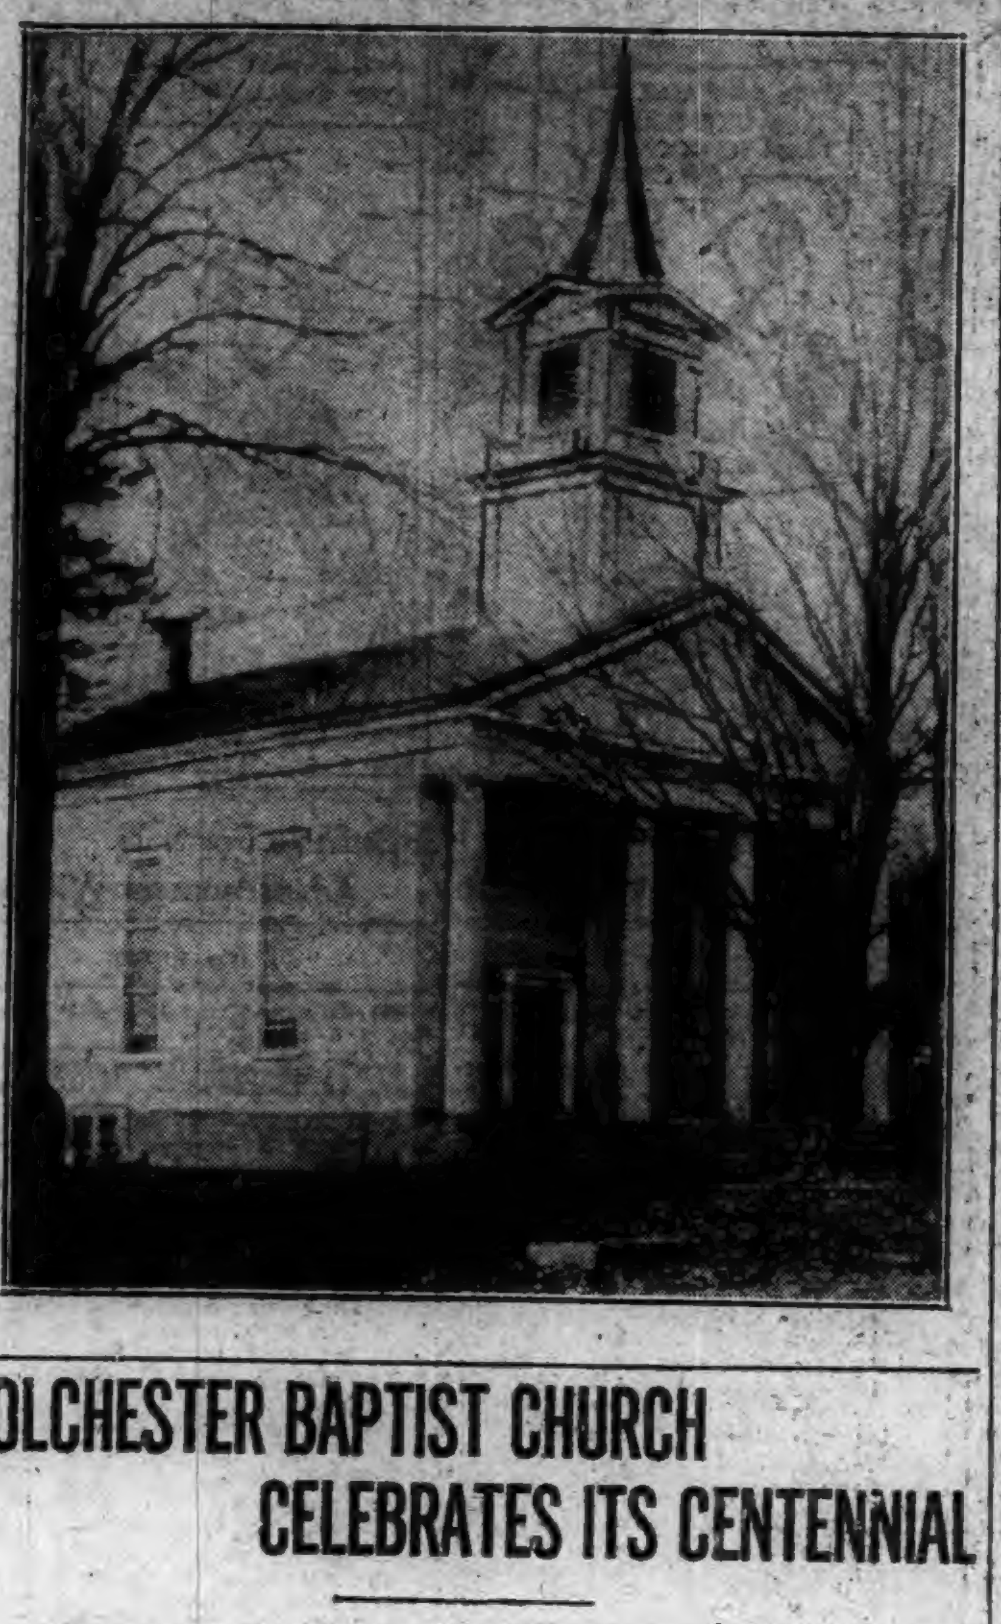
COLCHESTER BAPTIST CHURCH

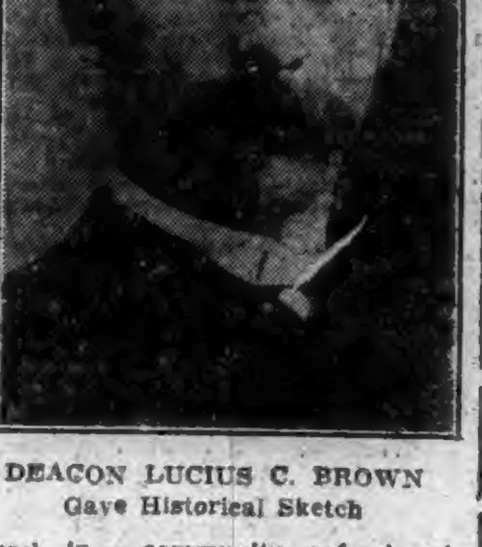


COLCHESTER BAPTIST CHURCH CELEBRATES ITS CENTENNIAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

COLCHESTER, Oct. 12.—A large number of local and out of town people, members and friends of the church from various different religious denominations were present Sunday evening at the special exercises held in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Colchester Baptist church. The exercises opened with an organ prelude by Mrs. Albert T. Van Vleve with William B. Gerhardt, violin accompanist, invocation by Rev. E. E. Gates of Hartford, responsive reading, hymn by congregation, Faith of Our Fathers, scripture lesson, prayer by Rev. Mr. Gates, offering, hymn by congregation, The Church In the Wildwood.

Next followed a very forceful sermon by Rev. Ellis Gilbert of West Hartford. He spoke of the value of a church in a community, referring to its influence in bettering social conditions and stressed the reform movements backed by the churches during the past century. Next was a vocal solo by Mrs. Van Cleve, accompanied by herself at the organ.



DEACON LUCIUS C. BROWN
Gave Historical Sketch

Historical Sketch.

An outline of the church history was delivered by Lucius C. Brown, deacon of the local church for the past 50 years. According to Deacon Brown the writing of the church history was no easy task, in view of the scanty recepts kept during the early years of the church history. The church society was organized in 1830 and in May, 1835, the constitution was adopted, Elder Andrew M. Smith being the first pastor. Services were first held at the home of the members until August, 1835, when the present church edifice was completed and dedicated. John Turner, Avery Morgan, Enoch Brown, Shubel Smith, David B. Carroll, William Kinney, Russell Chapman, D. Worthington, Asa Cone, and Caleb Dart were the principal organizers and leading contributors to the building fund. The church was built on land formerly belonging to Howell Rogers, father of the late Dr. Charles H. Rogers. The following is a list of pastors from its organization up to the present time: Andrew M. Smith, August Bolles, Robert C. Mills, Pierpont Brockett, Augustus Bowles, G. W. Pendleton, Philo Williams, Daniel Robinson, N. Matteson, E. N. Wetrous, D. D. Lyon, William Ashley, Lyman Teft, C. N. Nichols, W. N. Walden, Joseph Butterworth, W. N. Thomas, I. Naylor, A. H. Manee, E. E. Shull, E. A. Cornet, A. E. Harriman, Frank Day, 1879, 1900, C. I. Ramsay, 1901 to 1906, B. D. Remington, 1909-1922 Dana A. Lane, 1926-1928, J. C. Worden, 1928-1930, 1906 to 1909 and from 1922 to 1926, the pulpit was filled by several different pastors from surrounding towns. The present pastor comes here from Meriden, Rev. Gustav Friendberg. The two deacons of the church are Edwin H. Sherman and Lucius C. Brown, the former having held the office about 20 years, while Mr. Brown has been a deacon of the church for 50 years.

Lieut. Gov. Rogers Speaks.

Following the interesting report of the history of the church Deacon Brown introduced the honored guest of the evening, Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, of New London, who congratulated the church on its work in the community and referred to the time about 50 years ago when he, with his mother, then a resident of the neighboring town of Salem, attended a union service at the church. Alden A. Baker, deacon of the local Congregational church, who was present at tonight's exercises, was also present at the union service 50 years ago, to which Mr. Rogers referred. Mr. Baker was born in 1835, one year before the local Baptist church was built.

Lieut. Gov. Rogers went on to say that his family has owned real estate in Salem and Colchester for the past 200 years. His mother was a member of the local Baptist church. When 12 years of age she went to a private school in Essex and later attended Bacon academy here and lived with her uncle, Deacon Shubel Smith, one of the principal organizers and leading contributors to the local Baptist building fund. Lieut. Gov. Rogers' mother later taught at the district schools in Colchester and Salem and Samuel N. Morgan, now one of Colchester's old residents, was one of her pupils. He was in the audience tonight.

The lieutenant governor went on to speak of the work done for the local church by Miss Fannie Ballard and stressed the fact that the churches and educational institutions here have helped materially in producing a high type of citizenship. He also congratulated the church on having been successful in raising funds for the recent repairing and painting of the building.

Rev. Elbert E. Gates, general secretary of the Connecticut Baptist convention, made a brief address congratulating the church on its 100 years of service and paid a special tribute to Deacon Lucius C. Brown for his 50 years faithful work in the church. The exercises closed with a hymn sung by the congregation and the pronouncing of the benediction by the pastor.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

The most famous of all stories of the gold rush days, David Belasco's "Girl of the Golden West," opened at Warner's Broadway, Saturday, with Ann Harding as the girl.

There has probably never been a more appealing actress in this famous role, and the magnificent outdoor settings of the picture give the production a sweep that was impossible on the stage.

It is a love story of redemption and regeneration, James Rennie playing the lead, Dick Johnson, who is also secretly known as Ramirrez, the road agent. Rennie is simply splendid in this part, and gives a characterization that is filled with the spirit of the old West.

Harry Bannister is highly effective as Jack Rance, the sheriff, who loves the girl, but is rejected by her. Especial praise is due to the casting of a number of small but important character parts, among them those played by Ben Hendricks, Jr., J. Farrell MacDonald, George Cooper, John Walker, Arthur Stone, Arthur Housman and Joe Girard.

"The Girl of the Golden West," as a picture, is taken from the original play, and not from the grand opera version which appeared later.

The screen version of the Belasco play, and the additional dialogue, were written by Waldemer Young. One of the features of the story is the novel twist at the ending.

"Girl of the Golden West" is a picture that you can't afford to miss.

Palace Theatre

Eddie Cantor has made his first talking and singing picture one of the most elaborate and lavish productions in the history of the silver screen. With beautiful girls, gorgeous costumes, exquisite settings and some excellent song hits, "Whoopee" which is now playing at the Palace theatre where it will be shown through Wednesday of this week is a show which every man, woman and child in Norwich should see.

For the first time in his career, Florenz Ziegfeld had a hand in directing a motion picture and as always he made this one a huge success. Photographed entirely in technicolor, critics have said that it is the best and clearest film ever made.

There are many beautiful girls in the chorus of "Whoopee" as well as in the leading roles. Eleanor Hunt, who is a brand new find in the motion pictures is a startling red-head who is as beautiful as she is clever. Dorothy Knapp also has a part in the show as well as many other of the Ziegfeld beauties. A real Indian, Chief Caupolican with a magnificent baritone voice is one of the more unusual features of the show.

Eddie Cantor is cast as an imaginery invalid who goes to a ranch to recover. He is given many opportunities to do his stuff and doesn't miss one of them. In comedy, spectacle and cast "Whoopee" is a great show and it leaves nothing to be desired. It has packed houses all over the country and will be talked about for many a day.

50,000 Legionnaires march through Boston streets before Governor Allen and General Gouraud seen in Metrotone news now at Palace.

ETTA KETT — Looks Like He's Working Her Way Through, Too! —By PAUL ROBINSON

Aunt Agnes was down visiting Mr. and Mrs. Kett over the weekend—on her way home she has stopped over at college to see how ETTA is getting along—
ENJOY THE MEAL—ETTA?
FINE—IT WAS JUST LIKE MOTHER TRIES TO COOK—BUT CAN'T THAT'S JOHN DEMAREST—AND BELIEVE ME HE'S ONE SWELL BOY!!
HE LOOKS TOO INTELLIGENT TO BE WORKING AS A WAITER IN THIS PLACE!
I'LL SAY HE'S SMART—HE'S A MILE AHEAD OF EVERYONE ELSE IN CLASS—HE ONLY DOES THIS TO HELP PAY HIS WAY THROUGH SCHOOL.
MAYBE SO—BUT IT'S TAKING HIM AN AWFULLY LONG TIME TO FIGURE UP OUR DINNER CHECK
DON'T BE SILLY AUNTIE—I HAD SOME HOME WORK IN MATHEMATICS—AND HE'S WORKING OUT THE ANSWERS FOR ME.

LEGAL NOTICES

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 11th day of October A. D. 1930.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Caroline Dugas, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.

Ordered, That the Administrator cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having a circulation in said district and make return to this Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest,
HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE

All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at P. O. Box 412, Taftville, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.

PHILIPPE DUGAS,
Administrator.

WILLIAM MARVIN, ADMINISTRATOR of the Estate of Frank S. DeWolf, deceased vs. Sam Kosovitch and the Heirs, representatives and creditors of Charles Puglisi, late of Brooklyn, New York, deceased, and formerly of Salem, Connecticut. Superior Court, New London County, October 9th, 1930.

ORDER OF NOTICE.

State of Connecticut, County of New London.

Upon the complaint of the said William Marvin, Administrator, claiming foreclosure of mortgaged premises in the Town of Salem, Connecticut, brought to the Superior Court within and for the County of New London on the first Tuesday of November A. D. 1930, it appearing to and being found by the subscribing authority that the defendant, Sam Kosovitch is residing at Speonk, Long Island, State of New York, and absent from this State, and that the names and residences of the heirs, representatives and creditors of said Charles Puglisi are unknown to the plaintiff, as appears by the affidavit of the plaintiff's attorney annexed to said complaint.

Therefore, Ordered that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given said defendant, Sam Kosovitch by depositing a true and attested copy of said complaint, citation and of this order of notice in the post office, post paid, by registered letter directed to said defendant Sam Kosovitch at Box 118, Speonk, Long Island, New York, and that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given the defendants, the heirs, representatives and creditors of said Charles Puglisi, by publishing this order in The Norwich Bulletin of Norwich, Connecticut, once a week for two successive weeks, beginning not later than October 20th, 1930, and return make to this Court.

WILLIAM H. SHIELDS, JR.,
Assistant Clerk of Said Court.

WOMEN OF INDIA GAINING LIBERTY, SAYS GANDHI AID

LONDON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Women are playing an increasingly important role in Indian affairs as far as the Nationalists are concerned, according to Dr. David Chowry Muthu, Gandhi's personal physician.

Only in comparatively modern times have Indian women been repressed, he said.

"The women in ancient India enjoyed perfect freedom in every sphere of life—social, religious and political. They could live their lives in any way they chose. They were well versed in astronomy, mathematics, logic, literature and poetry and wrote books on these subjects.

"Women of all ranks and grades have written poetical works and shown learning in Vedic lore. The daughters enjoy perfect freedom of thought and action, and were as enlightened as they were brave.

"An inscription of Mihira Bhoja disclosed bands of Indian women who gloried in the military profession. Vikramadiditya VII appointed his wives—all Rajput princesses—as viceroys of districts. The ladies conducted affairs of state. They used to fight for their country when any need arose. Instances of their heroism are matters of history.

"The women in ordinary life were taught the arts of housekeeping. Girls had a domestic education and learned in their 'teens how to conduct themselves. The housewife's chief care was how to bring up the children fit to bear the responsibilities for Aryan life. Sometimes she was an intellecutal and made noteworthy contribution to the cause of culture.

"But after the Mohammedan conquest of India the custom of the rigid seclusion of women slowly crept in among the princes and the upper ranks of the Hindus, which curtailed much of the liberty.

"The purdah was introduced to protect Hindu women who were placed wholesale in Moslem harems."

30 YEARS AS ARMY NURSE CROWNS WOMAN'S AMBITION

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12—(AP)—A childhood ambition to become an army nurse has been crowned by 30 years of service in military hospitals by Carrie Howard.

She joined the army nursing corps in 1900 and at present is head of the convalescent ward at Letterman hospital at the San Francisco Presidio.

Miss Howard was graduated from the San Francisco hospital in 1897 and served in the Philippines with the Red Cross until she enlisted with the army.

Starts White Vogue.

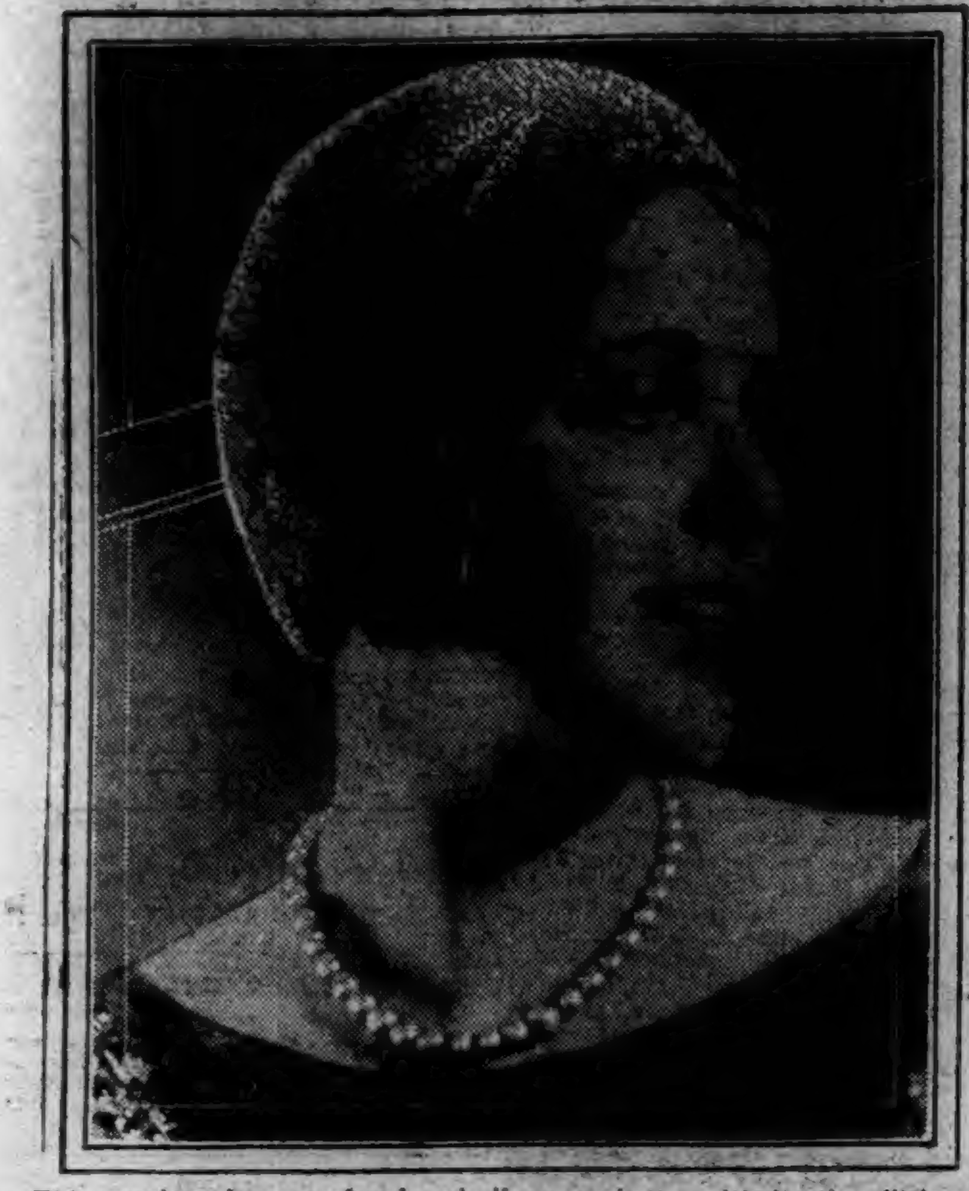
NEW YORK, Oct. 12— (AP)—White costumes, originated at the white costume ball given by Mrs. Graham Vanderbilt recently, have proved so popular that fashionable women continue to wear them. Mrs. Jorge Andre is appearing these evenings in a bouffant white silk frock trimmed with silver and pearl embroidery. White slippers, white transformation and a tiny black patch on one cheek complete the picturesque ensemble.

Starched Chiffon.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—An old fashioned ruffled dress of white-starched chiffon was chosen for her wedding by Miss Katherine Schulz, daughter of Col. Edward Schulz. It was untrimmed save for a sash of white grosgrain ribbon.

She wore no hat or veil, but carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses. The gown of the maid of honor was of green starched chiffon with the skirt ruffled to the waist.

TO BRIGHTEN FALL EVENINGS



This evening chapeau of red and silver crochette, with its tiny little red feather fancy over the ears, which the young miss will like for evening affairs. This is a chic French model, recently imported.

PEGS A ROLLING PIN FROM HOME TO SECOND

DENMARK, Wis., Oct. 12—(AP)—If husbands who tiptoe home all had wives with a "wing" like Mrs. William Noel of this place they might get to first base, but they certainly wouldn't get to second.

At a farmers' picnic recently she pegged a rolling pin from home plate to second and won the rolling pin contest.

"I used to play baseball," she explained.

Bran Muffins (12)—One cup bran, 1½ cups flour, 1-3 cup dark brown sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup sour milk, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons fat, melted.

Mix ingreditents and beat two minutes. Half fill well greased muffin pans and bake 15 minutes in moderate oven.

Vegetable Salad—One cup diced cucumbers, 1 cup cooked peas (leftovers), 1-2 cup diced celery, 2 tablespoons chopped green peppers, 2 tablespoons chopped onions, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1-3 cup salad dressing.

Mix and chill ingredients. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Sour Cream Salad Dressing—Two egg yolks, 3 tablespoons flour, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup vinegar, 1-2 cup thick sour cream.

Beat egg yolks and add flour and sugar. Add rest of ingredients and cook in double boiler until thick and creamy. Stir frequently. Beat well and cool.

Banana Cream Pie (with gelatin)—One package lemon flavored gelatin mixture, 1 2-3 cups boiling water or left-over fruit juice, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup sliced bananas, 1 cup whipped cream, 1 baked pie shell.

Pour boiling water over gelatin mixture and stir until dissolved. Add sugar. Cool and chill until a little thick. Beat until frothy. Add rest of ingredients. Pour into shell and chill.

Add a well beaten egg to cooked hash and it will be a little thicker than usual.

HATS, SHOES, HANDBAGS FORM ENTENTE IN PARIS

PARIS, Oct. 12—(AP)—Hats, handbags and shoes have a little style entente of their own. They match, regardless of possible disagreement between coat and dress.

For sport and general utility some of the best dressed of the leaders here are carrying brown crocodile handbags and wearing brown crocodile shoes. Brown berets or felt hats with brims complete the trio.

Brown accessories are combined with greens and with the rich dark reds. But Paris is making crocodile accessories in red and green this winter for the people who prefer one color effects. When costumes are worked out in one color various combinations of materials provide contrast.

Black patent leather handbag, shoes and trimming touches are a favorite Parisian combination of accessories. Dressmakers here particularly like the combination of shiny leather with dull surfaced broadcloth.

For formal afternoon costumes velvet hats, shoes and handbags are the last word in chic when combined with dull canton crepe or marocain. Black is the favorite.

Velvet shoes are distinctly for indoor wear.

Debutantes match pastel colored velvet handbags of the same shade and wear large velvet hats or draped berets.

FIRST LADY WEARS BROWN CREPE SUIT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover wore at a recent luncheon a brown crepe ensemble suit. The waist was trimmed with a lighter shade of lace and the hat was a wide brimmed one of brown straw.

As hostess at an afternoon garden party at the white house the first lady appeared in a flowered chiffon of rose color and black. She wore a black transparent picture hat trimmed with velvet.

Feathered Heargear

PARIS, Oct. 12—(AP)— Robin Hood and Yankee Doodle feathers are the right accessory for autumn sport hats. Paris likes them as jaunty as possible and goes in heavily for frayed effects.

A piece of a feather, providing it is wide and windblown, will do as well as a whole feather.

Quills are stuck into hat bands or pierce the felt itself.

Small feathers are worked into bright colored novelties of amusing form which milliners put any place their fancy favors.

Norfolk Golf Jackets

PARIS, Oct. 12—(AP)—For the woman who plays golf all winter an eminent sports clothes designer suggests a sensible windbreaker jacket in gray and white jersey with a rough tweed skirt.

Paris is showing modified Norfolk jackets, much like the mannish belted jacket with box pleats and pockets, for women golfers.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

New hose will wear much longer if soaked in warm water for two or three hours before using.

If parsley is kept in a jar with a tight lid, and in a cool place, it will keep fresh for a long time.

Cut a piece of asbestos paper to fit the bottom of the oven. It saves fuel, retains the heat, and prevents articles from burning.

When boiling eggs, wet the shells thoroughly in cold water before dropping in the boiling water and they will not crack.

Try using an automobile tire pump to clean the dirt from the joints of the sewing machine that cannot be reached by hand.

In laying aside knives, or other steel implements, they should be slightly oiled and wrapped in tissue paper to prevent rusting.

Keep a can or box with close fitting lid as a receptacle for holding broken needles, discarded razor blades, and broken glass. It will avoid accidents.

To skim the grease from the top of soup, take square sheets of clean white tissue paper, lay one sheet at a time on the surface of the soup, and all the grease will adhere to the paper.

Dampness may be kept from the bedroom by fastening a piece of thin Angora flannel to the frame of the window screen. This admits the air but excludes the dampness.

If pies overflow onto the oven, insert a short piece of uncooked macaroni in the top of the crust. This will stop it. Or do this at the start to prevent overflowing.

Cut out the favorite recipes that are used frequently, paste them neatly onto a piece of cardboard and place in a frame with glass. Hang in the kitchen for easy reference.

When making feather pillows, make a slip of strong mosquito netting for the feathers. Slip this into the ticking and fasten the ends with clasps. The feathers can be removed easily for airing and the ticking for washing.

To prevent moths sprinkle a little turpentine or benzine around the crevices of closets, drawers and boxes. Wrap garments to be put away in newspapers. Moths dislike the odor of ink.

Do not throw away the dirty gasoline or benzine, used for cleaning garments. Keep it in a bottle in a cool place. The sediment will sink to the bottom and the liquid can be used many times.

OVEN.

When the glass oven door becomes blackened, use baking soda on it, the same as soap powder, and it will become bright and clean.

PAINT.

Before opening the new can of paint turn it upside down for a few days; it will then require much less mixing for use.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Blondes should use rouge sparingly and in delicate colorings. Glaring make-up cheapens their appearance.

Use an eyebrow brush to brush your eyebrows. If they are thin rub on yellow vaseline before brushing. The brushing promotes their gloss and trains them into shape.

Don't give up salt water with the summer. Keep a bag of bath salt to rub on yourself while you are tubbing. It brings a healthy glow to your skin and makes you feel very fit.

For removing downey fine hairs the surface may be rubbed gently with powdered pumice stone while wet and lathered. Depilatories are used for the removal of hair from the legs.

QUILTED COMFORT.

A most luxurious comforter is made of green taffeta lined with orchid. The simple quilting pattern is in the form of conventionalized flowers set far apart.

TYING A BANDAGE.

Never use anything but safety pins to fasten the ends of bandages. If you have no safety pins tear a few inches of the material, twist the two ends around each other to keep them from loosening and pass one end around the wounded arm or leg in one direction and the other in the other direction, then tie over twist.

THE HEAVENS INSPIRE.

Straight from the evening skies comes the inspiration for lovely necklaces of simulated crystal whose design reproduces the rings of Saturn. Some are all of crystal, others show combinations of crystal and cloudy pink or blue stones.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Two-piece sleeping pajamas remain popular.

Tiny barrel muffs are expected to become the fashion.

Nightgowns with even hemlines are growing in importance.

Flounces, panels and cape effects amplify shoulder and bust silhouettes.

Eyelet embroidery executed in beads is one of the favorite blouse decorations.

Pocketbooks are being made of necktie silk and may now be found with matching neckties and berets.

Short-sleeved frocks are being launched for afternoon and appear in velvet either of pile or transparent type.

In evening fashions, the importance of velvets and of metal brocades is re-accented, with a novelty of interesting description described as tar-spangled lace, actually flecked with tar, which gives it a blue-black iridescence.

VELVETEEN SHARES MODE WITH SUEDE

Every fall brings up the question of whether or not velveteen will be good for the season. The answer this year seems to be decidedly in the affirmative. There have been little velveteen jackets and boleros to accompany the sleeveless frocks of the late summer. Suede cloth promises to be so good that velveteen with the same dull finish will share in its popularity.

SCARFS RETURN

Scarfs return to prominence with both daytime and evening costumes. In the latter connection, contrasting velvet scarfs to match girdles are sponsored with white and black evening frocks by one Parisian designer. Tulle and lace scarfs veil the shoulders with many evening frocks.

A FEATHER IN HER HAT

There is more than a bit of coquetry in a hat of very dark brown felt that fits the head closely—turns up a bit in front and just toward the back has a gay red feather stuck through the crown. Many of the new hats show tricky little feathers placed at strategic angles.

FALL HOSIERY IN NEW SHADES

You have wondered, no doubt, whether some radical but very rational new hosiery idea would not soon appear. Now you have it in the sheerest of black chiffon hose with a faint rusty cast. These hose, of course, are the answer to what to wear with a new frock so darkly brown that it is almost black. Off-black stockings may be worn with true black, also.

SEWING SUGGESTIONS

When the fastener has pulled out of a glove, darn the hole and sew an ordinary dress snap near the old fastener.

Rub some dry soap on the goods where the threads are to be drawn. The threads will pull out easily and will not injure the material.

Tie a bright-colored ribbon to the scissors handle to make it easy to find the scissors even when they are mixed with various other articles.

Try laying a pin or needle across the holes of the button, sew in the usual way, remove the pin, and then wind the thread around the button several times and fasten.

When basting, try using as long a double thread as convenient and when the end near the needle is reached, cut one strand off thread near the knot and pull end out to the end and sew with the single thread thus made. In this way your thread will not be so apt to become knotted.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Where there are children there is always mending to do and so the mending backet assumes importance in the scheme of things. A very completely equipped one is made of wicker, painted white and finished with black leather. Inside are all sorts of scissors, mending cottons, needles, pins, etc.

FOR GUESTS

For those who like to make their own guest towels there are pastel tinted linens in different designs. Eighteen inches wide they offer a choice of stripes, polka dots, checks and diamond shaped motifs. The colors are delectable.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE

Very nice to wear with sports clothes are wooden beads painted red, white and blue. A smart little bouquet of field flowers in the same colors carries out the color scheme.

LIKE A LARGE HANDKERCHIEF

If one wanted to find a simile one could compare the new bedspreads to an enormous handkerchief. Made of fine pastel tinted linen they have tape woven borders in white and a light contrasting color. For instance a pale blue spread has a white and slightly deeper blue border. When these are used the sheets should be white with deep blue borders.

TILES ADD COLOR

A new version of the tile table which has so many uses is a coffee stand of walnut with three tiles set in the center. The wood shows in a border about four inches wide so the effect is a bit different.

BLUE GLASS AND SILVER

Silver nut dishes that have containers inside of deep blue glass look well when used in conjunction with small bottles of the blue glass set in silver as well. The bottles might be used for oil and vinegar.

WHITE FURNITURE

Use soap and water to clean white furniture, taking care that the water is not too hot and that the soap is pure, as impure soap will discolor the paint. Polish well with an old silk handkerchief.

OH SO USEFUL

A low soiled clothes hamper for the bathroom is made so that it forms a seat as well. It is made of wicker painted in one of the pastel shades.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Farm women in Russia have become expert at running tractors.

Opium, rather than alcohol, is the chief subject of attack for the Women's Christian Temperance Union in China.

A group of women in Los Angeles, Calif., have taken up polo. Regular matches are played, with afternoon tea following the games.

Princess Marie Jose of Piedmont, bride of the heir to the Italian throne, is taking the Red Cross course for volunteer nurses.

Although most of the Japanese government colleges are still closed to women students, women have gained representation in nearly every profession, the feminists claim.

AS YOU LIKE IT

Very smart little hats are made of crocheted silk. They end in a blunt point at the top and are left so that the owner does the draping upon the head and arranges the folds to the best advantage.

TRAVELING FRAME

A frame for large photographs made of brown moire with the owner's initials embroidered on the outside is a happy choice for the feminine traveler, since isinglass is used instead of glass.

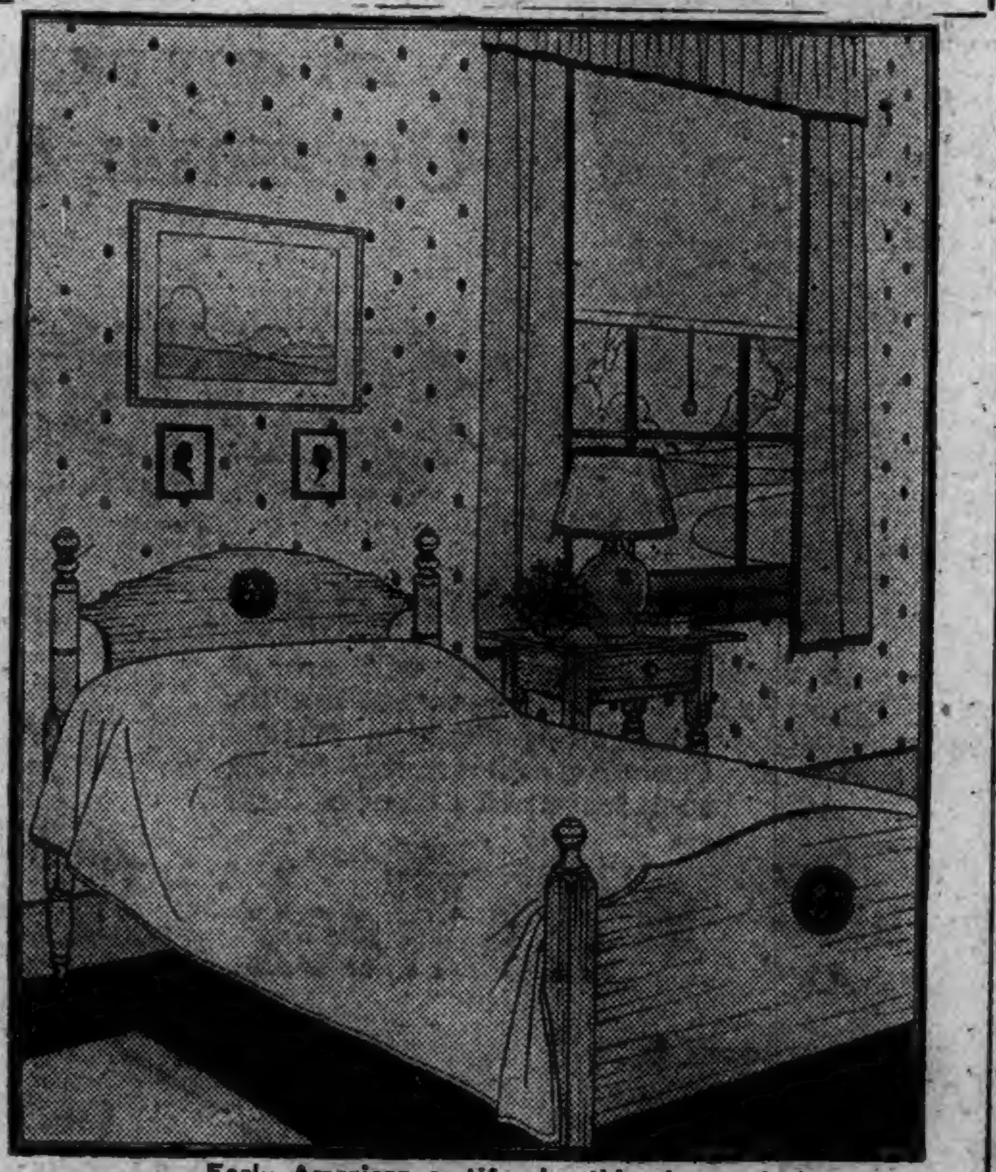
RECIPES.

Hard Sauce: For hot or cold puddings: Four tablespoons butter, three tablespoons hot cream, one teaspoon vanilla, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon lemon extract and one and one-half cups sifted confectioner's sugar. Mix the ingredients and beat for three minutes. Let stand for several minutes and beat for another minute. Chill.

Chocolate Nut Cake: Half cup fat, one and a half cups sugar, three squares melted chocolate, two eggs, one cup thick sour milk, one teaspoon vanilla, one-quarter teaspoon salt, half cup nuts, three cups flour, one teaspoon soda and one teaspoon baking powder. Cream fat and sugar. Add other ingredients and beat three minutes. Pour into two layer cake pans, lined with waxed papers. Bake 30 minutes in moderately slow oven. Cool and frost.

Frosting—Three tablespoons butter, three tablespoons hot cream, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla and one and two-thirds cups sifted confectioner's sugar. Mix ingredients and beat two minutes. Let stand for minote and then beat one minute. Frost cake.

AN INEXPENSIVE AND TASTEFFUL BEDROOM



Early American motif rules this chee ry bedroom.

By Elsie Drew Kennedy

(Pictorial Review Decorator, Written for The Bulletin)

"It's not what you spend but how you spend it," is as true of interior decoration as it of everything else.

For visible proof we have this attractive bedroom group, assembled at a minimum of expense and with a maximum of good taste. Logically enough, since rest is the primary aim of the bedroom, the entire decorative scheme was built up about the bed.

The furnishing was begun with a comfortable box spring and mattress and a sturdy, inexpensive bedstead which, although new, has all the quaint charm and beautiful simplicity of a Early American antique. The four low posts which support its gracefully curved head and foot boards reveal its Colonial inspiration and to heighten this effect decalcomania motifs were cut out and pasted on and the entire bed was antiqued to imitate the rich patina of old maple.

With this as a beginning it was merely a matter of visualizing a color scheme that would be restful at night and stimulating in the clear light of morning. Blue and yellow-gold with touches of warm rose was the refreshing combination decided upon.

The walls were covered with cold white paper dotted in soft blue and the woodwork was painted a sunny yellow-gold. The floor, on the other hand, was stained deep sapphire blue—an original and very pleasing color that makes a perfect background for the small scatter rugs of gold and rose which, by the way, are the hooked and rag variety that every woman finds time to make these days. The straight simple muslin curtains, topped by a full, gathered valance, frame the window without concealing a bit of the delightful view beyond.

Perfectly in key with these decorations is the convenient table placed just at the left of the bed. Its square top and simple legs have the same Early American quality that prevails throughout the room. The lamp, too, with its deep blue earthenware base and its natural parchment shade is lovely in a soothing, unpretentious sort of way

In a room of this sort the walls very frequently require some very original treatment and here, perhaps more than anywhere else, the ingenuity and taste of the decorator are expressed. In this case a charming, formal group of pictures was arranged directly over the bed.

Nervous, Tired, Felt Miserable

"After my baby came I was so nervous and tired that I felt miserable. One day a booklet was left at our door and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now on my fourth bottle and I feel much stronger. Please publish this letter because the Vegetable Compound has helped me in every way and I feel sure that other women in rundown condition will pick up if they will only take a few bottles."—*Mrs. Lloyd R. SWEATERS, NOT PARTY FROCKS FOR MRS. HERBERT HOOVER, JR.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Sweaters and heavy shoes instead of frilly frocks are the garments Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., will wear on her first visit to the capital since her father-in-law was inaugurated president.

She is tramping over fallen leaves on Blue Ridge mountain paths. A heavy woolen sweater covers arms and throat, for already mornings and evenings are chill in the high altitude of the president's camp, where Mrs. Hoover is keeping her ill husband company.

Reading aloud before a cheerful open fire, making plans for the future when he recovers his health, occupy her time. She came immediately from their Palo Alto home when news of her husband's enforced stay at the mountain camp reached her.

Capital society had been looking forward to a visit from the popular young wife of the president's elder son. Under ordinary curcumstances her visit would have meant added social gaiety at the white house, with lights blazing for evening receptions and the state dining table laden with flowers.

Mrs. Hoover, Jr., however, like her mother-in-law, finds it no hardship to exchange luxury for the simplicity of her present surroundings. President of the girls' athletic association while in Stanford university, she likes camping and the outdoor life.

She has left behind her in California their three children, and the two are making the best of it.

By long distance telephone and telegraph they keep in close touch with their Palo Alto home, where the children are under the competent care of Mrs. Hoover's mother and a housekeeper.

Mrs. Hoover, Jr., is a great home lover and keeps a smooth running household.

So, when she hurriedly caught a train for the east, she knew that Peggy Ann, aged 4; Herbert 3rd, aged 3, and Baby Joan, not yet a year old, would have the best of care.

Whether the children will later join their parents depends upon where Herbert, Jr., goes after the mountain camp becomes too cold for comfort.

BALLOT BRINGS NO THRILL TO MOST TURKISH WOMEN

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Oct. 12 — (AP)—Turkish women's lack of enthusiasm over their newly-granted voting privilege is causing provincial governors a lot of worry.

The governors have been ordered by Chukru Kaya Bey, interior secretary, to see from three to five women are selected to every municipal council in the September elections. Politically-minded women are scarce, even in the large centers, and the governors will have had a hard time finding candidates, it is predicted.

Most Turkish women are bashful about exercising their right to vote, while many Turkish husbands still insist that woman's place is in the harem and do not encourage their wives to go to the polls.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Animal Training.

There are those who argue that the training of young children is largely a matter of developing a set of serviceable condition reflexes.

Thus to teach a child to keep away from such things as hot stoves, matches and sharp knives we have only to inflict pain every time he makes a move to touch them.

The theory is that, as with animals so with children, an association of pain with a certain act may be set up which will prevent them from indulging an impulse in that particular direction.

Yet it is true that the expert animal trainer resorts to physical punishment less frequently than is commonly thought. He relies much more on the cultivation of a certain rapport between himself and his subject.

Affection, eagerness for approval, and spontaneous alertness—these he knows are necessary to bring out the best in his pupil. He knows that even a dog will learn more for love of his master than through fear of his whip.

True, a sharp slap promptly administered will teach a child to refrain from certain acts—at least when the adult who can be counted on to do the slapping is present—but it is a question whether the tabooed knives and matches will not exercise an all the more compelling fascination the moment the adult is out of sight.

A child is far better trained to leave dangerous things alone by accepting substitute interests when he moves in their direction, and by the trust he feels in the grownup who tells him that these things will hurt and that he must therefore not touch them.

Decline of the Cuban sugar industry has turned island farmers toward other crops.

"SILVER THREADS" BALLAD RE-HASH, NOT INSPIRATION

SHIOCTON, Wis., Oct. 12—(AP)—The sad love-ballad, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," which has wrung the hearts of more than one generation, was not the inspiration of an aging poet, but a "re-hash" produced on order.

The story developed after unveiling of a monument here in honor of the author of the words, Eben E. Rexford, who died in 1916.

Rexford made a living writing verse and flower and garden articles for magazines. When he was 18 he wrote and sold some verses entitled "Growing Old" for $3. Later H. P. Danks, composer of the music for "Silver Threads," wrote to him requesting words for a song. Rexford dug into his scrapbook, revised "Growing Old."

Quilting on Sport Coat.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP)—Quilting was employed as a novel finish on the three quarter length velveteen sport coat worn recently by Mrs. William K. Dick (the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor). The unusual quilting stick was used on the edges of the coat and as accent on the velvet beret with which Mrs. Dick completed her costume.

Brown Lace Smart Ensemble.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Brown lace makes a smart fall afternoon ensemble for Dorothy Kurtz daughter of Representative Kurtz of Pennsylvania. The dress is long and tight fitting with a flare at the bottom. The jacket has wide sleeves. With it Miss Kurtz wears a close fitting small hat of brown lace and shoes of brown suede and lizard skin.

GREENEVILLE

FIRST OF SERIES OF PLAYS IS VERY SUCCESSFUL

The first of a series of plays that will be run during the winter months for the benefit of the Sunday school fund of the Greeneville Congregational church was held in parlors of the church Friday evening with a large attendance. The show consisted of three Filipinos in musical numbers. They brought their wonderful, natural, inborn talent, their love for the beautiful in all branches of art, coupled with the 31 years of training since the United States assumed control of their native land. Music lovers were charmed with their program. The weird Moorish melodies, the Spanish accented dances, the music of the Orient, coupled with the classical and popular American compositions, rounded out a program that proved entertaining, instructive and refreshing. They were assisted by one of America's most charming entertainers, Miss Marion Ayer. Her programme abounded in humorous selections, many of which were given in costume.

Rev. Thomas Lane who was recently ordained to the priesthood of this diocese, officiated at the 9 o'clock mass at St. Mary's Memorial church Sunday.

George Swanton of Providence spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Swanton of North Main street.

Joseph Delaney of New York city is spending a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Delaney on Eighth street.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Edward F. Sullivan

The funeral of Mrs. Edward F. Sullivan was held Saturday morning at 8:15 o'clock from her late home at 76 Mowry avenue, followed by a solemn mass of requiem at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Memorial church. Rev. James Timmins, of Hartford, was celebrant of the mass and he was assisted by Rev. Arthur B. Sullivan as deacon and Rev. Terrence Finnigan as sub-deacon. The music was in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, church organist. Pie Jesu was rendered at the offertory and as a waiting hymn, Mrs. Farrell rendered Our Lady, Della Strada. Chopin's Funeral March was played at the recessional. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery where Rev. Father Timmins conducted the committal service. The bearers were Bernard Moran of New Haven, Thomas Donahue of Hartford, Patrick McCarthy of Dover, N. H., Jeremiah Driscoll of Franklin and James O. Mahoney and James Purdon, Sr., both of this city.

The love and esteem in which Mrs. Sullivan was held was evidenced through the large attendance of relatives and friends present at the services and the profusion of beautiful floral remembrances and spiritual bouquets. Mourners were present from Dover, N. H., Boston, Hartford, Branford, New Haven, Franklin and other places. Undertakers Hourigan Brothers had charge of the funeral arrangements.

NEW YORK CHURCH CALLS FORMER NORWICH RECTOR

Rev. Leonel E. W. Mitchell, former rector of St. Andrew's church, Greeneville, and now curate at St. Agnes' chapel in New York, has been called to be rector of St. Clement's church, New York, to succeed Rev. Thomas Sparks, who has become the rector of a Pennsylvania church. The many friends and former parishioners of Rev. Father Mitchell are pleased to learn of his rapid advance since his ordination to the priesthood, as he is a very young man to be called to the rectorate of a large metropolitan church.

Clambake by Plumbers' Union

The members of the Norwich Plumbers' union, No. 267, held a clambake Saturday afternoon, at Happyland, Poquetanuck. A programme of sports was held during the afternoon. John Keeley, Theodore Smifell and Charles Williams comprised the committee in charge.

Juneau, third, and present capital of Alaska, was named for Joe Juneau who discovered gold there.

PASTOR KRON IS INSTALLED AT THE SWEDISH LUTHERAN CHURCH

Installation services were held Sunday evening at Salem Lutheran church on Hickory street when the pastor, Rev. E. Einar Kron, was installed in the Norwich-Willimantic pastorate of the Augustana Synod. Rev. Dr. S. G. Haglund of Boston, who is president of the New England conference of the Augustana Synod, gave the installation address.

REV. E. EINAR KRON

He spoke in part as follows:

The general topic for this Sunday is "Christian Liberty," and the pastor is to be a minister of the gospel of real freedom. This freedom is something very different from so-called "personal liberty" of which we have heard so much. There is a kind of freedom that is worse than external bondage, and there is a bondage that is worse than death. Real freedom is the kind that Patrick Henry meant when he said "Give me liberty or give me death," but Christian liberty is something still better. It is the freedom of the soul, freedom of thought and speech, freedom to worship God. Men have in all ages been willing to fight and even give their lives for civil liberty. They have recognized the greater value of this gift to men. How much more valuable is the freedom of which we speak. It is better than gold and wealth untold.

A Christian pastor is to preach liberty to captives, a freedom that cannot be imprisoned behind any bars of iron, a freedom that might live a strong life in spite of bodily sickness. Such freedom is a gift of the son of God. When He makes us free, we are free indeed. The means of this gift is the word of God and discipleship with Jesus, "Truth shall make you free, and ye shall be my disciples."

It is the business of a pastor to proclaim tidings of salvation, of great joy and peace, of spiritual freedom. How beautiful are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings! Such a messenger should be received with gladness, for he will be a blessing not only to his own congregation, but to the whole community.

The following was the programme for the service: Prelude, "Memories", (Stults); hymn, "Praise the Lord"; greetings from the Providence district, Rev. Karl Johansson, president of district, Rev. F. G. Granquist, vice pastor during vacancy; anthem, "Message of Peace", (Post), combined choir; installation sermon, Dr. S. G. Hagglund, president of New England conference; hymn, "Father, be Thy Blessing Shed", the act of installation, Dr. S. G. Hagglund, assisted by the pastors of the Providence district; anthem, "Praise Him, Praise Him", (Allen), combined choir; offertory, "A Meditation", (Morrison); hymn, "Teach Me, My God and King"; Benediction; Postlude, "Rejoicing", (Scarmolin).

Music for this service was by a joint choir from the Salem Lutheran church of Norwich and the Ebenezer Lutheran church of Willimantic, who sang two anthems.

Rev. Mr. Kron officiated here at his first service Sunday, July 20, as pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church. He was born in Woburn, Mass., the son of Rev. and Mrs. N. E. Kron. His father is at present pastor at Bertrand, Neb. The Norwich pastor received his early education in Iowa and in 1923 graduated from Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill. He was an instructor for three years at Luther college, Wahoo, Neb. This past year he finished his course and graduated from Augustana Theological seminary at Rock Island, and was ordained into the Lutheran ministry, June 8, 1930 at Rock Island.

Upon arriving in this city he made his residence at 179 Hickory street. Besides being pastor at the church on Hickory street he also has charge of Ebenezer Lutheran church at Willimantic. Besides his father Rev. Mr. Kron has a brother, Rev. Reuben Paul Kron, also ordained this year who is stationed at a charge in Lansing, Mich.

A large congregation was present at the installation.

GAVE BIRTHDAY SURPRISE FOR MRS. CHARLES SANTO

A delightful surprise birthday party was held Saturday evening in honor of Mrs. Charles Santo at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Francis O'Neil of McClellan avenue, Norwich Town. At 9:30 o'clock the guests were invited to the dining room, prettily decorated in Halloween effect where a delicious chicken salad supper was served. In the center of the table was a large birthday cake, with lighted candles.

After the supper there were games and music. Miss D. Louise Sterry entertained with a guitar solo and there were harmonica solos by Richard Kyle, Miss Julia Santo presiding at the piano. Mrs. Santo received a number of pretty and useful gifts which were presented to her in a huge pumpkin. Mrs. O'Neil was assisted in serving the supper by Mrs. Richard Kyle and Mrs. Frank Santo.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Santo, of Norwich Town; Albert Holmberg of Ledyard; Mr. and Mrs. Felix Garceau of Yantic; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Santo and children, Miss Julia Santo, Miss D. Louise Sterry, Mr. and Mrs. Francis O'Neil, and children, all of Norwich Town, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kyle and children of Norwich.

Speakers For Women Voters' School.

"The Child and His School," is the topic of the dinner address to be given by Dr. N. Searle Light at the League of Women Voters' school of citizenship in New London, October 21. The dinner will conclude the first of two days of conferences on the prevention of child delinquency through Connecticut schools and courts. A companion address on "The Child and His Leisure," will be given on the same evening by Weaver Panburn of the National Recreational association.

TAFTVILLE

At the Taftville Congregational church on Sunday, the sermon theme of the pastor, Rev. William Penner, was, "The Knock of Opportunity."

Charles Adams, Jr., of Danielson, spent the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Adams, of North Third avenue.

The Men's club of the Taftville Congregational church is planning to hold its first meeting of the session Thursday evening.

Miss Alice Linderson of New Bedford, Mass., has been visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson, of North Third avenue.

Much interest and enthusiasm is being shown in making the plans for the annual fair and bazaar of the Taftville Congregational church which is to be held early in December.

A surprise miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Miss Celeste Benoit of South B street in honor of her approaching marriage to Anthony Pucci, of Westerly, R. I. Later in the evening the party adjourned to the Naturalization club where refreshments were served. Dancing and singing for which the music was furnished by Peter Pucci, Angelo Pucci and Genaro Pucci, of Westerly, made the evening pass all too quickly. Those present were Mrs. Edward Gladue, Mrs. Lena Dugas, Mrs. Emma Benoit, Mrs. Alexina Lavigne, Mrs. Florinda Lafond, Mrs. John Urick, Mrs. Eva Dento, Mrs. Mary Roberts, Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Mary Emund, Mrs. Beatrict Frenette, Mrs. Jerry Darring, Mrs. Jesse Laudette, Mrs. Susie Zigarro, the Misses Flora and Irene Lavigne, the Misses Doris and Jean Durand, Miss Loretta Bourdon, Miss Loretta Paquette, Miss Loretta Gagnon, Miss Mary Mosek, Miss Alice Breault, Miss Christine Gagnon, Miss Emma Paquette, Miss Bernadette Lafond, Miss Fabiola Duchesne and Miss Leona Sullivan, of Taftville, the Misses Blanche and Stella Perkoff, the Misses Susie, Josephine and Julia Zigarro of Norwich, and the Misses Millie and Annie Pucci, of Westerly. The party disbanded at a late hour all extending to the bride-elect their wishes for her in a happy and prosperous married life.

BACKUS HOSPITAL ON FULLY APPROVED LIST

In the list of fully approved hospitals to be announced today (Monday) at the opening session of the 13th annual hospital standardization conference of the American College of Surgeons, which is to be held in Philadelphia, appears the name of the William W. Backus hospital of this city, as well as Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, Home Memorial hospital and Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals, New London.

The work of making hospitals safe for the public has been carried on for 13 years by the American College of Surgeons through continuous inspections and survey of all hospitals of 25 beds or more in which acutely ill or injured patients are treated. This is done at no expense to the hospital. To obtain approval by the American College of Surgeons hospitals must comply with requirements relating to virtually every phase of hospital work. The physicians, for instance, must not only be licensed but must also be reputable graduates of recognized medical schools. Records of all that transpires to the patient during his hospital stay must be kept. The results of treatment must be discussed in a group meeting of the medical staff. The hospital is required to have facilities for X-ray work and laboratory examinations. All these and numerous other standards have been established for the protection of the public.

REDUCTION IN ASSESSMENT ON MUELLER PROPERTY

According to a stipulation filed with the clerk of the superior court, the grand list assessment of Cuno N. and Margaret E. Mueller on property at 33 Mechanic street, has been reduced from $4,300 to $3,300. The property owners took an appeal to the board of relief from the figure placed upon their property by the assessors, and when no deduction was allowed by them by the board of relief, the Muellers took an appeal to the superior court. The stipulation filed practically settles that suit.

On Trip To Maine Woods.

Franklin Peckham and his foreman, Curtin Philips, left on Saturday for a vacation trip into the Maine woods. Mrs. Peckham accompanied them to Boston where she will also visit her daughters, Mrs. Edward J. Durling and Miss Mary P. Peckham. In Dorchester she will be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Rainey, who were former residents of Hamilton avenue, East Side.

Letter Seven Years Arriving.

Seven years ago Stanton Pendleton, son of Mrs. Carrie Pendleton of West Mystic, was a marine engineer, sailing out of New Orleans for European ports. Upon his arrival in Bremerhaven, Germany, he mailed his mother a letter which she never received and had long given up as lost. Thursday much to her surprise, she received a letter with a foreign postmark and upon opening it found it to be the one that was dropped in the German post office at that time. There were no marks upon the envelope to indicate where it had been these seven years.

SCOUTS ENJOY TREASURE HUNT TO CAMPING SITE

A half dozen scouts hiked Saturday afternoon under the leadership of Assistant Scoutmaster Cecil Weatherbee to a new camping site on the Shetucket river. Scout Chief Sellman accompanied the group. After the boys had deciphered the secret message which told them that the treasure was hidden at the old mill dam they cooked their suppers and returned home. One of the thrilling experiences of the afternoon was the fording of the river, the boys jumping from rock to rock until they finally succeeded in getting across. The water in the river was quite low. The group played a short game of soccer, thoroughly explored the grounds and expressed a hearty approval of the camp site. The site is just four miles from Franklin square and is accessible entirely by country road. It is situated near the mouth of Broad brook. Scout William Johnson discovered the treasure. Other scouts present were Leon Ladd and Woodruff Sullivan and Wendell Goldman, of Troop 2; Richard Heller, of Troop 6; Earl Williams of Troop 7.

YOUNG LADIES' ITALIAN CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

Miss Mary Jacaruso was re-elected president of the Young Ladies' Italian club for the ensuing year at a regular meeting Friday evening held at the United Italian hall on Washington street. Other officers were elected as follows: Vice president, Miss Mary Cosentino; treasurer, Miss Nicolette Dimicolo; recording secretary, Miss Catherine Ferry; financial secretary, Miss Frances Lacavera; trustees, Fannie Quarto, Suzie Zigaro, Anna Cosentino and Lillian DiCarlo; sergeant-at-arms, Ella Buonnano.

During the meeting routine business was disposed of and a number of projects were discussed.

NORWICH MAN'S MACHINE IN COLLISION FATALITY

GUILFORD, Oct. 12.—(P)—J. C. Fraser, a sailor attached to the coast guard base at New London, was instantly killed today in a collision between his automobile and one operated by Lionel A. Truesdell, of Norwich.

Two occupants of Fraser's machine and two men in the Norwich machine escaped serious injury. Fraser suffered a broken neck.

Truesdell was arrested on a technical charge, pending a coroner's finding in the fatality.

NORTH STONINGTON TICKET NAMED BY DEMOCRATS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NORTH STONINGTON, Oct. 12.—With an attendance of some 12 or 15 the democratic caucus for North Stonington was held Saturday night with Chairman Lenial Main and Clerk Edna Cook. Charles A. Palmer was nominated for judge of probate, who also has the endorsement of the republicans. Mr. Palmer is a democrat. First representative nomination was to Lyle C. Gray and for second representative, E Kimmell. The justices of the peace nominated were Wilfred Nye, Ellsworth Gray, Chester S. Main, Thomas E. Brown and James Palmer.

OLD HOME DAY BRINGS MANY BACK TO MONTVILLE CENTER CHURCH

Montville Center Congregational church observed its eighth annual Old Home day with special services morning and afternoon, Sunday, and a luncheon at noon for the out-of-town visitors. The hundred or more former members of the church and former residents of the town who were present included people from New York city, Brooklyn, N. Y., Philadelphia, Montclair, N. J., Hartford, Willimantic, New London, Groton, Niantic, Westchester, Bozrah, Norwich and Kingston, R. I.

The morning congregation filled the church, which was most attractively decorated with autumn foliage, and dahlias from the gardens of Miss Anna Rogers and Miss Jessie Bradford. The decorations were arranged under the supervision of John Lynch. Mrs. Lester Dart presided at the organ and David Carlyle of New London sang two finely rendered solos. The offertory number was The Lord is My Shepherd.

The address was given by Rev Sherrod Soule, missionary superintendent of the Congregational churches of Connecticut, who delivered a splendid address on The Unity of the Church. He pointed out in his address that, while all creeds may differ, they are united in hymnology. When we come together for worship, he pointed out, our hymns have been given us by members of various creeds.

At noon the Ladies' Social union of the church served luncheon to the visitors, 100 or more in number. The luncheon was served in the chapel under the supervision of Mrs. William Vallette, Mrs. Frank Scholfield, Mrs. Donald McDonald, Mrs. Charles Waterfall, Mrs Elmer Tefft, Mrs. Elmer Fox and Mrs. Floyd Fletcher.

The afternoon service at the church opened at 2:30 o'clock with an address of welcome by Rev. Wilbert Stevens, pastor of the church, and the response was by Rev William E. Barnes of Hartford, a former pastor of the parish. Mrs. William Cadman of New London presided at the organ and Mrs. Edward Calvert of Groton sang two solos, in charming voice, My Lord and My Redeemer (Buck), and Consider the Lilies. Mrs. Walter Moran of Montville gave a reading, a poem, Back Home which was written by Rev. Felix O'Neil of Stafford Springs and originally read at the Old Home day programme at Willimantic last June. The address was by Dr. R. W. Parstow, recently installed as president of Hartford Seminary foundation. His very convincing and able sermon was on the topic, The Service of the Church.

There were felicitations by Rev Theodore M. Shipherd, D.D., of Norwich, Rev. George H. Strouse of Bozrah, Rev. Raymond Bates of Montville and Mr. Cross of Norwich. The service closed with the hymn, The Day is Dying in the West.

The oldest living member of the church, Mrs Letitia Comstock of Norwich Town, was among those present. The success of the day was largely due to the efforts of the pastor; Mrs. William Vallette, president of the Women's society; Mrs. Walter Moran, chairman of the music committee; Mrs. Frank Scholfield, chairman of the luncheon committee, and to all others who assisted in arranging for the programme.

OPENING OF NEW REICHSTAG OVERSHADOWED BY RIOTING

In the Center of Berlin the Communists Gave the Mounted and Foot Police a Bad Time—Only a Few Injuries Were Reported in Spite of the Heavy Gunfire—Within the Reichstag the Fascists Indulged in Taunts and Catcalls—Neither of the Radical Wings Showed the Usual Respect Given in the German Parliament

BERLIN, Oct. 13—(AP)—Rioting by left and right wing enemies of the republic kept the central part of Berlin in a turmoil for several hours this afternoon and overshadowed the opening of the new reichstag.

The disturbances started near Unter Den Linden, within a stone's throw of the parliament building, at the edge of the Tiergarten. Here the communists gave the mounted and foot police a bad time when the hundreds of guards stationed before the reichstag building attempted to sweep a vast throng away from its entrances.

In mid town, along the Leipzigerstrasse, Berlin's elite shopping district, several hundred fascists took advantage of the disorders at the reichstag and burst forth into a demonstration whose chief nature was the smashing of numerous windows in expensive shows owned mostly by Jews and the firing of pistols into the air.

Only a few injuries were reported, in spite of the heavy gunfire and the virtual reign of terror that existed for some time in that part of the city.

Early this evening police announced that order had been completely restored and described the events of the day as a "mere flareup" which would not be allowed to go further. An official police communique said that 53 persons had been arrested.

The activities of the police obviously were handicapped by the need of concentrating a strong force around the reichstag. It was while practically the entire police force was quelling the Tiergarten riots that the fascists broke loose in the shopping district. Trouble had been anticipated in view of the open hostility toward the government expressed during court testimony by Adolf Hitler, leader of the fascist party, recently at Leipsic, and the opposition of the communists to the republican fiscal program.

Among the establishments stoned was Wertheims, of Leipzigerplatz, one of the finest department stores in the world. Thirty-six large plate glass windows were smashed there, a sight which attracted thousands of persons after order had been restored.

Tonight police lorries patrolled the shopping districts ready to put down any renewal of the anti-Jewish demonstrations. This afternoon, however, so empty had been the locality that no arrest was made.

Thus the new reichstag, which emerged from the sensational elections of Sept. 14, made its bow to the world today while the shouts of a riotous demonstration were raised outside. Within, the session was enlivened by taunts and catcalls of the costumed fascist delegates and their enemies of the extreme left.

Germany's solons presented anything but a dignified picture as the Hitlerites whistled shrilly to drown out their opponents' voices or as the communists greeted the roll call of names like that of Chancellor Bruening with shouts of "the hunger dictator" and similar cries.

Neither of these radical wings showed the usual respect given in the German parliament for the custom by which age is elevated to high place, this time with the placing in the chair of Carl Herold, as president pro tempore, an 82-year-old centrist, who made himself heard only with the greatest difficulty.

Shouts of "hail Hitler" from the brown-shirted and black-booted national socialists and "hail red front" from the disciples of Moscow enlivened the scene frequently and furnished amusement to crowded galleries, in one of which sat the former Prince August Wilhelm Hohenzollern.

While the miners were answering the roll call, the cloak rooms were buzzing with animated discussion of announcement by the economic party that it was withdrawing the minister of justice, Johannes Bredt, from the cabinet. Fears that this might provoke a cabinet crisis abated when the text of the economic party's declaration was circulated. It became known then that the party was merely trying to give Chancellor Bruening a chance to adapt his cabinet still further to the needs of the times.

Conferences were held and President Von Hindenburg had little difficulty in prevailing upon Minister Bredt to remain.

ROWDY ELEMENTS RENEW RIOTING IN HEART OF BERLIN

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—Rioting by rowdy elements in the heart of Berlin's fashionable shopping district broke out early this morning while crowds of curiosity seekers returning from theatres lingered in the vicinity of Potsdamerplatz to see the destruction wrought by fascist bands yesterday.

The rowdies saw an opportunity to start window-smashing all over again and perhaps to profit by pillaging. They began insulting the police, who finally charged and cleared the Potsdamerplatz with their clubs.

Within an hour the police had things in hand again and all was quiet.

Chief of Police Karl Zoergiebel in an interview said that virtually none but fascists had participated in the attacks on Jewish-owned stores previously. Strong police patrols, mounted and afoot, guarded the business section of the city. The fascists refrained from pillaging.

BRITISH AVIATRIX MAKING TRANSCONTINENTAL RECORD

KANSAS CITY, Kansas, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Keith Miller, British aviatrix, seeking to better the transcontinental women's speed mark, landed here today to spend the night, having clipped approximately 29 minutes from the Valley Stream, N. Y.-Kansas City flying time of Laura Ingalls, St. Louis, the record holder.

Mrs. Miller set her plane down at about 5:15 p. m. (C. S. T.) at Naftziger field after having missed the larger Kansas City airports in the flight which began at 6:30 (E. S. T.) this morning at Curtiss field, Valley Stream, N. Y.

The British aviatrix's flying time from New York to Kansas City was computed as 11 hours, 16 minutes. That of Miss Ingalls, who established the east-west record a week ago, was 11 hours, 45 minutes. Miss Ingalls' transcontinental mark is 30 hours, 27 minutes.

INSTALLING EQUIPMENT TO MAKE LEGALIZED BEER

OCONOMOWOC, Wis., Oct. 13—(AP)—Fred Pabst Sr., head of the Milwaukee brewing concern bearing his name, today announced that nearly one million dollars worth of equipment for making legalized beer is being installed in his company's plant.

The new equipment will be held in readiness to start the manufacture of beer on short notice, he said. It is being housed in a building unused since prohibition, remodeled for the purpose.

"It is a risk, I know," Mr. Pabst said. "However, public opinion is a pretty good barometer. It is my own firm opinion that beer will return in the not distant future, and I am willing to take the chance—so willing, in fact, that I have staked almost a million dollars on my opinion. I want to be prepared."

PLEADED NOT GUILTY OF ASSAULTING THEIR FATHER

WESTPORT, Oct. 13.—(AP) — The Rev. Stephen Kalabany, Jr., pastor of the Hungarian Reformed church in Akron, Ohio, and his brother, Henry Kalabany, pleaded not guilty today to charges of aggravated assault brought by their father, Stephen Kalabany, 56, of Green Farms, Conn.

The two sons were alleged to have beaten the elderly man in a quarrel over the presence of a shotgun in the house. He was confined in Norwalk hospital for several days as a result of his injuries.

The sons were bound over to superior court and released in bonds of $1,000.

NO LARGE CAMPAIGN FUNDS IN NORTH CAROLINA

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 13—(AP)— The senate campaign funds investigating committee late today adjourned its hearing here after a day of questioning witnesses which failed to produce evidence of any large expenditures in the Bailey-Simmons primary contest.

FAILED TO PROVE RIGHT TO CHURCH PROPERTY

HARTFORD, Oct. 13.—(AP)— Judge Herbert A. Ross, of the city court, finds that the Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic All Saints church, a voluntary association organized about seven years ago, failed to establish its right to church property on Broad street, and that the association's claimed record title and claim to right of possession by virtue of a recognition by superior church authority have not been sustained. This disposes, temporarily at least, of the Hartford angle of a general difference of opinion by factions of the Greek Catholic church. An appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

The decision of Judge Ross, after weeks of hearings, is in favor of the first Russian Greek Catholic All Saints church to recover its costs, and for the Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic All Saints church, the voluntary association, to recover its costs from John S. Kedrovsky, whose status as an alleged archbishop was one of the main questions at the court hearing.

WOMAN COMMITTED SUICIDE IN LOBBY OF CHICAGO HOTEL

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP) —A young woman stepped to the desk of a West Side hotel today and handed a note to the manager.

As he read it she sat down in the lobby, drew a revolver and shot herself. She slumped in her chair, dead.

The note read:

"I am very sorry this had to happen but wish you all the luck in the world. Don't blame nobody for this as I am going to mother. Goodbye to all my friends and relatives. My right name is Mildred Furr. Ship body to my sister, Mrs. Gertrude Fergen, Parkston, S. D."

Hotel attaches said she had registered with a man last June 22 as Mr. and Mrs. Frank Berman. The man is being sought.

SOLDIERS INJURED WHEN SHRAPNEL SHELL BURST

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 13.— (AP) — Three soldiers at Fort Benning, located here, were injured seriously today by shrapnel from a shell that burst when one of them dropped it to the ground.

Doctors feared it would be necessary to amputate a leg of Private George Fullbright and an arm of Private Herman Eller. George Dusek, who dropped the shell as the three examined it, was hurt less seriously.

C. & A. SHOP WORKERS TO RESUME FULL TIME HOURS

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Six hundred Chicago & Alton railroad shop workers, idle since July, will return to their posts and the shop will resume full operation, it was announced today.

The first of the men will report Nov. 3 and the entire personnel was expected to be re-engaged by Nov. 17. A five-day week schedule will remain in effect.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

TANGIERS, Morocco, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Ternille Dix of Orange, N. J., a writer, and Mrs. Dix, a painter, were killed near Larache as the plane in which they were passengers turned a somersault in landing.

NAPLES, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Minister of National Education Balbino Giuliano re-consecrated yesterday the tomb of the poet, Virgil, in the presence of noted classical scholars and thousands of citizens of this city. Wednesday is the two thousandth anniversary of Virgil's birth.

ROME, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The Princess Giovanna, 23-year-old daughter of the king and queen of Italy, appeared certain to become the bride of Boris, bachelor king of Bulgaria, in the oldest Gothic church in Italy where she so often prayed over the tomb of St. Francis of Assisi.

FLOODS ARE CAUSING HEAVY DAMAGE IN TEXAS

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 13. —(AP) — Swirling flood waters today caused anxiety in Texas, where for the second time within a week livestock was drowned, transportation was halted and citizens awoke to find homes and shops inundated.

Brady, a town of 5,000 population in McCulloch county, bore the brunt of the discomfort and damage of the floodwaters when the Brady river again overflowed. Fifteen business houses were flooded and the water came within two or three feet of last Monday's high mark, when $350,000 damage to stocks of goods in 60 business houses was done and 200 persons were made homeless.

Aroused from their slumber by an alarm sent down the stream from Eden, where a torrential rain sent the river on another rise, residents of Brady went from their beds before dawn to build improvised levees of cement and sandbags in an effort to ward off the second inundation in eight days.

After rising within two feet of the court house plaza, which was submerged last Monday, the waters began to recede. Scores of persons, however, had been forced to flee from their homes near the river— homes they had so recently cleaned — and again they had to carry furnishings and personal belongings to higher ground.

The South Concho river at Christoval, in Tom Green county, left its banks and four feet of water stood in the Santa Fe railway station. It was the biggest rise recorded there since 1906.

Four hundred head of sheep were drowned, trapped in the shipping pens. The river was 900 feet wide at its highest stage. The Concho waters washed out 300 feet of Santa Fe railway track between Valera and Talpa.

The Canadian river in the Panhandle swept away two railroad trestles, one each for the Fort Worth & Denver and the Rock Island, tying up railroad traffic north and northwest of Amarillo. Several hundred feet of Rock Island track was washed away between Eden and Sanjon and service was suspended between Amarillo and Liberal, Kans.

The Colorado river was up 18 feet at Ballinger and Elm Creek was on a 15-foot rise. The streets of the town were flooded after 6.21 inches of rain fell within three hours.

EAST HARTLAND WOMAN WOUNDED BY SHOTGUN

EAST HARTLAND, Conn., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Jennie Carr, 24, was found unconscious along the highway by a motorist today with a shotgun wound in the back, which she later told police had been inflicted by George Patnode, 35, a neighbor.

The woman, the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lichdi, was taken to a Westfield, Mass., hospital where her condition was described as critical.

Patnode was arrested by state police tonight in an abandoned house. A shotgun was found in a well on the grounds.

AUTOMOBILE THIEF MIGHT CATCH SMALLPOX

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 13.—(AP)—It's just possible that one Evanston automobile thief will be punished even if he is not apprehended by police.

A fraternity brother of Hank Bruder, Northwestern football captain who is ill with smallpox, reported to Evanston police today that Bruder's ancient coupe had been stolen last night. The car, unfumigated, was parked in the rear of the Delta Upsilon house when Bruder was taken to the Isolation hospital Saturday, but was missing this morning.

The police are trying to catch the thief before he catches the disease.

MERGER OF BOOK PRINTING AND BINDING COMPANIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP) —J. J Little and Ives company, of New York, has acquired the C. H. Simonds company and Charles T. Baker and Sons company, of Boston, and will operate them under the name of the Colonial Press, Inc., a Massachusetts corporation with offices in Boston.

The announcement of the acquisition said the Colonial Press would be the largest complete book printing and binding concern in Boston.

FALSE TEETH CAUSE OF AUTO ACCIDENT

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Police tonight were chuckling over something new in automobile accident "causes."

A driver, whose name the police courteously concealed, sneezed; his false teeth flew out; he clutched frantically at them and his car crashed into the rear of a motor truck. The driver was unhurt, but a passenger was slightly bruised.

The teeth were undamaged.

TWO BUSHELS OF WHEAT AT THE COST OF ONE LAST YEAR

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Two bushels of wheat sold on the Winnipeg market today for the cost of one bushel a year ago—with change to spare. Even when trading closed, up about two cents from the lowest levels ever recorded at Winnipeg, values stood at less than half of quotations a twelve-month back. October wheat finished at 69 1-2 cents—compared to $1.46 1-8 a year ago.

Mal S. Daugherty Held Under $40,000 Bond

Indicted On 58 Counts, Including Charge of Embe[illegible]zlement of Funds

WASHINGTON COURT [illegible], Ohio, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Mal S. [illegible], president of the defunct [illegible]tate bank, and brother of f[illegible]nited States Attorney Gener[illegible]y M. Daugherty, was indicted [illegible]day on 58 counts charging embezzlement, misapplication of funds and falsification of the bank's condition.

The counts were contained in 15 indictments returned by the Fayette county grand jury in connection with its special investigation of circumstances surrounding the failures of the Ohio State and the People's and Drovers banks here last summer. An additional indictment was reported against Virgil Vincent, grain dealer, charging perjury.

After making its partial report, the grand jury adjourned until November 12, when it will resume the inquiry, which was ordered by Prosecutor W. S. Paxson after involuntary bankruptcy proceedings against Daugherty. He was declared a bankrupt after admitting his inability to pay $77,000 in promissory notes held by the two banks.

Daugherty surrendered to Common Pleas Judge H. M. Rankin late today and was ordered held under $40,000 bond pending his arraignment. Daugherty later aranged to have the bond signed by his brother, Harry, who lives in Columbus, and his mother, Mrs. Jane Daugherty of Washington court house. Daugherty was not released, however, until his brother arrived from Columbus and furnished his share of the bond. No date was set for arraignment.

The indictment against Vincent resulted from alleged false statements before the grand jury in which he denied he had borrowed money from the Ohio State bank and later gave the funds to Daugherty. The state claimed that such a transaction occurred.

County officials said the indictments were based on the findings of Cecil L. Hall and Frank G. Schaeffer, Cincinnati accountants, who went over the bank's books at the prosecutor's request. Daugherty is alleged to have misappropriated $34,000.

THREE BORDER PATROLMEN CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY

OGDENSBURG, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Three United States border patrolmen tonight were in St. Lawrence county jail at Canton under general charges of conspiracy after several months of investigation by special federal officers.

Two of the men, Francis L. Coveney and Charles Coolican, were held in default of $10,000 bail each, and Weldon J. Cheatham in default of $5,000 bail. They were arrested Saturday by special treasury agents and arraigned before Commissioner Dallas M. Hazelton, of Gouveneur. Coveney and Cheatham were stationed at Mooers and at Rouses Point during the last two years.

The specific charges against the officers alleged violation of section 37 of the United States penal code. This section is broad in its application, covering many offenses listed as "conspiracy." Conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws comes under this head.

SELF-LOCKING ANKLETS TO PREVENT BABY MIX-UPS

CHICAGO, Oct. 13—(AP)—Anklets with self-locking clasps which must be severed to be removed are now being used to prevent baby mix-ups in Chicago hospitals, Dr. Arnold Kegel, city health commissioner, revealed today.

The anklets are the result of a rule established by Dr. Kegel to eliminate the possibility of a repetition of the recent Bamberger-Watkins baby mix-up.

The infants of Mrs. Charles Bamberger and Mrs. William Watkins were mixed in a hospital when identification marks on the babies were confused by placing each child in the wrong clothing.

THREE NEGROES CONFESS THE SLAYING OF HARRY PANCHOT

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo., Oct. 13.—(AP)—More than 100 Negroes, practically the whole Negro population, had left town tonight after the confession of three Negroes, two men and a woman, to the slaying of Harry Panchot and the wounding of Paul A. Ritter, both white, yesterday.

The only two Negro families left here were guarded tonight by militiamen, called together by Governor Henry S. Caulfield, at the request of Sheriff Zeigler, to prevent mob action.

BANKER PREDICTS BETTER BUSINESS CONDITIONS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The Investment Bankers' Association of America, in convention here, today heard Trowbridge Callaway, of New York, its president, predict better business conditions. The convention is to last through Wednesday.

State Trooper Shot Dead By Bank Bandits

[illegible] of Slain Man Was Found [illegible]n a Highway Near Sturgis, Mich.—Slayers Captured

STURGIS, Mich., Oct. 13.—(AP)—State Trooper John S. Burke, 24, was found shot to death on a highway near here late today. He is believed to have been shot by two men who held up a branch bank in Battle Creek this afternoon, escaping with $4,000 and heading in the general direction of Sturgis.

Burke, who came to Michigan from Ringtown, Pa., only a few months ago to join the state police force, was on road patrol duty, attached to the White Pigeon detachment. He is believed to have stopped the robbers for questioning and to have been shot as he approached their car on foot. He had three bullet wounds in the neck.

The body was lying in the middle of the highway, one arm crushed and a gash across his face, indicating that the robbers' car ran over him after they shot him down. His motorcycle was standing at the side of the road.

Reports received here from Battle Creek were that the robbers had been tentatively identified as Thomas Summers and James Burns of South Bend, Ind.

The identification came through a pillow case which they threw from their car on the flight southward. The pillow case was traced to the Raust hotel, at Battle Creek, where it was found to have been taken from a room occupied last night by two men who registered as Summers and Burns.

SLAYERS OF TROOPER CAPTURED IN SWAMP

WHITE PIGEON, Mich., Oct. 13.—(AP)—State troopers telephoned the detachment headquarters here at 6.50 p. m. (e. s. t.) that two men believed to be the Battle Creek bank robbers and the slayers of State Trooper John S. Burke, had been captured in a swamp near Howe, Ind.

One of the robbers was wounded during the fight which preceded their capture. The telephone message did not say how seriously.

State troopers are taking the captured men to Centerville, Mich., county seat of St. Joseph county.

HELPED CHILDREN OUT OF WAY BEFORE SHOOTING MAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Solicitously herding a group of children out of harm's way, two men pumped three bullets into Morris Fishbein tonight in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn and sent him to a hospital for the second time in two months.

The assailants drove up slowly to Fishbein, who was standing in front of a cigar store, dispatched their errand methodically and departed without haste. Doctors said the victim's condition is critical.

Police said Fishbein is a "muscle man" in the building, painting and laundry trades. Enemies shot him up in Coney Island in August and he recovered only two weeks ago.

POSTHUMOUS HONORS FOR UNITED STATES MARINES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.— (AP) — President Moncada has awarded posthumously the Nicaraguan medal of merit to seven marine corps officers and 32 enlisted men who lost their lives during bandit operations in his country from January, 1927, to the present time

The officers include the late Captains Robert S. Hunter, Tescott, Kansas; E. D Howard, Oakland, Calif.; R. B. Buchana, Washington, D. C., and Lieutenant Earl H. Thomas, Richmond, Indiana.

The enlisted men include the late Private Meyer Stengel, of Hartford, Conn.

TWO PRIESTS AND PILOT KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

KOTZEBUE, Alaska, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Two Catholic priests and a pilot were killed here yesterday when the mission plane Marquette crashed. They were Ralph Wien, noted Alaskan Aviator; Father Philip I. Delon, head of Jesuit missions in Alaska, and Father Walsh of the Kotzebue mission.

Wien had made a test flight before taking up the priests. The crash came while the ship was circling the field.

Spectators said the motor seemed to stall and the ship dived to the ground.

OBITUARY

Joshua M. Addeman

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 13.— (AP) — Joshua M. Addeman, 14 times secretary of state in Rhode Island, died today at Thompson, Conn., in his 90th year.

Mr. Addeman was born at Bay of Islands, N. Z. He was a graduate of Brown university and a veteran of the Civil war. Elected secretary of state in 1872, he was returned to the office yearly until 1887. He became an important force in the business and financial life of Rhode Island and was affiliated with several Masonic bodies.

FITCHBURG, MASS., TO HAVE $1,500,000 WINDOWLESS FACTORY BUILDING

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Award of a contract for industry's first windowless factory building, a $1,500,000 plant, entirely without daylight, and embodying radically advanced ideas for scientific creation of artificial lighting, ventilation, and other working conditions, was announced here today by the Austin company, engineers and builders.

The structure will be biult for the Simonds Saw & Steel Co., at Fitchburg, Mass. It will occupy five acres and will be one story high.

A. T. Simonds, president of the saw company, advised the engineers the decision to build at this time was based upon the confidence of the firm's officials that business recovery is near, and their belief that present construction costs are favorable for immediate expansion against future needs.

The unique building will have solid, sound-resisting walls. Its roof will have neither windows nor skylights. Illumination will come from hundreds of 1,000-watt electric lights arranged to provide uniform light intensity which is rarely possible in daylight factories dependent upon the cleanliness of windows or upon the weather.

One of the many innovations will be the painting of machinery orange to increase visibility and help reduce accidents. Walls and ceiling will be blue, green and white.

The ventilation system will bring fresh air to all parts of the structure after purification and temperature regulation. Cork pads will be used under heavy machinery and other efforts made to keep noise at a minimum.

Production of three of the Simonds factories, one in Chicago and the others in Fitchburg, will be concentrated in the new plant. Construction is to be started within a few weeks.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

Patrolman William Rumbler was shot to death in Chicago by three bandits who attempted to hold up a saloon.

Police announced that the Miami Beach home of the late Tex Rickard had been robbed and goods valued at $4,000 stolen.

Clyde Blackwell, 34, and his sister Winifred, 24, were killed in the crash of their airplane at Blackwell's private flying field east of Longmont, Colo.

Additional improvement in the drought situation was reported yesterday by Dr. C. W. Warburton, secretary of the federal drought relief committee.

The treasury department was asked by the National Lumber Manufacturers association to exclude convict-made Russian lumber from the United States.

Four patrolmen were assigned to the Edison industries in West Orange, N. J., after eight members of the Buffers and Polishers union went on strike. No disturbance was reported.

ADDITIONAL VICTORIES BY THE INSURGENTS IN BRAZIL

Reports Indicate That the Rebels Have Routed the Federals From Their Last Stronghold in Southern Brazil—Revolutionary Chieftains Also Claim Victories in the Northeast and the Central Portions of the Country—Claims of the Insurgents Are Disputed by the Government

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 13.— (AP) — News coming through Uruguayan sources today indicated that the Brazilian rebels had routed the federals from their last stronghold in southern Brazil by capturing the city of Florianopolis.

This city, an important trading center in the state of Santa Catharina, has been practically the only place in Brazil south of Sao Paulo that the government has held since the revolt began nine days ago. While rebel troops marched from the extreme south of the country, state of Rio Grande Do Sul, and went northward through Santa Catharina toward Sao Paulo, the federals held on to the coastal city and used it as a base for small operations against the revolutionaries.

Capture of the city—if confirmed—means that the rebels can consolidate their lines from the southermost part of the republic to the Parana-Sao Paulo border region, where the rebels already have engaged the troops of President Washington Luis Perieda Da Souza in an effort to reach Sao Paulo.

Rebel sources claim continued advances against the government, although their announcements are disputed. General Miguel Costa, insurgent commander on the Sao Paulo-Parana front, reported that he had crossed the Sao Paulo border and captured the towns of Ourinhos, Singues and Punto Ribeira, with his forces continuing toward Iterare, important railhead on a line leading to Sao Paulo.

General Costa said that on his left insurrectionary troops had captured both Jacarezinho and San Jose Da Plantina, state of Parana, where the federals fled without fighting. He added that another force under Atalviva Leonel had crossed the Sao Paulo border.

Dispatches from Rio De Janeiro quoted the minister of justice as giving a different account. He said 2,000 insurgents had been beaten off at Punto Ribeira and later at Irabare. As to the Jacarezinho conflict, he declared that 2,000 federals had routed the rebels and had begun a southward march into Parana, heading for the city of Colonia Hneira.

Military observers here say the only thing definite is that fighting has occurred, whoever may have been the victor.

While their main force is concentrated in the south, the rebel chieftains claim gains in the northeast and the central portions of the country.

Captain Juarez Tavora, conqueror of Pernambuco, has invaded Olagoas with 10,000 men and captured the capital, Macelo, setting up a revolutionary junta for the state. He declares that all Brazil north of the River Sao Francisco is in rebel hands, with his army continuing across the river and into Bahia.

The other rebel movement is from Minas Geraes into the states of Bahia, Espirito Santo and Rio De Janeiro. The insurrectos claim the capture of Caravellos, port of southern Bahia, and say their armies are marching through Espirito Santo toward Victoria, the capital. Other forces, they say, have invaded northern Rio De Janeiro and in the vicinity of Ciudad Compos have captured the hydro power plant along the Parahyba river. This plant supplies much of the state with electricity.

These claims also are disputed by the government in dispatches reaching here, the federals saying that the Minas Geares rebels were beaten off in their attack on Caravellos, with three leaders and many others being captured. The federals also said they had defeated a detachment of rebels in the loyal state of Goyaz, taking the leader, Pedro Ludovico, and 70 others, with 200 more being routed.

SCENES REMINISCENT OF THE WORLD WAR IN RIO DE JANEIRO

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Scenes reminiscent of the World war are being enacted in connection with the Brazilian revolution, with thousands of reservists answering the call to the colors amid a fanfare of patriotism and being promised their jobs again at the end of the fighting.

Every American firm here is hit by the loss of employes, and many of them are giving the men two weeks' salary in addition to offering to hold the jobs open for a certain time. Some Brazilian and Portuguese companies have made blanket promises to take their reservist employes back at any time, no matter how long the fighting lasts. Diplomatic and consular offices also have lost many of their male workers.

With reservists rapidly being mobilized and equipped for active service, the government continues to rush men toward the fighting zones.

The food situation brought a new edict from the government today, placing eggs, poultry, milk and bread on the controlled pricelist. This was down, it was announced, to prevent profiteering.

Since the banks are on an enforced holiday until Oct. 21, doing no business, the prefect of the federal district today issued an order extending until Oct. 26, the date for payment of delinquent taxes.

BAND OF REVOLUTIONARY PLOTTERS CAPTURED

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The government today announced the capture of a band of revolutionary plotters hidden in the federal capital for the purpose of starting an uprising as soon as revolutionary troops should have come near the city.

BANK PRESIDENT SHOT AND KILLED HIMSELF IN BANK

FRANKFORD, Del., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Believed to have been brooding over ill health, Everett Hickman, 66, president of the First National bank of Frankford, shot and killed himself today in the bank.

Hickman left a note to his brother, Horace J. Hickman, which read: "This is the best way out." The bank was not open today because of the holiday and Hickman had asked Paul T. Scott, of Selbyville, a customer, to meet him in the bank for a conference. During their conversation, Hickman excused himself, went to the cashier's cage, and fired a bullet into his brain.

Relatives said he had not been in financial trouble. He had been president of the bank since its organization in 1907 and was a director of the Delaware Railroad company. He was unmarried and is survived by two brothers and a sister. Hickman was born in Frankford and spent all his life here.

FISHING BOATS EVEN WHEN RACE WAS CALLED OFF

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Although lack of wind again halted the second race between Bluenose, champion of the Canadian fishing fleet, and Gertrude L. Thebaud, pride of the Gloucester fleet, for the blue ribbon of the Atlantic today, the invader gave this old port real cause for worry.

When the wind faded out the schooners had covered but eight miles of the scheduled 37 5-8 mile course, but Bluenose had made up a long lead the Thebaud had taken at the start and was holding the Gloucester boat on almost even terms.

CAPITALIST CHARLES V. BOB IS RESTING IN SECLUSION

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP)—What some business associates and authorities have regarded as the disappearance of Charles V. Bob, capitalist and flying enthusiast, missing since last Wednesday, was termed today by relatives a retirement to avert a nervous breakdown. They said he was resting in seclusion in Chicago.

His expected return in a few days was announced by his attorney, Ferdinand Pecora. Pecora's statement allayed fears that Bob might have been injured in a plane accident or held for ransom by Chicago gangsters.

TO SPEED ARRIVAL OF JAPAN'S NAVAL TREATY RATIFICATION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Fast army airplanes and a special diplomatic courier, who will use the most speedy vessel in the American Merchant Marine, will be pressed into service by the state department, at the request of the Japanese government, to expedite the arrival in London of the Japanese ratification of the London naval treaty

SEEKING EXPLANATION OF SHOOTING OF DIAMOND

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.— (AP)— The murky pattern of a racketeer's progress in the metropolitan underworld, with its criss-cross of treachery and terrorism, was examined minutely by police today in search of an explanation for the shooting of Jack "Legs" Diamond, notorious gang leader.

A red-haired chorus girl friend of the wounded gangster, a few employes of the West Side hotel where two gunmen pumped five bullets into Diamond's body yesterday, and a host of rumors comprised the "catch" in New York's most sensational shooting since Arnold Rothstein, gambler, was slain two years ago.

Progress—or lack of it—was summed up by Police Commissioner Mulrooney tonight in the terse statement that "there are 101 reasons why somebody wanted Diamond dead."

But "Legs" was still far from dead. Physicians at the Polyclinic hospital said his vitality was altering the odds against him, although he still was a very seriously wounded man. "Legs" scanned with satisfaction the four-inch headlines that heralded his plight, but insisted he did not know the members of the "execution squad" who called on him.

Diamond set the number of his assailants at three, but the police were convinced there were only two. They attached some importance to the story of a man who was working on his car in the street in front of the hotel that two men came up in a black car with a New Jersey license, went in, and after several sounds which he said might have been shots or the backfiring of an automobile, ran out and sped away in their car.

TARIFFS DISCUSSED BY IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(AP) —Inter-empire tariffs were debated by the heads of delegations to the imperial conference today but only one clear statement emerged from the discussions. William Graham, president of the board of trade, said the MacDonald government accepted the principle that where tariffs exist in Great Britain, tariff preferences shall be given.

There was no clear cut reply from Premier MacDonald or any one else to the Canadian premier's proposal of last week that a ten per cent increase be levied on existing empire preferential duties and in political circles no such reply was expected.

BUT FOUR FATAL AUTO ACCIDENTS IN CONN. LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Oct. 13.—(AP)—But four fatalities were recorded as a result of automobile accidents in Connecticut, during the week of Sept. 28 to Oct. 4, it was announced by the state department of motor vehicles today. Fatalities from this cause during the first three-quarters of the year have been reduced 44 from the total recorded on the same date last year.

SCOTLAND MAN BREAKS LEG WHEN HIT BY AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 13.— Charles Goodhardt of Scotland sustained a compound fracture of the leg and a cut on the face shortly after midnight this morning when he was struck by a machine driven by Philias Viens of this city, on lower Main street. The Scotland man was getting out of a parked car which was in charge of Pafnuty Juszzak of this city and he had started to cross the street, just south of the Horseshoe bridge on Bricktop road, when he was run down. After striking the man the Viens machine swerved to one side and collided with a telephone pole. Viens was arrested on a technical charge of reckless driving and presented in police court this morning. A continuance to await developments was ordered for two weeks.

The police court also heard five other cases this morning. In the case of E. B. Hughes, magazine solicitor charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, a continuance until Tuesday was granted to allow further investigation. Martin Zoldak of Lafayette street was fined $2 and costs for driving without a license and Joseph Deller, also charged with operating a car without a license, secured a continuance of one day owing to his inability to appear in court today. Two transients were sentenced to 30 days at the county jail and an intoxicant received a one-day continuance of his case.

Douglas S. Weeks, plant instruction supervisor, has been appointed supervisor of safety and training by the Southern New England Telephone company. Mr. Weeks is a native of Ashford and graduated from Windham high school in 1915. He entered the telephone service August 18, 1920, as a lineman in the New London district, becoming assistant foreman February 8, 1924. He was appointed plant inspector of the New London district on October 25, 1926, and on March 4, 1928, was made plant instructor and then plant instruction supervisor last January.

Farmers Hit By Drought

Never in the experience of farmers in the neighboring towns has the drought been as severe as it is at the present time. Fall ploughing and other digging reveals the land to be as dry as tinder with no indication of moisture at a depth of six feet in some places. The farmers are put to much trouble and expense supplying their households and stock with water. In some places water has to be carried daily from considerable distances. Several automobiles trucks and wagons may be seen daily at the Park spring on upper Jackson street where as many as 20 cans are filled at a time for farm needs.

The appointment of Charles C. Rutman of New London as manager of the local branch store of the United Music company, succeeding L. J. Haines, became effective today. Mr. Haines, who has been in charge here for the past year, has been transferred to Providence, R. I., where he will act as assistant manager. Mr. Rutman has been with the company for four years and has been assistant manager of the Norwich branch and salesman in New London.

GOSHEN

Never before has the grandeur of the autumnal beauty been so greatly enjoyed as this year. One of the many beauty spots seen in traveling toward Lebanon Center from Goshen is the sloping hillside of Fred Madley's wood lot, where the Unseen Painter's work has exceeded that of any earthly brush.

One of the plays enjoyed by the many boys in the ninth school district is "Indians" Two well made wigwams or tepees seen for some time in the school yard look quite like an Indian encampment.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Randall attended the funeral of their cousin, Hubbard H. Fern, in Meriden, Thursday.

Green Mt. Visitors

Mrs. Lizzie Hunt Hall and Rev. and Mrs. William Slade of Thetford, Vt., whose ancestors lived in Goshen, Lebanon and Hebron, were recent callers on Miss Clara Gillette and Miss Laura McCall. They were accompanied by Mr. Albert Sexton of East Hampton.

CO-OPS BUY STOCK FEED FOR DROUGHT-HIT FARMS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Farmers in 41 drought-stricken counties of Tennessee are buying necessary feed on a cooperative plan.

Orders have been pooled through efforts of county agricultural agents and the feed is to be delivered in carload lots to various destinations. This will effect a saving of 50 per cent in freight rates, says C. E. Brehm, assistant director of the extension service at the University of Tennessee.

County agents pool orders in their territory and place them with the Tennessee farm bureau, which in turn makes purchases in large volume with cooperation of the division of markets of the state department of agriculture.

SUBMARINE RESCUES DOCTOR ON AIR HOP

PANAMA C. Z.—(AP)—A rescue at sea by a submarine was the climax of a military doctor's first air ride.

Major Forrest R. Ostrander, stationed at Gorgas hospital, took his first ride in the air with Lieut. James H. Bevans, air corps flier.

While over the bay and out of gliding reach of land, the engine went dead and the men were forced to land in the water—close to a cruising submarine. A rope was flung to the men and they were rescued before the plane went to the bottom.

After changing into dry clothing they hopped off for a second trip.

Missouri corn cobs that are manufactured into pipes have an annual retail value of over $30,000,000.

For Coughs

From Colds Where One is Willing To Pay

To Be Sure

Creomulsion is made to do the utmost for a cough from colds. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is for quick relief, for safety, when the cough seems deep.

Mild coughs may yield to a lesser help—to some single factor, maybe. But no one can tell which factor will do most for any certain cough. And all coughs should be stopped at once. So careful people, more and more, give Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is $1.25—a little more than some helps. But it means a seven-way help—the best men know. And it costs you nothing if it fails to bring the quick relief you seek. Your druggist guarantees it.

STAFFORD ASSN. OPENS 61st. FAIR— MANY ATTRACTIONS AND BIG CROWD

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Oct. 13— Monday morning on the opening day of the 61st annual Stafford fair, saw traffic from north, east, south and west, headed toward the fair grounds. Clear skies and a fair day gladdened the hearts of the officials of the Stafford Springs Agricultural society and helped to swell not only the crowd at the fair grounds but to increase the stream of revenue into the society's exchequer. Special officers were stationed at corners and intersections along the main highways and directed fair-goers to their destination. The Main street in Stafford Springs was attractively decorated with flags on both sides of the street in observance of Columbus day.

Upon entering the grounds, from the main entrance on West street, the midway lined with booths gay with bunting, blankets, dolls, candy and various other articles, greeted the eyes of visitors. Along the midway, fakirs, fortune tellers and side show men were ceaseless in their efforts to induce the crowd to buy their wares and take part in their games of chance.

The exhibition hall located about in the center of the grounds was filled with displays of vegetables and other farm produce arrayed in splendid order and carefully labeled. M. H. Parker of Mansfield is supervisor of this division. The hall also contains numerous articles of handwork and homemaking which an unbroken line viewed, as the crowd was passing through the main building. Mrs. William J. Schmidt of Stafford Springs is in charge of the home department. Another interesting display in the exhibition hall is that in charge of W. K. Rockwell of Bloomfield, exhibits of bees and honey.

On the main floor in the exhibition hall, the secretary's office is located, where all entries are listed and from which the work of the fair is carried on. The dining room is also on the first floor and here delicious home-cooked food is served. At the west end of the midway the horse stables are located and throughout the day this place seems to have coming and going a steady crowd of horsemen and others interested in the races.

Red Cross Station

Stafford chapter of the Red Cross has centrally located headquarters underneath the east end of the grandstand and is prepared to render first air and promote health education. This work is carried on under the direction of Miss Ruth Woodhouse, district health nurse, assisted by a group of local young women in cooperation with the state department of health.

New Poultry Building

The poultry exhibit which is housed in a practically new building, provides every accommodation and ample room for all entries and is a source of keen interest to poultry fans. This department is in charge of A. Mowll, of Mathews, Virginia, assisted by E. Pentlow of West Hartford, and the following local committee: Fred B. Glover and Gordon Charter, Stafford Springs, George Lowry, South Willington, Frank Zimmerman, Stafford Springs.

H. S. Students' Booth

Stafford high school booth, which occupies a prominent place in the midway and receives considerable patronage, has been remodeled and is in better condition than ever before. The food served is solicited from the parents of school students and is all homemade.

The stage entertainment consisted of six fine vaudeville acts and the occupants of the grandstand were kept on edge by the daring accomplishments of the actors. The Leach La-Quinlan Trio, with spirited slack wire performances, thrilled the enthusiastic audience.

The race track was in splendid condition and some very fine races were run off Monday.

Stafford Springs

Stafford republicans have nominated Raymond E. Kelsey and Milo A. Bradway for representatives in the general assembly. Mr. Kelsey served the town in this office two years ago. He is in the employ of The Fabyan Woolen company as bookkeeper. Mr. Bradway is a successful farmer and was a member of last year's board of selectmen.

The republican party has also endorsed M. D. O'Connell for judge of probate in the district of Stafford.

Mr. and Mrs. John DeCarli of Springfield, were recent visitors with friends and relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Fitts and son, Robert of Rochdale, Mass., and Miss Ethel Snow of Leceister, Mass., were week end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scussel of Guilford, Conn., are guests of relatives in the borough.

Allison Sange of Springfield, spent the holiday at the home of his mother, Mrs. Lillian Sanger in Staffordville.

Made 55 New Voters

The selectmen, town clerk and registrars at their session Saturday made 15 voters in the first district and 40 in the second.

Earl F. Belcher has sold a small tract of land in Staffordville to Stephen Hornacek of that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Quinn and Mark Quinn of Providence, were in town over Sunday and Columbus day.

Miss Catherine Kealy and John Kealy of New York are visiting their brother, George Kealy.

Andrew Burlick of Hartford has returned after a brief visit with relatives in the borough.

Miss Mary O'Connell of Hartford is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Leila O'Connell on High street.

Issues Fire Warning

Chief Brown, of the local fire company, recently issued a warning to all borough residents to use extreme care to prevent fires starting during the present spell of dry weather, as the water supply in some sections of the village is unusually low. At a recent meeting of the fire company, it was voted to appoint two members of the company to make a tour of the village and make a report of any chimneys which need cleaning. Nelson Stern and Joseph Dember were appointed and commenced their work Monday with an inspection of chimneys on Linwood avenue and Merchants row. Several unsafe chimneys were found and these property owners will be requested to remedy the trouble. The inspection is to be continued Thursday on the other streets in the borough, as one of several fire prevention movements being fostered by the fire company.

School Nurse's Busy Year

The annual report of the town school committee which is included in the report of the town officers, contained interesting paragraphs regarding the year's work of the school nurse. Quoting from the nurse's report: "During the year, I made 224 school visits and 233 home visits; the schools were remarkably free from skin and communicable diseases. I referred 33 children to their family physicians for physical examinations. Eighty-two children were referred to a dentist; 11 of the 14 pupils at Bulkely Hill school had their dental defects corrected. I transported 11 of the 16 children at the Comstock Bridge school to Colchester Center to the dentist; this took a day and a half, as some of the children had to come twice. I also transported children from Mervin and Westchester Center schools for dental work.

"Underweight children and those who had been contacts with cases of tuberculosis were referred to their family physicians or were examined at the Norwich chest clinic. I transported nine to this clinic, three of the children being taken twice. Only two of the nine showed any sign of chest symptoms. Rest and an adequate diet took care of the others; two of this number have had tonsil operations on the advice of the clinic physician.

"Dublin, Bull Hill, Westchester Center and Bulkely Hill district schools had either a hot lunch or warm drink during the winter months. Through the generosity of the League of Women Voters and the D. A. R., a cot with pillow and blankets was provided for Ransom school and a rest period was given to some of the underweight children. A marked improvement in all the underweight children was noted all through the year. The children were measured twice and weighed on an average of four times during the school year, in order to stimulate their interest in maintaining good health; use of milk in the diet and an adequate diet was emphasized along with the health instructions.

"An eye test was given each child and the cases of defective vision were reported to the parents. About two-thirds of the children with defective vision have been fitted to glasses. Previous to this year, this was an unusual thing.

"I transported five children for a mental test and transported 20 of the 28 who had tonsil operations, to Hartford or St. Francis' hospital. I also transported a child to the Norwich Mental Hygiene clinic for four visits. Eleven children in the grade schools had operations for appendicitis; one death occurred.

"The students at Bacon academy were weighed, measured and inspected during the school year. Seven of the students had tonsil operations during the spring months. I gave a talk before the student group on Positive Health and Personal Hygiene, during the winter term."

GOVERNMENT TEST GIVEN RECORD TOTAL OF FLIERS

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the routine physical examinations it gives to all fliers and prospective pilots, the government finds a new index to increased interest in aviation.

Federally authorized doctors gave 43,902 examinations in the fiscal year 1930, 54 per cent more than the year before and 6,455 more than the total since the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce organized the test system in 1926.

Students receiving their first pilot's examinations totaled 22,606, 1,435 of whom were disqualified from receiving student permits to fly.

Flyers examined who had been flying as unlicensed pilots numbered 2,435. The smallest number of disqualifications was in the re-examination of pilots seeking higher grade licenses. Nineteen were disqualified.

ORLY, France (AP) — France's first private aviation club has been formed with a membership goal of 100. Only a score of the members own planes, but the others are fliers and until they get their "ships" they may use the planes the Aero club will loan to encourage amateur air touring.

EATING A SWEET IN MID-AFTERNOON RESTORES VIGOR

Fatigue Quickly Overcome by Sugar Content of Candy, Cake or Beverage

"Fagged out" at four o'clock is an experience that nearly every business man and woman faces daily. As a matter of fact this condition has become so apparent that it has been studied by medical men and food scientists.

One of the best "remedies" discovered for this mid-afternoon fatigue was "something to eat." Experiments showed that when a few pieces of candy, ice cream or cookies were eaten, vitality was quickly restored. The same was true when a flavored beverage was drunk—such as water sweetened with sugar.

The refined sugar content of these foods is responsible for the renewed vigor. For when refined sugar is eaten it almost immediately supplies nourishment to the body. And when the system is nourished fatigue disappears.

American business people are fortunate in being near places where candy, ice cream and beverages are sold. With practically no loss of time and very little expense, a mid-afternoon snack can be enjoyed. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

COUNCIL PROPOSES BOOST IN PEDDLERS LICENSES; WATER SYSTEM INSPECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 13 — The street and house to house peddling business will be an expensive proposition in Willimantic if an ordinance read at the common council meeting tonight, and suggested by the chamber of commerce, later prevails. The ordinance provides for the issuing of licenses by the city clerk at the rate of $25 to out of town or transient peddlers and $10 to residents of the city. This will not affect vendors of fruit and vegetables grown in the state. Peddlers using vehicles will deposit $5 for the use of vending signs.

Through a resolution introduced by Alderman Eugene B. Lewis wood will be furnished at a nominal price to city employes during the winter.

The council appropriated $75 for an inspection of the city water system including tributaries of the reservoir to determine if the water is being held back along the water shed. John P. Carlson stated that there was a suspicion that farmers residing along the watershed had constructed dams holding back the city water for their own use. The water commission recently investigated the purchasing of the Hall pond in Chaplin but found that the pond was slow, that the release of its waters would be of no benefit to the local supply. With the water in the supply reservoir over 30 feet below normal the committee was authorized to make any necessary arrangements to insure sufficient water.

The sewer committee was authorized to make assessments for sewer lines on Young street.

Alderman W. E. Webber introduced a resolution calling for a survey of the sewer-filtration system to be made by the city engineer. Plans are to be prepared for the grading of Summit street extension.

The light and water committees were given power to act on the petitions of residents of Ash street plat for the installation of lights and water.

The invitation of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce to hear a talk on "Small Claims Courts" at a chamber of commerce meeting on October 20, was accepted by the council.

The petition of Lucy A. Murphy asking for no parking on Main street at Thread Mill square to include the junction of Clark street was referred to the police committee.

Mayor Walter R. King presided at the meeting which lasted for an hour.

HOTEL HOOKER SOLD TO MARY A. YOUATT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 13—Edward A. Winter has sold the Hotel Hooker, comprising a four-story brick building of 100 rooms at 819 Main street, to Mary A. Youatt. This property has a frontage on Main street of 55 feet and a depth on Bank street of 167 feet, and is valued at $125,000. The purchaser will continue to operate the hotel.

Mr. Winter has bought of James M. Burr the property at 576 Washington street, Brookline, Mass., consisting of a modern six-family brick apartment house and 7,000 feet of land, all valued at $95,000. The purchaser bought for investment.

NEW BEDFORD GUARD TEAM WINS PRIZE DRILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 13—The New Bedford Sharpshooters won the prize drill for visiting guard teams at the town hall Saturday evening, their total score being 496 points out of a possible total of 500. Guard St. Anne of Fall River was second with 493 points and Guard Marshall of North Grosvenordale third with 491 points. Being hosts to the visitors, local guards did not compete.

Guard Rose d'Elima of Wauregan won first honors for the girls' teams competing with a total of 493 points. Guard St. Teresa of North Grosvenordale was second with 491.

In the popularity contest following the drills Guard Marshall won first honors, the New Bedford Sharpshooters second. In the popularity contest for the girls' teams Wauregan was first and Southbridge second.

The drum corps of the New Bedford Sharpshooters made a big hit. Upwards of 400 persons attended the drilling contests.

Notice is hereby given that my wife, Alice W. OBITUARY

Mrs. Emma Kelley

This afternoon the body of Mrs. Emma Kelley was brought here in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Mrs. Kelley died during last night at the Rhode Island hospital, where she recently underwent a major surgical operation. She was born in Canada 62 years ago, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Gamache, and for years of her life was a resident here. Mrs. Kelley leaves two sons, Olney and Henry, both of Danielson; three sisters, Miss Victoria Gamache, Mrs. Peter Lacombe and Mrs. Rose Harneyy, and four brothers, Joseph, Peter, Frederick and Henry. The body is now at the home of her son, Henry, on Franklin street.

There was no general observance of Columbus day in Danielson today, though there was the usual sidewalk display of flags, as on other holidays throughout the year. Banks here were closed, but the publ cschools remained in session, the next holiday for these pupils being a month hence, on Armistice day. Motor traffic was especially heavy through here today, due largely to the fact that the holiday was being observed in many Massachusetts and Rhode Island communities.

Henry L. Sharkey of Providence has been ordered to appear in a justice's court in the town of Sterling Wednesday to answer to a charge that he failed to grant half the traveled right of way when his car was in an accident on the Moosup-Sterling highway yesterday. The other machine is the property of Ethel D. Swain of East Greenwich, R. I., and was being operated by Robert J. O'Donnell of West Warwick. The Swain machine was damaged to the extent of about $100, the other car, which went off an embankment after the accident to the extent of about $75.

A group from this town will be in Norwich on Thursday to attend the fall meeting of the eastern district meeting of the Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut. The delegates to the meeting will be representative of Congregational churches in New London and Windham counties. Mrs. John R. Pratt of Danielson and widow of a former Congregational pastor at Brooklyn, is a vice-chairman of the district and Mrs. William Swainson, wife of the pastor at Dayville, a member of the committee of religious education. Mrs. Harding W. Gaylord, wife of the pastor of the Westfield church here, is a member of the committee on young people's work, and Miss Marion D. Chollar of Broad street and Mrs. N. Lorne Greig of Dayville, members of the projects committee. There are to be morning and afternoon session.

Over the week end Gerard Gorman entertained Clifford B. Morson, Jr., of West Hartford.

Returned from a trip that took him as far south as Georgia, Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of Dayville said in answer to a question this morning that business conditions in the sections of the south he visited are in much the same status as prevails here in southern New England. He found mills closed or running on short time and general business more or less depressed.

Police officers here are in a quandry as to what they are going to do with unemployed strangers who are constantly drifting into town looking for work or pretending to do so. Many of these roamers are seeking arrest and a chance to spend all or a part of the winter in jail. Some of them are professional rounders. Others are far from being this and rate as men who would gladly work could they find the chance. However, whatever their standing, they come here day by day, and promise to become very considerable of a problem as cold weather sets in.

PROVIDENCE JEWELER HELD IN HOLDUP CASE; NORWICH GIRL TELLS STORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 13—Jacob Silverman, a Providence jeweler resident at 65 Corrinth street in that city, was placed under arrest there today and later presented in a city court on a charge of being a fugitive from justice. He is the man from whom $2,000 worth of plate silver, part of the loot taken by holdup men from a truck at South Killingly a week ago this morning, was recovered. Silverman pleaded not guilty and furnished bonds of $3,000 for release from custody. An effort will be made to extradite him to Connecticut, that he may be presented in court in this town charged with alleged robbery.

Silverman told police that the stolen silver found in his possession was brought to his place by men who offered to sell it to him. He claims that he told them he could not be sure it was not white metal, but upon inspecting it more closely he observed that it bore the stamp of Handy and Harmon, the rBidgeport firm that made the shipment that was stolen at South Killingly. He claims that he then notified the shippers of the matter and an agent of their's came to his place to identify the stuff.

Norwich Girl Implicated

The holdup plans and the procedure in executing it is being unfolded from day to day. Being detained here, but not under arrest, is Doris Silva, alias Doris Bell, 23, who claims Norwich as her home. From this young woman the police have obtained a very considerable amount of information, it was said this afternoon relative to the robbery and those concerned in it. Possibly as many as 15 warrants will have been issued for persons concerned with the affair, in one way or another before the state police here stop requesting court officials for them.

The Silva girl has related that she heard a group of 11 men plan the robbery in a rooming house in Pawtucket. Two of these were professionals, she claims, and nine amateurs in the execution of such crimes. She says that three cars were used to convey the robbers to South Killingly and that five of the 11 were armed. She has set forth in considerable detail how the silver was loaded after it was stolen, how it was loaded into the waiting cars, taken into Rhode Island and split up and hidden.

She comes into the picture, at least in so far as is yet evident, by reason of the fact that she was seen operating a drive-yourself car she had hired with private registration plates attached to the machine. The plates issued for the car when it was registered had been removed.

At Bayside, a summer resort down the Providence river, she was found in a cottage and taken into custody. Police found one Frank Perry Cardoza hiden in a wardrobe of the cottage where the Bell woman was, and West Warwick police also picked him up. He was released after hours of unavailing questioning by the Rhode Island officers, but is now wanted for further quizzing by the Connecticut state police.

The girl after having been locked in a cell for a while by West Warwick police finally began to tell of her alleged connections with the holdup men and how they had schemed the coup and put it into execution. She agreed to come to Connecticut without extradition proceedings, and likely will remain here indefinitely. Asked as to why she went to Bayside, a section under watch since some of the stolen silver was recovered at Shawomet Beach, she explained that she drove down there to collect $15 that Frank Cordoza owed her.

The Bell girl, or, more properly woman, is married, but claims she has not lived with or seen her husband for a long time. Her parents are residents of Norwich. She has been living in Providence for several years past.

PLAINFIELD

BAD FIRE IN CEDAR SWAMP FOUGHT BY ABOUT 100 MEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Oct. 13.—About 10:30 Monday morning, fire broke out in the Cedar swamp, northwest of the village. By noon, about 100 men from Plainfield, Canterbury and Central Village were fighting the flames. All water used had to be carried by trucks from a brook about a mile from the fire. By 2:30 the fire was under control. Beside the usual damage, two large piles of boards were burned.

BRITAIN INCREASES USE OF RADIO PHONE TO U. S.

LONDON (AP)—Radio has aided Great Britain in establishing communication with 90 per cent of the telephone users of the world.

Radio telephone calls between Great Britain and America are rapidly increasing. There were 546 in April, 676 in May and 641 in June. Maximum calls for one day during 1929 numbered 140, of which 81 were to America and 59 from America. The average number of weekly calls to and from Australia is 47.

JEWETT CITY

OLD SHEFFIELD KNIVES ARE FOUND BY G. H. PRIOR

G. H. Prior, in the course of moving a small building on his Ashland street property, and while making over one part into a garage to house his new automobile, came upon two old bone-handled knives which someone had tucked away up under the plate. These two relics of the table cutlery of another age bear the Hargreaves coat of arms and are lettered Sheffield, England. A trial of the blades proves their quality and temper. The building in which the knives were discovered, like Mr. Prior's residence, once the Couch house, was moved to its present site and was a part of the one-time A. A. Young property more than 75 years ago.

Out of a list of 140 to-be-made, the two selectmen, Arba Browning and Thomas McBroome, made 65 voters Saturday. As many more will receive the elector's oath next Saturday.

Monday was the fourth day in a string during which summer temperatures prevailed. The readings have been on two days as high as 78. The last rainfall in this section came at 1 o'clock Sunday morning, Sept. 7. This storm, during which close to two inches of rain fell, was of unusual violence with a marked electrical accompaniment that did much damage to local telephone and electric circuits. Every day there comes in some new report of an unfailing spring or "never dry" well, that has been added to the list of bone dry. The Jewett City water company's big reservoir at Stone Hill is 67 inches low, and losing with the passing of every day. A farmer plowing in upland grass land Monday, declared that the roots were burned brown and were dead, which is very unusual.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kingsley have entertained as recent guests, Postmaster and Mrs. S. P. Dow, of Sheldon Springs, Vt.

Holiday Dinner Party

Everett Whipple, of Voluntown, entertained guests from Norwich and Jewett City at a dinner party on Columbus evening.

WEDDING

Pariseau—Nizewicz

The marriage of Arthur Lloyd Pariseau, son of Mrs. Marie Pariseau, of Moosup, and Miss Helen Elizabeth Nizewicz, daughter of Stanley Nizewicz (Nofle), of Jewett City, was solemnized at St. Mary's church by Rev. J. J. McCabe Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The bride wore a Grecian robe of white satin, wore a veil and carried white roses. Her bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Catherine Nizewicz. She wore a period gown of peach taffeta with green hat and carried yellow roses. The best man was Anthony Podolski, of Moosup. A little flower girl and her escort were the sister and brother of the bridegroom, Elsie and Russel Pariseau, respectively. The flower maid's frock was peach silk and she carried a basket of flower petals. The boy wore white flannel trousers and blue coat.

A wedding breakfast was served at the Eagle restaurant. Mr. and Mrs. Pariseau will motor to Washington, D. C., for their honeymoon. The bride traveled in a brown ensemble. Her gift from the groom was a wrist watch, as was her gift to him. The bridesmaid received a cameo necklace and the best man a pen and pencil set. The flower girl was presented a topaz necklace, and her escort a wrist watch. Mr. Pariseau is manager of an A. & P. store in Moosup, where he and his bride will live. Both young people were former students at Plainfield high school and the bride attended Norwich Commercial school. Guests were present at the wedding from Moosup, New Bedford, Clinton, Norwich and Jewett City.

FINAL HONORS ARE PAID TO SELECTMAN DANIEL F. FINN

(Special to The Buletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 13.—Over 400 assembled in St. Mary's church Monday morning for the funeral services of Daniel F. Finn, first selectman of the town of Griswold. On David Hale Fanning park, near the monument, of which committee Mr. Finn was a member, the borough flag was displayed at half-staff. The stores and banks were closed and business in the borough was practically suspended. Solemn requiem mass was celebraed by St. Mary's pastor, Rev. John J. McCabe, the deacon being Rev. William T. O'Brien, pastor of St. Mary's church of Baltic, and the sub-deacon, Rev. Nicholas Caron, curate in the local parish. The music of the mass was sung by Mrs. George Sarazin. The offertory, Pie Jesu, and the waiting hymn, "When Evening Comes," were rendered by Edward T. Connelly, of Norwich. The ushers were Joseph H. McCarthy, Lionel E. Boucher, Edmond Dudkowski and James Q. Dolan. James Olsen, organist and chorister of

PUTNAM

EIGHT SLIGHTLY INJURED IN TWO AUTO CRASHES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Oct. 13.—Two head-on collisions of automobiles occurred late Sunday evening on the Putnam-Webster road within a mile's distance of one another. Eight persons were injured slightly and after treatment which was received at the Webster hospital, were allowed to continue to their homes.

The first accident took place in Perryville at a point about 500 yards over the Connecticut state line, and involved cars owned by James Myers, 20, of 24 Farrows street, this city, and by Joseph Lazon, 525 Cambridge street, Worcester. Riding in the Worcester car were a group of football players returning from New London where they had been playing. According to the Dudley police, the Myers car approaching in a zig-zag manner swerved into the center of the road as it came abreast of the Worcester car. Both cars were considerably damaged. At the Webster hospital last night it was said that Myers had sustained a laceration of the jaw and bruises of the back. John Lemos of 37 Ballou srteet, Putnam, a passenger in the Myers car was also a patient at the hospital suffering from injuries of a similar nature. Both Putnam men were placed under arrest and are being held for an appearance in district court in Webster Tuesday morning where they will be arraigned on charges of operating while under the influence of liquor.

At 11.30 o'clock, an hour after the accident at Perryville, two cars came together in a head-on collision at Keegan's corner in Wilsonville, a mile south of the scene of the first crash. Both cars were considerably damaged, but occupants escaped without serious injury. Mary Benvenut and her sister, Helen, and Martha DeAngelis, passengers in the car owned and operated by Everett DeAngelis, of Sommerville, Mass., received bruises about the face and hands. They were treated at the Webster hospital, but were discharged early this morning. State Officer Lionel Poirier of Danielson barracks, who investigated learned that the accident happened when the DeAngelis car, traveling in an easterly direction, struck the car of Paul Droasky, of New London, after failing to grant half the travelled portion of the road. Droasky was headed west in the direction of Putnam. Officer Poirier arrested DeAngellis and when arraigned before Justice P. P. Tourtellotte in North Grosvenordale, today, he pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to grant half of the travelled portion of the road and paid a fine of $5 and costs.

BRUNSWICK FOX CLUB HOLDS ITS FIRST HUNT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Oct. 13.—As the early morning sun of a bright day of Indian summer rose today to clear the mists from over the Nightingale camp of Earl C. Rogers in Pomfret, a shrill blast of the horn of the master of hounds called the members of the Brunswick Fox club, holding its annual field trials in this vicinity, into action and a few minutes later a pack of hounds were away, hot on the trail of a fox. Dashing down through meadows and woods the excited pack of dogs sniffed every inch of ground until they had managed to pick up a scent of the elusive fox, who was in all probability, the least concerned with what the trials were all about. Perhaps aware of the fact that everything was in his favor, due to the fact that the extreme dryness prevailing in the countryside because of the drought conditions, the sought after fox slept through the morning hours convinced that even though one of the sharp nosed pursuers might pick up a hot scent, the best it could do was follow the trail for only two hours.

T. Edward Kannally, of Walpole, Mass., secretary of the club, said this afternoon that officials were well pleased with the start of this morning's event although they were unable to post any of the dogs, since some of the pack were led astray on deer paths. Finals will be run Tuesday morning, when the first scoring in the derby events will take place. Entries in the derby trials are all hounds under 20 months old. On Wednesday the feature attraction of the week, the all-age hunt will be run off. This afternoon Cargill park will be the scene of a dog show arranged by members of the club, where many dogs of the hound breed were exhibited and judged.

Secretary Kannelly said today that clubmen attending the trials are highly elated over their selection of Putnam for the 1930 meet and trials. The facilities at the Nightingale camp of Mr. Rogers are excellent for events of this nature, he said. He was especially appreciative of the valuable assistance rendered by County Game Warden T. G. Daniels, of Plainfield, and his deputies who were on duty at the meet.

Tuesday evening the fox hunters will turn their attention to society when they gather at an invitation dance to be held at the state armory on Harris street. Owners of land over which the hunting course in Pomfret extends, will be the guests of the clubmen, Secretary Kannally aserted.

Now is the time to fill your medicine chest, 1c Sale at Carroll's Drug store, Putnam.—adv.

The schools in the town were closed this afternoon for the observance of Columbus day, as were banks and the public library.

Rev. James F. English, of Manchester, N. H., and Mrs. English and family, were visitors here today. Rev. Mr. English was formerly pastor of the Congregational church of this city.

A. J. Williamson, chief game warden of the state was present at the start of the fox hunt this morning at Nightingale camp in Pomfret, where members of the Brunswick Fox Hound club are putting their dogs through field trials. County Warden Daniels was also a spectator at the events.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Liard, of School street, have removed to Danielson where they are residing at 16 North street. Mr. Liard, for 11 years previous to January 7 of this year, was sergeant of police here.

FUNERAL.

Alvin S. Martin.

The funeral of Alvin S. Martin, cashier of the First National bank of Springfield, Vermont, whose body was found Friday floating in the waters of the Connecticut river, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Tourtellotte-Arnold Memorial chapel on Grove street. Rev. Joseph Vasey, pastor of the Congregational church officiated at the chapel service and conducted a committal service at the grave in Grove street cemetery. The funeral cortege arrived from Springfield, accompanied by many friends of the former Putnam bank teller. The bearers were Ray C. Bosworth, Howard C. Bradford, Lucius P. Merriam and Leland Bradley, all of Putnam. Many beautiful floral remembrances were banked about the casket which reposed in the chancel during the service.

HOSPITAL STANDARDIZATION

The people of Norwich and surrounding towns cannot fail to appreciate the fact that it has in Backus hospital an institution that meets the standardization requirements of the American College of Surgeons.

This organization has for more than a decade been engaged in the laudable work of bringing about the betterment of hospitals throughout the country. How well it has succeeded is indicated by the long list of hospitals which successfully meet the test which it applies to each one. This applies to all phases of hospital work and the result speaks for itself when it is shown that today the average total death rate for the hundreds of hospitals having the organization's approval as being safe for the care of the sick is only four per 100 patients. This includes the emergency as well as the other cases, and indicates what the hospitals and the doctors working in them are doing for the salvaging of humanity.

It is rather amazing to learn that 13 years ago only 89 hospitals in the United States and Canada met the minimum requirements of keeping clinical records, a review of all cases resulting in death, and making laboratory examinations. Through the American College of Surgeons the standard has been so lifted that there are now 2,062 hospitals which get approval. This demonstrates not only a recognition of the desirability of the standardization called for by the association of surgeons but an eagerness to meet it.

The people of every city are being called upon to put greater and greater reliance upon hospital treatment. Every city is insisting upon institutions that will meet the community's needs. When it is realized what efforts are being made by the doctors themselves to maintain the hospitals at a recognized high standard, it can be truly said that the improvements in the institutions and their achievements have made them places to inspire hope rather than fear.

It is of much concern to the well as well as the sick that standardized hospitals are demanded, and Norwich cannot be unmindful of the benefit that it means to this section of the state that the local institution is included in the approved list.

DON'T START A FIRE

This vicinity as well as elsewhere is experiencing the danger from fire which the drought has increased. The Washington office of the forest fire service is putting forth the warning that dry autumn days increase the hazard which is already high.

H. O. Stabler, assistant regional forester of the eastern national forest region, points out that "after the most dangerous summer in years, only plenty of rain and careful watching can prevent serious losses."

Every year has its forest fires, but this year has an unusual record. There were 1,629 fires from all causes in the national forests of the eastern region from January 1 to September 20, as compared with a little more than 500 reported for the same period last year. Those figures indicate the situation has been made worse by the drought, and the situation grows worse every day that rain doesn't fall.

All these fires were not preventable, for lightning has been the cause of many of them, it having started 72 in a single storm in one of the national forests. But lightning and the unpreventable fires make up only a minority of the destructive fires. The great majority can be prevented and the need of using the simple means of prevention, which is at the command of each individual, ought not to fail to stand out most prominently before those who can observe and know what the dry conditions mean and threaten.

With the menace from fires greater than usual, more than ordinary care should be exercised in meeting the conditions. No better reminder than the quantity of inflammable material that is ready to burst into flame the minute a firebrand is applied is needed. One doesn't have to study the situation to recognize the danger and the responsibility of the individual in the circumstances. They stand out clearly and distinctly.

There is great need for rain. It is needed, not only to soak the blanket of leaves and other dry material, but it is also needed to replenish the wells, brooks and reservoirs. Water supplies have suffered seriously from the drought and with such a means of fighting fires at a low level every effort is needed to prevent a needless drain upon it.

EXCLUSIVELY FOR ROADS

Ideas vary as to what should be done with the money that is collected by putting a tax on gasoline. For the most part, there is a feeling that the proceeds from such a special tax should be used for a special purpose—construction and maintenance of roads. Most states conform to that view. In a few there is the idea that the revenue should go in part for the building of schools or for general state expenses. This is apparently due to the fact that the tax is easily obtained and the owners of autos ought to be taxed more heavily than other people.

At the international road congress at Washington the taxing of the owners of automobiles, or the consumers of gasoline, for other purposes than road construction or maintenance was frowned upon. It was voted that gasoline taxes and other revenues secured from motorists "should be applied exclusively for highway purposes."

That this should be the sentiment of the international gathering is not surprising. The delegates feel, much the same as the people of most states feel, that motor vehicle owners pay a property tax on their machines and when it comes to a gas tax it is a special levy and the proceeds from such levy should go for a particular purpose. The demand for revenue for good roads caused the resort to the gas tax. The demand came from motorists. If they wanted better roads, it was logical that they should pay for them. It didn't take much to convince them that a tax levied for road construction and maintenance was proper action. They have paid the tax and have received better roads, but they do not consider that they should pay a heavier tax for other expenses of state or town just because they happen to be the owners of motor vehicles. That simply means putting a double taxation upon them and creating an inequality that is without justification. If they feel that it would be just as proper to put an additional tax on the owners of every home with a sidewalk in front of it, such property already being in the tax list, and such revenue to be used for general purposes, the injustice of using a special tax for other than special purposes can be readily appreciated.

FLOGGING FOR BANDITS

When George W. Wickersham, the chairman of the commission making a study of law observance and enforcement, advocates before the American Prison association, in convention in Kentucky, that an inquiry be made into the merits of flogging as a punishment for the bandits, racketeers and gangsters he will find that there will be many ready to give approval. There are those who frequently insist that such punishment should be meted out to those who have no regard for law and order.

There has been a steady increase in those criminal cases which Mr. Wickersham refers to. The gangsters display no fear of the punishment which is now provided. In fact, they feel pretty sure that they will not be obliged to experience much of it, for even if they are caught and convicted they have a way of squirming out of prison by shooting up the institution, by escape, or by the aid of friends on the outside, so that punishment isn't what it is intended to be.

Crime is so organized as to produce sympathy for the criminal instead of his victim and it is a question, should flogging be resorted to as a punishment, whether it would be inflicted in such a manner that would have the desired effect or whether it would produce a class of advocates who would begin to call for its abolition, even as there are now those who are trying to put an end to capital punishment.

The Wickersham suggestion indicates the need of some drastic action. Crime has gained a strong upper hand which will not be easy to overcome. Whether flogging is the method to employ might be determined by inquiry but, in making such an investigation, the gathering of the opinions of the gangsters themselves as to whether it would accomplish their reformation might be pertinent.

RACING FISHING SCHOONERS

The revival of the race between fishing schooners means much to those who are acquainted with such vessels, who have been engaged in the shipbuilding or fishing industry, and to all who are fond of a race no matter where it is staged.

All the racing on water is by no means restricted to yachts. It isn't necessary to go back to ancient history to learn about some exciting contests between steamboats, especially on the Mississippi river, and it is quite certain that those schooners which are built for fishing and transporting large cargoes of fish can produce speed enough to start a merry argument.

After a lapse of time, this year is furnishing another opportunity for determining whether this country or the Nova Scotians can produce the faster fishing vessel. These schooners are built on different lines than the sloops which raced off Newport. They are constructed to stand rough weather, heavy seas, and yet possess lines and carry the canvas which makes it possible for them to cover much distance when it is desired. There is, in fact, keen rivalry between the Gloucester fishermen and those of Nova Scotia. Practical vessels must compete in the race and this year the Gloucester craft, a new all around boat, is pitted against the Bluenose, proud possessor of championship honors.

The initial effort has been highly creditable to the new craft, the Gertrude L. Thebaud. It gave a demonstration that was impressive. It made the Bluenose crew realize that it is engaged in a real contest and whether the latter can be put into any better shape or given any better handling is anxiously awaited. It is a race of real vessels, not those which go out of commission directly the race is over.

EDITORIAL NOTES

October is making more than one wish that the summer cottage could be reopened.

The man on the corner says: Those who drive at 60 miles an hour cannot expect to live in moderation.

Evidence continues to pile up that all is not a bed of roses for former Governor Pinchot in Pennsylvania.

When Prof. Claude turns the water of the Gulf stream into electricity, isn't he getting that much talked of gold from the ocean?

Those who are trying to eliminate needless noises might make a good start by insisting on effective mufflers for the outboard motorboat races.

It is well the Macintosh naturalization case has been carried to the United States supreme court. A final decision on the question is desirable.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Connecticut, with its well ordered political conventions, does not get the hectic, spectacular pre-election campaigns as are shown in other New England states where primary contests are such they try the souls of men.

Take Massachusetts for instance. Your correspondent chanced to be present at one that showed the primary game at its height. "Probably them fellers over there, wonder how t'is that a feller like me gits on the ticket for senator!" It was Bossie Gillis speaking, and with a flourish of his arm he included Senator Butler and Mr. Draper in its sweep. "But it's fellers like me that gits there," Bossie further enlightened the audience.

But I am putting the cart before the horse. Why quote Bossie till we know what it is all about?

It was a republican rally just before the primary. The high lights heading the ticket were the speakers; they were put up before the audience "for observation," just as some folks are sent to hospitals to see what's the matter with them.

It was a garden party given by the woman's republican club of the county, where the contest waxed strong and hot. The garden was abloom with brilliant early fall flowers; great trees shaded a fine lawn; ladies wore sport suits of white, or brilliant color, with gay little hats to top off with.

The presiding officer was an attractive little lady in blue, or some dainty color, with a pink rose or two to set it off. Just back of her sat Senator Butler, Fred Butler, representing Mr. Draper, and "Bossie Gillis, mayor of Newburyport," as he styled himself several times during his speech that followed.

Out on the side lines, under a great tree were Mrs. William M. Butler, Mrs. Frank Roe Batchelder, Mrs. Consalus, and several others prominent in republican circles of the state. Several hundred guests were there, too.

The little lady in blue opened the meeting; then the fun began. She announced that each speaker would be limited to ten minutes, and that a warning bell would tinkle a minute before the time expired. It proved to be one of those little old fashioned silver dinner table bells, that you bang down to get a pleasant little tinkle as the result. It was a pleasant little sound and didn't seem to scare any of the speakers.

Little "Lady in Blue" made a charming introduction of Senator Butler, who gave a most excellent and much applauded talk, stopping before his time was up.

Then came Fred Butler, representing Mr. Draper, and who extolled his candidate. He, too, stopped before the warning tinkle of the silver bell.

Then little "Lady in Blue" stepped forward and said in a polite tone, "I will now introduce Mayor Gillis of Newburyport, a candidate for the United States senate." Then she stepped back, and Bossie stepped to the front, little lady waited a moment to acknowledge the customary recognition given the presiding officer, but Bossie was too busy thinking of the day when he would be one of the Washington folk to bother about bows or preambles, and started in as above quoted. So little lady sat down.

Gillis gave his head a thoughtful scratch, then threw a side glance over to the shaded spot under the trees, where sat Mrs. Frank Roe Batchelder, vice chairman of the state committee, wearing a white sport suit; Mrs. William M. Butler, wife of the senator, dressed in lavender lace; Mrs. Consalus, and other women prominent in republican ranks, all spic-span in garden party clothes. They formed, to most of us, an attractive picture, but Bossie's mind took a different slant. "See them folks over there?" queried the mayor of Newburyport, with a broad sweep of his arm that took in his rival candidates and also the group of women under the big tree. "Well, all of 'um are in it for what they can git out of it. But I'll tell 'um right here, that they ain't going to git none of Bossie Gillis's money!" His voice rose to a high pitch.

Little lady in blue looked perplexed and troubled. She gave a sympathetic glance at the accused group, but Bossie kept right on in that strain till the little lady in blue banged the silver bell. Bossie fired off a few more hot shots, then quit the scene without even a backward glance at the little lady in blue, "them fellers" or the group of women who "looked like millionaires."

After that the rest of the rally seemed pretty tame in comparison, for it was Gillis who got the laughs and applause at his wise cracks. He also got something like 20,000 votes at the primary.

President Hoover has been a collector of rare foreign objects, and in his home, now occupied by Senator Walcott of Connecticut, he had marvelous specimens of carved ivories, great tusks of elephants, rosewood, teak wood and beautifully carved desks and chairs, brought home from countries over sea, and the far east, where he spent many months in travel and work. His collection of skins, furs and rugs is also unique and of great value.

And now his son, Herbert, Junior, is turning his love for collections along the line of stamps, the value of which seems to increase day by day.

Young Hoover will have an unusual opportunity of adding to his collection, through foreign letters that come to the president. Perhaps some day he will vie in air-plane stamps with Col. Green, who is said to have one of the finest collections in the country. As the story runs, Col. Green not long ago purchased for $2500, the sheet of air-mail stamps that was struck off up side down, and so assumed a money value all out of proportion to the other sheets made at the same time. The "freak" sheet first sold for $25, and a year had jumped to $2500, which sum Col. Green paid.

There are many stamp collectors in congress, of great or lesser degree of enthusiasm. Probably Representative Ackerman, of New Jersey, is the most successful collector in the group. But not only collectors, but the average senator or member of the house likes to have one or two of the new stamps "salted down" for future use. They give advance orders to the postmaster at the capital to reserve for them certain stamps, about to be put on sale, and always insist they shall be a "corner lot" showing the number of the issue, just above the perforations.

Speaking of rare foreign pieces, it is the diplomatic corps that can make us open wide our eyes, for they bring with them, many treasures from the home land, with which to adorn the embassy or legation. Some date back to the 14th or 15th century, and include huge desks, benches, chairs, chests, tables and antique wardrobes, such as we of this day never dreamed existed. This was long before the days of highboys and lowboys, and the hand carving, and color attained by centuries, is wonderful. Some of the cabinets are outlined with gold most delicately traced, and others inlaid in a fashion that befits the treasures they once held.

We may say President Hoover is "serious-minded." That is true, but sometimes he displays a boyish trait or enthusiasm showing life is not entirely without "human interest" to him.

For instance, when the president and several members of his cabinet went over to Philadelphia for the opening of the world series games, he showed a trait that proved presidents are not so very different from small boy enthusiasts at the ball field. The president was handed the ball, to make the opening throw, as is customary when a manager can secure the presence of a president. But it took the camera and movie men so long to get ready for the picture of the president throwing the first ball, that when they had finished their work, it was found the same had not been held back but was already under way. Did the president politely hand back the ball to the umpire? Not a bit of it. Mr. Hoover just slipped the ball into his coat pocket, from the hand in which he had held it tightly clutched. And so carried it back to the white house, just as any school boy would have done, keeping it as a souvenir.

RECOMMENDED FOR MERCY

"All the outa town papers! Get your home town paper!"

Virginia's home-sick heart gave a jump. She had not seen a Chattanooga paper for months. It would be almost like being back home to read the society column.

"Chattanooga? Sure, lady. Five cents. That's right. All the outa—I Chattanooga, mister. I'm sorry, but I just sold the last one I had to that lady there."

Virginia, the paper tucked under her arm, was already hurrying across the street on her way to the cafeteria where she usually had her supper. She did not even see the lean, brown youth whose desire for a Chattanooga paper had been thwarted.

Three nights later she stopped again at the home-town paper stand.

"Chattanooga, lady? I'm sorry, but I just sold three to that gentleman there, and they was the last ones I had."

Virginia, turning away feeling rather aggrieved, bumped into a lean, brown youth, whose hazel eyes smiled down into her blue ones.

"Couldn't help hearing you ask for a Chattanooga paper," he said. "It's too bad, but I need these three papers. I'd be glad to loan you one though, and you could send it back to me."

"It doesn't matter at all, thank you." Virginia attempted to pass on, only to be thrown against the young man by the jostling crowd.

"Don't see crowds like this in Chattanooga, do you?" he commented. "Won't you let me pilot you across the street where I can try to persuade you to borrow one of my papers?"

"But I tell you it doesn't—" Another jolt from a passer-by and she found herself being steered by the hazel-eyed one out of the crowd and across the street. They were halfway along the next block before he resumed:

"Possibly we're going the same way. I generally get my supper at a cafeteria right over here, and I think I've seen you there a time or two. If you won't take my paper home with you maybe you'd like to look it over while you eat your supper."

Virginia glanced up at her self-imposed escort and tried to feel intensely annoyed. Before the boyish look in his eyes she capitulated suddenly and laughed:

"Of all the persistence!" she said. "You must be a bond salesman or an automobile salesman, but if you're a Chattanooga boy I reckon you're all right."

"Good girl," said the young man, heartily. "I knew you had sense. I'm not any kind of a salesman, by the way. I'm a lawyer, or going to be."

"You won't lose any cases by not sticking to them," said Virginia, saucily.

"Say, this is luck," exclaimed Virginia's companion, diving for a small, unoccupied table. "I'll go get some water."

"There, I guess we're all set." He seated himself and the blue and the hazel eyes smiled into each other across the table.

"Now," said Virginia, taking up her fork, "tell me who you know in Chattanooga."

"Wait a minute, please!"

Surprised at the change in the boy's tone, Virginia laid down her fork and stared at him.

He swallowed hard, flushed and went on: "Before we break bread together I've got a confession to make. I never was near Chattanooga and I don't know anybody there. I don't need three Chattanooga papers, or one, for that matter, any more than a cat needs two tails. I've been trying ever since the first time I saw you to figure out some way to get acquainted with you. The first time I ran into you at the home-town paper stand a brilliant idea struck me. I've been going over there every night since and buying all the Chattanooga papers the fellow had so that when you came along and wanted one I could offer to loan it to you. I came from Kansas City and my name's Baker—Herbert Baker. There"—taking a long breath—"the defense rests and you'll have to be the judge and the jury. What's the verdict?"

"Well," she glanced sideways and upward into the hazel eyes—"well, I reckon the verdict will be 'guilty, with extenuating circumstances.'"—Exchange.

The Public And The Medical Profession

By J. W. Kennedy, M. D., Philadelphia.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The medical profession today saves lives and relieves suffering in due proportion to the proper remedy applied and the time of such treatment; this is a well-established principle, indeed a fact, in all of the urgent surgical and medical cases.

The principle of early treatment by the application of proper remedy is further anticipated by the so-called preventive medicine of this day. In this, the public is the partner of medicine, for without this alliance, without this cooperation, preventive medicine cannot flourish. Preventive medicine is the most advanced step ever taken by the medical profession, and these health-giving and life-saving accomplishments possible under this plan must be looked upon as assets of the regular medical profession and its scientific allies. However, these privileges are of little value unless medicine secures the interested ear of the laity.

It was with the above idea in mind that the Gorgas Memorial Institute was founded. Composed of a band of physicians, dentists, nurses and other health workers, and many interested laymen it is obviously a group designed to help everyone and not advance the interests of a few. It preaches the doctrine of preventive medicine through its advocation of the periodic health examination. Through the press, the radio and from the speaking platform does it keep the great public informed of the achievements of regular medical practitioners.

Well known is the story of the great salvation of lives by work done in the medical profession in the tropics, and in the acute infectious and contagious diseases of childhood and adult life the world over. Yet there are many people today who do not realize the importance of early treatment. Authorities can show that 90 per cent of the lives which are lost today in the acute surgical abdominal operations are due to delay and lack of cooperation of those in authority. There are many who help and yet sit idly by. It becomes a duty of various agencies to call attention to the necessity of cooperation between the public practitioners of medicine. Without it there is lack of progress, lack of proper protective medical legislation, resulting in ultimate untimely death and suffering for mankind.

Mark Twain says in his book, Life On The Mississippi, where he is contrasting the practical with the beautiful, that he often pitied the physician for very often the intelligent doctor know that the faintest blush on the cheek of a beautiful woman was a ripple which marked beneath some distorting or deathdealing disease. This first blush is often the only early message the doctor obtains and we are asking the public to help us sustain the practice the privileges we have obtained.

Lowell has said, "We breathe freely in the common air thoughts which great hearts bled for," so we must not take for granted the magnificent privileges of this day of preventive medicine. Medical progress cannot go on alone unaided, it must have the continued cooperation and interest of the laity.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Changes

Mr. Editor: The summer is gone and now comes in October with its cool and frosty nights and a harbinger of winter which is just around the corner. Yet these autumn days are perhaps the finest of the year, for in the days that are now recalled, what delight came to us when we wandered out through the woods and climbed the trees and robbed nature of all its treasures—chestnuts, hickory nuts and many other things. Today, through the passing of time chestnut trees are a rarity and only a memory. They have passed on like many of the early customs of New England. Perhaps it would be impossible to name the many changes that have taken place. The old county fair, I am sure, that is a sore spot with many of you who read and recall.

At this time who is there among us who doesn't look back with a wistful longing for that old time husking bee?

The girls who wore woolen stockings that they knitted themselves are also gone and now all we see is silk or rayon or near silk. How do I know? Do you think for one minute I walk along with my eyes closed.

Of course times have changed and if we bring up the subject of some of the happy times we had in our early days we are told, "Well, you people didn't have the speed we have today." And yet, those same wise crackers want to get into their heads that in another 50 years the ones who are coming after them will think they are as funny and old fashioned as they think we are today.

Going back to other days, I want to tell to old timers that when a man received $3 a day he was getting a salary and not wages, and by the time he was 60 he had laid away enough for a rainy day. Now, many men who can hardly sign a pay slip are getting $8 or $10 a day and it is nothing unusual for one of the self same fellows to hit you up for the loan of a five spot. They trot out old man alibi, and tell you that they have a date on with a Jane and "she thinks I am ready money." That is part of the line that is handed out to you and that is another change that has taken place for we can see that there is less respect shown to the women folks now than there was some few years ago when I was a young man. Many of the ones who are working at the hardest and most menial work can see the difference in their lot in life and their children are getting an education in the schools and in the colleges and are ringing up the changes for they are destined to be the big men of tomorrow. Today, as I travel about, I note many changes are taking place in the life in the country for the old folks have worked hard and the boys and girls have left home and have become doctors, lawyers and engineers and with the change in their environment the farms have returned or are gradually returning to that primitive condition they were years ago. It is going to be a very peculiar world when every one has taken up a profession and there is no one to carry on the work as a tiller of the soil. But there comes along another race of people who are taking up the white man's burden and are buying up many of the farms that for years were the heritage of Americans from one generation to another. When the boys of today are old, and when we shall be forgotten as we deserve to be, they will turn over the pages in the book of time and they will try and tell the youth of those days memories of their early days. Why can't we assume the same privilege? Among the things that have gone is the old custom of "bundling." I wonder if you or at least some of you old people can recall what that was. I am sure some of my very dear friends in Norwich will smile when they see that word for it was perhaps one of the oddest customs that was known to us "ancients" but only from hearsay, not from actual experience. Well, changes are taking place all the time and us old timers must keep in step and stay in the parade, or get tossed into the discard and that's that.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Union Manufacturing Company, New Britain.

The Union Manufacturing company was what its name might imply, the union of several previous existing businesses, and was formed by the co-operation of a considerable number of stockholders.

It was organized in August, 1866, with a capital of $100,000. Its 38 original stockholders included men connected with most of the manufacturing concerns then active in the village of New Britain. Among them were:

H. R. Russell, C. B. Erwin, Horace Eddy, of Russell & Erwin Manufacturing company also Dr. T. Woodruff, Mahlon J. Woodruff, both of whom were afterwards officers of the same company. Many others co-operated.

The company appears to have been organized to provide a grey iron foundry and machine shop, which would do work for all and which would do some manufacturing as well. The butt business of James Y. Smith Mfg. company of Providence and of the Union Butt Co., of Providence, were taken over including machinery, tools, patterns, flasks, and stock on hand. The local machine shop business of A. H. Merriman located in the old Humason & Beckley plant on Washington street, and employing ten or 12 men, was also bought out. Land was purchased and a foundry built just east of the Stanley Rule & Level plant lying between the tracks of the railroad to Hartford and that to Berlin.

The one line of product which the company has continued to make from the beginning up to the present, is grey iron castings. Castings for the first cars on the Union Pacific railroad were made here, and a great variety of work was done.

There are no small grey iron castings which require higher quality than those for typewriters. The Union Manufacturing company has made a specialty of this line for more than 40 years. It made castings for the Yost, New Century, Densmore, Blickensdorfer, Hammond, and other pioneer makes. Later it became the source of casting supply for the Underwood and Royal typewriter companies before either of these concerns had moved to Hartford and while their casting requirements were but a few barrels a week. It still specializes in this field, and in castings for small tools and hardware and light and medium machinery.

In 1920, the Somerset Stove foundry at Somerset, Mass., was purchased, giving a considerable increase to the foundry capacity of the company.

In the early 70's a man came to the Union Manufacturing company from Middletown, with a patent pump. The company agreed to make it and shortly afterwards decided to make a full line of house and yard pumps. In 1878 a line of polished copper pumps was added. The pump business was sold out to W. & B. Douglas of Middletown, in 1907.

One day in the spring of 1880, James N. Skinner of Windsor Locks came to New Britain with a chuck he had invented. The Union Manufacturing company had a machine shop which could undertake this work. The business was accordingly established at its plant on May 1, 1880, under the direction of Mr. Skinner, who not only looked after the manufacture of the chucks, but also made a few trips each year to sell them. On May 1, 1887, Mr. Skinner left the company and the next month started the Skinner Chuck company. The Union Manufacturing company had, however, in J. W. Carleton, A. W. Hadley and others, men who were thoroughly competent to handle the manufacturing end of this business. The line was continually increased, and for many years this company has carried the largest line of any of the chuck makers, either in this country or abroad. Its chucks are standard equipment on many makes of machine tools.

In December 1900, the company bought out the Derby Plane Co., of Derby, and commenced the manufacture of carpenters' planes.

Market conditions changed and the demand for butts and pumps declined, and soon after C. W. Corbin became president of the company in 1905, and it was decided to concentrate on the making of chucks and grey iron castings.

The capital stock which was originally $100,000 was increased within the first few years to $200,000, at which figure it remained until 1903 when it was raised to $300,000. The increase from that figure to the present capital of $1,000,000 has been made from earnings.

T. W. Stanley was the first president, from 1866 to 1877. He was succeeded by C. B. Erwin, J. A. Pickett, V. B. Chamberlain and L. A. Vibberts. The chuck business was largely increased during the administration of A. W. Rice, who was president from 1894-1905. The invention of high speed cutting tools just prior to 1900 made it possible to run machines at higher speeds and feeds. The Union Manufacturing company at once met the need by corresponding increase in the strength of its chucks, particularly by lines of all steel chucks.

In January, 1927, the company purchased the chain hoist business of the Franklin Moore company of Winsted, and whose product had been favorably known wherever used.

During the terms of Presidents G. W. Corbin (1905-1908) and A. F. Corbin (1909-1929), the old buildings were replaced and the plant largely added to and re-equipped.

The present officers of the company are: C. S. Neumann, president; F. J. Wachter, vice president; H. H. Wheeler, treasurer; C. B. Mueller, secretary.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 — When young Robert MacGregor Scotten takes over as first secretary of the Paris embassy, Ambassador Walter Edge will have the benefit of the services of a career diplomat on his staff who has been given a special course of sprouts in publicity.

There are not so many of them. Minister Hugh Wilson at Berne is the outstanding example. He was graduated to that high diplomatic rank from service in turbulent times at home as chief of the state department's division of current information. That means the department's publicity set-up.

Young Scotten has been assistant chief of the division for three years. Before that he had wandered about the world extensively—Near East, Far East, Europe and Latin America—in varying grades of diplomatic secretarial rank. Berlin, Paris, Madrid, Constantinople — he already knows them all.

He was withdrawn for special training by the department in publicity aspects of the job and certainly ought to have learned much from the shoulder-to-shoulder contacts with the Washington press corps of the last three years.

New Policy

Scotten's assignment to Paris seems to be in line with a new policy the department adopted some time ago. It involved putting men into the embassies in continental Europe for the specific purpose of establishing and maintaining closer touch with American news writers abroad.

Now and then there have been expressions of pained surprise at the department over the angle given stories coming out of Paris on this or that aspect of Franco-American diplomatic contacts.

No Trouble Seen

Whether young Scotten's new assignment is designed as a follow-up on the more liberal policy as to Paris embassy publicity or not, the Bystander does not know. Certainly, with an experienced politician who is himself something of a publicity veteran, as ambassador, there ought to be little trouble on that score at the French capital.

Walter Edge has exhibited many times in his political career a very complete and keen understanding of publicity values and methods.

Incidentally, Ambassador Edge has not been using his skill at publicity very actively. You do not read much of his doing in the papers. The late Ambassador Herrick got much more mention.

Perhaps Edge is hoping for another Lindbergh flight. That was Herrick's great opportunity, both diplomatically and personally. And he made the most of it.

No More Piles

HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, is guaranteed to banish any form of Pile misery. It gives quick action even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and strengthens the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. Lee & Osgood and druggists everywhere sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it cost you nothing if it doesn't end all Pile agony.

STOMACH UPSET, SOUR? THIS WILL COMFORT

Don't let sour stomach, gas, indigestion make you suffer. And don't use crude methods to get relief. There's no use when millions know the quick way; the pleasant, harmless way.

Just take a spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water. It is alkali in the best form. It neutralizes many times its volume of excess acid—and does it instantly. It will probably end your distress in five minutes. Then you'll know what to do the next time. Crude, harmful methods will never appeal to you again.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia is the perfect way to end digestive disorders due to excess acid for men, women, children—and even babies. It's the method doctors endorse; which hospitals use. For fifty years it has been supreme.

To know the many important uses of Phillips Milk of Magnesia is to keep a bottle in the house, always. Full information with each bottle. Your drug store has the 25c and 50c sizes. Insist on the genuine. A less perfect product may not act the same.

DECLARES WAR BAD HABIT WHICH CAN BE BROKEN

"War is a bad habit that, like any other habit, can be broken," declared J. J. Handsaker, of the National Council for Prevention of War, who spoke Monday at Samuel Huntington, Broadway, Greeneville and Elizabeth Street schools.

"For the first time in history, nations are meeting about a council table where they are learning each others' point of view, are adjusting themselves to life in a changing world and in the give and take of discussion are learning to settle their disputes before their boys are killed, rather than after.

"The Carnegie foundation says the direct and indirect costs of the World war were $337,000,000,000. Ten million boys died in a vain effort to end old men's quarrels. It cost the world on an average $33,700 to kill one boy and ten million were killed at that rate. It is no wonder that times are hard all over the world, when seven out of eight people in the world were busy for four years destroying the savings of centuries

J. J. HANDSAKER

"The tragedy of the World war, however, was not in the misery of all kinds it brought upon the world, the tragedy lay in the fact that it could have all been prevented if only European diplomats had had the habit of meeting for conference. Lloyd George, Briand and Stresemann (before his untimely death), agreed that discussion could have prevented it. The world was prepared for war, it was not prepared for peace. The tragedy of another war, if it comes, will be that the generation which knew the World war did not prepare adequately against another war by building the machinery of peace."

Mr. Handsaker declared that America's adherence to the world court is the next logical step after the Kellogg pact and this step should be taken at once.

Mr. Handsaker is en route to his home in Portland, Ore., where he is associate secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, for Oregon, Washington and Idaho. He has spent the summer in Europe, studying the anti-war movements, especially the league of nations. While in the city he is guest of his daughter, Miss Lois M. Handsaker, of 65 Williams street. His programme in Norwich was arranged by Mrs. Nathan Gilman, international relations chairman of the W. C. T. U., the Council of Jewish Women and the League of Women Voters.

GRADUATION EXAMINATIONS FOR STUDENTS AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 13.— A general examination will be required of everyone at the end of his course, and a satisfactory performance will be necessary before members of the present freshman class and their successors at Connecticut Agricultural college will be granted degrees, it was announced here today by Registrar Marjorie W. Smith.

The new ruling was passed at a recent meeting of the faculty of the college and it was also voted at the same time that hereafter no one may receive a degree with distinction without taking a general examination in his major field, and demonstrating in this way that he has, at graduation, a sufficient grasp of it to be worthy of distinction. It is expected that the examination, details of which have not yet been decided, will include at least a thorough test of the subject matter which has been covered in his major courses, so that candidates for distinction will have to make a careful review.

Hebron Democrats Nominate

Democrats of the town of Hebron nominated Claude W. Jones and Ben Jones as their candidates for representatives in the caucus held Monday night. For judge of probate they endorsed Leon G. BRUSH FIRE, SET BY BOYS, CAUSED DEATH OF FIREMAN P. J. BRENNAN Overcome by smoke and exhaustion while fighting a brush fire, set by boys, off Summit street, about noon, Monday, Fireman Patrick J. Brennan, 48, brother of Deputy Chief Dennis J Brennan of the Norwich fire department, died about 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the W. W. Backus hospital. His death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning, according to Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve, who conducted an investigation. Dr. Clarence M. Thompson was the attending physician. Chief Henry R. Taft of the fire department and the local police are conducting an exhaustive investigation to learn the identity of the boys responsible for the fire.

It was the seventh or eighth call received by the fire department over the week-end for the brush fire, which has all the appearances of having been rekindled, as soon as it was extinguished by the department.

At 11:28 o'clock, Monday morning, Engine No. 6, of which company Fireman Brennan was a member, responded to a telephone call to extinguish the brush fire in the woods, just beyond the Sachem Packing Co.'s plant and off Summit street. The company had been at the scene of the blaze for about a half hour when Engine No. 5, West Main street, notified central fire headquarters that they had just received a telephone call for a brush fire on land off Spring street extension. They were ordered to respond. Just after the latter company had left for the brush fire, Joseph Fetckowski pulled in box 143, Spring and High streets, calling out additional apparatus. It is understood that someone in the neighborhood of the fire had tried to get Engine No. 6 and Engine No. 5 by telephone, but as both companies were out they were unable to complete the calls, and instead of calling the central fire station, had the Fetckowski youth pull in the box.

Arriving on the scene Deputy Chief Brennan saw his brother fighting the flames. He appeared to be all right at that time. A short while later, however, Lieut. Arthur Potter noticed the fireman in an exhausted condition, leaning against his broom. With the help of Fireman John Ulrich, Lieut. Porter carried the overcome fireman out of the smoke.

Brother firemen immediately started to work over him and Dr. Clarence M. Thompson was called and ordered the fireman removed to the hospital. At the hospital Dr. Thompson worked over the semi-unconscious man and it was thought that he would recover. He died about 45 minutes after arrival at the hospital.

Mr. Brennan was born on Thames street, this city, and was the son of Johanna and the late Patrick Brennan. He attended the local schools and about 20 years ago joined the fire department. He was an efficient and valuable member of the department and was highly esteemed by his brother firemen and the officers of the department. He was a member of St. Patrick's parish.

Mr. Brennan was born on Thames street, this city, and was the son of Mrs. Johanna and the late Patrick Brennan, and had always made his home in Norwich. He attended the local schools. His service with the fire department dates back to the old volunteer days, when he served with the old Neptune Hose Co., No. 5. Jan. 1, 1904, he was appointed a call member of the fire department and Nov 1, 1910, was appointed to the regular force as a hoseman. On July 28, 1914, he was transferred to Chemical Co. No. 3, as driver, later went with Engine No. 2, afterwards to Engine No. 5 and since 1927 had been a member of Engine No. 6, in Thamesville. He was an efficient and valuable member of the department and was highly esteemed by his brother firemen and the officers of the department. He was a member of St. Patrick's parish, also a member of the Holy Name society of that parish.

Mr. Brennan is survived by his mother, Mrs. Johanna Brennan, with whom he made his home at 12 North Thames street, one brother, Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan and an aunt, Mrs. Bridget Sullivan. News of his death came with shocking suddenness to his numerous friends and acquaintances who extend heartfelt sympathy to the family in their bereavement.

Chief Taft and the police are making every effort to apprehend the boys who have been setting the brush fires. When caught they will be held strictly accountable to the authorities. Brush and grass fires are exceedingly dangerous, especially during the present drought. They not only burn over valuable wooded land, but cause loss of human life and endanger houses and other buildings, the chief said Monday night.

PLAINFIELD, CANTERBURY IN C. A. R. SIXTH PILGRIMAGE

Plainfield and Canterbury were the objectives for the sixth annual pilgrimage of Gen. Ebenezer Huntington chapter, Children of the American Revolution, which was held Saturday afternoon with eight automobiles conveying the group. Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell was in charge of the transportation and Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers arranged the programme. The cars were driven by Mrs. Bidwell, Lester Greenman, Charles H. Standish, Mrs. Albert T. Sinay, Mrs. Charles V. James, Allyn M. Brand; Miss Florence M. Congdon, and Miss Marion B. Wightman.

Mrs. Bidwell took a picture of the party, grouped in front of the Lafayette inn at Plainfield and at the boulder marking the site of the French allies in June, 1781. Members of the society gave historical data at the various points of interest and at the Prudence Crandall house in Canterbury Mrs. Lester Greenman told the story of Prudence Crandall and her school, the first school for colored children, which was started in 1833.

The society is indebted to Allan Forbes of Boston for information concerning the march of the French allies from Providence to Yorktown through Plainfield and to Richard H. Dana, Jr., of New York city for architectural details of the Canterbury church and the Prudence Crandall house.

The places visited on the pilgrimage were the following in order named: Norwich & Worcester railroad tunnel, built between 1835 and 1840, costing nearly $30,000; former compressed air plant, said to have been the first in the United States; Plainfield academy, organized in 1770; Benedict parsonage at Plainfield, originally the Wing homestead, built about 1720 and occupied by Rev. Joel Benedict from 1784 to 1816; Lafayette inn, old inn kept by Capt. Joseph Eaton, where Generals Washington and Lafayette stopped; statue of Joan of Arc at St. John's church; the old Plainfield church, the fourth to be erected in the town; Capt. Eleazer Cady house, where commissary supplies were stored; marker placed by Deborah Avery Putnam chapter, D. A. R., to mark site of French camp; grave of Major James Fitch, first settler of Plainfield; grave of Alice (Bradford) (Adams) Fitch, granddaughter of Gov. William Bradford of the Mayflower; the Prudence house, the Canterbury church.

SPECIAL SYNAGOGUE SERVICES FOR HOLIDAY SEASON

At a special holiday service Monday evening at the Community synagogue of Norwich Church street, Rabbi Theodore Friedman, senior student at the Jewish Theological seminary, New York, delivered an able and interesting sermon on the subject, The Priceless Gift, which was listened to by a large congregation. The services will be continued today (Tuesday) and Wednesday and will be conducted by Rabbi Friedman. In his sermon Monday evening he spoke in part as follows:

"The lure of life is too strong even for the cynic. How much more powerful is it in normal human beings. The will to live is a fundamental urge in human nature. Life is the precious gift. This precious gift can be made ours now and forever. Judaism offers two paths to immortality—that of righteousness and that of the deathlessness of the Jewish people. It is in these that we must walk if we are to possess the priceless gift of life forever."

This (Tuesday) morning at 10 o'clock, memorial services will be preceded by a brief address by Rabbi Friedman, the topic of which will be "The Halls of Memory." Two additional services are to be held this (Tuesday) evening at 7:30 and Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock. Wednesday, the concluding day of the feast, is known as Simchas Tora, or Rejoicing of the Law.

Fifth Birthday Party

A birthday party was held at the house of Mr. and Mrs. F. Cipriani, 25 Thames street, in honor of Frances, for her fifth birthday. Those present were Frances, Michael, Guido, Frank Cipriani, Alfred, Josephine Toscano, Helen, Paul, Lena Cipriani. Refreshments were served by the Mrs. Mary Cipriani and Mrs. Mary Toscano. The little guests were entertained with radio selections and Frances received many presents.

SPEAKS FOR OBSERVANCE OF CONFIDENCE WEEK

An interesting talk on his recent trip to the insurance convention in Canada was given Monday noon by Louis M. Crandall at the weekly meeting of the Contact club at the Wauregan hotel. President Ernest O. Rodier presided and Edward T. Connelly was the song leader. The club received invitations to attend a series of lectures to be given under the auspices of the Woman's City club this fall and a lecture to be held under the auspices of the men's class of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church next month. Alex Pasnik, John Bell and Roy Smith were named a committee to cooperate with the Norwich Lions club in the "confidence week" programme sponsored by the Lions. The speaker of the meeting, Louis M. Crandall, told of attending the insurance convention held recently in Canada.

Mr. Crandall remarked that he thought the club expected him to say something about his address before the International Life Underwriters in Toronto.

Mr. Crandall stated that as a result of his appearing before the International Congress of Life Underwriters in Toronto, he has been invited to speak before 27 National Life Underwriters associations as far west as San Francisco and in various other parts of the country.

After giving a few quotations from his Toronto convention talk he explained that he had something which seemed to him of more importance for the Contact club and he solicited their interest in the "Confidence week Program" which is being sponsored by the International Lions club with the cooperation of other civic fraternal and religious associations.

The idea of this campaign is to arouse an interest in the local situation and see if something can be done to arouse some interest in action in this important local condition. He stated that for the past week trolley cars had been carrying signs through Norwich advertising Norwich people to trade in New London. He said he thought we ought to show a little of the same spirit and suggested that those who have money to spend would spent some of it now in the purchase of things they needed. With this in mind he asked the local Contact club if they would appoint a committee to cooperate with some three thousand other clubs and organizations in America, who are trying to help present conditions. He read the following item to the committee and commended it to their consideration. He said that he felt sure that Mr. Depression and his daughter Misfortune could be buried and that we could all rejoice in the birth of Miss Optimism if every one would get behind this program and push in a whole hearted way.

"The Muskegon, Michigan Lions club has suggested an excellent plan for making this week a success. Committees have been appointed from all service clubs and are petitioning all citizens who can afford to, to spend $100 this week. Single men whose incomes are $1500 a year, they are asking to spend $50 dollars during the week of October 20."

At the conclusion of his talk, Mr. Crandall was given a rising vote of thanks.

BAILEY DEFEATS JONES FOR HEBRON SELECTMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

HEBRON, Oct. 13.—With a one-vote margin Clarkson F. Bailey defeated Claude W. Jones, 114 votes to 113, today in the voting for first selectmen, made necessary by the tie of Oct. 6. Mr. Bailey is a republican and Mr. Jones, democrat. The polls were open from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.

BROADCAST WILL SHOW USE OF ESCAPE LUNG

The manner in which navy men may escape from a submerged submarine, unable to emerge, by use of the Momsen "lung" will be broadcast Thursday afternoon from the submarine base at Groton.

The program is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock at the escape training tank, recently constructed at the base at a cost of approximately $120,000.

The tank towers about 135 feet and from a submarine compartment in the bottom, men, equipped with the "lung," will leave through an escape lock and ascend through water to a pent house on the top of the structure. Their progress will be broadcast.

Lieut. C. B. Momsen, who perfected the "lung," will be in the submarine compartment and will be heard giving instructions to the men who will ascend through the water in the tank. One microphone will be in the compartment and another will be at the top of the tank.

Plans are for a special announcer in a diving bell to go into the water in the tank and report the progress of the men to the top.

The Momsen "lung" resembles an oversize hot-water bottle to which is attached a rubber mouthpiece and nose clip. Chemicals purify exhaled air, allowing the user of the "lung" to rebreath the air.

THREE HURT IN CRASH AT HARLAND ROAD CORNER

As the result of an automobile crash Monday morning about 7.45 o'clock at the junction of Washington street and Harland road, two automobiles were considerably damaged and three persons were slightly hurt. The injured were Richard P. Gregson, of Harland road, wrenched back; Clifford LaRochelle, No. 66 Myers avenue, cut lip and broken tooth; Miss Grace LaRochelle, No. 66 Myers avenue, cuts and bruises. After treatment at the W. W. Backus hospital all three returned to their homes. Mr. Gregson was thrown out into the highway in the crash.

The machines were a Ford delivery truck, driven by Mr. Gregson, and a Ford sedan, owned by William LaRochelle and driven by Clifford LaRochelle. The truck was being driven out of Harland road, and the sedan was headed north on Washington street. Mr. LaRochelle was summoned to appear in the city court this (Tuesday) morning by Constable L. A. Fenton, to answer to a charge of failure to grant the right of way. The damage to the machines totals about $400.

The Gregson truck received damage to front wheels, front fender and mudguard, also broken head lights. The LaRochelle sedan received broken head lights, winshield, door, glass and mud guards, with radiator badly bent. Two state policemen and Constable Fenton checked up on the accident, and directed traffic as a large crowd gathered and filled the highway. A wrecker came and towed the truck away.

FOUR PLAINTIFFS SECURE COMMON PLEAS JUDGMENTS

Judgments in favor of Niantic, Montville and New London plaintiffs were given in four cases in the common pleas court here Monday morning by Judge C. B. Waller.

Judgment of $342.25 was awarded the Nehantic garage of Niantic against Harry Neade of New Britain for repairs and storage of an automobile.

John R. Kaplan of Montville was awarded $100.53 against Joseph and Mary Spagorski of East Lyme for groceries and grain.

Arthur Messen of New London was granted a verdict for $231.16 against Melvin Mason of Niantic. The suit was brought to recover on the cost of building a roof for the defendant.

Cyrus Brown of New London was awarded a verdict for $110 against Marion H. Lewis of the same city for rent at Potter and John streets.

FORMER STONINGTON WOMAN PETITIONS FOR DIVORCE

HARTFORD, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Hewitt Miller, formerly of Stonington, and now a resident of Hartford, has brought an action in superior court for a divorce from her husband, John Louis Miller, son of Charles W. Miller, Stonington iron manufacturer, on the grounds of intolerable cruelty. Mrs. Miller also asks for alimony and permission to resume her maiden name. Papers were served on Mr. Miller Saturday and are returnable in November.

The couple were married in Stonington, December 26, 1927, and were separated March 20, 1929. Mr. Miller has announced he will contest the action.

Petty Thieving Reported

Several petty thefts over the week end were reported Monday to the local police. A complaint was made by John P. Edward of York avenue that two chickens were stolen from his coops Saturday night. Two motorists reported the theft of articles from parked automobiles. Groceries, meats and other household supplies were stolen from the machines. One of the machines was parked in front of the Porteous and Mitchell store and the other on Broadway, opposite the Broadway theatre.

City Court Cases

In the city court Monday morning, five men who were arrested Saturday night for intoxication were fined $5 and costs each and four others who were arrested on Sunday were fined $10 and costs each Five of the lot had to go to jail as they had no money to settle their fines.

On the charge of violation of traffic rules, Harry Cohen of this city was fined $1 and costs. It was claimed that he parked his car Saturday in restricted territory below the Porteous & Mitchell store on Main street with the result that a fire engine was held up on its way to a fire on the West Side of the city.

Patients Dismissed At Hospital

Patients discharged at the W. W. Backus hospital over the week end were the following:

Oct. 11—Emma Toyiro, 8 Huntington Green; Emily Bliven, Lincoln avenue; Anthony Barboso, 27 Short street, Fall River, Mass.; Mrs. Fred Magnusam, 18 Whitaker avenue; Mrs. James Adams and infant daughter, Norwich Town; William Pellerin, Wauregan, Conn.; Mrs. Charles Haskell, Ledyard.

Oct. 12.—Mrs. Leland Raney, 80 North Main street.

Oct. 13.—Mrs. Charles Hebert and infant son, Plainfield.

Of 19,000,000 acres in South Carolina, only about 6,000,000 are under cultivation.

Hartford Girl Made Happy

MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition easily corrected.

Take the experience of Mrs. Margaret Newbury, 21 Milford Street, Hartford, Conn. who says: "Nothing seemed to please Helen. She was fretful and feverish, suffered a lot from colds. She was constipated.

"We saw California Fig Syrup advertised and got some. It relieved her trouble promptly; made her bright and happy again. We have used it since then for all her upsets."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, headaches; to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments.

Appetite is increased by the use of California Fig Syrup; breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are aided; weak bowels and stomach are strengthened.

For your protection, the genuine always bears the name California.

BOY SCOUTS TO HAVE 40 ACRE SITE ON SHETUCKET RIVER FOR CAMPING

At the regular meeting of the executive board of the eastern Connecticut council, Boy Scouts of America, held in the chamber of commerce rooms Monday evening at 7:30, a resolution was adopted to accept the offer of the Connecticut Light and Power Co., of a 40-acre tract on the Shetucket river one mile above the tunnel plant as a week-end camping site. Appreciation for the generosity of the local concern was voiced and it was recommended that steps be taken immediately to get the scouts and scoutmasters to visit the site, to improve the trails, to survey the land, and in the near future to start the building of winter shelters.

The acquisition of the site comes as a result of months of search for a suitable spot where the local scouts would feel at home with their projects. Those who have seen the site are enthusiastic in their praise of it. The board feels that the whole morale of scouting in Norwich will be improved by the boys improvising shelters and trails and building towers, etc., and Scout Executive Sellman is hopeful that this development will result in a strong organization for older boys which will hold the boys in scouting and increase their loyalty towards its ideal of appreciation of the great out-of-doors. It is further hoped that the development of this site will lead towards an interest in and the acquisition of a summer camp where fresh water for swimming is available.

A resolution was passed thanking Miss E. M. Norton for her continued interest and support of the Boy Scouts.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Reports from special committees were heard. Reports on the budget control receipts and disbursements were read. A report was given by the executive on this council's index in relation to other councils in New England.

It was pointed out that this council is very low in the number of scouts per ten thousand of population and that there are but 3 first class scouts to every hundred scouts who enroll. After discussion President H. D. Larrabee indicated his intention of appointing a territorial committee to see what could be done in the territory to raise council standing.

Those present were: H. D. Larrabee, C. V. James, Rev. T. M. Shipherd, F. Russell Smith, Charles B. Gilbert, William Wyman, Charles Colt, F. H. Wyant, James Pedace and John L. Sellman. Many of the board members were out of town and could not attend the meeting.

KOZIOL-DARR BOUT TO OPEN INDOOR SEASON OF SHYMA CLUB ON OCT. 24

Al Koziol and Vic Darr, local boxers between whom there is keen rivalry, signed yesterday to try conclusions in the main bout of an all star card that opens the indoor boxing season of the Shyma Boxing club at Parish hall on Oct. 24th. This bout has been in the works for nearly a year, the weight differences being the only thing that prevented it from taking place last spring.

With a layoff of several months Koziol has put on considerable weight, in fact he is much heavier than Darr right now. In the articles of agreement Koziol agrees to make 144 pounds for Darr who will come in around 142. As Koziol tipped the scales yesterday at 147 pounds he has little fear that he will have any difficulty in making the required weight. Koziol has been keeping in nice condition all through the summer and feels that he will come back to the ring even stronger than when he was fighting in the 135 pound division. At that time he was finding it difficult to keep his weight down to the lightweight limit.

Local fans are already forming opinions as to the outcome of the bout, some picking Darr by virtue of his one-round knockout of Julio Rossi and his splendid showing against Ero Peterson. Those who pick Koziol point to his record of 143 fights and his brilliant string of knockouts. Those who are conservative claim the bout is an even bet.

Although the supporting card has not been arranged the Shyma club has Jimmy Quinn and Joe Russo of Westerly as principals in the other two star bouts. Opponents for these boys have not yet been picked.

YALE NOT ENTITLED TO ONE OF HER TOUCHDOWNS

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—Not that it makes any particular difference now, but in the cold, gray dawn of the morning after it has been discovered that one of the Yale touchdowns against Georgia Saturday was not in accord with the football statutes, made and provided in such cases.

The miscarriage of justice came at the beginning of the second half when Yale was leading Georgia 7 to 6 and then increased the count to 14 to 6.

Yale kicked off. The ball struck in the arms of Kelly, Georgia back, who ran a few steps to his own 20 yard line, where he was hit hard by Captain Vincent of Yale. With the impact of the Yale tackle's body the ball bounded from Kelly's arms straight into the hands of Barres, Yale end.

Barres caught the ball in his stride and dashed straight ahead over the goal line.

The officials evidently overlooked rule 6, governing the kickoff, for without a question the touchdown was allowed and the ball placed in position for the try for extra point, which was quickly added by Sullivan's toe.

Rule 6 says:

"If the ball is recovered by a player of the receiving team before it is declared dead, he may run with it, pass it backward or kick it; if the ball is recovered by a player of the kicking team the ball is dead at the point of recovery."

Walter R. Okeson, commissioner of the eastern association for the selection of football officials, was asked by the Associated Press for an opinion on the play. Commissioner Okeson replied:

"Rule six says that if kicking team recovers the ball on a kickoff it is dead at the point of recovery and in supplementary note it is stated that after a kickoff the ball is to be considered a kicked ball until it is declared dead; therefore, the kicking team may not run with the ball if recovered on a kickoff."

Captain Maffett of Georgia made no protest to Referee W. T. Halloran so far as could be observed from the stands, so perhaps he, too, had forgotten the rule against running with a fumbled ball, or he might have been more confident than his team's supporters that the Georgians would score two touchdowns later in the afternoon, the last and deciding one in the last two minutes of play.

STEVENS DECLINES TO COMMENT ON TOUCHDOWN

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 13—(AP)—Mal Stevens, Yale football coach, tonight declined to comment on the disputed touchdown made by Barres, Eli end, against Georgia Saturday, other than to say that he was willing to have his team re-play the game at any time if this would settle the dispute.

The Yale mentor also declined to comment on the opinion given on the play by Walter R. Okeson, commissioner of the eastern association for selection of football officials. Neither Stevens nor other Yale officials would say tonight whether they would inscribe the score of the game on the Yale records as an 18 to 14 or an 18 to 7 victory for Georgia.

GEORGIA COACHES ASK "WHAT OF IT?"

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 13—(AP)—H. J. Stegeman, athletic director of the University of Georgia and member of the national football rules committee, and Head Coach Harry Mehre, believe Yale's second touchdown against Georgia Saturday was illegal, but they also inquire "What of it?"

Their general reaction is that since they won a matter of one touchdown more or less is immaterial. Stegeman said no question would be raised by Georgia.

"The kickoff rule, as stated in section one of rule six," Stegeman said, "is so definite and plain that it precludes the possibility of differences of opinion. The rule states that if the ball is recovered by a player of the kicking team, the ball is dead at the point of recovery."

McCARTHY WILL MEET WITH YANKS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—One day this week, possibly tomorrow, Joseph V. McCarthy is expected to visit the offices of the New York American leaguebaseball club and sign a contract to manage the Yankees.

The Yankee offices today observed the Columbus day holiday but they will be open tomorrow and the rest of the week, so the former manager of the Cubs may send his card and soon thereafter take a pen in hand to sign a contract.

Neither Jacob Ruppert, president, nor E. G. Barrow, secretary, has admitted that McCarthy will transfer his allegiance from the National to the American league, but every one else in baseball seems to have taken it for granted.

FAST CARDS OF RACING AT STAFFORD FAIR

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Oct. 13—With 13,000 present, the Stafford Springs fair opened its three-day session today with a snappy card of horse-racing that kept the record attendance in high excitement throughout the afternoon.

There were three divisions on the card. The 2:10 pace, purse of $1,000 was won in straight heats by Neil Brooke, Art Martin up, while Hollywood Lee, Rodney, romped to victory in the same manner in the 2:22 trot. In the former event the track record of 2:05 was within one-half second of being tied in the first heat.

The other event was the 2:18 pace and because there were 12 horses entered, it had to be run in two divisions. King Pluto was the victor after he had also finished first in his division. The first four horses in each of the divisions were entered in the finals.

On Tuesday, which will be Governor's Day, Walter Cox, one of four Grand Circuit drivers here for the races, is expected to handle a horse.

FARRELL-DI BUONO TIE WITH SWEETSER-VOIGHT

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 13—(AP)—Johnny Farrell of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Sal Di Buono of Larchmont, N. Y., finished all even in an 18-hole pro-amateur exhibition golf match today with Jess Sweetser and George Voight of New York.

The pros had a slight edge on Sweetser and Voight on the first nine, their best ball of 34 giving them a one-hole lead at the turn. The amateurs' best ball was 35.

The first three holes of the incoming nine were halved in par figures but Voight won the 13th and 14th with birdie threes to give the amateurs a lead of one up. The next three holes were halved. Di Buono squared the match by winning the last hole with a birdie three. The pros' best ball for the incoming nine was 33 for a 67. Voight and Sweetser had 32 for a 67. The individual scores were: Farrell 72; Di Buono 72; Voight 71; Sweetser 76.

DEMAR WINS NATIONAL MARATHON AT PORTCHESTER

PORTCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 13—(AP)—Clarence H. DeMar, of Keene, N. H., veteran of many marathon races, today ran 65 entries into the ground to win the sixth annual national marathon from New York to Portchester, a distance of 26 miles.

His time was 2 hours, 46 minutes and 15 seconds. He ran unattached.

Percy Wyer, running under the colors of the Monarch A. C., Toronto, Canada, finished second in 2:51:30, while Arthur J. Garvin, Millrose, A. C., New York, came in third in 2:54:14.

Albert (Whitey) Mitchelson, of Portchester, winner of last year's race, crossed the finish line fourth in 2:58:18. Edwin White, Port Richmond, S. I., was fifth and John D. Semple, Lynn, Mass., was sixth.

LLOYD LEADS FIELD IN CASCADES TOURNEY

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 13—(AP)—Lawrence M. Lloyd, of the Greenwich Country club, was medalist in the qualifying round of the annual fall golf championship at the Cascades club here today, leading a field of 55 golfers with 37-39—76 over the championship layout.

Schuyler R. Van Vechten, of Baltrusol, finished one stroke back of Lloyd with 36-41—77. The rest of the field was well strung out.

Mrs. B. R. Shriver, of Pittsburgh, won the medal in the qualifying round of the annual fall women's championship at the Homestead course with a round of 90.

Ralph D. Cutler, Hartford Country club also qualified with 44-41—85.

CUBS ACQUIRE SWEETLAND FROM PHILADELPHIA CLUB

CHICAGO, Oct. 13—(AP)—The Cubs today purchased Lester Sweetland, left handed pitcher, from the Philadelphia Nationals, their first move to strengthen the pitching staff that sagged at the close of the recent campaign.

President William L. Veeck said the deal was strictly cash, but did not reveal the amount of money involved. Sweetland was with the Phillies three seasons, coming up from Spartanburg of the Sally league. He won six and lost 15 games with a last place club during the recent season, and won 13 and lost 11 in 1929, when the Phillies finished fifth. He was credited with three victories and 15 defeats in 1928.

MACK, JR., QUITS FOOTBALL TO PLEASE HIS FATHER

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13—(AP)—Connie Mack, Jr., son of the manager of the world champion Athletics, said tonight he had acceded to the wishes of his father and would play no more football. Connie, Jr., is 18, tall and slender, and Connie, Sr., thinks football a bit too strenuous for him. Besides, he wants the boy to save his strength for baseball. Young Mack is a pitcher and captain of the Germantown academy team. Last year he played end on the football team.

GOVERNMENTAL CUPID

(The municipality of Hanover, Germany, is glad to have folks make dates. It rents billboard space at street corners where Fritz can leave a message for Gretchen and the like.—News Item.)

Now, ain't that sumpin'? But just imagine the complications this billboard message stuff is going to lead to. Now here's Fritz who is smitten with Gretchen 'cause Gretchen is the last word in Hanover pulchritude. He goes to the billboard and writes: "Dear Gretchen: Please meet me at 7:30 tonight by the old windmill down by the canal. Love, Fritz." Gretchen comes along and reads the message, goes home and puts on her best bib and tucker and is just thrilled over the date, for Fritz' old man owns the most flourishing weiner business in Hanover and Fritz is the only son.

But— and here's the catch—Gretchen's not the only one who read that message on the billboard and Fritz is not the only lad in Hanover who thinks Gretchen is ace high. The result is that when Gretchen gets to the old windmill there's Adolph, Hans Ludwig, Frederick and about 50 other swains waiting for her. Along comes Fritz and sees Gretchen surrounded by the boys, and thinking Gretchen is two-timing him, goes and throws himself in the canal.

Then there's Gustave who's married to Johanna who has a shrewish temperament and is intensely jealous of Gus. Gus rankles under the restraint imposed upon him by his wife and he decides to step out. There's a buxom little miss who tends the bakery on the corner and who has taken Gus' fancy. Gus decides to step out and goes to the billboard to write a message. And he writes: "Will the little girl at the bakery meet me under the linden tree near the cemetery tonight. Object— platonic friendship." And he signs his name as Josef. Later Johanna, who is inclined to be a gossip and who gets many a choice morsel from the billboard, chances by on her daily walk. She reads the billboard and the messages. When her eyes rest upon the message to the bakery girl she gives a start of surprise. "Ah ha," says she, "those writing are mighty close like Gus," and the seed of suspicion immediately takes root in fertile soil. Before night the suspicion has bloomed into a good healthy bunch of poison ivy. So that is why Gus was brushing up the pantaloons so carefully today. Well Gus is going to get a surprise.

When night comes Johanna steals to the old linden tree and waits. Pretty soon Gus comes whistling along and spies her and not recognizing her in the dim light says, "Well, honey, you did come, didn't you?" And then Johanna stands up and declares herself with "Yes, I did come, you perfidious hunk of limberger," and she promptly and forcibly smacks him one on the chin. When Gus regains his senses he vows that before another sun has set he'll tear that billboard down if it's the last thing he does.

Yes, that billboard love note exchange is bound to cause a lot of trouble.

Santa Flattens Munce

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 13—(AP)— Jose Santa, towering heavyweight from Portugal, continued his string of victories by scoring a technical knockout over Gordon Munce, of Bayonne, N. J., in the third round of a scheduled 10 round bout here tonight. Santa floored Munce three times before the bout was stopped with the former national amateur heavyweight champion helpless. Santa weighed 263, and Munce 212.

FOURTEEN OUTBOARD RECORDS FALL AS NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS CLOSE

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 13—(AP)—Three days of record breaking outboard motorboat racing on the Connecticut river were brought to a close tonight with the crowning of eight champions in the final events of the National championships. Finals were held today in classes B, C, D, and F, while the championships in classes A and E were decided in yesterday's racing.

Fourteen out of a possible 18 world's motorboat records were shattered during the three days of racing which began Saturday, with the eastern division championships. Seven of the new records were established today.

Walter Widegren, of Glencove, N. Y., sped over the five mile course at a speed of 46.15 miles an hour to shatter the record for class D, division 2, and to set the fastest time ever made by an outboard motorboat in competition. The previous best time made in competition was 45.91 miles an hour attained by Ray Pregenzer, of Antioch, Ill., Saturday in class F, division 3.

The champions crowned today were:

Class B, division 1 and 2, Elliott A. Spencer, Westbrook.

Class B, division 3, Bronson E. Lamb, Jacksonville, Fla.

Class C, division 1 and 2, C. Mulford Scull, Ventnor City, N. J.

Class C, division 3, Travis Chestnut, Jacksonville, Fla.

Class D, division 1 and 2, Walter Widegren, Glencove, N. Y.

Class D, division 3, Willie Overton, Norwalk.

Class F, division 1 and 2, James R. Ardiel, Toronto, Canada.

Class F, division 3, Ray Prengenzer, Antioch, Ill.

Winners of yesterday's finals were:

Class A, division 1 and 2, Fay Irey, Detroit.

Class A, division 3, Miss Hilda Muller, Bay City, Mich.

Class E, division 1 and 2, Fred Mikkelson, Milwaukee, Wis.

Class E, division 3, Kenneth MacKenzie New Haven.

An assault will be made tomorrow in a special event on the one mile straightaway speed record of 50.93, held by Pregenzer. Over 30 pilots will participate in the mile speed trials.

ACADEMY CROSS COUNTRY TEAM BEATS AGGIE FROSH

The Academy's first team in cross-country got off to a successful start, just as the seconds did last week, when they won from the Connecticut Aggie freshmen Monday afternoon at the campus. The score was 23 to 32, and in winning, Coach Sheridan's boys made an impressive showing. Last Thursday the local second team defeated the Bulkeley of New London seconds.

Wood was the first man in yesterday and was followed by Hank Mahoney and Lyons, giving the Academy the first three men and, which means in most cases, the meet. Thomas, of Connecticut, was fourth and Williams, also of the visitors, was fifth. Sixth and seventh places also went to the Aggies in Bailey and Giberman, while Capt. Richardson, of N. F. A., was eighth and Baranowski, another Wildcat, was ninth. The time was 18 minutes, 3 seconds. The judges were Paul Bitgood and R. W. Dittrich.

The next meet on the local schedule will find the first team engaging Stonington high at Stonington, Friday afternoon.

YALE SQUAD GIVEN LECTURE ON MISTAKES

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 13—(AP)—Yale football team got a lecture today on all the mistakes it made in the Georgia game and then was set to work on the next assignment—Brown, conqueror of Princeton.

After an hour's blackboard session, the first team went through a signal drill while the second team was given dummy scrimmage.

McLennan and Muhlfeld, backs, and Lindenberg, end, were absent, nursing bruises. Dunn was moved up to Booth's backfield to team with Beane and Taylor. Madden took Lindenberg's post.

Charley Snead, back, whose eye developed an infection, will not play against Army, it was announced.

ROSENBLOOM TO DEFEND TITLE AGAINST BAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, will defend his title in Madison Square Garden, October 22, in a 15-round match with Abie Bain, of Newark, N. J., it was announced here today. The bout takes the place of a ten round match between Justo Suarez and Kid Kaplan, lightweights, which has been shifted to the October 17 date at the Garden.

Harvard Squad Rests.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 13—(AP)—Though Harvard's first major game, against the Army, is only a few days away, Head Coach Arnold Horween gave his Crimson varsity squad a holiday today and the players emulated the proverbial motorman by attending the Fordham-Boston college game in Boston.

Harvard came through the Springfield game without injury and it is likely that Horween will have his full strength against the cadets.

Hennigan Wins Marathon.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 13—(AP)—Jimmy Hennigan, of Medford, Mass., won the annual Knights of Columbus modified marathon from Concord to Manchester today. He did the 19 miles in one hour, 56 minutes, and ten seconds. Joe Quirk, of the Dorchester club, was second and George Durgin, of Manchester Y. M. C. A., third. The team prize went to the Manchester Y. M. C. A., which upset the advance dope that Dorchester would win.

Lawson First At Chicopee

CHICOPEE, Mass., Oct. 13—(AP)—Ted Lawson, of Enfield, Conn., finished first in the Knights of Columbus modified marathon race here this afternoon over an eight mile course. Lawson finished four minutes in front of Leon Clapper, of the Rands Boys' club, of Leominster. The Nutmegger's time was 40 minutes, 35 seconds. Wally Young, of North Adams, Company K, was third. There were 20 starters, 16 finishing.

MRS. HILL LEADS FIELD IN WOMEN'S AMATEURS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13—(AP)—While the galleries followed the defending title holder and other stars, Mrs. O. E. Hill, Kansas City, not spectacular but decidedly steady, slipped in today to post a 79, two under par, and capture medal honors in the qualifying round of the 1930 women's national amateur golf championship.

The golfing lady from Missouri, who took up the game six years ago because of ill health, went out in 40, one over par, but lopped three strokes off standing figures with a 39 for the inward stretch.

That bit of sur-par golf showed the way to Miss Glenna Collett, New York city, seeking her third successive title and fifth all-time crown, and others whose names are considerably better known.

One stroke behind the leader came 19-year-old Helen Hicks, of Inwood, Long Island, runner-up in the women's Canadian championship this year. Miss Hicks was out in 40 and carded the same score on the homeward stretch.

Walker Kayoes Mandell

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 13—(AP)—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, made short work of his scheduled ten-round fight with Mike Mandell of St. Paul tonight, being awarded a technical knockout before the end of the first round.

Walker, although outweighed 16 pounds, pounded Mandell to the floor for two counts of nine and then sent him reeling to the ropes, helpless. The referee stopped the fight without counting again. Walker took but eight or ten swings. Mandell scarcely landed a blow.

Rocco Beats Heeney

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13—(AP)— Emmet Rocco, Ellwood City, gained a ten-round decision here tonight over Tom Heeney, New Zealand heavyweight. Rocco weighed 188 pounds, Heeney 205.

Patsy Pironne, 181, Akron, Ohio, outpointed Frank Florian, 181, Cleveland, in eight rounds. Jack Tracey, Negro, Louisville, Ky., knocked out Tom McCaffrey, Youngstown, Ohio, in the first round of a six round bout. Tracey weighed 154 and McCaffrey 158 1-2.

De Vos Beats Anderson

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13— (AP) — Rene De Vos, hard punching Belgian middleweight, won over Joe Anderson, Covington, Ky., on a foul in the eighth round of their 10-round bout at the arena tonight. De Vos weighed 160 1-2, Anderson 164.

Eastern Football Briefs

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—(AP)—With the important Dartmouth game just ahead, Coach Lou Little sent his Columbia football varsity through two and one half hours of hard work today.

A dummy scrimmage lasted for an hour and a half with the freshmen putting on Dartmouth plays. Then followed a half hour of scrimmage against the freshmen. Steve Grenda, out with an injured leg for a week, was back at his guard post today.

Army's football team reported for practice with six first string players still on th injured list and unable to play. Suarez has about recovered but Bowman, Humber, Miller, Price, Hillsinger and Stecker all are on the sidelines.

Today's workout in preparation for the Harvard game consisted of limbering up exercises, signal practice and a discussion of last Saturday's game.

Mistakes that cropped up in the battle with Hampden-Sidney occupied the attention of Coach Gil Dobie of Cornell as the big Red squad began pointing with the game with Princeton.

Dobie was dissatisfied with his team's showing against the Virginians, despite its score of 76-6. The line was sluggish and the backs failed to operate with customary facility.

Princeton had the lightest practice of the season today as most of the Tigers who saw action against Brown were excused from the drill. The men who reported were drilled in interference and passing. Trix Bennet, who played Saturday for the first time since the Chicago contest a year ago, had the benefit of a lot of individual instruction in passing.

Vic Hanson's Syracuse footballers began a week of light workouts, getting ready for the clash Saturday with Pittsburgh. Concentration will be placed on defense against Pitt plays, but very little scrimmage work is contemplated, according to the coaching staff.

The Orange came through its third straight victory Saturday with Rutgers in good shape, no player being on the injured list. Thus far no invader has scored against the Orange. Today's session was given over to two hours of signal drill and dummy practice.

FORDHAM NOSES OUT BOSTON COLLEGE BY FIELD GOAL IN LAST PERIOD

BOSTON, Oct. 13— (AP) —After fumbling away several hard earned scoring chances, the powerful Fordham football Rams got organized late in the final period and battered Boston college inside of the latter's 10-yard line to give Quarterback Frank Bartos his chance to dropkick the New Yorkers into a 3 to 0 victory here today at Fenway Park.

These ancient Jesuit rivals had a torrid afternoon for their annual gridiron battle. Twenty-five thousand summerclad spectators braved the unseasonable heat and saw the superior Fordham machine work hard enough to score five touchdowns. Four costly fumbles and an intercepted pass, however, held the Maroon scoreless until the fourth period.

Fordham was outlucked during most of the game and one of the two breaks that came its way happened when Charley Pieculewicz, former South Boston high school star, intercepted an Eagle forward near mid-field in the last quarter. Johnny Janis, reserve Fordham back, guilty of three fumbles, then redeemed himself somewhat in the critical eyes of Major Frank Cavanaugh, his coach, by ripping off tackle for eight yards. Murphy made a first down on Boston college's 40 yard line on a plunge and Fordham gained 15 more valuable yards when the Eagles drew their second penalty for unnecessary roughness.

Janis then made a wide end sweep for 15 yards and smashed through the tackles twice to place the ball in position for Bartos' successful field goal, which was almost blocked.

The Eagles, backed by a score of almost 80 seasoned players, appeared to be aided greatly by the heat when the conflict started. Their supposed manpower advantage, however, was never in evidence for their inability to break through the Fordham line prevented them from making any kind of a threat against the Fordham goal line. Several times the Eagles were pulled out of critical situations by Johnny Dixon's expert punting.

Boston college was content with a punting game until the Rams put over their three points. Then George Colbert, long distance passer, was rushed into the fray but his backs and ends were always cut down long before they could get under his spectacular heaves.

The Fordham backs piled up plenty of yardage making 11 first downs to four for Boston college. Neither team was able to do much with the overhead play, Fordham completing three out of 15 tries for a total of 35 yards and the Eagles made but four of their 25 attempts good for a total of 27 yards. Six of the Eagles' passes were intercepted, one to start Fordham on the road to its field goal.

Little Tommy Siano, Fordham center and captain, was the outstanding defensive player of the game. He checked the Eagles' running attack single-handed several times by throwing the ball carrier far behind the scrimmage line. The lineup:

Fordham	Position	Boston Col.
Conroy	le	Dixon
Miskinis	lt	Bennett
Wiskniewsk	lg	Morelli
Siano	c	Anderson
Tracey	rg	Gorman
Foley	rt	Romanowski
Elcewicz	re	Buckley
Fisher	qb	Boehner
Murphy	lhb	Antos
McMahon	rhb	Vookolys
Pieculewicz	fb	Kelly

Score by periods:

Fordham	0	0	0	3—3

Fordham scoring: Field goal, Bartos (for Fisher).

Officials: Referee, J. O'Brien, Tufts. Umpire, W. R. Crowley, Columbia. Linesman, T. J. McCabe, Holy Cross. Field judge, E. W. Carson, Penn State.

POETRY

Aspiration

I'd like to be extremely rich,
A multimillionaire,
With all the money that I want
And free from every care.
With every longing gratified,
It really seems to me
There's nothing else that I could ask—
How happy I should be!

I'd like to be a potentate,
A President or King,
Given unlimited control
Of almost everything.
I shouldn't be obliged to take
Advice from any one,
And I could do just what I please—
Now wouldn't that be fun!

I'd like to write a famous book,
That every one would buy,
Or paint a famous picture that
All others would outvie.
But I've no hope of winning fame,
Or being affluent,
And so I will be just myself,
And try to be content!

—Somerville Journal.

Near The Lake

Near the lake where dropped the willow,
Long time ago!
Where the rock threw back the billow,
Brighter than snow,
Dwelt a maid, beloved and cherished
By high and low;
But with autumn's leaf she perished,
Long time ago!

Rock and tree and flowing water,
Long time ago!
Bee and bird and blossoms taught her
Love's spell to know,
While to my fond words she listened,
Murmuring low,
Tenderly her dove-eyes glistened,
Long time ago!

Mingled were our hearts forever,
Long time ago!
Can I now forget her?—Never!
No—lost one—no!
To her grave these tears are given,
Ever to flow;
She's the star I missed from heaven,
Long time ago!

—George Pope Morris.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Girl who leaped off liner says she "does silly things."—New York headline.

She's no liar, at any rate.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"Say, pop, can you get me a good job when I'm graduated?

"Yes, I'll give you a job, but you will have to start at the bottom and wake up."—Exchange.

Mrs. Watt—Has Mrs. Bjones forgiven her daughter for eloping with that actor?

Mrs. Howe—I don't think so—she's gone to live with them.—The Pathfinder.

Doctor Hooey—You have been at death's door, and only your strong constitution has saved you.

Patient—Remember that when you send in your bill.—Optimist.

Angus—If you've found such a valuable ring the law requires that you advertise for the owner.

Sandy—Ay, mon, and which newspaper has the smallest circulation?—Pathfinder.

Mother (to little girl who had been sent to the hen house for eggs): "Well, dear, were there no eggs?"

Little Girl: "No, mummie, only the one the hen uses for a pattern."—Exchange.

Teacher: "William, how many bones have you in your body?"

William: "Nine hundred."

Teacher: "That's a great many more than I have."

William: "But, teacher, I had sardines for lunch."—Arcanum Bulletin.

Lady (meeting friend in a bus):—"Isn't it dreadful my dear? I've just heard that the vicar's youngest son has entered a well-known racing stable to be trained as a jockey, and he was to have become a minister, you know."

"Well, he's made a good choice, no doubt. He'll perhaps bring more people to repentance as a jockey than he ever would as a minister!"—Humorist.

TWO CARS COLLIDE ON GRANITE STREET

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 13.—About 1 p. m. Monday, two automobiles came together at the corner of Granite and Spruce streets, one auto having just avoided striking an electric light pole on the corner in front of Avery funeral home. None of the occupants of either car were injured but an extended argument followed as to the responsibility for the crash, each driver declaring the other to blame. While the discussion was in progress, Westerly Police Officer Frank E. Knight, on duty in Dixon square, was called to the scene and after investigation permitted the drivers to proceed when each declared that they were insured.

The Buick roadster, owned and driven by Mabel Powleson, Jamaica, Long Island, N. Y., with another woman passenger, was proceeding down Granite street hill at what was said to have been a rapid rate of speed and following two other cars just ahead. The first car was owned and driven by Capt. Albert Rohdin and turned off Granite street to Spruce to go to his home on Jay street. In the party with Captain Rohdin was the second auto, a Nash sedan, owned and driven by Thomas F. Welch, 95 Franklin street, Arlington, Mass., and as it made the turn the rear right fender and hubcap were caught and smashed by the left end of the forward bumper on the Buick, which hooked the car ahead and stopped as it leaned against the corner pole. The driver of the Buick claimed there was no signal given from the car ahead and its occupants maintained the car following was proceeding at a too rapid rate of speed. The young woman driver nonchalantly finished smoking her cigarette before stepping out to see the damage done by the collision. A large crowd of spectators gathered to hear and take sides in the arguments.

Rhode Island state authorities have made a careful analysis of the Quonochontaug Beach tragedy of the past week and results have been obtained from a comparison of the wadding protruding from the wound of the girl's body with that used in the sort of shell found on the floor of the automobile in which she was discovered. State police, who have investigated the double shooting tragedy which occurred at Charlestown Beach last Friday morning, resulting in the death of George E. Haggerty and Hilda Nowell, both of Westerly, claimed that they believed they had absolute proof that the girl died first.

The state police have drawn their almost positive conclusion of murder and suicide through a careful checkup on the shells found in the gun and on the floor of the automobile. Two kinds of shells were used, it is claimed, one a Peters 12-gauge and the other a Weston 12-gauge, and each shell contained a wadding of a ETAOIN contained a different wadding. The Peters shell contained a wadding of a composition of fibre and hair, while the Weston shell wadding was of cardboard.

The investigation showed, it is claimed, that the Weston shell was fired first and a particle of the cardboard wadding was found in the wound of the girl's body. This shell was found on the floor of the automobile and the Peters shell remained in the barrel of the shotgun, when the state police found it.

There is a possibility that Haggerty reached over and pulled the trigger or he might have struck the hammer of the shotgun with the rifle, which was found in the machine. It was lying close to the shotgun.

On Sunday in his Washington county home occurred the death of John E. Cole, of Arcadia, who for many years ran a farm on Escoheag Hill, in his 72nd year. He had been in ill health for a number of years. He was born Nov. 15, 1858, in Cranston, the son of James P and Rosanna Dodge Cole.

The deceased was a member of Ionic lodge of Masons of Green Station and a past high priest of Franklin Royal Arch chapter, Hope Valley, and past patron of the Eastern Star chapter of Hope Valley. He leaves a wife, S. Jennie Cole, and several nephews and nieces.

Of all the features of the new Ford there is none more important than reliability. It is a reflection of the substantial worth of the car.*

Evidence of the high quality built into the Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all—an unusually large number. From the engine to the road, the entire drive of the new Ford on all forward speeds is wholly on ball and roller bearings.

In addition to smoother operation, this saves gasoline, gives the car more speed and power, decreases noise and increases the durability and efficiency of every moving part.

Another important factor in good performance is the care with which the car is made. The aluminum pistons are an interesting example of precision manufacture.

Though weighing more than a pound each, they are made so accurately that they do not vary more than two grams in weight. In size they are held true to within one one-thousandth of an inch. The wrist-pin holes in the pistons are diamond bored to within a limit of three ten-thousandths of an inch. In each motor, complete piston and connecting-rod assemblies are not permitted to vary from each other by more than 3½ grams.

Throughout the car you find many other instances of this same accuracy in the manufacture and assembly of vital mechanical parts. Combined with simplicity of design and high quality of materials, it is the reason for the economy and long life of the car and the satisfactory service it is giving millions of owners the world over.

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the new Ford. You will know then that it brings you everything you want or need in an automobile at an unusually low price.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

The Sage of Walden Wood.

Near Walden Pond, mid ferns and tangled vines,
Mid gnarled old oaks and patriarchal pines,
There stood a cabin, many years ago,
The wild-wood home of Henry D. Thoreau.

Philosopher and sage, he chose this nook
That he might read from Nature's wonder-book
The secret story of the flowers and trees,
The beasts and birds, the butterflies and bees.

When first he built this sanctuary here,
The woodland creatures ran away in fear:
But soon the story spread among the clan
That their new neighbor was a harmless man.

He had no magic art, no secret charm,
But simple kindness banished all alarm.
The squirrels came to feed at his command,
And birds would perch upon his outstretched hand.

A wood-mouse lived beneath the cabin floor,
And daily came for food ;and, what is more,
Perhaps to aid digestion, boldly nipped
A goodly part of Henry's manuscript.

The moral of this simple tale is clear:
That kindness is the antidote for fear.
Then spread the news abroad that all may know
And emulate the great and wise Thoreau.

A. W. Sylvester.

The Reward.

Do you hear the happy patter of a million little feet?
Do you see the silken swirl of wings against the sky?
Do you sense the mingled murmurs from the trail of crowded street,
Where the millions you have rescued hurry by?

Plodding feet of hucksters' horses beat the measure of the song.
Weary dogs and homeless tabbies lead the way,
As they come before the people who have labored for them long—
Who have been their benefactors night and day

And for those who did the saving, did the binding, brought the food,
Write this message of the Master, fair and free,
As He said to other peoples when He taught them to be good—
"As ye do it to these weak ones, so ye do it unto Me."

Abernethy Brown.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

One of the queerest animals in the world is the anteater, or, as it is more correctly called, the Echidna, which is still to be found in lonely places in Australia. Its body is covered with sharp spines and coarse hair. During the breeding season, the female lays two eggs, which she carries in her pouch until they are hatched. The young are then fed on milk from their mother until they are grown up, when they feed chiefly on "white ants." They have long bills to poke into the mounds in which the ants live, and long, sticky tongues to pick them up.

They are strange looking creatures, and at a first glance one would really think they possessed two heads, but such is not the case, the lower head-like front portion of the body being in reality one of the animal's front feet, with its bristly hair attached. The narrow beak-like mouth with tiny snout at end, small eyes, and tiny ears are truly a peculiarity; while the large bushy tail sweeping the ground at the back seems almost too big for the animal in proportion to its size.

LETTERS OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Virginia Meech Norwich—I am very happy to receive another book. If it is as interesting as my other prize books I know I will enjoy it immensely.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

An Original Story

Dear Uncle Jed: Norma was waiting impatiently for her father. This was the day she was to go to the Quaker town in Pennsylvania. Her father soon came Shortly after you could see a beaming face beside a dark, tall man hurrying along the street to the terminal. Aboard the train Norma settled herself and began peering about.

The train rolled on for miles and miles. At last they began nearing the terminal at Philadelphia. Then it was another hurrying to catch a bus. Another hour's ride and Norma was running into her Aunt Hope's arms.

A week had passed within which Norma enjoyed herself immensely. Only one more day and she would be on her way home. She had made many friends among whom was a girl called Love. She was lovable indeed. Love had one setback. She was lame. She was happy and it was because of this Norma loved her. She adored anyone who could suffer and be happy. When she was sick she always fretted. Love didn't. "Oh! why cannot I be like her." exclaimed Norma, after crying because she had to go home. "You can, my dear, if you think of the bright side of things," soothingly replied her aunt.

And—believe it or not, Norma said, upon saying farewell to Love, "Lovey, dear, I am happy to go home because I will see my mama and daddy." "I am glad you have learned my secret," replied Love beaming with joy.

Norma returned home and never forgot her friend.

Thinking of Ghosts

Dear Uncle Jed: After staying at Uncle Ben's until nearly dark listening to an exciting ghost story, I started for home alone. When I got halfway home I thought I heard someone coming towards me and I turned around to see something white coming toward me. I felt so frightened that I started to run but I got so tired I had to stop. After I had stopped running I heard a bark. I turned to see a white dog following me.

When I got home I told my father who laughed and said that I must have been thinking of ghosts.

The Caster Oil Plant

Dear Uncle Jed: No sort of bird, beast, or creeping thing will touch a castor-oil plant. It seems to be a rank poison to all the animal world. Even a goat will starve before biting off a leaf, and a horse will sniff at it and turn up his upper-lip as though it had the most detestable odor on the face of the earth. Army-worms and the locusts will pass it by, though they may eat every other green thing in sight; and there is no surer way to drive moles away from a lawn than to plant a few castor-beans here and there. Even the tobacco-worm will refuse to be fed on its leaves. There is hardly another instance in natural history of a plant being so universally detested by the animal world.

The Roses.

Rear Uncle Jed: This is my second or third attempt at story writing and I hope this will please you.

I am a little girl five years old. I have been sick in bed for four months. One morning when I awoke I heard a chorus of "Good mornings," looking around the room and seeing no one I wondered who those voices belonged to. Still I heard, "Good morning," sweet and soft and glancing toward the window I saw a single spray of beautiful pink roses, which looked like fairy voices. It was a pleasant thing to look at, those beautiful fresh flowers after being in bed for four months. It made me want to get those flowers.

One day my mother noticed that I keput creeping to the other side of the bed. Finally I got in reach of the roses and from that time on the doctor found a gradual recovery.

Every one believed that it was that single spray of fairy faces that led to my recovery.

Rose's New Dress.

Deor Uncle Jed: This is my first attempt at story writing and I hope it will please you.

Looking disconsolately up from her ironing Rose sighed, "Oh dear! how I wish I could have a new dress for Cecile's party." Her mother regarded her with troubled eyes. "But, Rose, we cannot afford it."

"Please, mother, don't mind, I'm cross!" And Rose put on her hat and went on an errand. As she passed Mr. Brown's house, Mary, aged three, ran playfully into the road. A machine's horn sounded out. Mary screamed! Rose ran into the road, caught up the child, and sprang to safety.

Mr. Brown afterwards made her accept fifty collars. So Rose had her new dress.

A Ghost Story.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending a story hoping you and the Wide-Awake circle will like it.

After staying at Uncle Ben's until nearly dark listening to an exciting ghost story I started for home alone. I had to walk pretty far because we had moved from near my uncle to about half a mile away.

I heard foot steps so I turned around and saw a ghost running after me. I ran fast and it seemed as if I would never get home.

When I neared my house my mother an dfather were on the porch. My mother asked me why I was running. I told her that I had seen a ghost running after me. She said I was so scared that I just imagined that I could see one.

I went to bed that night still thinking about that ghost story.

My First Trip to Lake Pocotopaug.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my first trip to Lake Pocotopaug. I went in an auto with some friends. I rode on a seat made of a small box with a back fastened to the box, right up in the front of the auto. It was fun. I could see everything. I saw some sheep, horses, cats, dogs, turkeys, ducks. We saw a flock of sheep out in the pasture. They had white faces. It was a hot day. Some of them came up in the shade of a tree. One went under a hole in the wall. We finally came to Lake Pocotopaug. We ate our lunch on the pavilion, there, which looked off on the water. There was a speed boat which we watched. It took out passengers. When the man turned the boat, the spray would cover them. I suppose this gave them a "thrill." There was a chute-the-chutes there. It stopped right in the water. There were two boys going down it. People were in bathing too. Downstairs in the pavilion there was a place to roller skate. After lunch we went to Middletown to see some of my relatives. We had a good time there. Then left there for Ivoryton to see some more relatives. My sister and I went to gather the eggs for auntie. We got two. She only had three hens. We also picked up crab apples for her. When we came home we came over the Connecticut river bridge. I had a very nice time.

LOIS A. MINER, Age 8.

A New Member.

Dear Uncle Jed: I just read the letters of a lot of little boys and girls in The Bulletin and I thought I'd like to write and tell you what I do.

I live out in Voluntown and go to Voluntown Center school; I have lived here all my life and so I know quite a lot of girls and boys here.

I like outdoor playing and I do a whole lot of it such as rolling automobile tires and jumping rope, play hide and seek, playing ball indoors. But what I like best is to play house. I have a small playhouse all my own and I have a little girl friend who plays with me. I am in the fourth grade at school and am 10 years old.

ALICE BUTTON, Age 10.

Likes Her Book.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thank you very much for the book. I enjoyed it very much. Hope you will enjoy my story. The squirrels are most thrifty little animals don't you think? A small incident made me thing so. One day while in the woods I heard a rustling sound for an instant. Assuring myself it was no one coming I listened. A few feet away I saw a small creature with a long bushy tail sweeping behind him, run up the tree. In its mouth he carried walnuts. This he repeated a number of times and I couldn't forget how tirelessly he worked on.

JULIA BARRON, Age 9.

In The Woods.

Dear Uncle Jed: Have you ever tramped through the woods, especially at this time of the year? What a joy to be alive and free. Have you noticed how hard Mother Nature has been working these last few weeks painting the leaves in beautiful colors, scattering them about to their winter beds, the squirrels hustling about making ready for the long dreary days to come.

I'm sure it won't be long before Mother Nature will discard her gayest colors and dress the world in a dazzling white blanket.

How I Spent My Vacation.

Uncle Jed: My father was working at Pleasant View. We asked him if he would take us down. He said he would. The next day we went down. It was very cloudy. We got down there a little after nine. We went in bathing at ten o'clock. Every time we saw a big wave coming we would run in. The tide was low in the morning. At noon time the tide was high and after dinner we did not go in bathing till an hour after. We took a walk way, way up the beach until we could see Atlantic Beach. We found very pretty shells and stones. Then we went in bathing again, and then it began to get cold, and so we got dressed. My father gave us each 10c to buy some ice cream and candy. Then we got in the car and had a very pleasant ride home.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Farmer Brown's Boy Has to Investigate

For everything we hear or see
A plain or hidden cause must be.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy was picking apples in the Old Orchard. It was a beautiful day. The apples were splendid fruit and he was picking them with care. He whistled as he worked. He had been working for some time when he became aware that over in the Green Forest there was considerable noise. He stopped to listen.

"Sammy Jay and Blacky the Crow are having a great time over something," said he. "It sounds as if they had all their relatives with them. I wonder what those scamps have found now. Probably it is Hooty the Owl and they are just making life miserable for him. If I had the time I would go over and see what it is all about. However, Hooty is able to take care of himself, so I'll stay right here and finish my job."

For a time he paid no more attention to the screaming of the Jays and the cawing of the Crows. After a while, however, a Merry Little Breeze, hurrying from that direction, brought the sound of those voices very clear and strong. Once more Farmer Brown's Boy paused in his work and looked over toward the Green Forest. There was a note of unusual excitement in those voices. He wasn't so sure now that those Jays and those Crows were teasing Hooty the Owl. Then he noticed something that he had failed to notice before. Right above the place where those Crows and Jays appeared to be was a speck high in the blue, blue sky. It was sailing round and round, round and round, right over one spot.

"That's Ol' Mistah Buzzard," said Farmer Brown's Boy

"That's Ol' Mistah Buzzard!" said Farmer Brown's Boy. "He's watching something down below. He's sailing round and round just as he does when he sees something on the ground that may give him a meal after a while. I wonder if what he sees has anything to do with what those Crows and Jays are screaming about."

Farmer Brown's Boy went on with his apple-picking. At the same time he kept looking and looking over toward the Green Forest. He was growing more and more curious. Finally he stopped picking apples. "It seems to me I never knew those Crows and Jays to keep up such a screaming for so long a time," said he. "I wish I could understand their language. If I could understand what they are saying, I would know what it's all about. Ol' Mistah Buzzard hasn't lost his interest either. He hangs right over that spot as if he were pinned up there in the sky. I don't believe it is Hooty the Owl at all. Ol' Mistah Buzzard wouldn't be interested in Hooty the Owl. Perhaps it is Buster Bear. I've just got to find out what it is. It won't take me long to run over there and when I get back can pick all the faster."

Now, by this time Sammy Jay was getting discouraged. He left the other Jays and the Crows and headed for the Old Orchard to see what Farmer Brown's Boy was doing. He reached the edge of the Old Orchard just as Farmer Brown's Boy started for the Green Forest. Instantly Sammy turned and flew back as fast as he could, screaming louder than ever. He told the other Jays and the Crows that Farmer Brown's Boy was coming, and they all screamed louder than before. Of course, that made Farmer Brown's Boy hurry. He was just brimming over with curiosity. But, with all his curiosity, he didn't forget to be cautious. When he reached a point where he could catch glimpses of the Crows and the Jays, he began to move slowly and carefully. He knew there might be other Green Forest folk around and he didn't want to frighten them. And all the time he was filled with a great wonder. What could it be that was causing such excitement?

Presently he noticed that the ground was all trampled. Then, in an opening among the trees, he saw Lightfoot the Deer and another Deer the size of Lightfoot. They were lying down, head to head, and when they saw Farmer Brown's Boy, they made no effort to get to their feet. Then Farmer Brown's Boy understood the cause of all that excitement.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Hillcrest Theatre

Claudette Colbert, Paramount film star, featured in the Hillcrest theatre attraction for Tuesday and Wednesday, "Manslaughter," is bilingual—she speaks English and French with equal fluency.

The feminine lead of "Manslaughter" was born in Paris, but when only six years old, her parents brought her to the United States. At that time, she did not speak a word of English. The public schools of New York soon taught her.

However, so that she would not lose the use of her native French, Miss Colbert's parents insisted that she speak French at home.

An unusually fine group of surrounding short features complete this great program.

Coming Thursday—Elsie Ferguson in "Scarlet Pages."

Palace Theatre

Eddie Cantor who has long been a favorite on the musical stage is making his first appearance in the talking pictures at the Palace theatre in the spectacular production "Whoopee" which will be shown at that theatre for the last times today and tomorrow.

There are beautiful girls galore in "Whoopee" and there are gorgeous costumes for these girls some of which cost a thousand dollars. There are beautiful scenes and the whole production was photographed in techni-color and under the supervision of Florenz Ziegfeld.

Among the girls who appear in the show are Dorothy Knapp picked by Ziegfeld as the most beautiful girl in America and many more of his famous beauties. The leading lady, Eleanor Hunt, is entirely new in the films and she is a glorious red-head who has a charming voice.

On Thursday the Palace will present a double-feature show presenting a drama and a comedy, "The Squealer" with Jack Holt is the drama and it is one of the most gripping tales of New York's underworld ever produced. Holt is given excellent support by Dorothy Revier, Matt Moore, Davey Lee and Zasu Pitts. Joe E. Brown, whose face is his fortune is the star of "Maybe It's Love" also on this bill and he is assisted by Joan Bennett and many others.

HELIUM NOW CENT A FOOT; COST ONCE WAS $2,000

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—The cost of helium, widely used to buoy airships but once a high priced scientific curiosity, has been reduced by the bureau of mines.

Operating a newly completed unit of its Amarillo plant, the bureau produced in a month's time a record output of 1,230,350 cubic feet at an operating cost of less than one cent a cubic foot.

The plant now has a capacity of 24,000,000 cubic feet of helium a year, which is believed ample to meet all needs of the army and navy to fill their airships.

At present cost, it is estimated that the gas for the navy's new 6,500,000 cubic foot dirigible, under construction in Akron, O., will be produced at a net expenditure for the treasury of $50,000.

Prior to 1917 the cost of producing helium was from $1,700 to $2,000 a cubic foot.

The government controls the output of helium in 50,000 acres of land and limits production to actual needs of army and navy ships.

PERMITS FOR BUNGALOW AND NEW WAREHOUSE GRANTED DURING PAST WEEK

During the second week in October there were seven building permits issued by Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft for new construction work within the city limits. The new construction includes a new bungalow, a new warehouse on North Thames street and the installation of a dining car on Bath street. The cost of the new work as given by the owners in the applications is about $11,000, the greater part being in the three named projects.

Considerable work has been done on building projects now in hand and many of them are practically completed.

The building permits issued during the week were as follows:

To William Zeis to erect a frame one-car garage at 34 Hobart avenue. The garage will be 16x22 feet with concrete foundation and floor. The estimated cost is $350.

To James Johnson to construct a sunporch on the present building, at 262 Boswell avenue. The porch will be 12 by 14 feet and will be erected on a concrete foundation. The interior will be finished in hardwood with pine trim. The estimated cost is $325.

To George C. Driscoll to install a dining car on Bath street. The car will be of metal construction and will be 16x32 feet with brick kitchen attached to the rear of the car. The estimated cost is $5,500.

To the Yantic Grain and Products Co. to erect a metal warehouse one story in height 45x100 feet on North Thames street extension. The warehouse will have a concrete foundation with frame studding and metal walls. The estimated cost is $1,500.

To Charles A. Gager to add to the present frame building about three feet to make room for a box stall. The estimated cost is $25.

To Eleanor F. Rinella to erect a five-car garage at 214 Broadway. The garage will be 20x50 feet with concrete and stone foundation. Work has already started on the garage. The estimated cost is $1,000.

To August Bergman to erect a frame bungalow of five rooms and bath. The bungalow will be 22x26 feet and one and one-half stories high. The foundation will be of stone and cement. The exterior finish of the bungalow will be in shingles and clapboards. The interior will be finished in hard wood and hard finish plaster. The estimated cost is $2,200.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were eight sales of real estate as compared to eleven sales for the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $40,325 and $59,342.

There were eight sales of real estate in New London during the past week, a decrease of five sales from the total of the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $40,325 and $59,342.

There were eight sales of real estate in New London during the past week, a decrease of five sales from the total of the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $138,635 and $105,405.

NEW LONDON

Work is fast nearing completion on the new edifice which is being built by the Oliver Woodworth company for the A. M. E. Zion church in Belden street to replace the old edifice which was located on Town hill opposite Jefferson avenue.

When completed, the new church will provide a fine new building for the people of this denomination and as soon as the funds are available it is planned to erect a parsonage on the site.

The church is 40 feet by 52 feet six inches, with concrete basement and brick walls. The front wall is laid in Flemish bond with common brick and black headers, having a very attractive arched entrance, and a large memorial window which is to be furnished by the Willing Workers, the women's society of the church. All other windows are of steel sash with ripple glass.

The basement has a large assembly room, kitchen, furnace room and toilets, and will be perfect for Sunday school purposes and all kinds of entertainments and community activities, having a fine entrance directly from the street so that it may be used entirely separate from the church proper.

The church entry has a concrete floor and the door is well protected from the weather and inside is a vestibule with stairs down to the basement and up to the gallery. Doors to the temple are at the middle aisle and the floor of the temple it pitched toward the pulpit in the modern way. It seats 180 people and 60 more may be seated in the gallery, making a total seating capacity of 240.

A new bungalow being built in Briggs street has been framed and sheathed for Andrew C. Miller. The new structure is to be of modern design with concrete foundation and frame construction. Work is being done by the day from private plans and specifications which provide for all modern improvements and conveniences. The owner is supervising the work.

Building Permits

Silas Maxson, frame dwelling, Niles Hill road, $4,500.

Jos. Ferina, frame garage, Niles Hill road, $300.

Antone Leverone, bathhouse and office, Bentley avenue, $300.

Della Costella, concrete additions, corner Midway and Bentley avenue, $800.

Walter Burdick, et al, cement block garage, Fremont street, $400.

Number of permits issued for the week, 5; estimated cost of buildings, $7,700.

WESTERLY

For the first two weeks in October Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wells and Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossie have issued the following building and zoning permits:

October 1. Watch Hill Chapel, Watch Hill. Install two toilet rooms.

October 1. Mrs. Grace W. Farnsworth, 98 High street. Reshingle house, 98 High street, with slate-coated shingles.

October 1. Harry James, 73 Beach street. Reshingle house at 73 Beach street with slate-coated shingles.

October 1. Dr. John Champlin, Sr. Granite street. Reshingle house at Watch Hill with slate-coated shingles.

October 4. George A. Stillman, 6 Beach street. Bathroom, 5 feet by 6 feet, on present porch roof.

October 4. Harold Merrill Post No. 6, American Legion. Erect tent in Dixon house square on site of old Rhode Island hotel, permit to expire October 7th to 12th.

October 9. Mrs. Ethel R. Doney, George street extension, Melrose Heights. Build garage on George street extension, 20 feet by 30 feet and move hen coop from Hobart street to George street extension and also a hen coop from Hobart street into Connecticut.

October 11. Irving Thompson, 18 Greenman avenue. Build new dormer window on roof of house on Greenman avenue, re-shingle house with slate-coated shingles and change interior partitions.

October 11. Guisseppe Bevacqua, 145 Canal street. Build new front porch to house on Canal street; build one-story rear addition, 7 feet 6 inches, by 14 feet, new dormer window on roof and re-shingle with slate-coated shingles.

FOUR PERMITS GRANTED IN PUTNAM LAST WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 12—Four applications for building permits were received by the common council at the October meeting held last Tuesday evening. Pierre H. Meyers, of Farrow street, was granted a permit for the erection of a one story building of non-combustible type, which will occupy a lot adjoining that of the recently completed brick structure of the Place Motor company. Adelard Dupre of Mill street was granted a permit to make extensive alterations upon his garage building, and a permit was granted to L. F. Weeks for the erection of a garage on Wilkinson street. Through a permit obtained from the council, P. F. Racette of Water street will begin operations soon for the altering of his garage and livery station on Water street.

A delayed arrival of builders' supplies this week temporarily slowed up progress on the new nurses home building at the Day Kimball hospital, which has been underway for some weeks. Masons are now doing the greater part of the work on the structure which is fast attaining proportions.

A corps of carpenters are at work on the new home of P. J. Ryan on Woodstock avenue, which is to be a bungalow type of building. The structure is fast taking shape and will be completed presumably about mid-winter.

DUTCH GABLE REFLECTS DESIGN OF OLD SHIPS

The most outstanding architectural feature of the Dutch Colonial house is the Dutch gable so reminiscent of the old brick buildings of Holland. This feature is probably a relic of the days of Dutch maritime supremacy and reflects the design of the early merchant-men. Some old business structures of Belgium which are still standing show an exact replica of the stern ends of old trading vessels. Sometimes the gable ends of Dutch Colonial houses are of stone or brick while the front and back are of wood. The Dutch were thrifty and ingenious and used whatever they found at hand to build with. Inside their homes were spotlessly clean and bright with carefully polished brass and copper. They naturally brought many William and Mary and Queen Anne types of furniture, Dutch pieces, with them.

LIGHTING SCHEME HIGHLY IMPORTANT

Not a little of the success of a room is due to the manner in which it is illuminated. There should be side brackets or some form of indirect lighting so that the room is flooded with an even diffused light when needed. If it is found desirable to accent some portion of the room, such as the over-mantel, lights should be concentrated at this point. There should also be lamps on tables or near easy chairs to provide low lights where required. Avoid a harsh top light and lamp shades in dark colors. Shades should be yellow, cream, white, pink or peach colored, never in dark colors except on desk lamps where opaque shades are necessary to throw the light downward.

VARNISH FOR PARCHMENT

An effective treatment for parchment shades to be used on lamps is painting them with transparent varnish. This does not mar the beauty of the colors and preserves the parchment against the ravages of dampness. The very smooth surface is also easier to the porch or in the sunroom is paint-keep clean.

DUTCH COLONIAL HOUSE AT NORWICH TOWN

The above picture, is of the home of Milton Adnopoz on the Canterbury turnpike recently completed by Contractor Francis M. Toomey of East Great Plain. The house which is of the Dutch colonial type is one of the most attractive on the turnpike.

There are six rooms, bath and sunporch, all conveniently arranged and admirably adapted as to light and exposure. The exterior is finished in wide colonial clapboards painted a very attractive yellow. The shutters on the house are of colonial design.

The interior is very attractive, done in oak and hard pine with hard plaster walls. The living room is exceptionally pretty but of a rugged type having an oak beamed ceiling and large stone fireplace. There are many built-in colonial cupboards and cabinets both in the living room and the dining room. The kitchen is done in tile, the floors and sidewalls being of tile. The kitchen is very conveniently provided with built-in closets, cabinets and ironing board. There is also a built-in refrigerator.

The bathroom is in tile, both the floor and sidewalls. The fixtures are of the built-in type that is so popular in the modern home.

A feature of the house is the two garages that are attached, one being on the street level and the other in the basement. The heating plant in the basement is of the most modern. The house is piped in brass throughout.

BATHTUB PRICES DROP 24 PER CENT IN 10 YEARS

Mass production of bathtubs has resulted in a steady decrease of the price of bathtubs, according to the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau which has compiled figures showing the comparative selling prices of tubs from 1920 to 1930. The same kind of a five-foot recessed tub which in 1920 cost the consumer $73.65, and cost $62.75 in 1925, can be bought for $56.20 today. This is a difference of almost 24 per cent in the 1920 and 1930 prices.

Economics incidental to the mass production of other plumbing fixtures also have been passed along to the consumer. For instance, a 20 by 24-inch vitreous china pedestal lavatory which sold for $46.50 in 1920 can be bought for $31 in 1930—a decrease of 31 per cent. A siphon jet closet combination, including the tank and white seat with nickel-plated hinge, which cost $59.35 in 1920, is sold for $43.35 today. The total 1920 price for these three typical bathroom fixtures is $179.50 compared with the 1930 price of $130.55—a decrease of 27 per cent.

It should be pointed out that the prices mentioned do not include installation charges which vary in different cities, nor do they include the so-called "trim"; that is, the faucets and fittings for the tub and lavatory. These are available in various grades and styles and the selection of these is always left to the discretion of the purchaser. The prices quoted are for white fixtures.

The fixtures mentioned are typical fixtures which are made in large quantities. They are first-class fixtures and would be recommended for houses costing up to $20,000. Obviously production costs have not decreased as much for the non-staple types of tubs and lavatories, that is, the fixtures in which the style element is more dominant.

Mass production is as new in the plumbing industry as it is in other industries. The total annual sales of bathtubs touched the million mark for the first time in 1925. When the volume of new construction fell off, the public began to modernize its plumbing fixtures. The replacement of old fixtures with modern fixtures, the installation of extra bathrooms and the extension of the use of hand-washing facilities in factories as well as in various types of commercial buildings, all have helped to swell the total of fixture sales.

BASKET WEAVE POPULAR IN LAYING BRICK WALLS

Various patterns are used in the laying of the brick walk. Of these, perhaps the basket weave and the herringbone are the most popular. Many walks are laid in what is equivalent to the running bond of wall construction, the bricks being laid merely in continuous lines. This is just as substantial and lasting as the more complicated patterns while being cheaper. Any pattern will provide a sound and lasting walk.

AUTOMATIC HEATER AID TO COMFORT

If the heating equipment in your home did not efficiently combat last winter's cold breezes you are probably considering either the repairing of the old boiler or the installation of a new one. If this work is to be undertaken the home owner should not wait too long. Last-minute work is never so satisfactory for workmen are rushed and unable to give the necessary time and attention to their work. Inferior products are substituted for better ones because the job must be completed in a short period of time.

There are so many new and labor-saving features to heating systems on the market today that the person who is planning to fix up his heating equipment would do well to do some shopping around before making his decision. An automatic water heater added to the furnace is a convenience which no household should lack. Its cost will be far exceeded by the comfort which it affords.

ELECTRIC BELLS IN MANY NOVEL FORMS

"Where's the doorbell?" is the first question which must be answered as one approaches a strange house. So the home owner who would impress the visitor with a sense of the nicety with which he has chosen all things in his home begins here. Electric push-buttons come in many forms and materials. Among the shapes are circles, oblongs, ovals, hexagons, octagons and squares. Cast bronze is a favorite material not only because of its durability but also because of the fact that it blends with any background of brick or stucco or wood.

Special screws are provided with these push-buttons so that screws and plate will match. The home builder finds a wide choice of ornate and simple designs awaiting his selection in these small but important items.

SEEK TO PREVENT DAMAGE BY WIND

Hurricanes, tornadoes, cyclones and "twisters" are non-respectors of building materials, but they have a healthy reverence for sound construction. Wind catastrophies of recent years have demonstrated that the soundest insurance against damage to dwellings and other structures in such storms are strong, rigid walls and roofs well tied to a structure that is in turn well anchored to its foundation.

Wood, because of its resiliency and pliability, has been found to fare as well as its fellow materials in high winds as well as earthquakes. But since wood, in addition to its presence in frame houses, is also found as the framing material under the veneer of brick, stone, stucco and other materials in nearly all houses, the manufacturers of lumber felt that science ought to be willing to give up its secret on how to construct the strongest and most rigid frame wall. Accordingly, the government was asked to conduct a series of investigations into this subject at the U. S. Forest Products laboratory for the benefit of the building public.

Some of the highlights of these tests included the first scientific demonstration of the advantage in strength and rigidity in putting sheathing on diagonally instead of horizontally; that plaster on wood lath keys in such a way as to make a panel more than four times as strong and seven times as rigid as an unbraced horizontally-sheathed panel; that you can use the wrong sizes of nails and waste nails by using them where their effect is insignificant; and that braces of lumber one inch thick by four inches wide, let into the face of the studs diagonally under the sheathing, constitute one of the best methods of bracing.

SHINGLES ARE USEFUL IN HOME MODERNIZING

If a home owner has been contemplating re-roofing his home and is only now able to begin work because of some unavoidable delay, there is still time to complete the job before heavy winter weather sets in. Shingles should not, of course, be laid in rainy weather.

Tapered shingles in pearl gray, gray, black, green or red made principally of asbestos fibre and Portland cement form a lasting and very beautiful covering for any home. One type which is new and proving highly satisfactory is made so that either side can be exposed to the weather, one side remaining the plain conservative gray while the other is colored. These tapered shingles are 18 inches long and come in widths of six, nine, twelve and eighteen inches, the standard size being nine by eighteen inches. The butts are slightly irregular to produce the uneven roof lines so popular.

TILE IS SEEN AS AID TO HOME MODERNIZER

The uses of tile in the home are many. This easy-to-clean, long-wearing material can be installed in the home as a part of the modernizing campaign and will give service for many years to come.

Perhaps there is a spot in or about the home where a fountain or window seat of tile would fit in. Coat closets are made germ-proof and sanitary if lined with this material. Waste space in the home can be made comfortable and charming if tile floors, walls or details are set in, such as rooms in the basement, pantries or garage. An extra tiled bathroom is, of course, one of the greatest conveniences that the home owner could consider when remodeling his home.

ENGLISH FARM TYPE HOMES ARE POPULAR

The English farmhouse type of home is today quite popular, while the French is gaining devotees daily, more varied, while the French are richer and more delicate. Both types employ halftimber work, the English designs being more varied, while the French are richer and more delicate. The English house is notable for its characteristic clustered brick chimneys and its gable ends, while the French prides itself on round towers and conical roofs. Quite often the French farmhouse displays a coat of whitewash, while the English is generally of Old World brick unpainted. Both types employ halftimber work, the English designs being Both types employ the casement window, this being a much earlier form than the double-hung sash.

LUMBER FIRST IN FRONTIER COMMERCE

Logs and lumber were the first abundant materials of commerce of the United States frontier. As the gold and silver mines laid the foundations of industry and commerce in uninhabited desert regions, so lumbering has fostered in the timbered areas of the north, the south and the west a great American industry.

What cattle have done for the plains, wheat and corn for the prairies, and cotton for the south, lumber has done for the regions whose principal natural resources were their forests. Out of these has come the wealth which has facilitated commerce, has for generations sustained the largest sources of employment provided by any American industry, and has developed the diversified wood-using industries which have often succeeded the crumbling logging camp and the abandoned lumber mill.

REINFORCED BRICKWORK

Manifestly all the possibilities of masonry construction have not been exhausted. Reinforced brickwork, while it isn't by any means a new departure, has never been utilized in America to any considerable extent. Yet it seems to be suited to a wide variety of important uses.

In several cities it is being tried out in a practical way. In every instance it promises to live up to all that has been claimed for it. And builders, architects and engineers are all evincing more than a passing interest in its development.

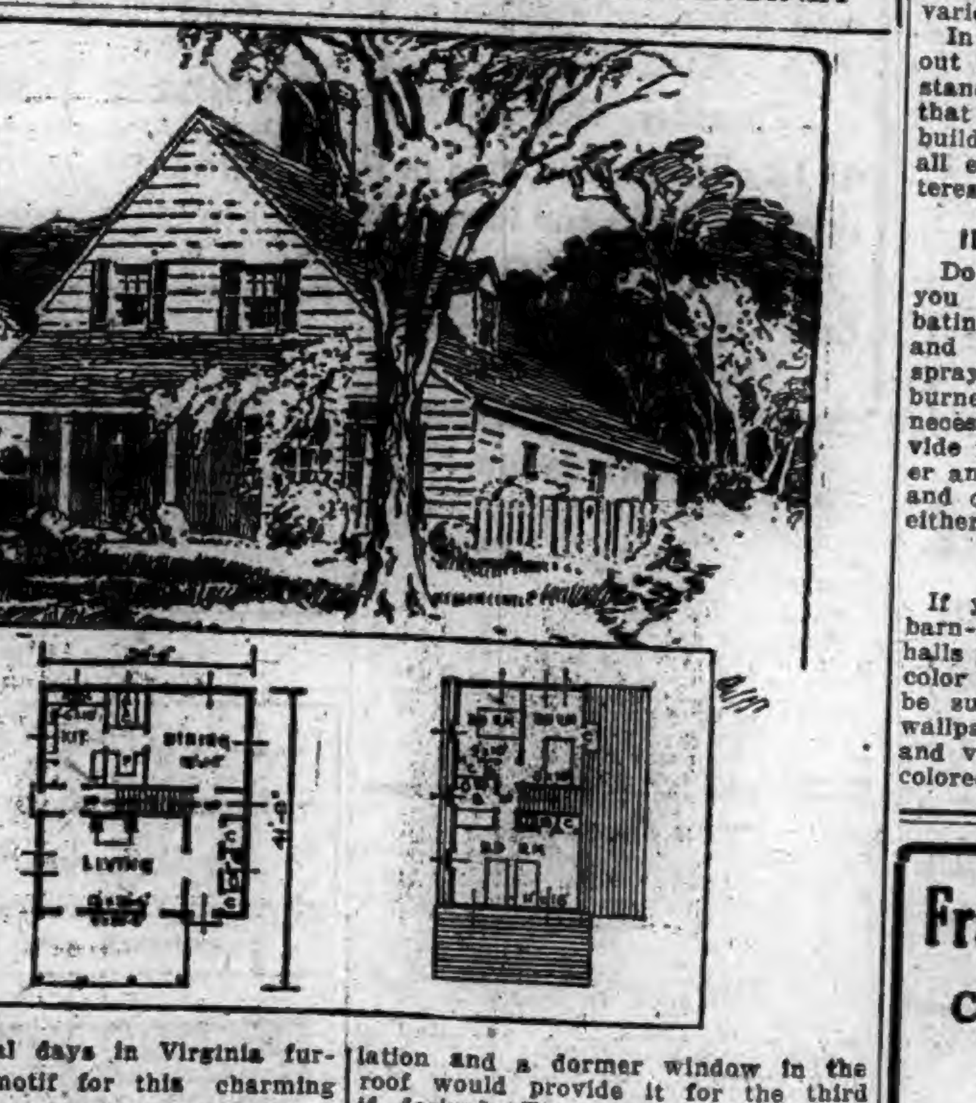
IDENTIFY PLANT DISEASES

Do not spray or dust plants unless you know the disease you are combating. Do not be quick to use new and relatively untried proprietary spray materials. Many plants are burned or otherwise injured by unnecessary spraying or dusting. Provide yourself with a good hand duster and a supply of fine sulphur dust and copper-lime dust, but do not use either promiscuously.

PATTERN AND COLOR

If you have one of those large, barn-like, empty-looking types of halls you need some pattern and some color to pull it together. These can be supplied by certain designs in wallpaper which are warm in tone and vigorous in pattern. A warm-colored rug will help a lot.

STAIRS FEATURE PLAN DISCOVERED IN VIRGINIA



Old colonial days in Virginia furnished the motif for this charming home. Its exterior is exactly like that used by the early settlers, with modern arrangements within making for the greatest possible convenience. The porch off the living room and the interior stair plan are important features of this home. The kitchen entrance and way to the cellar are from the same doorway, all shut off from the remainder of the house and saving the cost of building an outside stair to the basement.

Likewise the stairs go up from the main hall from the opposite side, providing ample hall space for entrance to the dining and living rooms and to the second floor.

All three bedrooms in this house are upstairs. Two have cross ventilation and a dormer window in the roof would provide it for the third if desired. There is a bathroom on this floor and a lavatory as well off the first-floor hall.

The garden of this house should be placed off the living room porch with a white fence of good design leading off from the low side. The house itself should face west.

This type of home is small and economical to build, as today it is cheaper to build with wood than with any masonry yet placed on the market.

The exterior is of clapboards with green shutters and weathered shingle roof, preferably dark brown.

A lot for this house should be about 50 by 100 feet. Cost of construction would be approximately $8,000 to $10,000.

ANNUAL FIRE LOSS IS $500,000,000

America's annual fire loss increased from $161,000,000 in 1900 to $560,000,000 in 1926. Notwithstanding there has been a slight decrease in subsequent years, fire's toll still averages a half-billion dollars annually. About 10 per cent of this huge sum represents damaged or destroyed homes, a loss that can be attributed largely to carelessness, neglect, faulty chimney construction and the inclination of some builders to economize by installing undersized heating plants. Obviously, fires traceable to any of these causes are preventable fires, and the responsibility therefor lies with the home owner.

Chimney faults that cause fire are obviated if chimneys are built in accordance with approved construction practices, rest on substantial footings and are cleaned at regular intervals. Installation of a heating system that fits the house eliminates the need for forced-firing with its fire hazards during the heating season. For this reason expert heating engineers made a computation of heat losses based on size and design of house, location, number of windows and doors, location of interior walls, whether house is of brick, stucco, frame, tile or stone, kind of insulation used, and climatic conditions. Heating-plants thus installed can be depended upon to furnish adequate warmth at all times without resorting to forced-firing.

ROLLING EFFECT GIVEN BY BRICKS

Persistent effort for variety, for something new and different and outstanding, has evolved more types of brickwork for home construction purposes during recent years than is ordinarily supposed. One type built in the Chicago suburbs has been dubbed "The house with the permanent wave," and it is said to quite measure up to its name.

The brick are laid with a very pronounced wave effect, this being made possible by varying the thickness of the mortar joints. The resulting impression is that of gently rolling wavelets, although the uniformity of the real thing is missing. There is oddity in plenty in this type of brickwork, but it is not likely that it will attain any wide vogue.

Masonry innovations seldom attain their best effects in the initial effort. Only the barest chance would make this possible. Skintled brickwork, for instance, has been the plaything of architects and masons with an artistic bent for more than a decade, yet its possibilities do not seem to have been exhausted.

Skintled brickwork intrigues the architect today just as, closely following the dawn of the Christian era, the builders of the old Roman cities found an intense delight in the development of the earliest crude designs that fore-shadowed pattern work in masonry. The creative instinct persists.

BUILDING OFFICIALS TO MEET IN BOSTON

The anual fall meeting of the New England Building Officials' conference will be held in Springfield, Mass., October 27.

For some time it has been the custom for this organization to devote its fall meetings strictly to the acquiring of information relative to successful methods of dealing with the questions which continuously arise in the work of a municipal building inspector.

At this year's meeting, talks will be presented on the major construction materials, steel, brick, wood and concrete, each of the speakers being a recognized authority on his particular subject. Immediately after each of the prepared talks the meeting will be thrown open for general discussion by the members.

ENTRANCE HALL NEEDS MODERNIZER'S ATTENTION

The first impression of the stranger entering a house is usually a lasting one. Therefore when remodeling, the home owner should see to it that the entrance hall of his home receives its share of beautification.

Floor can be of colorful tile or the old flooring might be covered with one of the newer designs of linoleum.

Either will produce a highly desirable result.

RADIO FIXED, KING ONCE MORE HAPPY

ADDIS-ABABA, Abyssinia (AP)—The Ras Tafari has a passion for his wireless set.

Recently the Ras was sad. His set had gone out to commission. The 17-year-old son of Minister de Reffye was home on a vacation from the Polytechnic school in Paris. He was called and in 15 minutes he had tuned in Eiffel Tower.

Happily amazed, the Ras, who is soon to be crowned Emperor of Ethiopia, appointed the youth his technical adviser.

The lad, thanking the sovereign, could not accept as he had to return to school. Whereupon the king took from his own uniform a magnificent platinum decoration studded with diamonds and pinned it on the youth's chest.

The minister's son is now the youngest officer of the "Star of Abyssinia," and the king is once more happy.

Soviet Plans Radio Chain

MOSCOW (AP)—Construction of a chain of 62 radio stations covering the entire territory of Soviet Russia is planned by the government as a part of its revised five-year program for communication.

Form Glider Clubs

PARIS (AP)—The French, who have let the United States and Germany outdistance them in gliding, are renewing interest in flying without motors. Sixty clubs have been organized in various sections of the country to teach gliding.

FOR THE SAFETY OF YOUR HOME

SIXTY percent of all fires occur in the home. More than 7,000 lives are lost by fire in American homes each year.

To safeguard the families and communities of this country the Stock Fire Insurance companies have provided various measures of prevention and protection, through the National Board of Fire Underwriters and other organizations.

Such measures include the use of proper building materials, better building practices, the testing of home utilities, lighting and heating devices, fire extinguishing apparatus, and other services.

Department of Building Construction

The National Board Committee on Construction of Buildings assembles and distributes the best available information on reliable materials and construction methods. Few indeed are the municipal building codes that have not used in whole or in part the information and assistance of this department.

Fire Prevention

Through the Committee on Fire Prevention and Engineering Standards, the officials of more than 400 cities have received detailed analyses of municipal fire defenses, with recommendations for their improvement. In the smaller cities this work is done by the engineers of other organizations maintained by

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

Public use of these services, which are available without charge, has contributed to the constant decline in the average cost of fire insurance in this country for more than twenty years.

JEWETT CITY

St. Mary's, played as the processional, Greig's Funeral March, and for the recessional was Dvorak's Largo. The bearers were Henry Wallace, Fred H. Gilbert, John F. Lennon, Frank J. Barr, Patrick F. Driscoll and Dennis Griffin.

At the grave in St. Mary's cemetery in Lisbon, Rev. Fr. McCabe read the committal service. The largely attended services were in charge of Hourigan Bros., of Norwich and Jewett City.

By arrangement with Contractor M. A. Gammino, and by his courtesy, the funeral procession of over 50 automobiles, passed over the new Quinebaug viaduct. It was a coincidence, made possible by the car assignments of the cortege, that the officials of the town of Griswold (of whom Mr. Finn was the head), were the first to pass over the new bridge in the line of public traffic. The funeral of the first selectman occurred one year to a day from the time the bridge excavations were begun, October 13th. Following the passing of the funeral cars, the traffic barriers were put in place again by the contractor.

Traffic Officers Henry Vegiard and Thomas Morancey were on duty during the funeral hours from 10 a. m. until noon.

The magnificent flowers were from the wife, son, Dennis Barnett and family, Mr. and Mrs. Eudor LeClair, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Shanley, John Sharkey, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Clair, E. J. Davan, Elizabeth F. Sleeper and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Jodoin, Mr. and Mrs. John LeClair, Mrs. Nicholas Marcella and John Nichols, Martin J. Butts, Otto Anderson, Shea Bros., Arremoney and Son, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blanchard, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Zegeer, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Whiting, The Boys on the Corner, Marie Barrett, Mrs. Kate Dwyer, Town Officials, Borough Officials, Jewett City Electric Light commission, B. P. O. E., No. 430, of Norwich, F. of A., A. O. U. W., Pachaug Grange, Street Department, Borough of Jewett City, The Callahan Oil Co. Spiritual bouquets were received from Miss Alice Brennan, Anna Shahan, A. O. H., Margery Leyden, and Mr. and Mrs. James Ryan.

Those who attended the funeral from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. John Clair, E. J. Duvan, George Shields, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Roach and family, of Millbury, Mass.; Misses Elsie and Minnie Foster, Providence; Thomas Sharkey, and Miss Sadie Sharkey, of Attleboro, Mass.; Miss Rose Sharkey, of Hartford; Mr. and Mrs. James E. Ryan, Ridgefield; Mrs. Elizabeth Sleeper and Harold Sleeper, of Groton; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Wessel, of Hartford, and from Norwich, Mrs. Ellen Nichols, John Nichols, Mrs. Marcello Nichols, John J. NEW LONDON WATCH FOR GEO. PATNOD, WHO SHOT A GRANBY WOMAN MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 13.—The Hartford police this evening requested the New London police to be on the lookout for an Overland sedan, carrying Connecticut markers, 94370, and in which are George Patnod and his brother. The former is wanted for shooting a woman in Granby this afternoon and the latter, it is expected, will die from the wound. Patnod is described as being 32, about five feet, five inches in height and weighs about 140 pounds. He has brown eyes, black hair and wore a blue suit, white shirt and gray cap.

GUN LEI IS CHARGED WITH ILLEGAL OPIUM SALES

Gun Lei, proprietor of a Chinese laundry at 112 Main street, is locked up at police headquarters tonight, the Celestial being charged with violation of the narcotic or Harrison law and will be presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran tomorrow. Lei was arrested by narcotic agents, who came to New London about 2 o'clock and with a federal warrant for Lei's arrest. The officers went to the laundry and took Lei into custody. It is claimed that Lei has been receiving large supplies of opium from time to time and it is believed that he has distributed the drug among users of it.

Carl Burgess, 45 Henry street, a carpenter, was in the police court this morning charged with driving under the influence of liquor and with evasion of responsibility. The case was continued to Wednesday and Burgess furnished a surety on his bond of $500.

Joseph Zeppieri, 135 Fairview avenue, Groton, was charged with reckless driving. The case was continued until Wednesday. He provided a surety on his bond of $1000. Zeppieri was driving on Pequot avenue Sunday afternoon when the auto, which is owned by Charles Zamze, 21 Eastern Point road, hit Roger Standow, 4, of 7 Arundel avenue, Hartford. The child is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from a fractured skull.

Francis Redden, 361 Bank street, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, was fined $100 and costs. Redden was arrested early Saturday morning by Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolman Lawrence Fardy.

Edward J. Walsh was charged with speeding on Ocean avenue. His case was continued to the 22nd inst.

A half dozen cases of intoxication were tried and Judge Daniel M. Cronin either imposed a fine or meted out a jail sentence. Two of the men were given sentences of 20 and 30 days in jail, respectively, while the others were either fined $5 or $10 and costs.

An automobile driven by George A. Taylor, Main street, Niantic, hit a cyclist, Thomas Moran, 11, of 36 Raymond street this afternoon on Broad street. The youth escaped injury other than lacerations and bruises.

Jewett City Man Careless.

Charles Girard, Jewett City, was fined $5 and costs in the police court this morning when charged with passing an automatic traffic signal, corner of Bank and Howard streets, Saturday night that was set at danger. He was arrested by Patrolman Joseph Sullivan.

MARINE FROM SUB-BASE AND MRS. MABEL SANDE CAUGHT

Henry Strait, a marine stationed at the submarine base and Mrs. Mabel Sande, married, but estranged from her husband, were in the police court this morning charged with living out of wedlock. The case was continued a week and Strait and the woman furnished a surety on their bonds. Strait and Mrs. Sande were arrested Sunday night by State Police Officers John Smith and William E. MacKenzie on a warrant issued by Prosecuting Attorney Harry Brogan. Complaint had been made to the state police that the marine and the woman were residing at a cottage at Crystal lake, near the submarine base. The officers maintained a watch of the house two or three nights and late last night decided to move upon the building and found Strait and Mrs. Sande there.

Miss Muriel Marder, of 239 Broad street; Mrs Wallace Scott and infant daughter, Westbrook; Sigurd Fagerland, bargeman; Miss Marjorie Bates, Gales Ferry; Mrs. George King, and infant daughter, 4 Elm street; Mrs. Harold Cone and infant daughter, Maxson place; Mrs. John McDonald and infant son, 13 Fowler court, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

WEST MYSTIC MAN SHOT DOG IN A CRUEL MANNER

Ira Lamb, West Mystic, was charged with cruelty to animals and was fined $25 and costs. He filed notice of appeal and furnished surety on his bond for his arraignment in the next term of the court of common pleas. Last Thursday when a dog owned by Daniel Devine, of West Mystic, wandered about the property of Lamb, the latter seized a shot gun and fired at the animal, the charge making numerous wounds in the dog's body. The dog succeeded in walking about an eighth of a mile before it collapsed. First Selectman Charles T. Crandall observed the condition of the dog and shot it to end its suffering.

An automobile in which Morris Timkin and Meyer Vecovitz, both of Providence, were riding Sunday, collided with a pole in Waterford and the two men sustained injuries. Vecovitz is suffering from a possible fractured skull and Timkin received lacerations and a scalp wound. Both men are patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

A D-Soto sedan, owned by Robert Simpson, 28 Warren street, which was stolen from the rear of the store of the Aben Hardware Co., Bank street, Saturday night, was found by a friend of the owner, abandoned on Union street this morning.

MONTVILLE

FRED GOYETTE DIED WHILE ON HIS WAY TO WORK

Fred Goyette, 60, employed by the Uncasville-Shelton Co. for a number of years died suddenly Monday afternoon about 12.45 after collapsing on the street while he was on his way to his work. Mr. Goyette was apparently in good health until Saturday afternoon, when he complained to his friends about a pain in his chest. He again complained Monday afternoon at dinner time about the same pain and he left his dinner untouched at the boarding place of Daniel Griffin, at Uncasville, where Mr. Goyette has resided for a number of years. He was employed as a filling carrier and has been a resident of Montville for the past 25 or 30 years. Mr. Goyette was born in Jewett City. He was a member of the Moose and Foresters orders of Norwich. He leaves a brother in Canada, a sister in Willimantic and a niece, Mrs. Michael Sweeney, of Uncasville. Dr. J. J. Donahue, medical examiner of the town of Montville, was called and after viewing the body the doctor communicated with Coroner E. J. McKay, of Norwich, who had the body removed to the undertaking parlors of Hourigan Bros., of Norwich.

FOUR ARRESTS ARE MADE MONDAY BY STATE TROOPERS

George P. Smith, of 214 Fremen street, Brookline, Mass., and Pete Lodi, of 677 Van Ness avenue, New York city, were arrested by State Trooper Clarence E. Hoxie of Groton barracks on charges of operating a motor vehicle without operators' licenses. The accused were brought before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church, where they put up bonds of $25 each for their appearance in the Montville justice court Wednesday afternoon.

Showed 14 Licenses.

Elizabeth Sears Harold, of 27 Washington street, Middletown, Conn., was arrested by State Trooper Arthur Whitmarsh of Groton barracks on a charge of failing to renew her operator's license for 1930. The accused showed the officer 14 licenses that she had in her possession which dated from 1916 to 1929, but said she forgot to renew her license for 1930. She posted a bond for her appearance in Montville justice court Nov. 4th.

Francis Santeare, of Oakdale, Conn., was arrested by Officer Whitmarsh on the same charges that are named above. He was brought before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church when found the accused guilty and he paid a fine of $10 and costs of the court.

Snyder's Case Goes Over.

The case of Snitch Snyder, of Haughton's Cove, Uncasville, arrested by three state troopers from Groton barracks Sunday morning, which case was scheduled to be heard Monday afternoon in Montville justice court was continued to Wednesday afternoon, upon request of counsel for the accused.

GREENEVILLE

The regular Christian Endeavor meeting was conducted by Herbert Peckham at the Third Baptist church and the topic was "Marks of a Good Citizen." Dr. William Sly gave a very interesting talk upon the subject and Leroy Sebastian told how the Boy Scouts are taught citizenship. Two specials were played by the orchestra which added much to the service. Wednesday evening the executive meeting will be held and business transacted after which a supper will be served, in charge of the president of the society. A delegation of young people is expected to attend the Connecticut Baptist convention to be held at the First Baptist church of New London on Saturday.

SUFFERS FATAL HEMORRHAGE ON HORSEBACK RIDE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 13.—Stricken with a hemorrhage caused by high blood pressure while horseback riding in company with her husband, early this evening, Effie M. Weeks, 42, wife of Ellery E. Weeks, died at her home, 470 Pleasant street, about 9 o'clock tonight. They were about one mile and a half from their home when the woman suffered a weak spell. She was assisted from the horse by her husband and rushed home, where she evidently was recovering but suffered a sudden fatal relapse. Dr. F. E. Wilcox was in attendance at the home.

Mrs. Weeks was born in Lebanon, Feb. 16, 1888 the daughter of Simeon and Alvera Brown. Besides her husband she leaves one son, Boyde E. Weeks, of this city.

TAFTVILLE

Sunday was Rally day at the Taftville Congregational church school. It was the official opening of the fall sessions of the school and, from now on, attendance in classes is to be recorded. The teachers had sent out invitations to all the scholars to attend, and as a result there was an unusually large gathering on hand. The speaker of the day was John Peter, a Hindu student at the Hartford Theological seminary, who related some interesting missionary stories about India.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laramie, of Plainfield, have been recent guests of the former's brother-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith, and Miss Lillian Laramie, of North B street.

The members of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor of the Taftville Congregational church held a musical program at their meeting in the church vestry Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Parent, of Hartford, were week-end guests of the former's father, Treffle Parent, and his sister, Miss Georgianna Parent, of Merchants avenue.

In a pastoral letter to his people, Rev. William Penner, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church, writes: "With the turning of the leaves and the shortening of the days we have entered into another season of the year. It is the season when the church activities resume their normal functioning. Industry may be slack, but what is there to stop the business of the church? Our spiritual resources are unlimited and the call of the church for supporters who will produce moral and ethical products is ringing out to all who will lay hold on this great and important work. May these invigorating fall days inspire us to actions which will make this the most profitable year for the Christian cause in this community. The Sunday morning worship period is one of the most vital factors for the maintenance of spiritual life. This Christian fellowship extends the hand of welcome to all who will come. The church seeks to serve, but at the same time it covets the co-operation of the entire constituency. The sharing interest of each person is a contribution to the church."

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Pingree and daughter Lois, of Saylesville, R. I., were week-end guests of Mrs. Pingree's father, Axel L. Aberg, of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears, of North Fifth avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Belval, of Riverside grove; Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, of upper Merchants avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Frohmader, of South Second avenue, have returned from Boston, Mass., where they attended the annual convention of the American Legion and the Legion auxiliary.

Curtis Hedler, a student at the Worcester Polytechnic institute, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Hedler, of Terrace avenue.

NEW LONDON FEARS LOSS OF 2,000 MEN BY NAVY REORGANIZATION PLAN

The re-organization plans announced for the navy by which there will be nine instead of 19 submarines at the submarine base at Groton on the Thames river have aroused in New London business and civic organizations the fear of the removal of about 2,000 officers and men from the base. Telegrams seeking modification of the order have been dispatched to Secretary of the Navy Adams by the New London Board of Fire Underwriters, the New London Real Estate board, J. Coleman Prince post, American Legion and the Lions' club, but no replies had been received by them. Other telegrams were dispatched by prominent persons but none had any new information on Monday. The matter had reached the stage where those interested in the welfare of the city could do nothing more than figuratively mark time.

In answer to a telegram to Senator Frederic C. Walcott of Connecticut, requesting the senator "to confer with proper authorities to persuade change of orders," the following telegram has been received:

"I have before me your telegram and am writing a personal letter to the secretary of the navy presenting your plea to him. I hope something will come of it, but I am rather doubtful. I think they have a definite program that they are working on and are thoroughly determined to work it out. I do not know what the program is, however."

Mayor Morgan is awaiting answers to telegrams to Congressman John Q. Tilson of Connecticut and to Mayor Walker of New York in which the cooperation of New York is asked for.

Secretary Garlepy of the chamber of commerce also sent telegrams to Congressman Tilson and Senator Walcott, but as yet has received no answers.

Preparing To Depart

The personnel of the control force vessels is continuing work of preparing the craft for departure from the submarine base.

By the re-organization orders the 12 submarines of the S-type now based here are to be removed. Seven, which make up Division 4, will base on Pearl harbor, Honolulu, and the five which comprise Division 12, will be decommissioned. The five vessels of the mine force, which is part of the control force, are also ordered to Pearl harbor; the submarine tender Camden will be decommissioned, and the tender Bushnell will be flagship of the control force in place of the Camden. Nine O-type submarines at Groton will be decommissioned, but they will be replaced by submarines of the R-type, which are to be brought here from Pearl harbor.

25 Subs To Be Withdrawn

Twenty-five submarines now in service will soon be withdrawn. Under the re-organization plan, 51 submarines will be placed out of commission. The total tonnage to be reduced is 24,690. Some of the craft are already out of service.

Regarding the submarines, the Washington announcement said:

"Of the ships to be out of commission under the new plan the navy department intends to keep 16 in such state of preservation that they may be recommissioned. These 16 include five S-boats which originally were scheduled for scrapping. These 16 submarines, totaling 9,780 standard treaty tons, become over age by London treaty provisions in 1932 and 1933.

"The other 35 to be out of commission include nine O-boats that go under the new plan, to be scrapped, and the following submarines already out of commission and on the navy department disposal plan: Eight H-boats, 8 K-boats, 4 L-boats, 2 N-boats and 3 S-boats.

"The 25 submarines to be decommissioned under the new operating plan will join the 'back-channel fleet' at the navy yard, Philadelphia."

TWO AUTOMOBILES UPSET BUT NOBODY HURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 13.—A Chrysler phaeton, operated by Frederick Anderson, of Mianus Manor house, Riverside, Conn., returning from Boston, was in a head-on collision with a Pontiac car driven by Martin J. Fadow, 80 Greene street, West End, Boston, Monday night in Charlestown, R. I., about six miles east of Westerly on the Boston Post road. The Riverside car caromed off the Boston car tipped over and the occupants were thrown out, but none of those in either car received as much as a scratch.

Anderson was accompanied by his step-sister, Miss Ruth Cannon and Miss Hope Tyson, both of Riverside. Both young women were in riding habits and with the drivers of both cars were picked up and brought to Westerly by a passing autoist. They reported to Officer George Madison on duty in Dixon square. Officers of the Rhode Island state police requested them to return to the scene of the accident and they secured a Westerly taxi to return and proceeded to their home by a Boston-New York bus later.

Albert Dukets, 7 Popular street, West End, Boston, remained with the wrecked cars, one of which had a broken axle and a broken wheel.

SCOUT BOARD OF REVIEW PASSES ON SCOUT WORK

The local Boy Scout board of review of which Charles Bentley is acting as chairman, met in scout headquarters at 7 o'clock Monday night and went over the tenderfoot, second class and first class tests with several candidates. Scouts Arthur Bennett, John Friswell, Lewis Sussman and William Johnson appeared before the board as candidates for the first class scout rank but were found to be unprepared. There is nothing to prevent these scouts appearing before the board when it convenes next month, and the boys have promised to get busy and finish the job right.

The local board of review is a committee which sees that the minimum requirements of the Boy Scout work are met and all candidates for the rank of second class and first class must appear before the board.

The regular session of the court of honor will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the town hall. One of the features of the evening will be the attendance of the Girl Scouts.

QUINN AND TINNEY CHOICE OF STAFFORD DEMOCRATS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Oct. 13.—The democratic caucus was held in Warren Memorial hall Monday night, with Harold B. Kinney chairman and John B. Lee clerk. The following nominations for justice of the peace were made: Frederick J. Glover, Michael D. O'Connell, Ignacico Neri, Joseph Kosiorek, Benjamin Phelps, Henry F. Wise, Willis Belcher, William B. Hanley, Leo Beiz, Eli Pariseau. For representatives to the Connecticut general assembly, John J. Quinn, Richard H. Tinney.

For Motor Law Violations.

Moses Widrowitz of this city was charged with driving an automobile without brakes and Antonio Dubrenio, 21, with driving without having an operator's license when the two men were arrested here Monday afternoon by Motor Officer Clifford Crary. They will appear in the city court.

Hebron Man in Hospital

HEBRON, Oct. 13.—Carleton H. Jones, prominent garage owner here, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic today and operated on for ear trouble by Dr. William E. Hendry.

PALMERTOWN WOMAN MAKES QUILTING PRIZE AWARDS

Mrs. Alice Palmer Mitchell of Palmertown who was hostess at the quilting bee booth conducted by Palmer Brothers Co. in connection with the Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries held all last week at the Astor hotel in New York, awarded the prizes to the six winners in the quilting contest at the conclusion of the exposition Saturday night.

The first prize for the best quilting went to Mrs. M. J. Madigan of Rockville Center, Long Island.

The second prize for good quilting in execution of a difficult pattern was awarded to Mrs. W. O. Stevens of West Hartford.

The third prize for good quilting and an elaboration of the pattern was won by Mrs. T. H. Lander of Andersonville, S. C.

Miss F. E. Carr of Fayetteville, N. Y., won the fourth prize for good quilting with effective and difficult old pattern.

The fifth prize was won by Miss H. A. Goodman of New York for good quilting and duplicate use of an old pattern. The sixth prize for good quilting of a pattern brought by the quilter herself went to Mrs. C. Allendorf, also of New York.

Quilters from far distant parts of the country took in the contest. One of the quilters, Mrs. Belle Goger, was seamstress at the white house during President Grant's administration.

In all there were 73 contestants, ranging in age from 28 to 86. Most of the quilters were more than 70 years of age, however.

Mrs. Ruth E. Finley, author of the authoritative reference book, Old Patchwork Quilts and the Women Who Made Them, was the sole judge of the event.

NORWICH TOWN

CORNWALL PASTOR ACCEPTS CALL TO FIRST CONG. CHURCH

Officials of the First Congregational church have received word from Rev. Wilfrid M. Wilton, of Cornwall, Conn., that he accepts the call to become pastor of this church and expects to arrive in Norwich Town today (Tuesday). Rev. Mr. Wilton, who was extended a call following the meeting of the church corporation Thursday evening, last, is to move his family to Norwich Town. They will occupy the parsonage on Elm avenue, recently vacated by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey and family, after residing there nearly eleven years.

The October meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church is to be held in the vestry Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The theme of the meeting will be Temperance. The president, Mrs. William Weaver, will have charge of the business period. She is to be assisted by the vice-president, Mrs. Arthur Fulton, in conducting the devotional exercises. The meeting is open for all women interested.

SCOTLAND ROAD JUNIORS HOLD EXHIBIT AND SALE

Saturday, Oct. 4, the Scotland Road Dairy and Poultry club, the Far View Sewing club and the Busy Gardeners held fair and entertainment at Scotland Road hall. The program opened with a song, How Do You Do? by the clubs. The 4-H club pledge was recited by the Busy Gardeners. This was followed by a violin solo by Florence Smith. The program continued with a geography play. The New London County 4-H club orchestra played the Stein Song and Oh, Susanna. The Alphabet play was given by the boys' club and was followed by the songs O, When We Are Together and the Crocodile Song. A play, The Bargain Hunter, followed and a violin solo was played by Florence Smith. A play, Good-Bye, by the members of the girls' club, came next and Mary Lewis, county champion, played the harmonica. Turkey in the Straw was played by the orchestra.

Hot dogs, cake, candy and fancy articles were for sale by the club members.

The Busy Gardeners held an exhibit of their garden products, while poultry and dairy exhibits were made by the poultry and dairy club members, who also exhibited fruit and vegetables. The articles exhibited by the Far View club were made by the club members, during the year.

About $50 was realized from the sale.

METHODIST HYMN SERVICE INTERESTING PROGRAM

Sunday evening, in the Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter gave a hymn talk, telling the story of each hymn and something about the author. The hymns were then sung by the vested choir, some as solos, some duets and for some the congregation joined the choir in the singing. Mrs. Lewis Irish and Miss Florence M. Bennett have joined the vested choir and sang with them Sunday evening. The hymns used were "Day Is Dying In the West", "Saviour, Again To Thy Dear Name We Raise Our Hymn of Praise", "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go", "I Was a Wandering Sheep", "Blessed Assurance, Jesus Is Mine", "O, For a Faith That Will Not Shrink" and "Rejoice, Ye Pure In Heart."

At the morning service the pastor spoke on the subject, "Look to the East," taking for his text 2 Kings 13:13 "And he said open the window eastward." The vested choir under direction of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich sang, "Have Thine Own Way, Lord." The flowers were arranged by Mary Waters and Florence Gembel. At the C. E. service the leader Arthur Bennett gave an interesting talk on "The Marks of a Good Citizen."

Executive Visits Meeting

John Mason Troop 2, Boy Scouts connected with the Methodist Episcopal church, held a meeting Friday evening with an attendance of 13. During the meeting the Scouts were pleasantly surprised by a visit from Scout Executive John Sellman. The meeting was in charge of Senior Patrol Leader Donald Olsen. In the interpatrol contest for the trophy, a member of the troop committee, Walter D. Kelly and Harry Turner, a visiting Scout, acted as judges. The Stag Patrol under the leadership of Arthur Bennett scored 25 points and the Flying Eagle Patrol, under the leadership of Clayton Rose scored 15. A special committee, Donald Olsen, Clayton Rose, Frederick Ross, Albert Eyberse and Edward Jordan, was appointed to look into a proposition that may mean much pleasure and profit to the future of the troop. The meeting closed with the playing of Taps by Bugler Edward Jordan as the Scouts stood in the glow of the campfire. Scoutmaster Rev. George Warren Potter dismissed the Scouts.

The Wolf Cub Pack met Saturday with the Cubmaster Rev. Mr. Potter in charge, assisted by Assistant Cubmaster Edward Jordan. Following the opening ceremony and singing period, the Cubmaster told a story. A marching period was led by Edward and Frank Jordan playing the drums and Gustave Fishbone carrying the colors.

Methodist Church to be White

The committee appointed several weeks ago by the official board of the Methodist Episcopal church held a meeting Saturday night at the parsonage, with the pastor, who is the chairman of the committee. The sealed bids were opened and read and after a brief discussion it was voted unanimously to award the contract to Arthur T. Fulton. The church is to be painted white, the doors and the blinds to be green. The committee discussed ways and means to secure the necessary funds. Over half the amount has already been subscribed. The committee comprises Rev. George Warren Potter, Stanton W. Brown Rutherford H. Snow, Mrs. Annie Randall, Mrs. George Manning and Miss Theodora M. Brown. Miss Brown is treasurer.

FOUR SPECIFIED BEQUESTS IN HAZEL ANDERSON WILL

Four bequests of $500 each are made in the will of Miss Hazel Anderson, late of 49 Church street, who was for many years a Norwich public school teacher. The four beneficiaries named are Hazel Swan Jewett, Mary Rogers and Luella Wilson of this city and Bessie Nichols of Walden, N. Y. Hazel Swan Jewett is made the residuary legatee, but in the event of her death the residue is to be divided equally between the W. W. Backus hospital and the United Workers for the benefit of the Sheltering Arms department.

According to the appraisal by Walter M. Buckingham and Charles B. Lucas the estate amounts to $4,642.36. The Thames Bank and Trust company is executor and the appraisal is as follows:

Bank accounts: Norwich Savings society, $801.66; Dime Savings bank, $481.77; Chelsea Savings bank, $2,252.95; balance Uncas-Merchants National bank, $105.43; cash, $11.17; Liberty bond, $51; Liberty bond, $51.50; state teachers' pension fund, $1,080.13; household furniture and personal effects, $150 salary due from town, $156.75.

SCHOOL GIVING INSTRUCTIONS TO NON-COM. OFFICERS

The non-commissioned officers school, which has been ordered by the adjutant general's office, is to have its second meeting of the course at the state armory on Wednesday evening with non-commissioned officers from Battery B and the Combat Train of the 192nd Field Artillery in attendance.

A different set of instructors will be in charge of each of the three seven week periods, which will carry the school through until spring.

Capt. Jonathan L. Johnson and Lieut. Harry House are in charge of the first period which will prepare for second class gunners' examinations.

The next period will include instruction in military courtesy, guard duty, military hygiene, and use of instruments. Captains William R. Denison and Meredith Lee will be the instructors for the final period which will be for general review and study of advanced subjects.

Summit Street Brush Fire.

About 6 o'clock Monday evening Engine No. 6 was called out to extinguish a brush fire on land off Summit street. The fire, beaten out with brooms, gave the firemen a half hour's battle.

Calumet's DOUBLE-ACTION has made the oven a safer place for cakes

MAKE THIS TEST—See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that Calumet specially provides to take place in your mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture reaches the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that Calumet holds in reserve to take place in your oven. Make this test to-day. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.

1st ACTION

2nd ACTION

YOU will find that Calumet Baking Powder gives you the greatest possible help in preventing baking failures. For Calumet acts twice—and this double-action makes your cake come out successfully even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature accurately.

Calumet acts first in the mixing bowl. Then, in the oven, the second action occurs, lifts the batter right up and holds it until the cake is perfectly baked—fine-grained, fluffy, beautiful! Make a Calumet cake to-day. See why Calumet has become the most popular baking powder in the world.

Only One Level Teaspoon of Calumet to a Cup of Sifted Flour!

That's the usual Calumet proportion. Be sure to follow it even though you may have been using nearly twice as much with other baking powders. You'll be delighted with this economy! And more than delighted with the results Calumet gives you. Perfect texture! Perfect flavor!

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action nor in the amount that should be used. And not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—Double-Action.

Get a can of Calumet from your grocer to-day. Notice Calumet comes in full-sized 16 ounce cans.

BRAZILIAN REBELS ACTIVE ALONG FRONT OF 200 MILES

Right of the Insurgent Forces is in the State of Sao Paulo and the Left in Parana—Revolutionaries Report That the Encounter Resulted in Rout of the Government Forces—Fighting Was in a Sector in Which a Decisive Battle is Expected—Federal Government Claims Victory in the South, the West and the North—The Federals Contend That the Rebel Chieftains Are Worried About Economic Distress

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil, Oct. 14—(AP)—Victories along the Sao Paulo-Parana front and an extension of their campaign into the westerly state of Matto Grosso were the principal gains reported by Brazilian revolutionary leaders here today.

A five-hour battle between Affonso Camargo and Carlopolis, along the Sao Paulo-Parana 200-mile battle line, was described as the sharpest of the civil war thus far and was said to have resulted in rout for the government troops.

The fight was between the first battalion of the revolutionary army, commanded by Major Trajano Marinho, and 250 police of the Sao Paulo state forces. When the federals retreated they left behind rifles, machine guns and other war materials, with several dead and wounded and a number of prisoners. A communique issued here said that only one rebel was wounded.

In another engagement in the same area, at Quatigua, revolutionary soldiers routed a force of Sao Paulo state police and captured a number of prisoners. The government adherents left behind machine guns, rifles, ammunition and some heavy field-pieces.

A third battle in the same section was at Gatinga, with the revolutionaries capturing 35 prisoners, two machine guns and other arms.

The rebel operations on this front extend for 200 miles, the right being in the state of Sao Paulo and the left in Parana. It is in this sector that a decisive battle is expected, with the rebels either sweeping victoriously northward toward the rich prize of Sao Paulo city or being forced back toward Rio Grande Do Sul, birthplace of the insurrection.

No details have been given as to the Matto Grosso invasion, revolutionary spokesmen saying merely that rebel troops were assembling along the Paraguayan frontier. Dispatches from Rio De Janeiro credit the federals with driving the rebels out of the triangular western portion of M nisaereG gular western portion of Minas Geraes state, so the rebels in Matto Grosso may be those formerly occupying western Minas Geraes.

VICTORIES CLAIMED BY THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The Brazilian federal government today claimed victories over the revolutionists to the south, the west and the north, and declared the revolters were becoming discouraged by their reverses.

The principal victories were listed as being along the 200-mile Sao Paulo-Parana front and in the southwestern region of the state of Minas Geraes.

The main battle in northern Parana occurred at Senges Bridgehead, with 15 rebels—one of them an officer—found dead on the field after the fight. Federal sources said many insurrectos were wounded, whereas the government casualties totalled only six wounded.

Another fight, at the Igarapava bridgehead, in Sao Paulo just below the border of Minas Geraes, opened the way for advancement into Uberaba, the most important city in western Minas Geraes. With the capture of this place the government troops asserted that they had driven the rebels out of the triangular western portion of Minas Geraes. The revolutionaries also were understood to have withdrawn from the vicinity of Bello Horizonte, capital of the state.

An important federal accomplishment lay in the recovery of the railway system through southern Minas Geraes. This was done through the capture of a tunnel at Mantiqueira and another at Passa Quatro, leading to Soledade. Dr. Adolpho Moreira was appointed director of the railroad.

Turning to the regions lying north and east, government spokesmen said revolutionaries who had made incursions along the frontier of Rio De Janeiro state were fleeing, while the federals were in complete control of the Espirito Santo frontier.

The northern state of Para was listed as on the side of President Washington Luis, with volunteer battalions organized to aid the government and a squadron of government warships, reinforced by auxiliaries, lying in the harbor of the city of Para ready to fight for the government.

General Santa Cruz, head of the government forces in the northern region of Bahia, reported that he had assembled sufficient forces there to dominate the situation soon.

The federals say the revolt chieftains are not only discouraged by the government's stand but are worried by economic distress. An intercepted radio message, sent by the rebel chief in Parana to Getulio Vargas, leader of the revolt, said supplies must be shipped to the Parana sector immediately.

Meanwhile, new troops are being constantly assembled in the Rio De Janeiro and Sao Paulo districts. Reservists between the ages of 21 and 30, called out several days ago, have been ordered to report for duty not later than tomorrow and will be given a month's training before being incorporated into regular regiments.

Volunteer organizations are being assembled more rapidly. Deputy Hylario Freire has organized a battalion of 500 men in the Santa Anna district, and Deputy Vergueiro De Lorena already has embarked with a battalion bearing his name.

Military police of the Sao Paulo district have organized a transport service with a large fleet of trucks and the first convoy already has left for the front. All trucks belonging to the various governmental departments have been requisitioned, and some of those owned by the city of Sao Paulo also are in use. Machine shops have been organized for the repair of motor vehicles.

The Sorocabana railway, which was the goal of revolting detachments last week, now is operating normally.

CAPTURE OF JACK FLEAGLE, MURDEROUS BANK ROBBER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—(AP)—A peculiar twist to Jake Fleagle's finger prints, recorded in the photographic memory of a United States bureau of investigation expert, lies back of his capture today on a charge of murder and bank robbery.

It was a single finger mark found on an automobile in which a Kansas doctor was killed, and in which the bandits escaped after the Lamar, Col., robbery, that led to Fleagle's identification as leader of the band.

The story told by bureau of investigation experts was that the four bandits stopped at Dighton, Kansas, to have the wounds of one of their party dressed. After a doctor had completed his work he was ordered into the car and pushed with it over a cliff.

A copy of one of the few prints found on the automobile was forwarded to Washington as a forlorn hope. Since there are more than 2,000,000 finger prints at the bureau of investigation it was impossible to compare it with every print, but each expert was instructed to impress the design in his mind and watch for its mate.

A. B. Ground, fingerprint examiner in the bureau, saw in the copy "whorls" unlike any he had ever seen before. After months had passed without result, he finally found a print that matched it. It had been sent in by a California sheriff who had held and then released Jake Fleagle on a minor charge.

The print furnished the first positive identification of the Lamar robbers; caused the release of several persons mistakenly identified in connection with the crime; and led to the arrest of Fleagle's brother Ralph and his subsequent confession.

DRY QUESTIONNAIRES MAILED NEWSPAPERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The bureau of prohibition of the department of justice has asked 3,000 newspapers of the country to express their sentiment on the national prohibition law.

It announced today that the division of research and public information had mailed questionnaires to the newspapers. The questionnaire asks if the newspapers favor the eighteenth amendment and national prohibition law, whether they are opposed to the law or whether they are neutral.

When the replies are received the information will be compiled and made the subject of a monograph to be issued by the bureau. The questionnaires were sent out by E. A. Grant, acting chief of the division of research and public information.

The letter transmitting the questionnaire told the editors the prohibition bureau wanted to get the attitude of the press of the nation as a whole on the subject of the eighteenth amendment and the administration of the dry laws.

The monograph will be one of a series issued with the $50,000 appropriation made by congress to pay the cost of an educational campaign in favor of the dry laws.

MERGER COMBINES UPWARDS OF 4,000,000 COTTON SPINDLE

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Merger of more than 50 mills in the Lancashire spinning district, combining upwards of 4,000,000 cotton spindles, is announced after several months negotiations.

Second in size to the British giant, Lancashire Cotton corporation, the new organization will be known as Allied Spinners, Ltd., a relatively new concern, but made up of a nucleus of famous British spinning firms.

Definite amalgamation of the various interests in the combine will not be accomplished, however, until the last of this year.

Great secrecy has surrounded the negotiations preliminary to the actual merger, but rumors have been heard for some time in London financial circles, which apparently look with favor upon the new venture.

The firms affected are chiefly in the area adjacent to Oldham and Rochdale.

20 DEATHS IN NEWARK FROM POISON LIQUOR

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Twenty deaths from poison liquor have occurred in Newark since Wednesday, authorities announced today.

Chemical analysis disclosed that some of the victims had drunk a form of wood alcohol. Authorities said some of them may have had access to a 32-gallon drum of wood alcohol stolen from the plant of Chemical Solvents, InSc.

John H. Kreyling, of Irvington, who was at first thought to be an alcohol victim, was eliminated from the list today. His death certificate declared he died of a fall.

ONE DEATH, THREE NEW CASES OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

MIDDLETOWN, Oct 14.—(AP)—One death from infantile paralysis and three new cases were reported in Connecticut today.

Mary Hoffman, 12, of East Haddam, died in a hospital here, bringing to seven the number of deaths from the disease, while one new victim was discovered here, another in Reeds Gap and a third in Unionville

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Announcement was made that all topographical work had been completed in the survey of the proposed isthmian canal through Nicaragua.

ROME, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Official announcement was made tonight that the marriage of Princess Giovanna of Italy and King Boris of Bulgaria would take place on Oct. 25 at the ancient city of Assisi.

HAVANA, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The newspaper El Pais said that an alleged daring plot on the part of Senator Rosendo Collazo of Camaguey to assassinate numbers of his fellow senators had been secretly discussed by the senate.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 14.—(AP)—A municipal decree has barred American and other foreign surgeons from operating in the city hospitals of Budapest on the grounds that leading professors in the university clinics have been accepting fees from American surgical students for permission to operate on patients.

JACK DIAMOND HAS HAD A "PULMONARY COLLAPSE"

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Death drew closer today to Jack "Legs" Diamond, New York's best known gangster, while police knocked without answer at the wall of mystery surrounding his shooting Sunday morning in a West Side hotel.

There were plenty of theories for detectives to work on, but fewer facts and witnesses. Police, however, began an examination of Jacob Ginsberg, manager of the Hotel Monticello, where the shooting took place. He walked into the district attorney's office today and announced he was ready to tell "the whole story."

Police had been searching for Ginsberg, who was the first to reach Diamond after the shooting. After calling a doctor he departed hurriedly from the hotel with his wife and child.

A bulletin issued late today at the Polyclinic hospital, where the racketeer lies, said his condition was critical and that there had been a "pulmonary collapse." Privately physicians expressed the belief he would not live 24 hours.

SUPPLY OF EGGS IN STORAGE THE GREATEST IN 25 YEARS

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The supply of eggs in storage is the greatest in 25 years, according to the monthly report issued today by the government bureau of agricultural economics.

There is an excess of 1,974,000 cases of eggs on hand compared with a year ago, present holdings being 9,169,000 cases. This supply is 1,098,000 cases greater than five-year average holdings, and about half a million cases greater than the previous record holdings in 1923. Consumer use of eggs is decidedly below previous years, despite the fact that egg prices are at the lowest levels in a quarter of a century.

In contrast, butter holdings total 130,753,000 pounds, an amount 27,788,000 pounds less than at this time last year, and 3,951,000 pounds less than the five-year average. Cold storage poultry holdings are 46,912,000 pounds, about 15,000,000 pounds under the supply on hand a year ago.

PUBLIC ASSEMBLAGES FORBIDDEN IN CUBA

HAVANA, Oct. 14—(AP)—President Machado today signed a decree forbidding the holding of meetings or assemblages of any kind throughout the republic until November 2, the day after the congressional and senatorial elections.

The decree, although complete in every detail, will not become effective until tomorrow night at 6 o'clock, when it is published in the official gazette.

Officials said the decree was occasioned by a number of minor disturbances, unimportant in themselves but tending to disturb the national peace, coupled with the desire of President Machado to take all possible precautions against disorders during the remainder of the electoral period.

HOLD-UP MAN CAPTURED AFTER PAYROLL ROBBERY

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—A holdup man who grabbed a $2,700 payroll from an office girl for a textile plant in Astoria, Queens, was captured today after a spectator pursued him in the face of a hail of bullets.

Fanny Margolies was entering the United Textile Print Works when a man stepped from the doorway and seized the portfolio containing the payroll. Jacob Heslin, a bystander, pursued the man, braving the bullets the robber fired in his flight.

The fugitive jumped on a moving truck, but the driver, George Lydon, stopped and caught his departing passenger with a flying tackle. A crowd escorted the bandit to a nearby police station.

WOULD HAVE DELAWARE CHANGE STATE DRY LAW

DOVER, Del., Oct. 14—(AP)—The house of delegates of the Delaware State Medical society today adopted unanimously a resolution urging the amendment of the state prohibition enforcement law so as to make it possible for physicians to prescribe liquor for patients.

Under the law druggists must file a bond of $10,000 to adhere to the provisions of the state law in the matter of dispensing liquors, and so far as is known no druggist in Delaware has taken out such a bond.

INCREASE REPORTED IN REVENUE CAR LOADINGS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14— (AP) — Revenue car loadings for the week ending Oct. 4 were reported by the American Railway association today as having totaled 972,492 cars.

This represented an increase of 22,111 cars over the preceding week, but a reduction of 207,455 cars below the same week last year. Miscellaneous freight loadings for the week amounted to 393,889 cars, a decrease of 86,040 under the same week last year.

UNIVERSITY OF BARCELONA CLOSED INDEFINITELY

MADRID, Oct. 14—(AP)—One of Spain's greatest universities, that at Barcelona, today was closed by a vote of the deans and all classes suspended indefinitely because of grave disorders within its precincts, involving what the authorities characterized as gross disrespect for the king. Reopening will not occur until after today's riot has been fully cleared up.

6,297,877 Farms In The United States

Loss of 2.3 Per Cent in Ten Years—Highest Loss in New England, 19.7 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.— (AP)— A loss of 2.3 per cent of the farms of the land in the past decade was shown in a census bureau announcement today of a total United States enumeration of 6,297,877 farms.

The numerical decrease was 150,466 farms. Losses of 116,179 farms in the east north central states; 98,659 in the south Atlantic states; 68,418 in the middle Atlantic states; 30,868 in the New England states, and 3,101 in the mountain states, were partially balanced by gains— 108,917 in the west south central states; 28,885 in the Pacific states; 17,792 in the west north central states; and 11,160 in the east south central states.

The highest percentage of loss was in the New England states, with a 19.7 per cent decrease. The highest percentage of gain was in the Pacific states, 12.3.

With the exception of Iowa, Michigan, and New Mexico, announced today simultaneously with the United States total, the farm census tally for all states had been announced.

The highest percentage of loss for any state was New Hampshire, 27.6 per cent, a decrease from 20,523 to 14,859 farms. The District of Columbia, however, becoming further urbanized, lost 48.0 per cent of its few farms.

Arizona showed the highest percentage of gain, 32.9 per cent, with 13,260 farms now as compared with 9,975 a decade ago.

Texas topped in numerical increase, gaining 59,974 farms, Mississippi coming second with a 40,352 gain.

Georgia lost the largest number of farms, 54,480; Ohio was second with 37,036; South Carolina third with 34,799 and New York fourth with 33,075.

Previous to the 1920-1930 decade, farms had been steadily mounting in numbers as the United States developed. Before the Civil war, in 1850, there were 1,449,073 farms in the United States. By 1880, with westward emigration, this number had increased to 4,008,907. Figures for the next 30 years were: 1890—4,564,641; 1900— 5,737,372; 1910— 6,361,502. The peak was reached in 1920 with 6,448,343, when the trend toward fewer farms with larger acreage set in, bringing that total down to 6,371,640 by 1925.

Every New England state shows a loss. The figures follow:

	No. Farms April 30, 1930	Decrease	Pct.
Maine	39,404	8,823	18.3
New Hampshire	14,859	5,664	27.6
Vermont	24,991	4,064	14.0
Massachusetts	25,600	6,401	20.0
Rhode Island	3,366	717	17.6
Connecticut	17,481	5,174	22.8

HELD FOR THE DEATH OF NORWALK POLICEMAN

NORWALK, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Edward Bodine, of Flushing, L. I., was being held tonight in $2,000 bail as the hit-skip driver who early today fatally injured Sergeant Frank Stratton, of the Norwalk police department. He is charged with manslaughter and driving a car without a license.

Stratton, aged 65 and a cousin of P. T. Barnum's "General Tom Thumb," was struck by an automobile in the Boston Post road as was questioning two marines in a car believed to have been stolen. Patrolman Paul McGrath, a companion gave chase on his motorcycle when the car speeded on, and arrested Bodine.

When he returned to the accident scene, the two marines had gone. Later they were arrested in Stratford and gave their names as James Forristal, of Boston, and William Chenowith, of Cumberland, Md. Police said they admitted deserting from the U. S. S. Antares at Norfolk, Va., on Oct. 1 and that they had stolen the automobile in which they were riding in New York yesterday. In the car with them was Frank Rich, of Rye, N. Y., a hitch hiker.

ARRAIGNMENT OF MAL S. DAUGHERTY SET FOR OCT. 30

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Arraignment of Mal S. Daugherty, brother of former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, on charges of misapplication of bank funds, falsification of statements and embezzlement, today was tentatively set for Oct. 30. Daugherty, former president of the defunct Ohio State bank, to which he admitted indebtedness of $77,000, is at liberty under $40,000 bond signed by his brother and his 97-year-old mother, Mrs. Jane Daugherty. He was indicted on 58 separate counts by the grand jury yesterday.

A. F. OF L. DEFERS ACTION ON FIVE-HOUR WORK DAY

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor annual convention here today gave its full support to the five-day work week movement. Definite action on the five-hour work day was deferred for another year.

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE SUNDAY NIGHT ON STOCK MARKET SITUATION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—(AP)—White house attaches disclosed tonight that officers of the sagging New York Stock exchange conferred here with President Hoover Sunday night at a conference sought by them.

The nature of the conference was not revealed beyond that it had particular reference to the stock market situation—a situation which has been marked lately by declining prices but which moved upward late today.

Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange, and Allen Lindley, vice president, were the white house visitors. They had dinner with the president on his return from his Rapidan lodge Sunday night and remained for a conference later.

The conference aroused immediate speculation here tonight. News of it became known after the market had closed today after another sinking spell in the early trading.

White house officials declined to comment upon rumors that the department of justice has been investigating the selling of stocks short and there was no confirmation of this at the department. It is known, however, that the question of short selling has been brought to the attention of the president since the recent deflation of the stock market.

But if there is any intention of governmental interference with the stock exchange there has not been the slightest intimation of it in official circles.

The senate has ordered an investigation of the entire credit situation with particular reference to stock market manipulations, but Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, who was designated chairman of the investigating committee, has intended to wait until later before starting this inquiry.

Dis[illegible]rly Scenes [illegible]he Prussian Diet

National Socialists and Communists Were Aided By Supporters in the Public Galleries

BERLIN, Oct. 14—(AP)—The noisy minorities of fascist and communist delegates dominated the debate in today's opening session of the Prussian diet, a body whose right of existence in its present lineup has been challenged by the followers of Adolf Hitler since the national election on Sept. 14.

The national socialists and the communists aired their opposing views today with vehemence. They engaged in verbal passages in which they were joined by their supporters in the public galleries who shouted encouragement or defiance.

The speaker of the house finally was compelled to order the ejection of scores of vociferous galleryites and when the house adjourned for the day no business had been done.

Although the diet chamber faces the Leipzigerplatz, scene of yesterday's fascist demonstration against Jewish merchants, there were no disorders about the building, which was heavily guarded by police. The authorities marshaled a menacing array of anti-riot equipment and police three abreast patrolled the sidewalks.

If the Hitlerites had real fireworks in store for the diet they did not bring them forward today. The fascists, made confident by election of 107 of their number of the reichstag, are determined upon a move for dissolution to force new elections but the centrists are equally minded against it in support of Prime Minister Braun's coalition. The socialist centrist democratic bloc covers 228 out of 449 seats. The fascists number half a dozen.

APPOINTED TARIFF COM. REPRESENTATIVE IN EUROPE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.— (AP) — John F. Bethune of Falls Church, Va., was appointed by the tariff commission today as its representative in Europe, with headquarters at Brussels.

Bethune, who has been secretary of the commission for eleven years, will enter upon his new duties early next year.

An announcement by the commission said it expected through Mr. Bethune's new work to "accomplish much in removing misunderstandings on the part of European countries concerning the American tariff and its operation, and in securing foreign data for the use of the commission."

A BANK ROBBER WAS KILLED IN WESTVILLE, OKLA.

WESTVILLE, Okla., Oct. 14—(AP)—An attempted bank robbery was frustrated here today, a robber was killed, a bank president was wounded but a posse tonight failed to capture the second of the two holdup men.

A man giving the name of Tom Haworth was killed when bank officials first grappled with the bandits and then obtained guns and fired at the fleeing robber. Before he died he said his companion was named Elmer Jones.

F. S. Howard, president of the bank, was wounded in the hand when he rushed outside the bank to continue firing at the robbers, who sped away in a motor car. Haworth, fatally wounded, left the car about a mile from Westville and was captured.

SHOT MAN ON TRIAL FOR MURDER WHILE JURY WAS OUT

PAULS ALLEY, Okla., Oct. 14—(AP)—Seeking vengeance for his son's slaying, Ben Downey, about 60, late today shot and probably fatally wounded Leslie Christian, 32, on trial in district court here for the murder of his one-time brother-in-law, Ben Downey, Jr., several months ago.

Christian's fate had been placed in the hands of the jury about 3 o'clock and no decision had been reached at 6 p. m., when the jury went to dinner. The defendant left the court room on the third floor of the building shortly after the jury. At the foot of the stairway he met Downey, who fired five times.

Downey was held in the county jail.

RESUMING WORK AT FISHER BODY CO. PLANT

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Reestablishment of the automobile body assembly line at the Fisher Body Co. plant here has given employment to hundreds of men in the past few days.

Company officials said a general resumption of employment was under way and is expected to continue for some time. The assembly line had been idle since early last spring.

SENTENCED TO LIFE FOR MURDER OF WIFE

Bridgeport, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Anthony Andrion, 41, Greenwich laborer, was convicted of the second degree murder of his wife, Margaretta, 38, on July 25 by a jury in criminal superior court this afternoon. He was immediately sentenced to state's prison for life by Judge Arthur F. Ellis.

ROGERS SENDS OPEN LETTER TO DEMOCRATIC OPPONENT

Having Failed to Receive the Letter by Dean Cross Published in the Press Saturday, Requesting a Debate on Campaign Issues, the Republican Gubernatorial Nominee Reiterates His Feeling on Issues Mentioned—Treats of 18th Amendment, Business Depression, Old Age Pension Care of Tubercular and Rural Roads.

HARTFORD, Oct. 14—(AP)—Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, republican nominee for governor, today replied to the open letter adressed to him last Friday by Dr. Wilbur L. Cross, democratic gubernatorial nominee. Pointing out that he knows of the Cross letter to him only through the newspaper accounts, and so, "I assume the letter was for the press only," Lieut. Gov. Rogers, in his reply made public here when he stopped at republican state headquarters on his way to address a rally in South Coventry, takes up the issues suggested by Dr. Cross.

The repeal of the 18th amendment, the republican nominee says, is entirely a matter for the federal government, until such time as congress passes a new amendment, repealing the present prohibition amendment. "If this occurs during my administration," he says, "I shall submit it and believing it will be in line with the policy of Connecticut and consistent with my former action, I shall in transmitting such repealing amendment, recommend to the legislature that it be ratified."

On Dr. Cross' praise of the democratic stand for a commission to investigate unemployment, Mr. Rogers announces he stands for "perpetuating our present economical and progressive government; thus assisting to provide actual jobs, not on commissions, for the unemployed."

To the request of Dr. Cross that the republican standard bearer explain his party's lack of a stand on old age pensions, Mr. Rogers replies, "A promise of support from the public treasury at this time and upon the information, or lack of information now at hand, is little better than a vote catching trap," and asks the democratic nominee how he would raise the money to pay the pensions, and specifically, whether the tax should be placed on industry or upon the wages of the working man who will benefit by the pensions.

Other questions raised by Dr. Cross, the care of the tubercular and rural roads, are also discussed by Lieut. Gov. Rogers in his letter, the text of which is as follows:

"My Dear Prof. Cross: I noticed that the press of Saturday morning published a letter from you presumed to have been sent to me requesting a debate and outlining what you believed to be the issues of this campaign. Having waited until today and receiving no such communication from you, I assume the letter was for the press only. Under the circumstances, I believe it is entirely proper for me to indicate generally how I feel about those matters which you believe to be pertinent issues in this campaign.

18th Amendment

"First. The question of the 18th amendment. I am sorry you do not like the plank in the republican platform on that subject—I do! Possibly if you had voted against the 18th amendment as I did for precisely the reasons set forth in the platform, it would appeal more strongly to you. As of course you must know, the question is now entirely out of the control of the states and any remedy or change in present conditions is solely within federal control at Washington. The only possible action towards a repeal of this amendment which can be taken by a governor of Connecticut, is, when two-thirds of the members of both houses of congress shall pass a constitutional amendment, repealing the present amendment, the governor would then submit to our general assembly such a repealing act. If this occurs during my administration, I shall submit it, and believing it will be in line with the policy of Connecticut and consistent with my former action, I shall, in transmitting such repealing amendment, recommend to the legislature that it be ratified.

Business Depression

"Second. The business depression. You call attention to the business depression and intimate that the republican party should assume the blame for the same. You further suggest the appointment of a commission to study the situation, etc. You must be aware that there is not a civilized country in the world which is not suffering to a much greater extent than we in the United States. With a world-wide condition existing as it does, attracting the attention of all governments and leading economists, and with our own president exerting every effort to discover not only causes, but methods of relief, does it not strike you, to use a kindly expression, as rather an idle gesture to set to work in the great maelstrom of investigation any commission on the part of our state. I believe that the efforts of a governor of Connecticut can be best directed to perpetuating our present economical and progressive government; thus assisting to provide actual jobs, not on commissions, for the unemployed.

Old Age Pension

"Third. Old age pension. You state that the democratic party has pledged itself to an old age pension plan, and suggest that I reply as to why the republican party did not do so. The height of good fellowship can often be temporarily attained by spending public money or by promising to do so. Many a public treasury has often been sorely embarrassed, if not entirely ruined, by heedless promises made by one faction or the other in order to secure popular endorsement at the polls. I do not characterize any sound discussion of old age pensions as being within this category, but I do believe a promise of support from the public treasury at this time and upon the information or lack of information now at hand is little better than a vote catching trap. From various estimates of the probable cost of such a dispensation, I gather the impression that it would annually run into millions, all of which would be an increase in our present expenditures and must in some manner be paid by the inhabitants of the state. How shall this amount be raised? Shall the tax be placed upon industry — as has otherwise been suggested, upon the wages now being paid working men, to be retained for the creation of a fund to care for them if unfortunate when old age arrives? These are problems which require a great deal of consideration. At a time like the present when every effort should be used to prevent rocking the boat, to the end that every working man who desires shall have a job, it strikes me as decidedly lacking in good judgment to thus further embarrass the situation. It would take many commissions on unemployment to undo the havoc such a governmental proclamation would create in Connecticut industry.

Care of Tubercular

"Fourth. Care of tubercular. You criticize the lack of facilities for treatment of tubercular patients and intimate that the state is not performing its duty in this respect. I am quite certain you must be unfamiliar with the excellent work being carried on by Connecticut in this direction. You cannot be aware that in this as in several other creditable projects Connecticut has been a pioneer. We are first among all of the states in per capita expenditure and I am confident that Connecticut without slighting other necessary activities has been among the most successful states in administering to sufferers from this affliction. Many new plans are in process of completion which will augment and make more efficient the work now being done.

Rural Roads

"Fifth. Rural roads. You intimate that the rural roads in Connecticut are in a deplorable condition, and that all of the funds have been devoted to trunk lines at the expense of rural roads. Three years ago Connecticut appropriated a million dollars for state aid roads which was the beginning of our new and improved system of state aid development. Last year we spent over two million dollars on these roads. Our highway system as a whole is unequalled by any other state not only in extent but in method of construction. Unlike any other state to which I can refer, they have been built without bond issues or any other form of indebtedness. They are a product of our 'pay-as-you-go' policy to which which I shall devote all of the energy our party stands committed and to I possess in perpetuating even to the extent of making no hasty promises for the purpose of securing votes on election day. After ten full years of experience in the work of administering our affairs, during the last two having been acting governor during the absence of Gov. Trumbull, I know what can be soundly promised and carried out. In that connection, I believe the plank in the republican platform with reference to this subject fully meets the requirements of the state and is an assurance from a practical and solvent administration upon which the smaller communities in the state can rely that substantial appropriations will be made for this purpose and properly expended.

"Very truly yours,
"ERNEST E. ROGERS."

CAMPAIGN AGAINST BANDITS AND COMMUNISTS IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Having practically crushed the northern rebellion, the nationalist government was reported today about to dispatch 200,000 troops against bandit and communist armies ravaging north China south of the Yangtse river.

President Chiang Kai-Shek said nationalist officials ordered the troops withdrawn from Honan province, where they have been fighting for six months against northern alliance rebels of Feng Yu-Hsiang and Yen Hsi-Shan.

The troops will be sent immediately to Hupeh, Anhwei, Hunan and Kiangsi provinces in which for many months bandit-communist hordes have looted and burned cities and countryside, and have massacred thousands of Chinese.

A Stubborn Fire

A fire which started in a patch of woods on the Steve Zagray farm in the Packwoodville section of the town Sunday afternoon was still burning slowly Tuesday afternoon. A force of men from Colchester and Lebanon with the state pumper from Lebanon worked patiently in an effort to extinguish the flames which had penetrated deep into the thick bed of peat moss around the clumps of half-grown swamp maples. A line of hose was laid over a half mile from a distant brook to the fire-line. No great damage was done to the maples and oaks scattered about the tract, as the flames were confined principally to the under-brush and peat moss. Late Tuesday afternoon the fire had been gotten under control with here and there a clump of peat moss still obstinately smoldering.

Misses Silvia A. Jaffe and Rose Pechinski, of Hartford, visited over Sunday at their homes here.

In recognition of National Pharmacy week, A. T. VanCleve has prepared a novel display which has been attracting much attention from passersby. WASHINGTON (AP) — Automatic sprinklers can control most fires liable to occur in airplane hangars. A series of tests at the bureau of standards has led to that conclusion.

FACTS FOR FAT FOLKS

Mrs. Betty Luedeke of Dayton, writes, "I am using Kruschen to reduce weight—I lost 10 pounds in one week and cannot say too much to recommend it.

To take off fat—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—an 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks—Get it at any drug store in the world—Millions take this little daily health dose.

SECOND DAY OF STAFFORD FAIR DRAWS BIG AND WELL PLEASED CROWD

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Oct. 14.—A large crowd attended the second day of Stafford Springs Agricultural society's 61st annual fair Tuesday. Although the sky was cloudy during the early part of the morning, the sun finally appeared and helped increase the number in attendance. The crowd appeared to enjoy themselves more fully Tuesday even than on the preceding day and were able to view the exhibits in the main building with more comfort. About 18,000 attended.

At noon the day's quota in attendance was at its height and the track and stage were in readiness for the performance and races, which began at 1 o'clock

Novel and Snappy Acts

The stage performances are of the usual high calibre. Madame Pallenberg with her trained bears pleased her audience immensely. The Casting Campbells, a quartette of flying aerials, and the White Brothers in an acrobatic comedy, incited outbursts of laughter from the occupants of the grandstand, by their clever skits and performances. A troop of mounted policemen from New York with their rodeo acts and trick riding proved one of the feature stage attractions. The Leach-LaQuinlan Trio, slack wire walkers, accomplished entertainers, gave a splendid performance. The vaudeville committee in charge of booking these acts consisted of Dr C. B. Tschummi, Francis C. Luce and Ronald A. Mitchell.

An Old Home Week

Each year the fair is a sort of old home week gathering, and groups of people are noted shaking hands and talking over the early days of the fair, the condition of the different buildings a few years ago and the improvement of the grounds in general. Former residents and people working out of town make it a custom to come to Stafford for at least one day of the fair and many familiar faces of old friends and acquaintances are noticeable on the grounds each day.

The dining hall on the ground floor of the Exhibition hall is run by the Stafford Fair association and attractively served meals are prepared daily at a moderate cost. The management, serving and preparing of dinners, is in charge of C. D. Richardson, of Brookfield, Mass., who has had the supervision of the dining hall for several years.

4-H Club Exhibits

The 4-H club, which is a part of the national agricultural extension system, has several exhibits in canning, clothing, dairy products, food, garden, handicraft, health, poultry and sheep. Each project has its individual outlay and is displayed in special 4-H tents. The judges of the 4-H club exhibits are Miss E. Trabue, home making; A. I. Mann, livestock; E. S. Walford, poultry. Donald C. Gaylor, County Club agent, is superintendent of the 4-H club work, and Miss E E Glover is assistant County Club agent.

The officials of the Fair association are: President, Robert W. Smith; vice-presidents, Alexander I. Mitchell, Frank H. Baker and James Sheppard, Jr.; secretary, David P. Mitchell; treasurer, Raymond B. Kelsey; secretary of racing, Michael O'Halloran; director of concessions, Bernard C. Hanley; auditors, Harry E. Burwell, Charles R. Newton. The directors are: Charles F. Beckwith, Harold W. Bruce, Benjamin P. Cooley, R. H. Fisk, R. M. Fisk, Gardiner H. Hall, Anders Jacobsen, W. G. Ladish, F. C. Luce, W. H. L. McBee, C. H. Meyers, C. H. Moore, R. R. Murray, A. J. Needham, Michael O'Halloran, Angus Park, M. H. Parker, C. B. Pinney, F. H. Plumb, F. G. Sanford, Walter Scott, George Siswick, Dr. C. B. Tschummi and R. H. Valentine

LEBANON

The Men's club met in the clubroom on Tuesday evening with a good number present. These officers were elected: President, Arthur Bruce; vice president, Thomas Fowler; secretary, Walter Thorpe; treasurer, Fred Burgess; entertainment committee, John Kinnaird, William Clark and Karl Bishop. Sandwiches, cakes, doughnuts and coffee were served by the committee, Frank O. Bruce, Arthur Bruce and Earle Hoxie.

Several members of the Ladies' Aid Mission circle met with Mrs. Jacob Legler on Tuesday evening to work on articles for a sale to be held a little later in the fall. Mrs. Legler served cake and coffee.

Rev. A. G. Littlefield, David Pitcher and John Clarke, attended the clambake at Gales Ferry given by the republican state committee.

Miss Harriet J. Manley, of Hartford, is visiting Mrs. A. A. Boothby.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Goodwin entertained Thursday Mr. and Mrs. John McGuire, of Gales Ferry, and Mrs. C. M. Geer, of Lebanon.

Mrs. Hattie Church, Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver and Rev. A. G. Littlefield motored to Hartford, Friday, to call on Mrs. Church's sons.

Dr. Laura H. Hills has closed her office in Willimantic and opened one at her home in Lebanon.

G. L. Randall has removed an ell from his residence and has added a sun parlor.

Harry Bruce has had his house covered with a new kind of shingles made to resemble brick.

A very interesting meeting of Lebanon grange, No. 21, P. of H., was held in Grange hall on Thursday evening. The program was in charge of Sister Anna Thomas and Brother Chauncey Williams and consisted of songs and readings, also a guessing contest, estimating the weight of a large apple. Brother J. A. Thomas came the nearest to the correct weight. Visitors were present from Jewett City and Pachaug Cake was served. A special feature was an original poem written and read by Brother O. S. Pultz.

Mrs. Ida M. Abel, Mrs. A. G. Littlefield, Miss Beatrice Littlefield and Mrs. J. E. Burgess attended the meeting of the Woman's league at the Central Baptist church, Norwich, Friday evening, to hear Rev. J. M. Baker, a returned missionary from Ongole, South India describe his work there.

Miss Mildred Ladd, of Willimantic Normal school spent the week end with Mrs. R. V. Taylor. On Saturday, Mrs. Taylor, Miss Ladd and John Kahn, of Franklin, attended the Yale football game in New Haven.

There was an attendance of over 50 at the First Congregational church, Sunday morning. In the absence of the organist, Mrs. Fred Burgess, Mrs. F. N. Taylor was at the organ. The Junior Endeavor was led by Madeline Vey. The C. E. meeting in the evening led by Wallace Blakeslee was a union meeting the Baptist society uniting with the local organization.

At the Baptist church Rev. A. G. Littlefield took as his text Gen. 1:27, "So God created man in His own image, in the image of God created He him, male and female created He them."

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Geer spent Sunday in Canterbury Green with their cousins, Mrs. Addie Waldo and Nelson Lyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton S. Williams took an auto trip Sunday over Bear Mt. bridge and Storm King highway.

Miss Della Weir, of South Manchester, Mrs. Minnie Dailey and son, Albert, of Glastonbury, were guests Sunday afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Goodwin.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bruce called Sunday afternoon to see their daughter, Mrs. Alfred Abel, in Bozrah.

Miss Luella Tompkins, of Windham, has been spending several days with Mrs. Clark Standish, also spent a night with Mrs. Earle Hoxie.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Abel and family spent a day recently with Mrs. Abel's parents in Hampton.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burgess were in Willimantic, Sunday, with their daughter, Mrs. Casey, it being her first wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harvey entertained at their summer home in Lebanon on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Potter, of New London.

COLUMBIA

Miss Anne Dix returned to Columbia Tuesday after two weeks' stay in the Hartford hospital following a surgical operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester P. Winsor and two children of Johnston, R. I., spent part of Monday with Mrs. Winsor's sister, Mrs. Clayton Hunt.

Mrs. Asa Mellinger is spending a few day in Boston.

A Sad Beginning

A family named Nedrowski, who moved into the old Brousseau place at Leonard Bridge last Saturday night are starting out with bad luck, their three weeks old baby dying of convulsions Monday morning.

Traffic over the week end was very heavy, continuing up to late Monday night as is always the case when a holiday comes over the week end, and especially when the weather is pleasant and warm.

Columbus day was not observed here Monday in any way, the schools keeping session as usual, and the usual mail deliveries made.

Mr. and Mrs. William Semel of Leonard Bridge conducted a religious rite for their infant son Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Julia Little, Horace Little and Clarence Bissell of Hartford spent the week end at Mrs. Little's summer home at Columbia lake.

Clayton E. Hunt Jr., a freshman at Worcester Tech, spent the week end at his home here, Monday being a holiday at the Institute.

Rally day exercises were held in Columbia Sunday school Sunday, with a special program. A button was given each one attending.

to gamble with ACUTE INDIGESTION. It's safe to have Bell-ans always ready.

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

WHEN FOOD SOURS . . .

Sweeten the Stomach instantly

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless liquid; pleasant, efficient and harmless. But it kills excess acids. It has remained the standard with physicians for more than 50 years.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for over fifty years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c bottles—any drugstore. The genuine is always a liquid—never made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' on wrapper and bottle.

DANIELSON

Dean Cross to Speak

The democrats of Killingly will open their state campaign here Wednesday evening with a rally in the town hall and with Dean Wilbur Cross, the party candidate for governor as the principal speaker. It will be the first rally of the campaign by either party in this town. Dean Cross will be accompanied by Democratic State Central Committeeman P. B. O'Sullivan of Orange, who also is listed for a speech.

Members of the Killingly democratic town committee and other prominent workers for the party here will join with Dean Cross and the members of his party for a dinner at the Attawaugan hotel prior to the rally. A band will escort the candidate from the hotel to the hall.

Hopes of the democrats to carry several towns in eastern Windham county are higher this fall than for time out of memory. They insist they will get Sterling, Brooklyn, Plainfield and Putnam, and hope to swing Killingly from its traditional place in the republican fold. The democrats made an impressive showing of strength in the recent town election here. This fact taken with the removal of what were purely local issues from the present campaign makes them especially confident of success here in November.

Forest Fire Still Rages

Fire broke out again this morning in five different places in the area near Squaw Rocks, several miles southeast of here, where men battled through much of yesterday and all last night to bring the first serious forest fire of the present season in this section under control. The origin of this fire is regarded as undoubtedly due to the carelessness of hunters who were in the region and firing guns frequently just before the fire broke out and started to assume alarming proportions.

Today 20 men and a fire truck from Moosup and a fire warden from Plainfield were doing patrol work around the burned area, putting out incipient fires and watching for renewed outbreaks. Water being used was hauled from the Alvah Pierce farm nearby.

An area of approximately 30 acres owned by Byron Wood of East Franklin street, Danielson, was swept by the flames and his loss will be considerable. Mr. Pierce is the owner of another section of the land burned over, but his loss will not be as heavy as that of Mr. Wood.

Five men who remained on duty and fighting the fire through all of last night were so exhausted this morning that they had to retire from the work.

The fire area is in the midst of woodland extending for several miles in various directions. Due to the extremely dry conditions prevailing, the fire that was believed to be still smouldering in places this afternoon was regarded as real menace.

Parker Heads Red Cross

William E Parker again heads Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross following last evening's annual meeting at the high school building. Mrs. Marjorie Waller was named as vice-chairman, Mrs. Ernest R. Warren as secretary, A. Putnam Woodward as treasurer and Ernest R Warren auditor The members of the executive committee selected by the meeting are. W. E. Parker, Francis E. Storer, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Warren, Mrs. E. H. Keach, J. Leo Bodo, Miss Susie Young, Mrs. L. E Kennedy, Miss Emma F. Pilling, A. Putnam Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Reed Mrs. J. Arthur Atwood, Miss Marion D. Chollar, Miss Laura Jacobs, Miss Miriam Boomhower, Mrs. Gordon J. Gale, Miss Marjorie Gaffney, Miss Marjorie Waller; home service committee, Miss Laura Jacobs chairman. A. L Reed, A. Putnam Woodward.

The report of Treasurer Francis E. Storer covering the past year shows that on Oct 13 the balance of cash on hand was $1,435.25. Because of the pressure of other duties, Mr. Storer declined re-election this year. Receipts during the past year and including a balance of $550.16 on hand Nov. 1, 1929, amounted to $3,086.45. The revenue from memberships included 2,106 annuals at $1 each, 20 contributing ones at $5 each, two supporting ones at $25 each and one special of $75 from J. W. Powdrell.

Included in the list of expenditures is an item of $188.95 for home service, one of $1,138.50 representing the remittance of the local chapter to the organization headquarters, one of $200—a donation to the Civic federation and miscellaneous items, one of which was a contribution of $100 for fire relief work at Nashua.

This morning the body of Louis Kalinosky, who died during Saturday night in the Daniel's Village section of the town, was taken by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy for shipment by train from Putnam to Mount Vernon, N. Y. Burial was to be at Yonkers this afternoon.

Ethel C. Tourtellottes, Putnam, an assistant department inspector of the Woman's Relief corps in Connecticut, will come here Wednesday evening to conduct the annual inspection of McGregor corps. The president of the corps, Mrs. Mab Sayles of Dayville, will preside Each year the annual inspection is largely attended, and this year is not expected to prove an exception to the rule.

Following the inspection refreshments are to be served.

FUNERAL

Mrs Louisa Perkins

This afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs William A. Graves on Mechanic street funeral services for Mrs. Louisa Perkins were conducted by Rev. Albert Abbott of the Methodist Episcopal church. During the service Mrs. Abbott sang The River of Life and The Home of the Soul. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Sidney H. Perry, Winfield Colwell, Harry Garfield Perkins and Harry Garfield Perkins, Jr. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Woman of middle age wanted to do housework and assist in care of children. Tel 718-3—adv.

Russell E. Danielson, son of James Danielson of the River road and a sophomore at Dartmouth college, has been elected a member of the news board of The Dartmouth, the college daily paper, by the editorial board. He is a graduate of Killingly High school in the class of 1929.

With Mrs William McLaughlin as hostess to the members of the Entre Nous club honors were won by Mrs. Grace Lambert, Mrs. Laura Gorman and Mrs L E Kennedy.

A corps of masons is now engaged with the brick work on the new building being constructed for the A. T. & T. Co., on the West Side. The building is to be ornately trimmed with limestone and will be an attractive structure when completed.

After visiting in South Britain for several weeks, Mrs. Helen S. Dowe has returned to her home here

Because so many fallen leaves that are tinder dry have accumulated along the streets of Danielson there is danger of starting a fire by carelessly tossing away lighted matches or cigarettes. A grass fire near Morin avenue yesterday afternoon is believed to have been caused in this manner.

HEARING FOR THREE SILVER BANDITS CONTINUED TO TUESDAY OF NEXT WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 14.—There was no hearing today, as had been scheduled in the Killingly town court, of the charges against Mario Ferraioli, 25, Anthony Peters, 28, and Joseph Cardoza, 28, held here and at the county jail in Brooklyn for a week past in connection with the holdup at South Killingly a week ago last Monday morning. The case was again continued, this time until Tuesday of next week. All will face charges of robbery when they are brought into court here. No one of them has been able to raise $10,000, the amount necessary for any one of them to gain release from jail.

From statements made by Doris Silva, alias Doris Bell, 23, who hailed from Norwich before she went to Providence several years ago, the police have obtained many leads that promise eventually to result in the roundup of an entire gang of criminals who have infested Providence, Pawtucket and the Providence river resorts.

State Officer Royal V. Scranton was in Providence and territory in the suburbs of that city today, working with Providence officers on the case. Other arrests were expected momentarily today though there is the chance that some of the hunted men have left their usual haunts as the result of the widespread publicity given the case. Some of this publicity in Providence has been premature and damaging to the efforts of the local officers and Providence police in their efforts to check on information that has come to their attention.

The Bell woman, though not under arrest, continued to be detained here today. She is being very courteously treated by the police, but is kept under constant guard at night.

Silver Discs Add to Mystery

Twelve silver discs, each about 3 1-2 inches in diameter, that were turned over to state officers today by South Killingly residents add a strange angle to the investigation the officers are making in clearing up the South Killingly holdup These discs, it develops, were picked up last Saturday on the state highway near where the holdup occurred. The find was made by Patrick Coffey and Fred Gomeau, both residents of the South Killingly section. The matter was not called to the attention of the state officers until today.

By this afternoon it had been established that the discs really are solid silver and of an aggregate weight of about one pound. A checkup shows that they were not included in the shipment that was stolen from the truck by the holdup crew. They were not where they were found when state officers made a thorough search immediately after the holdup was reported. Five days elapsed between the holdup and the finding of the discs.

From markings that are on the discs it may be possible to trace where they came from originally, but learning how they came to be scattered along the state highway near where the holdup occurred is regarded as presenting a much more difficult proposition.

Neither Mr. Coffey nor Mr. Gomeau realized the discs they found were silver, a fact that accounts for their delay in turning them in to the state officers.

BROOKLYN

Brooklyn grange sent over quite a delegation to the Spelling Match with Little River grange and it proved a jolly evening. After a pleasing musical programme, 14 of Little River's famous spellers lined up with an equal number from Brooklyn and the fight was on. As the ranks gradually grew smaller only three of the sisters remained standing and of these Mrs. Thompson, of Little River, was the winner and received the prize; but as Miss Helen Palmer, of Brooklyn, had spelled so many more words, two against one for so many rounds, Mrs. Thompson most generously handed the prize to her It was most enjoyable and everyone was on speaking terms when the evening was over.

Miss Helen Sharpe, of Springfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wendell Blethen, of West Medway, Mass., were guests at Arbor Vitae Inn over the holiday.

Sunday, Mrs. Mary A. Stanley entertained her niece, Mrs. Joseph McKenna, and family, also two cousins, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Wolff, of New York, and their daughter, Mrs. Collison, of Canterbury.

SUGAR SUPPLIES CALORIES AT THE LOWEST PRICE

Few Foods Return Such High Caloric Value for the Money

Sugar is an inexpensive food. Compared with butter, bacon, macaroni, bread, meats, milk, green vegetables and fresh fruits, sugar supplies the system with far more calories for each cent spent than the same amount expended on any of the rest of the products named.

This fact is significant because the average system requires approximately 3000 calories daily. Of this amount, sixty per cent should be derived from the carbohydrate group of foods to which sugar belongs.

To get the full value of sugar the housewife should consider it in relation to all the foods she chooses for her table. The most inexpensive balanced meal can be made satisfying and complete by a sweet dessert. Canned vegetables, as well as fresh ones, can be much improved in taste appeal if a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt is added while they are cooking. Breakfast cereals and stewed dried fruits have added goodness when sugar is added.

Doctors and dietitians approve the use of sugar in making essential foods tasty. For these foods contain vitamins, minerals and roughage — all of which are needed by the system. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

PROMINENT RHODE ISLAND MAN DIES AT THOMPSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 14—A death in Thompson Monday evening was that of Joshua M. Addeman, vice president of the Industrial Trust company of Providence and for 15 years secretary of state of Rhode Island, who died after an illness of a week at the home of his daughter Mrs. Dexter Elliott.

Mr. Addeman was a veteran of the Civil war. He served throughout the struggle and was discharged with an excellent service record. When war broke out, he was a student at Brown university but although absent from his class he was graduated in 1862 with a degree of A. B., and subsequently elected Phi Beta Kappa, the honorary scholastic fraternity.

He was elected secretary of state of Rhode Island in 1872 and was re-elected to the office during 14 successive years. Retiring from public service in 1887, he became treasurer of the then recently organized Industrial Trust company. In 1895 he became vice president of the organization, a position he held until his death.

Mr. Addeman was born at Bay of Islands, New Zealand, Nov. 15, 1840, the son of Thomas and Mary (Flagg) Addeman, who had emigrated from England in 1838. He came to Providence with his parents when but 4 years of age, landing after a hectic trip over storm-tossed seas. He served with distinction in the Civil war when he was enrolled in the 10th regiment of Rhode Island volunteers. He was afterwards made a captain. After the war, he took up the study of law and was admitted to the bar in 1867. In 1872, Mr. Addeman was elected secretary of state on the republican ticket, and was successively re-elected until 1887 when the democrats came into power in Rhode Island. He then took an active interest in affairs of the Industrial Trust company which is now one of New England's most powerful financial institutions.

He married Louise Waterman Windsor of Providence, a lineal descendent of Roger Williams, on October 25, 1872. They had three children, Grace L., Mary Frances, who married Dexter Elliott of Thompson; and Julia Dean, who married Frederick L. Jenckes of Providence.

Mr. Addeman was resident of Providence since his childhood and during recent years had maintained a summer home in Thompson.

Selectmen Meet

The first meeting of the new board of selectmen was held last evening in the selectmen's chambers in the municipal building on Church street. Clarence E. Pierce, republican member of the board and minority selectman presided over the session in his capacity of first member, a position he has held for a long term of years. Only matters of routine business were transacted. At a future meeting the board is to have an organization session and a permanent first member named. Francis X. Vadnais and Edward F. Girard, both democrats are remaining members. It cannot be definitely learned at this time whether or not Mr. Pierce will be retained as first member.

A class of seven candidates was worked in the first and second degrees of the order of Patrons of Husbandry, at a meeting of the Putnam grange held Monday night at Odd Fellows hall on Pomfret street. The degrees were administered by the mens' degree team. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

There was a large gathering Tuesday evening at the state armory on Harris street, where the annual dance of the Brunswick Hunt club took place. Members of the club who are in this city attended the annual field trials and their ladies were present in addition to landowners whose property comprises the trial courses, who were guests.

E. Leslie Beebe, manager of the S. N. E. Telephone company office here was in New London today on business.

At a session of city court this morning a Fitchburg man was found guilty of a minor charge, by Judge M. H. Geissler, and fined a small amount.

Capt. A. J. Dubreuil investigating a robbery which occurred at the Cities Service filling station on School street last week, said last night that no arrests in connection with the case have been made as yet.

Officials of the Brunswick Hunt club are fervently hoping that rain will be received Wednesday at which time rounds will be cast in the all age class to take part in trials now being held at Camp Nightingale, the summer home of Landlord E. C. Rogers of the Putnam Inn.

In a local sense the state political campaign is now underway. The republican machine set into operation last week with the nomination of Leon T. Wilson and William Pechie as candidates for general assembly and Judge Henry N. Benoit for judge of probate, is now matching strides with the democratic vehicle piloted by Leon Talbot and J. Otis Fox, representatives in 1929, nominated last night for re-election. Major A. D. McIntyre, veteran of the Spanish-American and World wars is the democratic nominee for judge of probate. Both tickets are considered to be well balanced and strong, factors that will insure spirited contest and keen competition on election day. Although the republicans stole a march of one week on their opponents by drafting their ticket last Thursday, the democrats are campaigning in the light of the new majority party, a handicap that will force the republicans to exert a new aggressiveness to overcome. They have promised that and their intentions have been met with spirited acceptance by the democrats who are gradually augmenting strength to their rejuvenated organization in anticipation of holding the town which they captured for the first time in 1928 and won again last week by a decisive victory in the town election.

The contest that will hold the interest of the townspeople will be the one between Judge Benoit and Mr. McIntyre. Judge Benoit was made town clerk in 1926 and probate judge in 1927, succeeding David Flagg in these capacities. He met first opposition a year ago when James J. Charron, was nominated by the democrats. At the polls, Judge Benoit defeated Charron by the narrow margin of 54 votes. Judge Benoit has been a popular public official and has served ably and efficiently in two of the town's major and most important offices. His record is an enviable one and one that will be difficult to surpass. Judge Benoit entered local politics in 1926, when employed in Attorney Irving H. Miron's offices, which he entered after returning from Washington where at Georgetown university he received degrees of master of patent laws, bachelor of law and master of law.

While at Washington, Judge Benoit served as bill clerk of the senate for three years and during another period worked in the United States post office department. Previous to his training at Georgetown, Judge Benoit served as a clerk with the American Legation at The Hague, Holland in 1918.

Major McIntyre, like Judge Benoit is a well known citizen of Putnam. Although not active in recent years, he has held town and city offices and has served with marked distinction. Major McIntyre, when serving with the rank of captain in Connecticut national guard troops, was commanding officer of the old Putnam Company "G" of the 3rd regiment. He was commandant when the outfit was ordered into service in 1898 during the Spanish campaign. During the post war years, Captain McIntyre was commissioned a major of the third Connecticut regiment of national guard. He retired a few years in advance of the World war, but with the country's entry into the World war in 1918, he enlisted in the service and was soon commissioned a lieutenant and made a paymaster and personnel adjutant of New York troops. Aside from his military career, Major McIntyre in 1900-01 served under Mayor L. H. Fuller as city clerk. He was elected three times as a member of the board of relief and served for a number of years as a member of the town school committee and secretary of the organization. He holds membership in the Anslem Mayotte post, American Legion and other fraternal organizations, is widely known and from a statement made today promises to wage a rigorous campaign for election.

Adelaide Bosworth, 68, a lifelong resident of Eastford died at her home there yesterday after a long illness. Mrs. Bosworth, a descendant of an old Ashford family, was a widely known and esteemed citizen of the community in which she had spent all of her life. She was born in Eastford, the daughter of Ebenezer Bosworth and Sarah Howlett, who were also natives of Eastford.

The condition of Mrs. Edgar M Warner of South Main street, who is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital was reported as improved today. For the past few days, Mrs. Warner's condition was regarded as critical, but hospital officials reported an encouraging change as having taken place early today.

The passing of a week has seen noteworthy gains made by drive teams working in the interests of the campaign for funds for the nurses home of the Day Kimball hospital. Almost $1,000 was netted from various events during the week making the total amount now on hand close to $22,000. A dance given at the Odd Fellows hall Friday evening was one of the week's events, the success of which is largely responsible for the amount netted this week. A meeting of the community drive teams will be held Wednesday afternoon at the Russian Bear tea rooms in Thompson. Mrs. A. A. Vonsiatsky, general chairman of the drive will preside.

Sergt. A. J. Sponcey was in charge of police activities today in the absence of Capt. A. J. Dubreuil, who is attending the Brunswick field trials at Pomfret this week.

HANDLING OUR FINANCES

On various occasions it has been the experience of Secretary Mellon of the treasury department to have his reports criticized unjustly. There has been a disposition from political reasons to read into them a false meaning and it was only a few days ago that the chairman of the democratic congressional campaign committee, Congressman Byrns, got mixed up in such a situation.

In connection with the statement made concerning the surplus at the end of the first quarter of the present fiscal year, it was set forth that expenditures for the sinking fund had been only $65,000,000 instead of $236,000,000 in the same quarter last year. That was pounced upon by the congressman as evidence that the treasury department had not been carrying out its duty in regard to the sinking fund in order to obtain a surplus. Mr. Byrns might have learned differently had he inquired, but he didn't. Probably he didn't want to lose the opportunity to direct an attack upon the administration.

Secretary Mellon had no difficulty in setting him right. His explanation was direct and to the point. He showed that in the first quarter of the last fiscal year there was an opportunity to buy government securities at a most favorable price and retire them with money in the sinking fund. This he did and by doing it was able to effect a saving to the government of $4,000,000. The situation in the first quarter of this fiscal year has not been so favorable. The securities that might have been bought have been selling at such a high figure that no advantage in purchase was to be obtained. Consequently the purchases have been fewer and when the right time comes or when it will be possible to purchase notes at a favorable figure the step will be taken.

The fact of the matter is that Mr. Mellon has been handling the finances of the government in the same shrewd manner that has characterized his service at the head of the treasury department for many years, and such attacks as Mr. Byrns makes only serve to convince the public how fortunate the country is in having him in that particular cabinet post.

CUTTING THE NAVY

Under the terms of the London treaty it was evident that naval reduction by this country was scheduled. What it is and how it is done has been set forth by Admiral Platt, chief of naval operations, and means that about 120,000 tons will be withdrawn under the orders that have been issued.

The agreement called for the cutting of the submarine tonnage about a third and this will be accompanied by a readjustment of the present distribution of these vessels. There will be a cut in the destroyer fleet from 103 to 91. There will be one of the larger warships sent to the scrap heap and, in all, there will be 49 taken out of service. Along with this will go a reduction of 4,800 in the naval force, but it is pointed out that this does not mean that 4,800 men are going to be taken out of the service at once. This reduction will be accomplished through expirations of service and through a 50 per cent cut in the number of enlistments. Thus the reduction in men will come gradually but the changes will mean a saving of about $29,000,000 yearly in the cost of the naval establishment.

While this is a reduction of the navy, it is to be realized that similar action must take place in the naval establishments of other countries, so that we are not weakening our defense while others are increasing or standing still. Furthermore, the provisions of the London agreement are such that it is possible for this country to build certain warships as replacements and to bring the naval equipment up to the fixed ratio. Already certain construction is underway and more is being planned, which, when completed, will mean modern fighting ships ready for service in case of need.

Each nation still retains the right to maintain its navy for adequate defense. There is a limit fixed for the three nations which will so cover construction as not to arouse the suspicion. It will mean, also, that there is a limit beyond which the nations cannot go, and in fixing a limitation it does away with that endless competition which is so expensive and disturbing.

RECLAIMING THE LEPERS

During a period of eight years in the Philippines, the present-day method of treating leprosy has resulted in the curing of 2,000 cases. This gives encouragement to the belief that some day leprosy will be wiped out, but with the victims of this disease numbering 2,000,000 or more it is apparent that much remains to be done. That death will help to reduce this number is inevitable, but there is, nevertheless, hope for the afflicted. While many have been cured and removed from isolation to return to their former homes, others are improved and looking forward to the day when they can do likewise.

One of the things in which General Leonard Wood became interested through his activities in the Philippines was the curing of the lepers. He devoted much time and effort to that cause and it was a fitting step when the Leonard Wood Memorial fund was established to carry on that work.

Under this project it was arranged to raise a fund of $2,000,000. That sum has been secured through nation-wide contributions, with the exception of the last $200,000, and in view of the great service to suffering humanity that is involved there should be no great delay in completing the fund and permitting its full benefit to operate for the relief of the distressed.

Many have labored for and with the lepers. General Wood recognized the need of intensifying the work and hastening the reclamation of the lives of those on the Island of Culion. Death shut off his interest, but friends, in conceiving the memorial, could not have acted more in keeping with the sentiment of the former governor-general of the Philippines. It is in keeping with what he visioned and what he hoped to see further advanced.

That the memorial fund is intended to meet a great humanitarian cause will be generally acknowledged. It will not only be a perpetual monument to the doctor and general, but a promise of alleviation of their affliction to the millions who are in need of such ministration. It is quite certain that the people of this country will insist upon the early completion of the fund, since either of the two purposes for which it is being raised is most worthy.

NEW YORK GUNMEN

Before the Rothstein murder mystery is cleared up in New York city, one who was closely connected with the gambler has been shot down by unknown gunmen. The circumstances surrounding the shooting of "Legs" Diamond, who was recently deported from Germany, were similar in many respects to those when Rothstein was killed.

In each instance the shooting took place in a hotel, a woman was involved, and the identity of the men who did the shooting was not disclosed or not known. It is a bit too early to expect conviction in the second case, but thus far none has been obtained in the Rothstein case and whether any better result will feature the Diamond case will be revealed in time.

New York police experienced severe criticism because of their failure to run down the guilty parties in the Rothstein murder. It was claimed that politics was involved and higher ups would be placed in a bad position through disclosures. Police commissioners were changed because of the failure to get anywhere. A new commissioner is at the helm during this shooting, but it is apparent that there are just as desperate gunmen at work in the big city now as there were in the previous case.

It is possible to look upon the shooting as a case of gunmen settling their own accounts. Diamond has a record of many arrests but few convictions. How he escaped punishment would be an interesting story, but at present there is no certainty that he will escape the fatal effects of the gangsters' bullets. Whether the police are going to be able to unearth the assailants is a question that is concerning New York at the present time. It reveals the gangsters in utter contempt for the law and puts a responsibility upon the authorities which cannot be lightly regarded.

PINCHOT'S TROUBLES GROW

Difficulties of no insignificant character are piling up against former Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania in his effort to return to that office. He has been aware of the fact that there was much opposition to his bone dryness on the part of the wets and he has learned that he cannot depend upon any help from Philadelphia in November.

Party leaders in the Quaker city have indicated their determination to support the candidate who bears the party designation of democratic-liberal, Mr. Hemphill. The republican national committeeman from that state, President Atterbury of the Pennsylvania road, has resigned his office rather than give his support to Mr. Pinchot and now Mr. Phillips, who ran as a wet in the republican primary and received more than 300,000 votes, has come out in support of Mr. Hemphill.

This is an unusual revolt in the Keystone state. There have always been plenty of contests within republican ranks but invariably there has been support of the successful candidate for office. Not so this time. Mr. Pinchot has been in office. It is known what can be expected if he is successful. It is imagined that he has presidential ambitions. It is known that he has ideas concerning state legislation which are certain to mean much opposition and it is felt that he stands in much the same relation to the republicans of Pennsylvania as the insurgents do to the republicans of the United States senate.

It is a most unusual situation for such strong republican support to be given to a democratic candidate for governor in Pennsylvania. In many states it would be enough to insure the control of the situation on election day, but Pennsylvania is a state which piles up such a strong republican majority that much will depend upon what influence this opposition to Mr. Pinchot is able to command throughout the state.

BETWEEN FRIENDS

"Harland's nice," admitted the girl in the new green dress which was so fashionable it looked like something homemade in her grandmother's time. "But of course he's out. He wouldn't do at all, now, would he?"

"Oh, dear no," sighed the redheaded one in the floppy black lace frock which made her look grown up at last. "There isn't a single redeeming feature!"

"He's terribly good looking," meditated the one in green. "That is, if your care for regular features. I prefer a more rugged type, to be quite honest. Of course, he has a way with him—I sort of thought you were falling for him last spring."

"How funny," murmured the girl in lace.

"Naturally I knew you had better sense," her friend went on after waiting for her to say something definite. "Harland hasn't enough money, for one thing. Any girl nowadays who marries a man without the means to give her the things she ought to have deserves all she doesn't get! Life is too short to waste it scrimping and going without—don't you think?"

"Absolutely," said the girl in black lace. "Everything you have said is sensible. And Harland is the type who never will make a lot of money, no matter how hard he tries. He is too—er—kindley. No mailed fist about him at all, and these days—"

"Exactly," said her friend quickly. "I can see you think things out and so few girls do. They just go ahead and are foolish. Any girl without her own income would be an idiot to marry Harland, wouldn't she?"

"She would," said the one in black lace seriously. "If she was considering herself at all. Nobody enjoys the prospect of a four-room flat all her life. And Harland hasn't even a car. He says he can't afford it."

"It's fatal for a man to admit he can't afford things," said the girl in green, shaking her head. "Harland never puts up any sort of a bluff. It's sort of shiftless, don't you think? No ambition. He just plugs along and never schemes to get ahead. I'm glad to find you've figured him all out this way. You went around with him so much I was really worried because I couldn't bear to see you spoiling your life. As I said, Harland never in the world will make a lot of money and it follows that if he has good sense he will marry some girl with means. It's only common sense. He needs somebody to back him up and push him forward and all that sort of thing, don't you think?"

"I suppose it would be good for him," admitted the redhead in black lace. "He's right interesting to talk to and is a sweet sort of boy but not the type to tie up to if a girl wants to get ahead on the gold coast. He's absolutely not a good catch; he has three sisters to help support and when he takes a girl to the theater he tells her right out that they will have to sit in the balcony—imagine!"

"Frightful," cried the girl in green energetically. "When if he had money he could live like a human being. There's something pathetic about it! It actually would be a charitable deed for some girl with money—"

"How much did your grandmother leave you?" asked the redheaded girl brutally.

"Why—whatever made you think of that?" inquired her friend, arching her brows in great surprise. "It's perfectly funny! Why, it was in the papers—$200,000. Since you feel as you do I don't mind telling you that I've been thinking—"

"When Harland and I are married—" began the redheaded one dreamily and then paused. "Why, did I forget to mention that we're engaged at last? Since last Sunday. He's quite irresistible in spite of his drawbacks!"

"Well," gasped the girl in green confusedly. "I must say I pity you from the bottom of my heart! Anyhow, I tried my best to save you!"—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

The Thyroid Gland-Goitre

By Oliver T. Osborne, M. D., New Haven.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The thyroid gland is located in the lower part of the neck just above the breast bone, and is the most important of the glands that are termed "endocrine" glands. Its activity is absolutely essential for growth and health, both mental and physical.

The thyroid gland furnishes a secretion to the body that stimulates all the other glands to normal activity; aids digestion and the organs that promote nutrition; is necessary for the proper growth of the bones, the teeth and the hair; and is especially needed for normal female functions. If this gland furnishes an over-amount of its normal secretion, various symtoms are caused; sleeplessness; trembling; loss of weight; nervousness; palpitation; and often profuse perspiration. There is often a bulging of the eyes, causing the condition which is called "exophthalmic goiter." If the gland furnishes a diminished amount of secretion, there is an excessive desire for sleep; the weight is increased, mostly fat; the skin becomes dry; and there is a general sluggishness of all mental and physical activities. When this secretion is very much diminished, it produces a stupid, flabby, fat condition which is termed "myxedema." Both excessive activity and a diminished activity of the gland require proper medical treatment, and often, in the first instance, surgical treatment.

This gland cannot act normally without it has a sufficient amount of iodine which should be taken with food and water. Certain regions of this country, as well as in other countries, have very little or no iodine in the drinking water, and people living in such locations, especially females, become goitrous. A person with an enlarged thyroid, even sometimes when it is very large, may not necessarily be in ill health. Therefore, in a very large number of instances it is not necessary to remove the goiter by surgery. These enlarged goitrous glands generally are not furnishing an increased amount of secretion, therefore the symptoms of oversecretion are not present. On the other hand, the thyroid may not be evidently enlarged but nevertheless be furnishing an increased amount of secretion, which may become dangerous and must be treated.

An enlarged thyroid gland is very common in adolescence, even in non-goitrous regions, especially in young girls. It seems to be due to an insufficient amount of iodine in the food or drink, or to some mistake in the metabolism of this mineral. Proper treatment will benefit these young people. It is important to remember, however, that the treatment in all goiters should be given by the physician. Under no circumstances attempt to treat yourself or your child by giving iodine, thyroid extract, iodized salt or iodized waters without the advice of your physician. An overdose of such treatment may do serious harm, even to causing exophthalmic goiter. On the other hand, proper treatment will not only benefit but may cure patients with this condition.

The thyroid gland is stimulated to extra activity by every acute infection and by some chronic infections. Part of its activity is to aid in fighting the infections, but it may become so damaged that after the infection is over its secretion becomes insufficient. The most frequent infections that disturb the thyroid are those that occur in the mouth and throat. Diseased teeth, tonsils and other foci of infection may cause the thyroid gland to either oversecrete or undersecrete, therefore, before any active treatment is given for thyroid disturbance, the physician determines whether or not there is any possibility that focal infections have produced the disturbance. If so, he advises the elimination of them, first of all.

One of the first symptoms is palpitation, and such a condition should warn the patient to seek early medical diagnosis for the cause of the heart disturbance. A mere enlargement of the throat should not cause worry because it can be corrected—so do not hesitate, because of fear, to see your doctor early for goiter treatment.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—How ran that old jingle of fatherly admonition to a young son to "be good" because—

"Some day ye may be pres-I-dint,
"Or a gin'ral in th' ar-r-r-r-my."

Yes, that was it. And a lot of fond parents seem still to hold out that dream of either political or military preferment as a spur to the ambition of young America. It shows up in the way they name their sons after presidents and such.

Who knows how many namesakes of Teddy Roosevelt his spectacular career brought about? How many young chaps born around the late 60's were named for Lincoln, Grant, Jefferson Davis or Robert E. Lee? How large a crop of Woodrow Wilsons did the World war period produce?

Nobody knows, yet the Bystander has stumbled on a list in the files of one World war figure that does give an idea of the extent to which this business of naming youngsters for the great folks of the historical period in which they were born is carried.

—And Snapshots

The record is in the files of General John Pershing. It lists some 200 or more boys and a few girls born during or just after the war who were named in his honor.

The parents wrote him about it, usually sending snapshots of the baby along. He got such communications even in France. Occasionally the mother who wrote had a grown son serving with the A. E. F. Those letters held special significance for the general.

But it is a commentary on the real Pershing that even in the midst of army building and battle planning all letters telling of young namesakes were answered promptly. Many of them bore the autograph signature of the general himself, acknowledging the honor done him. Those letters must be family treasures. And now and then a namesake writes to him.

Fancy Names

The list shows a great preponderance of cases where the new born infant was just named "Pershing" Jones or Smith or what not. Then there are a few "Jack Pershings."

There are other, more fanciful arrangements, however. There are two "Pershing Haig" cases, combining the American and British commanders. One is a native Hawaiian. There is a "Pershing Wong," Chinese and born in Shanghai. Even he got a letter.

There are "Pershing Woodrow" and "Pershing Wilson" to connect up with the wartime president. There is a "Foch Pershing," which brings in the French generalissimo. There is a "Pershing Dewey" and a "Pershing Victory" on the list and a lot of "John Joseph Pershings." And there is one young chap somewhere named "General John Pershing—," whatever the last name is.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Children

Mr. Editor: There are those who unfortunately suffer from the strange malady and obsession known as "children hatred." They believe that children are an unnecessary evil and should be perpetually cooped up indoors. They even go so far as to claim that sidewalks and public highways are their own private property and assume an imperialistic attitude in ordering them away.

It is unfortunate that the parents of these habitual kill-joys were not of the same frame of mind as their children. Perhaps the world would now be minus a few queer individuals. If they persist in getting riled at the sight of a few playful kids enjoying life outdoors, they may only bring upon themselves an attack of apoplexy or premature hardening of the arteries. I would suggest that they all band together and build a colony in the middle of Sahara desert or somewhere in Siberia. Better still, why not lease a cemetery for a private estate. There will be no neighbors or their kids to bother them there.

If these people ever drank of the milk of human kindness it must have turned sour at the first moment of contact. They should always bear in mind that they were once kids themselves and should therefore make some allowance for the spirit of youth. If not, then the Lord have mercy on them—for the kids won't.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Farmer Brown's Boy Saves the Deer

Blessed he who brings relief,
And puts an end to fear and grief.
—Lightfoot the Deer.

The moment Farmer Brown's Boy saw the two Deer lying head to head, unable to get to their feet, he understood exactly what had happened. He had never seen such a thing before, but he had read about it.

"Locked antlers!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "The poor things! Just see how they roll their eyes at me!"

He walked around the two fallen animals, and presently they struggled to their knees and then to their feet. But they were so tired and so weak that they trembled. And they did roll their eyes. It seemed to Farmer Brown's Boy as if those eyes were simply begging him to do something. He didn't waste any time. He turned on his heel and began to hurry away.

Peter Rabbit, who had been peeping out and watching hopefully, was disappointed. Farmer Brown's Boy had been there and had done nothing.

"I told you he couldn't do anything!" cried Sammy Jay.

"Perhaps he's gone to get someone to help him," said Peter, trying to appear hopeful.

"I don't believe it," said Sammy Jay, just to tease Peter. Nevertheless, Sammy in a few minutes flew away and secretly followed Farmer Brown's Boy. The latter hurried back home. He went to the barn. Presently he reappeared with something in his hands. What it was Sammy Jay didn't know. Sammy waited only long enough to see that Farmer Brown's Boy was heading straight back for the Green Forest. Then Sammy flew back as fast as he could go. "He's coming back! Farmer Brown's Boy's coming back!" he cried.

"What did I tell you!" cried Peter joyfully.

Now, the thing that Farmer Brown's Boy had gone home for was a saw. The two Deer were down again. Their tongues hung from their mouths, for they were very, very thirsty. Farmer Brown's Boy's heart fairly ached with pity as he looked at them. He reached out and patted Lightfoot lightly. "Never mind old fellow," said he. "It won't be long now before you are out of your trouble." Then he carefully studied those antlers, which are what many people call horns. He studied them to see just how they were locked together. Then he began to saw one of those antlers. It was one of the antlers of the strange Deer, who had challenged Lightfoot. There was silence all around as Farmer Brown's Boy worked. Presently that antler was cut through. Then he cut through the other antler. He had cut at just the right places. Lightfoot, somewhat weakly trying to toss his head, found to his surprise that he could do it. He was free! Farmer Brown's Boy stepped back. After a moment or two Lightfoot scrambled to his feet. So did the other Deer.

For a moment or two both acted as if they didn't know what to do. They acted as if they couldn't believe that they were free. Lightfoot shook his head, with its crown of great antlers. The other Deer shook his head, but only part of his antlers remained. He seemed to sense this and, turning aside, he slowly made his way back in the direction of the Great Mountain, as if in shame because he no longer had his wonderful crown of antlers. Lightfoot took a step forward and blew a faint challenge. But there was no more fight left in either Lightfoot or the other. The stranger stopped at the Laughing Brook and drank and drank and drank; and Lightfoot followed him there, so that the two enemies were side by side as they drank. Then the stranger went his way, and Lightfoot turned to join Mrs. Lightfoot, who was waiting for him. They didn't even notice Farmer Brown's Boy, who stood looking on.

Para: the City that Lives on the Jungle

"From the air, we saw how close primeval forests crowd Para. Its streets end in the jungle."

Flying from Washington to Buenos Aires, the National Geographic society's aerial survey party stopped at Para five days to overhaul the plane. Frederick Simpich writes of the greatest city on the Amazon as follows:

"When we got ashore, we felt how utterly the vast forests of Brazil dominate the life of this greatest city on the Amazon.

"Yet Para lives on the jungle. The big woods give it Brazil nuts, rubber, hardwoods, fruits, waxes, oils and jungle-bred animals, on which its sea trade is based.

"In equatorial dawn and dusk Para smells of jungle. Its beautiful Bosque park is but a bit of natural jungle, cut with paths and set with man's kiosks, swings, benches and bandstands—where after nightfall big jungle bats dart about and smaller jungle animals forage for food in the wake of day-time picnics.

"Giant mango trees, pelted with rocks by smaller boys when in fruit, shade the wide, cobble-stoned streets of its better quarters. On its waterfront streets you smell smoked crude rubber, the half-tanned skins of jaguars and snakes, pineapples, piles of Brazil nuts ready for ships to New York or Liverpool—for British Isle coal miners munch them while at work—bags of cocoa, piles of squared logs with their ends painted, and you smell the fresh-cut firewood half-breed Indians are stacking for use of wood-burning river boats.

"You smell also the shop of the wild animal dealer, its front gaudily painted with a Noah's Ark group of jungle creatures. He shows you bright, shrill macaws, grotesque monkeys and snarling jaguars. Then there are ant-eaters, living now, not on ants, but on fresh eggs broken into a dish; and cunning little capivaris, or 'river pigs' and the pink ibis, the stork, a white owl in a black mask, rare parrots, multi-colored wild ducks; also an 'electric eel' which gives you a distinct shock, allegedly 40 volts or more, when you stick a wire into his water barrel and touch him.

"Para is no mean city. It is the capital of a state that runs into 15 degrees of latitude—huge enough to hold a dozen small European countries. At the zenith of Brazil's historic rubber boom, before the Far East ruined her monopoly, Para grew fabulously rich on 'black gold.' Abundant survivals of the wild, oil-field like extravagance of the rubber boom period are seen in sumptuous government palaces and paintings, luxurious clubs and rows of private mansions built a generation ago. Now Para watches keenly the work of Henry Ford at Boa Vista, on the Tapajos, in the broad Amazon valley. 'Fordlandia,' local papers have renamed the spot where American engineers have built a model camp, and are clearing jungle to grow plantation rubber.

"Meantime, 300-year-old Portugese Para sits by the Tocantins and lives on the jungle. Long-horned ox teams haul crated automobiles from the docks—docks with their cranes, chains, anchors, tankers, naked men shoveling Brazil nuts, and big wharf rats nimbly crawling up dripping hawsers—while a mail-plane takes off for Rio. You sense progress here when you recall that slavery was not abolished until 1888, and that the Amazon itself, like the Tocantins, Tapajos and other rivers, was not open to world trade until after our Civil war.

"Forests yielded over 400 useful woods. Rubber, cacao, vanilla, sarsaparilla, many nuts, copaiba, quinine—these and many other good things grow wild. Any crops from cane, coffee and cereals to canary bird seed will grow here, if only you can clear the choking, obstinate jungle.

"Para merely built its zoo, figuratively left the gate open and the wild animals walked in! Three-toed pigs, sloths, tapirs, monkeys with heads the size of golf balls, snakes that can swallow calves, a river frog with fingers, in which it holds live minnows to eat them, as men hold corn on the cob. A local turtle is called 'the ox of the Amazon,' and its oil is made into 'turtle butter.'

"English bank clerks, German hardware agents, American oil men and seaplane mechanics, Japanese colonizing on Amazon lands and foreign sailors haunt the zoo. The tapir is the popular animal. Brazilians are fewer among zoo visitors. The jungle and its inmates are too familiar.

"Para is industrious. It rises soon after dawn. Its offices open early. It is cool then along the equator. When not about its daily duties, this city rests. It rests quietly, utterly. From 11 to 3 nobody stirs. Not even the buzzards that ride in flocks on open garbage wagons.

"Toward sunset, it takes the air, mostly by looking out of its windows. Many families have specially built little kiosks in the front yards where they can sit and watch the street. Movies there are, and a few motor cars, a semblance of outdoor sports among boys, and a few short promenades. But looking out the window seems Para's favorite diversion. More women lean out of windows here, I am sure, and look at other women leaning out of the windows, than in any other city anywhere. Sometimes they lean out and look at the men, pretending to enjoy only the cool evening zephyrs from the embattled jungles."

Three ministers wedded three sisters at Prairie, Ill., and three sisters of the brides served as bridesmaids. The ministers are the Rev. Edwin Jacobs, of Cleveland; the Rev. Paul Porlack, of Milwaukee, and the Rev. Arthur Haake, of Westminster, British Columbia. The brides are Misses Helen, Selma and Amanda Stellhorn, daughters of Henry F. Stellhorn, a farmer.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Eastern Malleable Iron Co., Vulcan Iron Division, New Britain.

On studying the history of the Vulcan Iron Works of New Britain, now owned by the Eastern Malleable Iron Co., it seems the first meeting of the men who later became this company's board of directors was held in the study of Rev. George P. Mains, then pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of New Britain. The list included eight men, a minister and five others interested in Y. M. C. A. or other religious work, the chief of police and an eighth whose occupation is not known. A rather unusual group to start an iron foundry: H. M. Dates, Hiram Oldershaw, George P. Mains, Theron H. Camp, Professor R. G. Hibbard, W. L. Morgan, Philo Andrews, and A. McManus.

The first meeting was held January 19, 1878, and the corporation was formed with Dr. Dates as president and Mr. Camp as secretary and treasurer.

Evidently the $75,000 worth of stock was immediately subscribed, a foundry building was erected within the year and work was begun. For many years it was known as the "Round House foundry" or the "Methodist Iron Works."

After two years (in 1880) a few new men brought more money into the business and after a complete reorganization with William Foulds, Hiram Oldershaw, Henry Lydall, David and George B. Gordon constituting a board of directors, Mr. Foulds was made president and Mr. Oldershaw took the office of secretary and treasurer.

In 1899 another new building was erected containing an air furnace and with that the capacity of the company was considerably enlarged and the line of castings made was increased.

All this time the company was operated by the same management but in 1890 the Vulcan Iron Works stock was all bought by the Bridgeport Malleable Iron company of Bridgeport. It was then that for the first time the ownership of a New Britain concern passed out of the city. Each of the old officers of the Vulcan Iron Works was given ten shares of the new company's stock in exchange for his of the New Britain foundry so an interest in the business remained in town although the management went out.

A Bridgeport man assumed the office of president and a new board of directors was elected consisting of William A. Grippen of Bridgeport, J. H. Whittemore and L. D. Warner to retain office after the reorganization, he continuing as secretary and treasurer.

A year later, Mr. Oldershaw resigned as treasurer in favor of W. P. Bacon, although he remained secretary. The same year (1891) Michael Martin of Bridgeport began as general superintendent. Thus the firm continued for six years, no definite change in method, policy or product taking place.

In '97 Mr. Oldershaw took Mr. Warner's place on the board of directors. On October 28, 1901, J. H. Whittemore was elected vice president and in 1905 A. H. Oldershaw became superintendent.

Some new property was acquired on Pleasant street in the next year which was to be used for enlargement of the plant. Consequently, in 1907, an addition to No. 2 foundry was started and completed in about 12 months.

This foundry, now called No. 3, increased the annual capacity of the firm's furnaces to 10,000 tons of metal, just ten times the capacity of the original cupola.

Outside interests deserve credit for developing the Vulcan Iron Works to its present stage of prosperity and its fine reputation. It was experienced leadership and out of town capital which did the "trick." In 1911, Hiram Oldershaw, the last of the original incorporators active in the business, died. His place is being taken by E. M. Beecher in charge of sales.

In 1913 the Eastern Malleable Iron company was formed by the junction of five of the principal foundries in the east; Vulcan Iron Works, New Britain; Bridgeport Malleable Iron Works, Bridgeport; Naugatuck Malleable Iron Works, Naugatuck; Wilmington Malleable Iron Works, Wilmington, Del., and Troy Malleable Iron Works, Troy, N. Y. Executive offices were established at Naugatuck with Harris Whittemore as president, C. L. Berber, vice president V. E. Manneller, secretary; W. J. Grippen, treasurer, and H. S. Pearsons, assistant treasurer.

A partial list of the lines manufactured includes: Builders' hardware, small tool castings, agricultural implements, railway and mine supplies, automobile, motorcycle and bicycle castings, textile machinery castings, electrical equipment and supplies, belt hooks, awning hardware, marine hardware, tobacco press work, typewriter castings, piano castings, naval construction work, gymnasium hardware, fire arms, plumbing supplies.

Since 1926, production has steadily increased, and the style and size of casting manufactured has gradually changed. The weight and size of castings manufactured has gradually changed. The weight and size of castings having increased to such an extent that in 1928, it became necessary for the company to add more modern equipment.

During the past two years, the management has decided that the old round house, a land mark for the past 50 years, must go, to make room for a more modern building. Work of demolishing this building has been finished, and plans are under consideration for a new modern plan foundry building.

The personnel of the management at this time is as follows: G. E. Bean, general manager; E. M. Beecher, assistant manager and sales manager; D. V. Walker, sales agent; R. S. Schilling, superintendent; F. A. Clark, assistant superintendent; G. T. Boll, assistant superintendent; W. D. Calvert, purchasing agent and cashier; S. I. Berger, production manager.

Mothers Enthusiastic Over Modern Laxative

Children like its flavor
Doctors approve its action

Unusual crossness, coated tongue, loss of appetite—mothers know how often these are signs that intestinal sluggishness is sapping the energy of their children. Wise mothers take no chances with old-fashioned cathartics. They are turning by thousands to Feen-a-mint as a safe, dependable corrective for constipation.

Children love the fresh, mint flavor of this modern chewing gum laxative which never has to be forced down unwilling throats as do old-fashioned cathartics. Mothers give it to them with the approval of their doctors because "Feen-a-mint works on the important principle of uniform internal distribution.

Because children chew Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness of its distribution throughout the alimentary tract.

While children chew this delicious bit of gum the laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint one time or decrease it the next. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the ideal health laxative to keep growing bodies regular. Get a package at any drug store.—Adv.

MACHINES IN COLLISION NEAR SANATORIUM ENTRANCE

Two automobiles were considerably damaged but the occupants escaped injury in a crash about 11:45 o'clock Tuesday night on the Norwich-New London highway, near the entrance to Uncas-on-Thames. The machines which figured in the crash were a Paige sedan operated by Leo Gagnon of No. 54 Main street, Jewett City and a DeSoto sedan owned by Clarence Sholes of No. 188 West Thames street and operated by Rena M. Sholes, his wife. Mrs. Sholes, it is understood, was driving out of the sanatorium entrance, having turned her machine around there when the machine she was driving and the Gagnon machine, being driven along the main highway, in a northerly direction, came together.

Constable Meyer Blumenthal was called from his home to investigate the crash, and after hearing the parties involved, decided that the accident warranted no arrests.

DRIVING TWO YEARS WITHOUT STATE LICENSE

Antonio Dubrerrio, 21, of this city, was fined $10 and costs in the city court Tuesday morning on a charge of driving without having a license to do so. He informed the court that he had an auto operator's license in Massachusetts two years ago but had not taken one out in this state. He claims he was receiving instructions in driving when arrested by Officer Clifford Crary.

Nipped Salem Forest Fire

While driving Monday along the Hartford turnpike just above the line which divides the towns of Montville and Salem, William S. Morris of Niantic noticed a small blaze in the woods where leaves were on fire for a space of several feet, but he was able to put it out by beating it out with a blanket and by tramping on the burning leaves. Two boys told him they had seen a hunter in the woods a short time before, smoking a cigarette, which was the probable cause of the blaze.

Rev. Robert H. Parkes, of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, was in Boston attending the consecration of Bishop Sherrill at Trinity church, Tuesday.

CONN. POWER GOES OFF; CITY IN TOTAL DARKNESS

While the Norwich gas and electric department was operating under the Connecticut Light and Power current this (Wednesday) morning, the current went off about 1 o'clock, plunging the city into complete darkness. Both the city street lights and the commercial circuits were out and for a time also it was impossible to telephone as the current was completely shut off and the central station operator was unable to ring up any calls.

The crew at the station on North Main street got power enough in a short time to send out current for the street lights and in about three quarters of an hour the commercial circuits were turned on again when the steam turbine at the North Main street station was started up. The Bulletin plant was without power for about 45 minutes, causing a stoppage of the linotype machines for that time.

HAD 79 CANDIDATES FOR POMONA DEGREE

New London county Pomana, No. 6, Patrons of Husbandry, had the climax of an all-day meeting Tuesday night at Grange hall when a class of 79 candidates was presented for the fifth degree.

This was conferred in beautiful and impressive form under Worthy Master Andrew Avery and staff, with unusually fine tableaux and a beautifully decorated court.

The work of the evening was followed by the lecturer's programme presented by Mrs. Maud Bliss, Pomona lecturer. This consisted of violin solos by Frank Sterry, vocal duets by Mrs. Miriam Bliss Beckwith, soprano, and G. B. Lockhart, tenor, recitations by Deputy Mell of Lisbon grange and motion songs led by Mrs. Ida E. Richardson, with Mrs. Georgianna Roessler soloist.

Announcement was made of the sixth degree which is to be conferred at Lisbon on Saturday of this week and at which a record breaking class is hoped for.

The Pomona meeting began with a morning session at which there was business and conferring of the fifth degree. Dinner was served by Norwich grange.

In the afternoon session, J. Curtis Hopkins, master of Rhode Island state grange, gave an intensely interesting address in which he covered the organization and principles of the grange in a very complete and informing manner.

There was also a programme which included stunts led by Mrs. Richardson, readings in costume by Ruth Robinson of Franklin grange and a report by Mrs. Bliss upon the lecturers' state conference at Durham.

SCHOOL BOARD RE-ELECTS W. F. LESTER CHAIRMAN

All of the members of the town scchool board were present at its reorganization meeting Tuesday evening in the office of Superintendent of Schools Edward J. Graham in the court house. They are Walter F. Lester, Robert McNeely, Mrs. A. H. Chase, Dr. E. J. Brophy, Edward G. McKay Thomas J. Kelly, also Supt. Graham. Mr. McNeely acted as temporary chairman and Mr. McKay as temporary secretary.

Mr. Lester was re-elected chairman and Mr. Kelly re-elected secretary of the board for the school season. Committee appointments by Chairman Lester follow: Finance, Mrs. Chase, chairman, Mr. McKay and Mr. Lester, ex-officio; committee on supplies, Mr. McKay, chairman, Mrs. Chase and Mr. Lester, ex-officio; committee on care of property, Mr. McNeely, chairman, Dr. Brophy and Mr. Lester, ex-officio.

A communication was read from Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, asking for the closing of the public schools on Armistice day and the board voted to comply with the request.

Two teacher appointments were: Miss Helen Weinstein and Miss Ruth Furlong.

Communications were received from Dr. Harrison Gray, town health officer, Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, president of the Woman's City club, and Mrs. A. E. Peyson, with reference to sanitary conditions in certain schools, especially in regard to toilets. It was mentioned that the school budget, this year, contains an increase in the appropriation for repairs, which will take care of the situation.

Three committee reports were given, Mr. McNeely reporting on the committee on the care of property, Mrs. Chase on the finance committee and Mr. McKay on the committee on supplies.

FIRST RAIN FALLS HERE IN OVER A MONTH

The extended drought that has gripped this section of the state for many days was broken about 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening when rain began to fall and continued to do so, but not very convincingly, until early this (Wednesday) morning, when a heavy rain set in. The last rainstorm of any consequence was experienced here Sept. 7 and was of marked violence, being accompanied by much lightning.

As a result of the long absence of rain, a vast number of residents in the outlying districts, who depend upon wells, springs and other sources, for their water supply, were put to a great deal of hardship and trouble. The farmers were especially hard hit, because it has been necessary for them to haul water for long distances for their cattle and other livestock. Many springs and wells have been reported to have gone dry for the first time in their history.

SAYS CHRISTOPHER THURBER BELONGS AMONG GREATEST AMERICAN HEROES

"America has never had a greater hero than Christopher C. Thurber, the Norwich boy who fell gallantly in action against the poverty, ignorance and disease of the Near East," declared J. J. Handsaker, associate secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, in an address Tuesday evening at a meeting of the Woman's City club at the Wauregan hotel. It was the opening meeting of the fall season of the club.

"Poverty, ignorance and disease," continued Mr. Handsaker, "are associated with the near eastern countries, but what "Kit" Thurber fought were these evils extraordinarily multiplied by the World war. If there is one suggestion that I, a stranger, make to you, it is that you familiarize yourselves with the life of this man, that you might, by means of it, inspire your youth to put into the task of preserving the peace of the world the same devotion Thurber gave to gathering up the pitiful waifs left by the World war. For this should be their great task.

"Your children will suffer in a war, compared with which the World war would be a Sunday school picnic, unless we take measures now to build up the machinery of peace. In Geneva, at the tables of the league of nations, 50 or more nations have been learning the lesson that safety and security can be secured only by co-operation against our common enemy, war.

"During the first ten years of the life of the league, a number of wars have been prevented and, little by little, the ancient habit of war is being changed. The great danger is that a new generation that knows nothing of war will assume the reigns of government before the old habit has been broken. It is of the first importance that we get on with our job of establishing the great peace agencies, and the president of the United States should be encouraged to submit the world court protocol for early ratification," Mr. Handsaker said.

Through an article appearing in The Bulletin, Dr. W. J. Sly, pastor of the Third Baptist church, learned of Mr. Handsaker's presence in the city. They were associates and close friends in Oregon for many years. After his address Mr. Handsaker left immediately for Pennsylvania where he will deliver a series of addresses after which he will attend the annual meeting of the National Council for the Prevention of War in Washington. Later he will return to his home in Portland, Ore.

Mr. Handsaker's address was a feature of the opening meeting of the season of the Woman's City club, and preceded a business meeting over which the president, Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, presided. During the business session it was announced that the club now numbers 479 members with more members waiting to join. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were heard and accepted as were the reports of the chairmen of the various department committees. Routine business occupied the remainder of the meeting after which there was a social hour.

President's Message

In announcing the schedule for the year, a message to the members from the club president says:

"As we begin our fourth year of existence and earnest effort, we find our place in the community fully established. The full strength of our endeavor this year should be used to make that place necessary, helpful, dependable, sustaining, progressive, and full of vision as we build for the future. The success of our efforts depends upon the energy and interest put into it by each individual member."

LOCAL LUTHER LEAGUE EXPECTS TO WIN BANNER

About 70 members from the Luther league of the First Lutheran church of this city, attended the Luther league 25th annual state convention at Meriden on Saturday and Sunday, registering to represent the Norwich league.

Harold Priebe of Meriden is the newly elected state president.

A great deal of enthusiasm was created, as the local league had brought home the attendance banner in 1929, and they intended to do the same this year. But due to a faulty registration of one of the league it was found that it was necessary to turn the awarding of the banner over to the executive committee which will sit for their first meeting on October 26th, but without a question it will be awarded to the Norwich Luther league, as they had a 100 per cent attendance at the convention.

The members of the Norwich league acting on committees at the convention were the local president, Albert Werth, on the nominating committee, and Miss Elizabeth Stelzner, as chairman of the resolution committee. The delegates were Miss Irene Werth, Miss Frieda Phillips, Miss Olga Zachae, Albert Werth and Miss Anna Retkovske.

CIVIC LEADERSHIP GROUP HOLDS SECOND MEETING

The second meeting of the civic leadership and public speaking group of professional and business men was held Tuesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. with an interesting session at which Rev. William J. Sly, the leader, gave suggestions on "Overcoming Fear and Timidity."

Four-minute addresses were made by several members, those participating being John P. Huntington upon "If I Had a Million Dollars What I Would Do For Norwich"; Mayor Lee Roy Robbins upon "Greatest Need of Norwich"; Melvin H. Werth upon "Hotels in American Life"; and T. M. Buckley upon "Radios."

J. J. Handsaker of Portland, Oregon, who was a visitor at the session, spoke upon "Prevention of War."

GAVE CLEVER PROGRAMME OF DRAMATIC READINGS

Under the auspices of the Sodality Dramatic league, a programme of dramatic readings and impersonations was given Tuesday evening in St. Patrick's church hall by Miss Adelaide Patterson who gave great pleasure to her good sized audience.

She opened her programme with two plays, which were given with clever characterization, these being The Hand of God and The Florist Shop. Then followed several dialect numbers in Irish, Italian, Scotch and Negro, with Miss May Woods as piano accompanist for an Irish folk song.

Other selections included William H. Carew's Each in His Own Tongue, O. Henry's The Gift of the Magi, James Whitcomb Riley's Almost Beyond Endurance, Edmund Cook's How Did You Die and Moo Cow Moo, closing with Kipling's If.

Miss Marguerite Foley, chairman of the Guild, was in charge of the arrangements and the decorations were in charge of Miss Geraldine Enos. The Guild was indebted to the Gilbert Furniture company for favors received.

AUTO REPORTED STOLEN IS FOUND ABANDONED

Herbert G. Fitzharris of No. 46 Hine street, New Haven, reported to the local police about 9 o'clock Tuesday night that his machine, a Ford sport coupe, registration number A-14065, was stolen from in front of the S. N. E. telephone building on Union street. Mr. Fitzharris informed the police that he parked the machine in front of the telephone building about 7 o'clock Tuesday evening and that when he went back to drive the machine away, he found it had been stolen. The police are on the lookout for the missing machine.

Later in the evening the machine was found on Chestnut street, where it had evidently been left by the person who tried to steal it. The owner had the keys to the machine with him. It is thought that the would-be thief tried to start the machine by allowing it to coast down Union street and across Union square. Finding that the engine would not start, the machine was abandoned on Chestnut street where it was found by the police.

WEDDING

Orme—Firth

George Orme, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Orme of 231 High street, Baltic, and Miss Florence Firth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Fremont Firth of Main street, Baltic, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at the Methodist Episcopal church, Baltic, by the pastor, Rev. J. Manley Shaw, in the presence of a large number of guests. Palms and autumnal foliage were the decorations on the altar and chancel. Mrs. J. Manley Shaw sang "O Promise Me" before the bridal party entered the church and at the processional Mrs. Gustave Swanson, the organist, played Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Esther Firth, as bridesmaid, and the bridegroom had for his best man, Harold Wilson. The bride was charming in ivory satin and wore a tulle veil caught with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Her bridesmaid was attractive in crepe and gold changeable taffeta, trimmed with gold lace, and wore a bandeau of tulle of cerese color. She carried fall flowers.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orme later leaving on a wedding trip which will take them to Providence, Bridgewater, Boston and New Bedford. For traveling Mrs. Orme wore a brown ensemble. She received many beautiful useful gifts.

Petitions for Pardon

Among 73 petitions which are to be presented before the state board of pardons are the following from counties in this section of the state:

Windham: David Daily.

Tolland: Mate Mrakovitch, Joseph Polce and William E. Howell.

New London: John Yurasz, James Corti and Sam Bushinger.

One accident for every 14,000 miles operated by commercial vehicles in Chicago was one month's safety record.

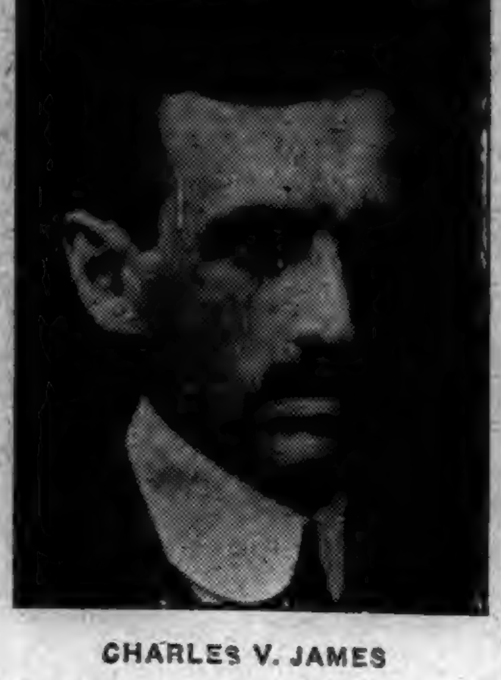
ELECTS C. V. JAMES C. OF C. PRESIDENT

Announcement was made Tuesday at the office of the Norwich chamber of commerce that Charles V. James, well known Norwich lawyer, has succeeded Francis E. Storer as president of the chamber. Mr. Storer, who is president of the Thames Bank and Trust Co., was recently elected president of the chamber. Upon learning that he had been chosen to head the chamber, Mr. Storer submitted his resignation, stating that he found it necessary to decline the office. He recently assumed his duties at the bank, which he felt should demand all of his energy.

"After seriously considering the matter from all angles, I have come to the conclusion that I cannot conscientiously assume the duties of the office in the face of the intensive attention which my other responsibilities require," Mr. Storer sets out in his resignation.



CHARLES V. JAMES

The board of directors accepted the resignation and appointed Mr. James as Mr. Storer's successor. Mr. Storer, however, will continue as a member of the board of directors.

Attorney James, who is a former president of the chamber, as well as its present head, is a member of the law firm of Brown & James of this city. He is a director of the Thames Bank and Trust Co., a director of the Norwich Building and Loan association and for years has always taken an active interest in the affairs of the city.

OBITUARY

Miss Mary T. A'Hearn

Miss Mary T. A'Hearn, for years a resident of Boswell avenue, died Monday evening about 8:30 o'clock at her home, 9 Oakridge street. Miss A'Hearn was born in Norwich and was the daughter of the late Michael and Johanna Callahan A'Hearn. She had always made her home in this city and was a devout member of St. Mary's parish. Surviving are two brothers, Michael and William A'Hearn of Norwich, a sister, Mrs. Michael Murphy of Bridgeport, and several nieces and nephews.

Miss A'Hearn was well known and universally liked by her many friends and acquaintances, who were deeply grieved to learn of her death.

Mrs. Rozanna Moumblow

After an illness of 18 months, Mrs. Rozanna Moumblow, 65, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Goldie Freeman, at 73 Fanning avenue, Tuesday evening at 5:30 o'clock. During her serious illness since Sept. 6, she has been most tenderly cared for by two of her daughters, Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Florence Brown, who were at her bedside when death came.

Mrs. Moumblow was born in Montreal, Can., Feb. 10, 1875, the daughter of Nelson and Louise Houle Bedard and is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Brown of Norwich and Mrs. L. G. Weckbaugh of Los Angeles; also four sons, John and Edward of Norwich, Ernest of Asbestos, P. Q., and Frank of Honolulu, P. I., 17 grandchildren and a brother, Nelson Bedard of Nashua, N. H. Burial will be in St. Louis DeConzac cemetery, Nashua.

Miss Sara A. Higgins.

After a brief illness the death of Miss Sara A. Higgins of Terryville, occurred Monday at the home of her sister, Mrs. T. A. Harty, of Torrington. Miss Higgins, who was born in Terryville and had always resided there, was sister of the late M. C. Higgins of this city and is survived by her sister, Mrs. Harty, one nephew, Lieut. Raymond T. J. Higgins, U. S. A., of Fort Bragg, N. C., and two nieces, Miss Mary E. Harty of Torrington and Miss Loretta P. Higgins of this city.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Adam Galka

Many relatives and friends attended the funeral of Mrs. Adam Galka held Tuesday morning at her home in Versailles. At 9:30 o'clock there was a requiem mass at St. Joseph's church, Occum, with Rev. Ludovic Paradis, celebrant. Mrs. Joseph Peloquin presided at the organ.

The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery, Baltic, and Rev. Fr. Paradis had charge of the committal service. The bearers were Emil Bain, James Brocko, Thomas Jospot, Frank Boyek, Joseph Goziko and Michael Makowkoc. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker G. G. Grant had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Howe

Simple but impressive services marked the funeral of Rev. Samuel H. Howe, D.D. pastor emeritus of Park Congregational church, held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. There was a very large attendance at the funeral service at Park church, of which the late Dr. Howe was pastor for nearly half a century. Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, D.D., pastor of the church, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London. A warm tribute to Rev. Dr. Howe was paid by Rev. Mr. Danforth, as follows:

Last spring, when our dear friend was looking forward to this day, he wrote to me: "I am conscious of the burden of many birthdays. The black camel is coming up the road to kneel for his mount. The old boatman Charon is anchoring his boat in the offing and I must embark, willing or unwilling, but I want no ado at my embarking. And oh, the mystery of it all!"

I speak not so much to you, as for you. Our presence here today expresses infinitely more than words can tell. Yet words can say something. And if we kept silence the very walls and windows would cry out.

In recent years there were those who asked him of his age and of the years of his pastorate. It did not interest him. He was so much at home in things eternal that time did not bulk large in his esteem. But there were distances that did appeal. Not the distance between the day of birth and the day of passing on from this life here, but the distances between God, and the man of God, and the child of God. Those meant something. How near is the man of God to God? And how near to the child of God? And how can he help bring the two together?

His was the clear mind which could see the way through many a difficulty and guide the minds of others. But still more he had within him the great companionship. He led others not simply to the thought of God but to God's self. And so the great companionship became the greatest reality of life for them.

Every memory can become a hope. From the height to which the years have brought us we can look forward into the eternity to come. We can go forward with God and with our friend forever.

The interment was in Yantic cemetery and Rev. Dr. Shipherd and Rev. Mr. Danforth conducted the committal service. Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, George S. Palmer, both of New London; Henry A. Tirrell, Ebenezer Learned, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts and R. S. Gernon were the honorary bearers. The Henry Allen & Son Co. had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Connecticut Boy Amazes Mother
"Billie's stomach was often upset and he suffered a lot from colds," says Mrs. M. F. Carroll, 143 Adelaide St., Hartford. "He was feverish and his breath was bad. I found he was constipated.
"My mother used California Fig Syrup with us, so I decided to give Billie some. It surely surprised me to see how quickly it stopped his feverishness, cleared his breath and tongue, regulated his bowels; made him a strong and energetic boy again."
The quick, safe way to cleanse and regulate the bowels of bilious, headachy, constipated children is with California Fig Syrup. Give it at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness or feverishness. Every child loves its rich, fruity flavor and it acts without griping or discomfort. Appetite is increased by its use; digestion is assisted; weak stomach and bowels are given tone and strength.
For fifty years, doctors have endorsed this pure vegetable product. The genuine is always marked by the word California. Look for that when buying or you may get an imitation.

PLAIN DRINKING WATER FINE TO FLUSH KIDNEYS
Add a spoonful Jad Salts to first glass before breakfast to clear intestines of poisons that may pass from intestinal tract to kidneys and invite trouble.
If you have miserable pains in your back, or strained feeling, don't jump to the conclusion you have a bad kidney ailment and start dosing yourself with a lot of medicine. Plain water is the best diuretic—the best flusher of the kidneys you can find.
Drink a full glass one-half hour before breakfast to which you've added a spoonful of ordinary Jad Salts. The water will flush the kidneys, the Jad Salts will cleanse the intestines of the dangerous toxins of Systematic Poisoning which are probably the real cause of those back pains.
According to recent discoveries of able men of science, these toxins frequently pass from the lower intestines to the kidneys, causing pus formations and pain—and inviting trouble. Get them out of your system and chances are, those pains you've diagnosed as "kidney pains" will go like magic. You'll feel a general easing up, less of that horribly tired and strained feeling at your back. You'll feel more snappy and alert than perhaps for years.
You can get the Jad Salts at any corner drug store. Just ask for ordinary Jad Salts. Take as suggested above. Also drink two glasses of plain water between every two meals and at bedtime. Then if your "kidney pains" aren't completely gone, in six days or less, see a good doctor. Try this simple way today. You'll be glad that you did.

Unable To Hold Over Whoopee.

Although the sensational technicolor Whoopee was booked for four days at the Palace theatre, where it has been doing tremendous business the management received so many requests to hold it over that the attempt was made. But because of the limited number of prints and the bookings already made, it was found impossible to have the picture held over beyond its regular Wednesday time.

BROOKLYN ACQUIRES LEFTY O'DOUL AND THOMPSON IN BIG PLAYER DEAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—In the biggest player deal since the close of the 1930 baseball season, the Brooklyn Robins today obtained two Philadelphia stars, Outfielder Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, 1929 National league batting king, and Second Baseman Fresco Thompson, in exchange for two pitchers, one rookie outfielder and a good-sized check.

The Robins, in fortifying for 1931 two of the positions in which they were weak this year, outbid at least two other National league clubs, including the Chicago Cubs, in the scramble for Phillie talent.

Brooklyn, besides the cash, hands over Jumbo Jim Elliott, big left hander; Clise Dudley, slightly smaller right hander; and Hal Lee, young outfielder, who signalized his major league debut by hitting a home run as a pinch hitter.

The addition of O'Doul to the Brooklyn outfield gives the Robins a trio of mighty hitters. O'Doul batted .383 this year, this impressive figure giving him fourth place in the National league rating. He led the league in 1929 with .398. A reformed southpaw pitcher, the hard hitting Lefty never has batted below .300 since he left the mound for the outfield.

Babe Herman, the Brooklyn right fielder, batted .393 this year and Johnny Frederick, the fast centerfielder, had a mark of 334. The signing of O'Doul will furnish Uncle Wilbert Robinson an outfield with average batting strength of .370, or 25 points better than the average of the highly regarded Chicago Cub outfielder lineup of Cuyler, Wilson and Stephenson.

Thompson had his poorest season in 1930 when he batted only .284, but the four years he has been the Phillies' regular second baseman he has an average above .300. He is only 27 years old and his friends confidently expect a change of uniform and scenery to prove beneficial.

Elliott, who is three inches over six feet and weighs 230 pounds, came to Brooklyn from Seattle in 1926 and with the exception of 1929, when he was sick most of the season, he has done excellent work.

Dudley has been with the Robins two years and although his work in 1930 consisted chiefly of relief pitching he "took his turn" in 1929 with fair success.

Lee, who like Dudley was promoted from the Atlanta club of the Southern association, played few full games for the Robins in the season just closed but was kept on the bench throughout the year, Manager Robinson refusing attractive offers for his services.

Brooklyn with the addition of the two key men from Philadelphia probably will stand pat on the team that almost won the National league pennant in 1930, but the Robins' rivals have not closed their books.

The Cubs by the purchase of Lester Sweetland, a left handed pitcher, from the Phillies, and Bob Smith, a right hander, from the Braves, have started the task of rebuilding their pitching staff.

BALTIC CLUB TAKES SOCCER GAME AT JEWETT CITY

At Ashland park on Sunday, Baltic defeated the Jewett City team by 2 goals to 1. The teams were fairly evenly matched and the game was fast and exciting. Dudley and Couillard scored for the visitors, and Miller for Jewett City. A determined effort is being made to organize a good team for Jewett City, and all lovers of the association game should support the movement. The line-up:

Baltic		Jewett City goal
Taylor		McCluggage

PILKINGTON HAS FAST WORKOUT FOR BOUT

Irish Jackie Pilkington, Meriden lightweight, who battles Bobby Mays, New London southpaw in the main attraction of 10 rounds at the Thames arena at New London Friday night, is hard at work training for the battle at New Haven where he has established his training quarters on his arrival from New York yesterday. In the afternoon Pilkington worked out at the Elm City gymnasium with three sparring partners, two of them listed for action on the supporting card Friday night.

Carmen Knapp, New Haven lightweight, who meets Jimmy Kearns in a four rounder, was the first boxer called upon to face the Irishman. He boxed two fast rounds and then Johnny Mack, listed to go against Sid Taylor of the Coast Guard academy in a six rounder, went three rounds. Mack gave Pilkington a good workout and they slammed away at each other like a couple of wildcats. Then to finish up his training workout, Pilkington took on Tony DePalma, New Haven southpaw boxer, who fights similar to Bobby Mays. They went at it for two fast rounds and the Silver City youth looked in fine shape. Following the long workout which also consisted of punching the big sand bags, skipping rope, and shadow-boxing, Pilkington tipped the scales at 136 pounds.

Pilkington will work out at the New Haven gymnasium until the day of the fight as he wants to get in the best of shape.

CRIMSON SQUAD HAS LONG BUT LIGHT WORKOUT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Eddie Mays and Jack Crichard today rejoined the Harvard varsity football squad and, after being pronounced physically fit, alternated at left halfback as Head Coach Arnold Horween put his first eleven through a long but light workout. Wood was at quarter, White at fullback, and Schereschewsky, who made a great impression against Springfield in White's role, was at right half.

Horween reported that Ogden and Trainer, varsity linemen, and Kales, a first string tackle reserve, would probably be in shape to play against Army on Saturday. This announcement appeared to cut the Crimson's injured list down to four, Talbot, Devens, Gray and Faxon, who will be out until the Dartmouth game at least.

Horween had his varsity playing offensive football during the prolonged dummy scrimmage with the second varsity eleven, which demonstrated Army plays later in the practice session.

NORTHWESTERN GETS ONE MORE SEVERE SETBACK

EVANSTON, Ills., Oct. 14—(AP)—The Northwestern university's football team, already weakened by the illness of Hank Bruder, got another setback today, when Harry Kent, star tackle from Tulsa, Okla., was ruled ineligible under the three year rule.

Kent, one of the stalwarts of Coach Dick Hanley's forward wall, played one season at the Central Teachers' college in Oklahoma and the seasons of 1928 and 1929, with Northwestern. Under the big ten three year rule, no student is permitted to play more than three years.

At first the big ten eligibility committee headed by Prof. Thomas French, of Ohio State, ruled that the Oklahoma school was of a secondary class insofar as athletic competition was concerned and that therefore Kent should be permitted to play another year. Kent did play in the first two games this season, but the Northwestern eligibility committee investigated, decided the years competition at the Oklahoma college came within the three year limit and declared Kent ineligible.

With their star halfback, Bruder, in the hospital with a mild case of smallpox, their quarterback, Red Russell, of Pahuska, Oklahoma ineligible, and the rest of the team vaccinated against smallpox the big ten championships hopes for the Wildcats tonight were lowered materially.

KNOXVILLE GETS FRANCHISE IN SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Knoxville entered the Southern Baseball association circuit and Mobile left today by vote of the league directors at their annual meeting here.

President Jimmy Hamilton's troubles with Mobile fans, the drop in attendance at Mobile park when he began selling players "to meet expenses," and his offer early in the season to transfer his franchise to Knoxville, led to dissension which culminated in the change.

The directors' action brought a fourth Tennessee city into the eight-city league. The league now includes Memphis, Knoxville, Nashville, Chattanooga, Birmingham, Atlanta, New Orleans and Little Rock.

President John D. Martin announced the transfer without revealing the terms or whether the new Knoxville club will be managed or headed by Jimmy Hamilton, now president and majority stockholder of the Mobile club.

STEVENS EXPERIMENTS WITH YALE SQUAD

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Coach Mal Stevens joined up a third string line with a first string backfield today and sent it against a Yale scrub football team in a scrimmage which resulted in a 13 to 0 victory for the varsity.

Heim and Crowley, who with Sullivan and Conklin made up the starting varsity backfield, each made a touchdown.

The first and second string lines were sent through a dummy scrimmage with Albie Booth, Beane, Taylor and Parker being used in the backfield with the first line.

Coach Stevens today said he expected to use a kicking game Saturday against Brown, with Booth and Crowley doing the booting.

Muhlfeld and McLennan, backs, and Lindenberg, end, were again absent today because of minor injuries.

ACADEMY PLAYS FITCH HIGH HERE SATURDAY

The Academy football team will return to the home gridiron Saturday for its fourth game of the season and the second at home. The opposition is the small but mighty Robert Fitch high of Groton, the school which was founded only a year ago last month but which this season is doing just a little bit better than any school of its size in Connecticut.

Fitch has a victory over Killingly while also holding Bulkeley to a 19 to 6 score. In the latter game Fitch did something that Meriden, a larger school couldn't accomplish—namely, score on the Tigers. The Academy has two victories and one defeat so far, having won from Chapman Tech and Hartford Bulkeley and lost to Warren Harding.

BROWN TO USE SAME TEAM THAT BEAT PRINCETON

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 14.—(AP)—No general changes are slated to be made in the Brown team for the Yale game on Saturday at New Haven, and the same team that started against Princeton will again be the choice of Coach Tuss McLaughry. The practice session for the Bruins today was limited to a long afternoon signal drill for the varsity and a scrimmage between the second and third teams. Ernest Hapgood, veteran guard on the Bruin eleven who has been on the injured list for the past five weeks, worked out with the team today. Hapgood alternated at both guard positions on the varsity team during the signal drill. It is not definitely known if Hapgood will be in condition to play against Yale.

TAFTVILLE VILLAGE LEAGUE WILL ORGANIZE THURSDAY

The Taftville village bowling league will be organized on Thursday evening at a meeting of the captains to be held at the Taftville alleys. The league this year will be composed of eight teams instead of six as last year. With eight teams it is expected that the rivalry and competition will be far greater than in previous years. The teams entered in the league are the Lisbon Five, Cardinals, Pete's Radio Five, Weller's General Electric, Paint Shop, Taftville Garage, Smith Brothers' Oil Cans and Nagel's Lunchers.

AL BEAUREGARD BOXES BUSTER NADEAU TONIGHT

Al Beauregard of Taftville, New England bantamweight champion, meets Buster Nadeau of Holyoke in the main bout of the boxing card at Gardner, Mass., this evening. Beauregard left yesterday for Gardner, where he will weigh in this afternoon. In Nadeau the local boy will meet a tough proposition, as Nadeau has been going strong in the open air bouts in the Bay state during the past summer.

ELKS JUNIOR TEAM TO BANQUET THIS EVENING

The Elks Junior league baseball team will be the guests of the Norwich Lodge of Elks at a banquet at Thames Tavern this evening. The team will meet at the Elks' home at 6 o'clock this evening and will be taken in machines to the tavern where Jim Hayes promises the boys a real treat. A programme has been planned for the boys by Manager Jackie Wilson and members of the sports committee.

Susie Says

That this is a mechanical age is very emphatically demonstrated in Germany in the advent of the nickel-in-the-slot beer vending machine. But what an unromantic way of taking a snifter that is. Just imagine stepping up to one of these machines, dropping in your coin pulling a lever and having a foaming glass of beer shot out of a hole at you. Gosh, that's getting machinery down to a fine point.

Half the joy of getting a glass of beer on a hot day was being able to park your foot on a brass rail and gossip with a rotund and roseate bartender. And those bartenders could gossip, what I mean. They knew everybody's troubles because they had to listen to them 12 hours a day. They were the father confessors of the thirsty. And they could no more refrain from telling you the latest news than they could keep the foam on the beer at the bottom of the glass. But imagine telling your troubles to a mechanical bartender.

Here it is a hot day and you're in Germany just pining for a good cool drink. You meet a friend and you say, "Where can we get a good glass of beer?" And the friend says something like this: "Well, I don't know, it's all good, but some is better than others. There is a machine down at the corner that is dispensing a heavy brew like porter and over on a side street is one that has a light beer that is pretty good. But the beer is all pretty warm, as the machines stand out in the sun all day and the ice men haven't been around." What do you say to that? All you do is suggest that you go over to the public fountain and get a drink of water.

I'll bet these beer machines were invented by a Germany prohibitionist, if there is such a person. But they sure should cut down the consumption of the amber fluid. Consider the tourist in Germany, the American tourist, I mean. He sees a vending machine and hearing that you can get beer out of one he drops in a coin, pulls the lever and out comes a handkerchief. What a disappointment. He could never make that mistake in the old days.

ALL BUT ONE OF FAVORITES COME THROUGH

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Led by the brilliant defending champion, Glenna Collett, and the imperturbable Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, medalist, favorites with one exception stroked their way to victories today in first round matches of the 1930 women's national amateur golf championship.

The upset, unexpected but nevertheless not as spectacular as the rankings of the participants would indicate, saw Miss Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., member of this year's international cup team, defeated by Mrs. Brent Potter of San Jose, Cal., two up.

Mrs. Potter, a veteran campaigner, never has engaged in a major tournament before but among her golfing souvenirs is a northern California title and this year she reached the runner-up station in the state championship. She outsteadied her younger opponent throughout and was two up at the turn. Mrs. Potter had a 41 for the first nine to 43 for Miss Quier.

Miss Collett, seeking her third successive title and fifth all-time championship, set an unbeatable pace to eliminate Mrs. Harry Grossman of Los Angeles, 6 and 4. The New York star, seasoned by long competition, snatched the first four holes before her rival could gain her bearings.

She was four up at the turn, posting a medal of 40, one over par, to 45 for Mrs. Grossman. She won the tenth with a birdie 4, lost the 11th, 5 to 4, and the 12th was halved in fives. Miss Collett clinched the match with a par 5 on the 13th and a birdie 5 on the 14th.

Medalist yesterday and national semi-finalist last year, Mrs. Hill advanced to the second round with a 4-3 victory over Miss Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis. The out-going stretch was nip and tuck, Mrs. Hill finishing the nine one up. Each posted 42's.

The Kansas City player kept straight down the course on the incoming holes while Miss Wall started pressing from the tee. Mrs. Hill won the tenth with a birdie 4, the next two holes were halved in 4 and 5, respectively, and the former won the 13th and 14th with pars 5 and 6 to go 4 up. Par 3's halved the 15th, where the match was clinched.

Two former champions, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia and Miss Marion Hollins of Santa Cruz, Cal., moved into the second round without difficulty. Mrs. Hurd, who won the first of her three national crowns in 1909, eliminated Mrs. Russell Fowles of Long Beach, Cal., 6 and 4.

Miss Hollins, 1921 champion, showed she still retains her match play game by defeating Mrs. John Taylor of Evanston, Ill., 3 and 2. Neither Mrs. Hurd nor Miss Hollins turned in sensational golf but their opposition was weak.

The best golf of the day was played by two girls in their 'teens Miss Helen Hicks, 19-year-old luminary from Inwood, N. Y., defeated Lucille De Long, 18-year-old girl from Coronado, Cal., 3 and 1. Miss Hicks shot the first nine in 38, one under par, and she finished in a sub-par flurry that won her the match on the 17th. Had she played out the round, a par ave on the 18th would have netted [illegible] four under par. [illegible] of San Gabriel, [illegible]

Maureen Orcutt, Haworth, N. J., lived up to expectations with easy conquests.

JOE McCARTHY SIGNS FOR TWO YEARS TO MANAGE THE NEW YORK YANKEES

(By Brian Bell, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—Joe McCarthy finally took off his National league uniform today and declared his allegiance to the American league by signing a contract to manage the New York Yankees for the next two years.

The former manager of the Chicago Cubs posed with Jacob Ruppert, president of the Yankees, before as many photographers as there are players on a major league club, as he affixed his signature to the document which he called "the best contract I ever signed."

McCarthy's reference was the only one made to the figures in contract but it was supposed that he was paid $25,000 a year at Chicago and probably received an increase of at least $5,000.

President Ruppert told the new manager that he confidently expected him to bring another pennant and another world's series championship to New York and Joe promised to do his best. The owner of the club placed his facilities behind the manager, adding:

"You and you alone will be the manager."

McCarthy, who is 43 and lives at Buffalo, although he is a native of Philadelphia, managed the Cubs for five years, piloting them to one championship. Before being graduated to the majors he managed Louisville for six years, playing four years. He was an infielder but never played major baseball.

"In most of 'em," he said when asked where he played in the minors. As a matter of fact he spent most of his 15 years as an active player in the New York State league the International and the American association.

"I was in the Federal league one winter," he said, explaining he signed with the Brooklyn Feds in the fall and the league passed out of existence before the start of the next baseball season.

He won two pennants at Louisville and his Colonels were the first American association club to defeat Baltimore in the "Little World's Series," after the Orioles of Jack Dunn had dominated minor league baseball for years.

Joe was charged with an error on his first formal utterance as an American leaguer. Colonel Ruppert informed him for the benefit of the fans who will see and hear the signing in theatres later, that when he signed his name he would be manager of the Yankees for the next two years.

"Thank you Colonel Huston," replied McCarthy, "and I hope the next one I sign will be for five years."

"I hope so, too, Mr. McCarthy," was the reply, "but the name is Ruppert."

Colonel T. L. Huston was formerly Colonel Ruppert's partner in the ownership of the Yankees.

Ruppert paid tribute to Bob Shawkey, retiring manager of the Yankees, saying that he signed McCarthy because of his greater experience.

"Shawkey did as well as any manager could have done with the Yankees last year," he said, "and I hope he will become a great manager. I may regret that I have replaced him and I hope he will be successful."

McCarthy said that Arthur Fletcher, Yankee coach, would be retained "if he cares to come back." It had been rumored that Fletcher, former manager of the Phillies, would not have a place in the McCarthy organization.

McCarthy will continue to make his home at Buffalo.

NINE NEW RECORDS SET AT MIDDLETOWN

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Nine new records, one of which was superceded later in the day, were established today as outboard motorboat pilots who competed in the eastern and national championships over the week-end, raced over a mile straightaway on the Connecticut river in races against time.

Dr. L. R. Newberger, of Bedford, Ind., set a new mark of 43.75 miles an hour for Class C, division 1, but this record was bettered later by Walter Kopke, of Essex, Conn., who attained a speed of 45.107 miles an hour.

The other new records made were:

Class A, division 3, Miss Hilda Mueller, Bay City, Mich., 32.29.

Class B, division 2, Walter Jankowski, Locust Valley, N. Y., 42.15.

Class C, division 3, Frank Sheehy, Detroit, 45.54.

Class D, division 1, J. P. Ellsworth, Big Moose, N. Y., 46.894.

Class E, division 2, Julius Petriak, Cary, Ill., 44.489.

Class E, division 3, Ray Pregenzer, Jr., Antioch, Ill., 44.776.

Class A, division 2, Mildred W. Hickey, Shrewsbury, Mass., 31.916.

To onlookers it appeared that Coach Andy Kerr was highly pleased with the varsity for its showing in the one-sided game with Lafayette Saturday, which placed Colgate at the top of the list of total point holders in the east.

The first team was schooled on defense against Michigan State plays. The Kerrmen will leave Thursday for the west.

Eastern Football Briefs

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—The football Lions of Columbia went through another hard workout today in preparation for the meeting with Dartmouth on Saturday.

After a session of individual instruction, Coach Lou Little sent his varsity into scrimmage with the freshmen. The varsity was placed on the defensive against the first year men who used Dartmouth formations.

For the first time in several years Columbia will be at full strength for Dartmouth.

West Point—Army's football team bucked the scrimmage machine and then went through a full speed scrimmage against a strong team of scrubs.

Lateral and forward passes, such as Harvard uses, succeeded too often against the varsity for the peace of mind of the coaches. The scrubs scored three times, Harry Roller, husky "B" squad quarterback, conducting twice.

Ithaca—In spite of a temperature above 80, Gil Dobie sent his Cornell squad through a long scrimmage session. With Viviano, Stevens, Smith, Handleman, Beyer, Pentecost and Pond alternating in backfield posts, the varsity ripped through the scrub line for consistent gains. The second team could make little headway using Princeton plays.

The new Cornell uniforms made their first appearance on the field. The solid red jerseys with white numerals have additional white facings designed to keep the ball from slipping.

Princeton—Coach Bill Roper gave his Princeton team several new plays as the Tigers began intensive preparations for the Cornell game.

Only four of the men who started against Brown last Saturday were allowed to take part in today's scrimmage, as most of the regulars have not fully recovered from bruises and minor injuries, but Biffy Lea is the only injured player who is not expected to be ready to play against Cornell. He has been out since the opener with Amherst.

Pittsburgh—Light scrimmage with the Plebes using Syracuse plays was the order for the University of Pittsburgh football Panthers. There also was a long defensive drill.

Coach Jock Sutherland used Heller, Williams, Hood and Baker in the backfield. The same quartet that smothered Western Reserve last Saturday. They are regarded as almost certain starters against Syracuse.

Pittsburgh—The coaching staff of Carnegie Tech announced today that every plaid football player who displays a willingness to work every minute of practice time will be taken to South Bend for the battle with Notre Dame Saturday.

Three full teams swung into an intensive two hour session. In recognition of their fine work in the Georgia Tech game last Saturday, Sample, guard, Morbito, fullback and Armentrout, halfback, were inserted at times into the first team lineup during the practice.

Annapolis—Turning his back on the fourth defeat in as many years at the hands of Notre Dame, Bill Ongram put his Navy charges through a dummy scrimmage, looking to the games with Duke Saturday and Princeton the following week end.

The forward passing attack which fell flat against the Irish last Saturday was stressed and Johnson, guard, substituted for Gray, apparently has won the berth for himself by his good showing against the Rocknemen.

Hamilton, N. Y.—Colgate's football team underwent a stiff practice session in preparation for the Michigan State battle Saturday. Bart Ellis continued as Colgate varsity right tackle and Howard Crane, deposed tackle, still was on the side line as a result of the injury he suffered in the Lafayette game here.

The third team offered offensive work, using Michigan State plays against Coach Andy Kerr's first team. The squad entrains for East Lansing Thursday.

Syracuse—Coach Vic Hanson sent his Syracuse Orange football team through a gruelling three hour scrimmage, whipping it into shape for the clash Saturday with Pitt.

It was evident that Hanson was counting on a stone wall front for defensive purposes and a fleet footed array of backs for the defense.

Philadelphia—Pennsylvania's football coaches put the varsity and second stringers through a long and strenuous workout, with particular emphasis on defense. Coach Wray is not satisfied with the showing of some of his linemen and intimated one or two changes in the forward wall for the game with Wisconsin at Madison Saturday.

To lessen the chance of injury, there will be but one scrimmage for the varsity this week.

Colgate's gridiron regulars got a light workout in preparation for the coming clash with Michigan State at East Lansing. The workout for the second and third string men was of a tougher variety, with plenty of scrimmage.

Pennsylvania's football squad, tuning up for Saturday's game with Wisconsin, was informed by Coach Lud Wray that the 40 to 6 victory over Virginia was nothing "to get worked up over."

Wray said he wasn't impressed with the work of the second team, which started the game in the capacity of shock troops, and that the varsity didn't show much until the third period.

Penn will have but one scrimmage workout, probably on Wednesday, before leaving Thursday for Madison.

LLOYD SETS NEW COURSE RECORD IN CASCADES PLAY

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Lawrence M. Lloyd of Greenwich Conn., established a new competitive record for the Cascades course today in the first round of the annual fall golf championship. Lloyd scored a brilliant 71 to trounce Ralph D. Cutler of Hartford, 7 and 6. Lloyd played the bye holes, holing all putts.

In the women's division, played on the Homestead course, Mrs. William Hite, Jr., Greenwich, defeated Mrs. Schuyler Van Vechten, Rumson, N. J., 4 and 2.

Singer Beats Mack

CHICAGO, Oct 14.—(AP)—Al Singer, newly crowned lightweight champion, easily defeated Eddie Mack, the Denver collegian, in a ten-round, one-sided match in the Chicago Stadium tonight.

Singer chased Mack about the ring from the opening bell until the finish. He won nine of the ten rounds. Mack showed only a flash in the fifth. Except in this round, Mack always was in full retreat, and when Singer caught up with him he grabbed and held on for dear life.

GALES FERRY

Rev. Harold H. Critchlow was in attendance Friday at an all-day meeting of the executive committee of Willimantic Camp ground.

Mrs. James A. Stoddard, accompanying her father, Oliver Williams, were guests for several days the past week of the latter's son, Horace Williams, and wife, at their former home in Sharon, returned to Long Cove Thursday.

Mrs. Joab B. Rogers entertained her nephew, Wilmot Benn, and Mrs. Benn, of Hartford, over the week-end and holiday.

Mrs. Alfred E. Steers, who has been spending several weeks at her summer cottage following the return home of her family, was joined by Judge Steers at the week-end, and accompanied him to their home in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Miss Margaret Parker entertained Miss Anna Mae Duffy, of Fort Point, over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Otis Winchester and Mrs. Charles H. Winchester returned to Norwich Friday, after spending the season in the village.

Jesus in the Church, the Home and the Street Between was the sermon theme selected by Rev. Harold H. Critchlow for morning worship at the Community M. E. church, in observance of Rally day. The decorations were autumn leaves with bouquets of dahlias and petunias. A Rally day concert was given at the church school session. The program, arranged by a committee, Mrs. J. Edmund Norman, chairman, was announced by Courtland E. Colver, as follows: Opening song, Rally Day for Jesus, by all; responsive reading, led by Supt. Colver; prayer, Rev H. H. Critchlow; song, Working Here Below, school; recitations, All Wrapped Up in Rally Day, by Phoebe Norman, Eugenia Hurlbutt and Mary Earp; Why We Rally, Richard Howard; exercise, The God Who Hears, Ruth Hurlbutt, May Crandall, Christine Miller, Anna Mae Duffy; song Jesus Needs Children, Too, primary children; recitation, Begin at Once, Carol Norman, Susan French, Louise Howard. At the time of offering and announcement of notices, the returns from the contest for the day were given, the Reds having 23 points and the Blues 20. Song, Working Together with Him, school; recitation, Unfurl the Christian Standard, Miss Ruth Main; exercise, Service, class of boys; remarks, by the pastor were followed by an expression of thanks by Supt. Colver to the program and decoration committees. Closing hymn, I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord, and benediction, by pastor

It was announced by Rev. Mr. Critchlow that Sunday next would mark the beginning of an attendance contest in the school and rules were given, as follows; Teacher present, counts 2 points; each pupil present counts 1 point; perfect attendance of class, 40 per cent extra; offering, 1 point each; perfect offering for class, 40 per cent extra; new members attending three times consecutively, 5 points; if secured by another class, credit will be divided between the two classes; new member for either Home department or Cradle Roll, 5 points. Only those who have attended school at least twice since June 15 will be counted on the roll for contest purposes. Other members when they come will bring credit of 5 points to class. A perfect offering for class means that an offering has been received from each one present. Church attendance, except for primary class, also counts 1 point.

A Rally program was also provided for the Junior league at 4 o'clock. The pastor was the speaker at the Epworth league evening service, his rally theme being, Wanted: Starters, Room for Jesus, and Ivory Palaces, were sung by the Junior girls.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was announced for Thursday afternoon at the church. The October session of Queen Esther circle is to be held Thursday evening with Miss Matilda Harold, at the Submarine base.

Paul Miller and a friend, John Posey, students in Boston, accompanied Mr. Miller's cousin, Henry Larsen, on a motor trip from Boston Saturday evening for an over-Sunday and holiday visit to Mr. Miller's parents, Mr. and Mrs Andrew P. Miller.

Miss Eva Beth Bennett, of New York, was a guest of her cousin, Miss Emma E. Davis, over the week-end and holiday.

MONTVILLE

WIFE BEAT UP MALESKI WHEN TOLD HE'D LOST HIS JOB

Adolphus Maleski and his wife, Albina, of Palmer road, Montville, were arrested Tuesday morning by State Trooper Eric Swanson, of Groton barracks, both charged with breach of the peace, on a warrant issued by Prosecuting Attorney Walter Auwood. A complaint was made to the state police barracks by neighbors early Tuesday morning that a battle was in progress inside the house. When the officer arrived, husband and wife were covered in blood. They were brought before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church Tuesday evening. The court, after hearing the evidence, nolled the charge against the husband and found Mrs. Maleski guilty of breach of the peace. She was fined $10 and costs.

She filed a notice of appeal and Mr. and Mrs. William Wendt of Palmertown furnished $150 bonds for her appearance at the next term of the court of common pleas.

The trouble began when Mr. Maleski, who had just been laid off from his work, was told by his wife to go out and get another job, which Maleski has been doing. One word led to another and finally the woman picked up a pair of roller skates and struck her husband three times on the head, inflicting deep gashes. He, in turn, struck her in anger.

At the meeting of Pequot council, No. 125, Knights of Columbus, held Monday evening at Hickey's hall, Pequot, final plans were made to have the opening dance of the organization a grand success. MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy every mother should learn all about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get only genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

ORDERLY WITHDRAWAL OF SHORTS AS STOCK PRICES RISE FROM 2 TO 8 POINTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The stock market rebounded strongly today after an early interval of weakness. Grains improved and liquidation in bonds dried up materially so that speculative sentiment, which is at present extremely fickle, had one of its good days.

Representative equities closed 2 to 8 points higher in a total turnover of 3,390,050 shares. Of greater interest than the gains, however, was the evidence offered by the loaning rates, which showed that borrowers were willing to pay premiums to get stocks like U. S. Steel, American Can, American Water Works, North American and Westinghouse Electric.

Some quarters were quick to suggest that the loaning rate figures indicated an attempt to squeeze the bears by making it difficult to obtain stocks for delivery.

Today's rally, based largely on covering, developed early in the afternoon. Week-end accumulation of distress selling pushed prices sharply lower at the outset and although the leaders managed to hold their heads above last week's lows, they came uncomfortably near those levels. As a matter of fact, about 150 stocks did touch new minimums for the year before the market turned its 1 to 5 points net losses into gains.

The slow and orderly withdrawal of the shorts was preceded by favorable news. Of considerable importance was the story told by the weekly condition of federal reserve member banks, revealing a $215,000,000 drop in loans on securities, which brought the total to the lowest since mid-year. This was viewed as a constructive development, since brokers' loans have been declining at a much faster pace, causing uneasiness in circles which feared that the banks were carrying too heavy a burden.

Commercial loans advanced $15,000,000 in the week covered by the report, the second consecutive interval in which a rise has occurred in this important item.

American Telephone's third quarter earnings improved over the second three months of the year. The margin was small, but President Gifford pointed out that each month of 1930 had shown a gain in business done in comparison with last year.

The early weakness of stocks was especially noticeable in the investment shares. U. S. Steel dipped nearly 4 points to 144 3-4, only 1-4 from the low. American Can, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical and American Telephone were also heavy, while on the Chicago grain market, wheat prices went to new lows for the season on losses averaging more than a cent. The stubborn resistance met on the decline led to the abandonment of aggressive operations for the decline and from shortly after noon until the close, stocks climbed almost steadily.

Allied Chemical, which had broken below 200 for the first time this year, finished 8 3-4 points higher. U. S. Steel was unchanged, although it had risen a point, but there were net advances of 2 to 3 in American Can, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Consolidated Gas, New York Central, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse, Loew's and Woolworth. Fox was particularly strong, advancing more than 3 points coincident with the election of representatives of prominent banking interests to the board. General Motors, one of the issues reaching new low ground on the morning break, finished 1 1-2 higher. Western Union and Eastman Kodak were up 6 and General Theatre Equipment, 5 3-4.

Wheat's net gains ranged from a minor fraction to 1 cent. Buying was based on a bullish Australian estimate and unfavorable weather in Canada. Corn closed from 1-8 to 1 1-8 higher on a firm southwest market and a better cash demand. Cotton ended the day 1 point higher to 10 lower.

The German mark was the outstanding firm spot in the generally easy list of European exchanges, its action reflected the $125,000,000 credit for which arrangements are being completed. The Spanish peseta set a record low.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Stimulated by reports of damage to big quantities of unthreshed wheat in Canada, all grain advanced in price today at the last. The rise was attributed also in part to upturns in stock market quotations. Earlier, grain values had been temporarily depressed by news of timely rains in Australia and by lower exchange rates from Argentina, with all deliveries of wheat and oats in Chicago dropping to a new low price record for the present crop.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-8a1 1-8c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1-8a1 3-8c up, oats 1-4a5-8c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 32c.

Provisions reflected a rise in hog values.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP)—Activity in the bond market fell off sharply today as liquidation pursued so vigorously last week showed further signs of abatement. Domestic bonds lost ground and the foreign list moved irregularly, being again featured by improvement in South American obligations.

Bargain hunters attracted by the drastic declines in Latin-American issues during the first four days of last week forced an upturn in some of the most active issues of Brazil, Chile, Argentine, Peru, Colombia and Uruguay. Those further depressed to new lows for the year were small in number and declines were in a very thin market.

John K. Fitch, president of the Fitch Publishing Co., Inc., statisticians, issued a statement cautioning against sacrificing stocks and bonds because of unreasoning fear of the overthrow of Latin-American governments. It is his firm conviction, he said, that while service payments on the loans of some weaker political divisions of some Latin-American countries may be deferred from time to time, ultimate payment of principal and interest on all these loans is assured on the basis of known factors.

Announcement that a $125,000,000 credit had been extended to the German government by an international banking syndicate that includes American houses had a firming effect upon German bonds, and the 7s and 5 1-2s closed unchanged.

Offerings will be made soon of a new issue of $3,500,000 6 per cent convertible gold bonds of the Seaboard Continental Corp., Paterson, N. J. is offering $7,905,000, 4 1-4s tomorrow.

Latin-American issues showing the best recovery included Brazil 6 1-2s of '26-'57 and '27-'57, up 4 and 2 points respectively; Antioquia first and second 7s, Argentine 6s of 1960, Chile 6s of 1960, and Chile Mortgage Bank 6s of 1962, Peru first and second 6s, Rio Grande Do Sul 7s and 6s. On the downside, Sao Paulo 7s of 1956 dropped 30 points on a few sales to 50. Rio De Janeiro 6 1-2s were the most active foreign issue, dropping 8 points to a new year's low at 48. Montivideo City 6s, Porto Alegre 7 1-2s, Brazil Central Electric Railway 7s, Chile and Colombia Mortgage Bank issues were others that sold off sharply.

All sections of the domestic list moved lower. Railroad bonds were among the most reactionary. Chesapeake & Ohio general 4 1-2s, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s, St. Paul 5s of 1975, Colorado & Southern 4 1-2s A, Denver & Rio Grande Western general 5s, Erie 5s of 1975 and lien 4s, Florida East Coast 5s, Illinois Central 4s, International Great Northern 6s, Seaboard 6s, Southern Pacific 4s, were among the rails to lose a point or more.

In the utility group, American & Foreign Power 5s rallied more than a point. American Telephone debenture 5s of 1960 gained 5-8, and Brooklyn Union Gas 5s were up 1-4, Nassau Electric 4s, Public Service Electric & Gas 5s and 4 1-2s of 1967, Rochester Gas & Electric 5 1-2s C and Utility Power & Light 5s sold off sharply.

Stock privilege issues dipped with shares but made only a partial recovery. Amusements were weak. U. S. governments were firm.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The curb market sold off substantially, only to rebound in its more active spots today, leaving a mixed assortment of gains and losses at the close.

Trading was in fair volume, the day's sales aggregating 775,300 shares. The wider declines were again in the stocks which have been lightly traded and largely neglected of late, and represented lack of bids, rather than urgent liquidation.

Oils recovered substantially after early heaviness, apparently reflecting the action of the Oklahoma supreme court in upholding the constitutionality of the state's conservative law. Cities Service sold off nearly a point, then rallied to close up 3-4. Gulf regained most of a 2-point drop. Humble closed steady and Indiana was off a fraction.

Electric Bond & Share remained an active feature, declining 2 points, then rallying to close about 2 net higher. American Gas & Electric and Middle West Utilities closed about a point higher. A further break of about 8 points in Brazilian Traction was partly in response to decision of the management to pay the next dividend in scrip instead of cash. It sold [illegible] before the lows, however, and finished only a fraction net lower. Power Co. of Canada dropped 15 points in a few sales.

The industrials and [illegible] showed several weak spots [illegible] lightly traded issues. [illegible] dropped more than 7 points, and [illegible] off 4 3-4. Aluminum Co. [illegible] 5 points to 175, a new low. [illegible] Chemical tumbled 6 to a new bottom at 49. Fireman's Fund lost nearly 12, recording a new low under 90.

Prince & Whitely Trading was again a weak spot in the investment trusts, the preferred dropping more than 5 points to 42. Goldman Sachs was well supported and closed steady. Ungerleider Financial rallied more than 2 points in the holding company group. United Founders rallied fractionally.

JEWETT CITY

ARMAND BRYANT KILLED WHEN CAUGHT IN MILL DRIER

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 14.—Armand Bryant, 16, was killed in the warping department at Ashland mill Tuesday afternoon when in some manner as yet unexplained he became caught in a centrifugal drier, which at the time of the accident was being operated at 3,600 revolutions a minute. It is believed that for some reason the lad lifted the safety cover, then, as the inside of the machine is perfectly smooth, the officials of the company are entirely at a loss to explain how he became caught in the whirling bowl. One arm was torn away at the shoulder and when his body was then thrown some distance against the wall his neck was broken. He lived about 20 minutes. Dr. Jennings and the ambulance from the Backus hospital responded to hurry calls, but the boy was dead when the Norwich ambulance arrived. Medical Examiner Jennings gave permission to Hourigan Bros. to remove the body.

The boy is survived by his parents, Peter and Angelina Mecteau Bryant; two sisters, Mrs. Estelle Minteau and Sylvia Bryant, and three brothers, Ernest, Roland and Robert. The family lives on Dime street.

Great sorrow is expressed all through the borough because of the unfortunate accident, and much sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

TWO SELECTMEN ARE TO DO THE WORK OF THREE

In the death of Daniel F. Finn, the first selectman of the town of Griswold is removed. It is learned that Arba Browning and Thomas McBroome, the other two members of the board, will conduct the affairs of the town until the next regular election, in the fall of 1931. This precedent has been established in previous years. In the case of the resignation of W. H. Tift, republican first selectman, the duties were assumed by the other two members of the board, James H. Shea and Oscar Dugas. When Mr. Greenier died, John Potter and Charles Latham completed his unexpired term. Also, when Samuel Edmond's resignation was accepted, the other two members, Daniel L. Phillips and John Potter, carried on until the next election. Mr. Finn received a salary of $1,200 a year. With his death this payment by the town ceases. Mr. Browning's salary as second selectman is $300 and Mr. McBroome, third on the board, receives $200 annually.

KNIGHTS ENTERTAIN WITH PROVERBIAL HOSPITALITY

Very Rev. Michael McCabe council, No. 2364, Knights of Columbus, entertained at a social gathering of the order Monday evening. The large assemblage enjoyed the program of dances, old and new, with music by Morey's orchestra. The committee on refreshments contributed an important number, furnishing hot dogs, with cake and coffee. Brief addresses by several of the members were pleasant features of the Columbus day celebration. The arrangement committee, encouraged by the large attendance, is promising to continue these social times through the season.

Dorothy Lafave, Victoria Mrslarzek, Frances Baron and Helen Marsh, four Jewett City girls, are to take part in the play to be given at the Plainfield Community house.

Political Situation Interesting

For the first time in its life the town of Griswold has delivered the goods and nominated four representatives, two by each party. Both caucuses were harmonious. At the democratic meeting the 124 legal voters present nominated by acclamation the first two names presented, and at the republican caucus the 22 electors who attended followed the same procedure. But two of these four candidates can be elected, and as has been the case in other parts of the state, the representative issue may be paired, so that Griswold's assemblymen may appear as one democrat and one republican. A check-up on these past election returns shows that when one of each party has been elected it has been the result of a consistent splitting of the ticket. Comparisons of recent votes cast in Griswold go to prove that very seldom have the candidates for important offices been elected or defeated by the exact strength of the party vote. In the election when Dr. G. H. Jennings, republican, was chosen representative, all the balance of the democratic nominees were elected. Records of the memorable contest between G. A. Haskell, republican, and C. W. Reynolds, democrat, show that Mr. Haskell won by two votes, yet the town went decidedly democratic.

Pay Tribute to Daniel F. Finn

At the democratic caucus held in the town hall Monday evening, it was the unanimous vote of the 124 electors present, that John Welsh, the town clerk, convey and express to Mrs. Daniel F. Finn, the sense of the meeting, wherein the appreciation of Mr. Finn's services as a town servant were voiced, and expressions of deep sorrow and regret were made known.

Mrs. W. A. Richardson entertained the Ladies' society of the Congregational church at its regular meeting, which was also a house-warming for her new home, Tuesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Abraham Zegeer, presided at the business meeting. Committees were appointed for several coming events. For a Harvest supper this month, Mrs. F. D. Ballou and Mrs. Everett H. Hiscox are co-chairmen, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Gill, Mrs. G. F. Goodenough and Mrs. E. A. Faust. For the entertainment of Faith chapter, O. E. S., and grand officers in November, Mrs. Zegeer will have charge with Mrs. Andrew McNicol, Mrs. L. G. Buckingham, Mrs. W. A. Broadfoot, Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs. H. A. Tomlinson and Mrs. G. F. Goodenough. The after-dinner committee is Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. E. H. Robinson, Miss M. A. Burdick and Mrs. S. R. Waters. For a Christmas bazaar in December, Mrs. C. D. Wolf will be in charge of a supper with Mrs. Walter Marshall, Mrs. A. P. Anderson, Mrs. H. A. Tomlinson and Mrs. Fred Whalley. The after-dinner committee is Mrs. Everett Hiscox, Mrs. S. R. Waters, Mrs. W. A. Richardson and Miss M. A. Burdick. The chairmen for the fancy table are Mrs. N. B. Parkhurst; candy table, Mrs. Andrew McNicol; combination and white elephant table, Mrs. E. A. Faust; grabs, Mrs. C. L. Howe, and cake table, Mrs. F. D. Ballou. A delicious supper was served by Mrs. L. G. Buckingham, Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. Walter Marshall and Mrs. Andrew McNicol.

A meeting of the executive board of Jewett City chapter, American Red Cross, was held Monday evening, the chairman, Miss M. A. Burdick, presiding. Plans were made to attend the annual meeting in New London Thursday. The home service chairman, Dr. G. H. Jennings, reported assisting two ex-service men with needed funds. The annual roll call for membership commences Armistice day and Mrs. Everett Hiscox was appointed chairman with the board as her committee. Not since the World war has the Red Cross been faced with such demands upon its resources, both local and national, as now.

The longest and most severe drought on record has affected 681 counties in 23 states. President Hoover has asked the Red Cross to stand by. Many chapters have extended relief. Where practical, the national organization is assisting in fall pasturage and garden planting programs. The winter holds potentially great relief problems.

Chapters have been spared so far a great campaign for funds, as assistance is being given from the disaster reserve fund. This reserve has always meant prompt action until funds were raised. Membership income has helped to replace the reserve.

A birthday party was attended by school friends of Miss Elaine Smith, of Slater avenue, Tuesday. The rooms and table were decorated with pink and yellow. Baskets of candy were the favors. Sandwiches, cake, soda, candy and ice cream were served by Misses Julia Januszko, Mary Parzych and Evelyn Smith. The donkey game and peanut hunt prizes went to Lillian Malek and Marian Desjardins, with Madeline Skaradowski and Rena Dufresne taking the booby prizes. Those who attended the party were: Ida and Lillian Benjamin, Jeanette and Rena Dufresne, Marian Desjardins, Lillian and Anna Malek, Annette Marquis, Mildred McCarthy, Madeline Skaradowski, Mary Budaway. The hostess received many gifts.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Arrangements have been made for the sale of two New York Stock exchange memberships at $262,000 and $251,000, respectively. The last previously arranged sale was at $265,000.

The total value of domestic appliance sales in September by retail units of the New England Power association, a subsidiary of International Paper & Power Co., was $163,547, an increase of 12.5 per cent over August. Sales for the first nine months this year amounted to $1,666,352, or 23.2 per cent over sales for the corresponding period last year.

A new banking firm has been formed under the name of Stetson & Blackman, with offices in the Packard building, Philadelphia. The firm partners are John B. Stetson, Jr., former U. S. minister to Poland, and Daniel S. Blackman, formerly a partner in the banking firm of Boenning & Co. The new firm will engage in a general investment banking business.

William J. Kibbe was chosen president of the New York Cocoa exchange at the annual election today.

W LL, WHAT'S THE BAD NEWS?
YOUR ESSAY ON EVOLUTION WAS ATROCIOUS — YOU BETTER STAY AFTER CLASS AND I'LL ASSIST YOU— MISS KETT!
WELL— THAT'S THAT!!
MAYBE SHE COPIED YOUR WORK— BECAUSE IT WAS AS BAD AS HERS
OH, YEAH? YOUR TEST WASN'T SO HOT— IF YOU ASK ME
GEE, PHIL, DID YOU SEE THE PROF. TURN RED AS A TRAFFIC LIGHT WHEN YOU MADE THAT CRACK ABOUT HIS LOUSY TEST?
I TOOK A GOOD SHOT AT HIM WHEN I HAD THE CHANGE
IT'S A WONDER HE DIDN'T MAKE YOU STAY IN AND DO THE TEST OVER AFTER CLASS!
I KNEW HE WOULDN'T DO THAT—NOT WHEN ETTA STAYS!

THERON E. MORGAN VS. TANYA Jackson Morgan, Supplemental Order of Notice.

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss. October 14th, 1930.

Upon the complaint of the said Theron E. Morgan claiming for the reasons therein set forth a divorce and custody of minor children now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of December, 1929.

It appearing to and being found by this Court that Tanya Jackson Morgan, formerly of Norwich, Conn., the said defendant, is gone to parts unknown and that notice of the pendency of the complaint was given as required by order of notice heretofore issued, and now the plaintiff asks for a further order of notice in the premises.

Therefore ordered, that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, Conn., two successive days commencing on or before the 18th day of November, 1930.

By order of Court,
WILLIAM H. SHIELDS JR.
Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County

NO. GROSVENORDALE

A republican rally is scheduled to be held Wednesday evening at the community house. It is expected that Lieut.-Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, of New London, republican candidate for governor, will be present.

Mrs. N. Verne Rawson, and son, Kenneth, spent the week end in Worcester, guests of Mrs. Rawson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Weir.

The Woman's auxiliary to the American Legion held a public whist at the community house which was well attended.

At Meriden Meeting

Sixteen members of the Sons of Veterans attended the annual fall meeting of the association at Meriden, Saturday. After the meeting they motored to Wallingford where they called on Warren R. Spencer and Hoyt Curtiss, former residents of this town. Those attending the event included: Percy P. Tourtellotte, Frank O. Tourtellotte, J. B. Tourtellotte, Oscar Tourtellotte, Junior Krefft, Clarence A. Seaver, Ernest P. Ryant, John Lewis, George E. Whitney, Edward Stone, Frank Lynch, Sr., Frank Lynch, Jr.

Miss Blanche Chandler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Chandler, spent the week end at Framingham, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Emil Johnson and daughter, Miss Irene Johnson, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson, of Orange, Mass.

Edward Seney and Paul Vosper visited Forest park, Springfield, Sunday afternoon.

Republican Nominees

At the republican caucus held Friday evening at the town hall in Thompson the following were named: State representatives, Edward Desaulniers, J. P. Lewis; judge of probate, Fred Munyan; justices of the peace, P. P. Tourtellotte, M. T. Dartt, D. W. Cunningham, G. E. Whitney, Charles Chase, Charles Whiting, Richard Barton, Ernest Johnson and Marcus A. Covell. Randolph H. Chandler was moderator of the caucus. A brief address relative to the industrial depression was made by Agent J. F. Reardon, Franklin Converse, Richard Converse and Charles Giles.

Pastor Welcomed Back

Sunday evening the society of the Sacred Heart and Holy Name, composed of men of St. Joseph's church met in the parish hall for a welcome home to their director and pastor Rev. John C. Mathieu, who has been away for three weeks' vacation with his brother in Canada, returning home Friday. He was presented a confessional robe as a token of esteem by the members of the society. Other guests were Rev. E. A. Mathieu of Willimantic, nephew of the honor guest, Rev. Ubald Laurion, also of Willimantic, a former boy of this town and son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Laurion, of Three Rows, Mr. Mathieu of Bristol, Conn., and Rev. Leo Lavalle, assistant pastor here. All in turn addressed the gathering after which the pastor gave a short talk in his usual interesting and cordial maner. The remainder of the evening was spent playing whist.

Captain Therrien Honored

Adelard Therrien, captain of Garde Martial, received an ovation Friday evening when about 150 friends, members of his garde, the girls' unit, Garde St. Therese, and veteran members gathered in St. Jean Baptist hall to offer him congratulations. He was presented a gold wrist watch and his wife was given a banquet. The address as read by Rev. John C. Mathieu. Among those gathered to welcome Mr. Therrien were, his father, Z. Therrien, Joseph Allard, of Putnam, founder of the garde, Henri Dery, president of St. Jean Baptist society and John F. Reardon, Jr. Exhibition drilling was put on by some old members and by the present garde after which dancing was enjoyed, music being furnished by the Girls' Rainbow orchestra of Danielson. Refreshments were served. Mr. Therrien has been captain of Garde Martial for the past 19 years and is the only active member who has been in the garde since its beginning, twenty-one years ago. He has done much toward the winning of 75 cups and 12 medals now owned by the organization.

Nelson Hebert and family have moved to the new home they have just purchased, off Main street.

St. Joseph's parochial school held no session Monday, observing Columbus day.

Crashed Into Bus

Newell Havenere, of Waltham, appeared in court before Justice of the Peace Percy P. Tourtellotte, charged with reckless driving. He entered a plea of guilty and was fined $15 which was remitted by the court. He was ordered to pay the costs of $12.65. Havenere was traveling to New York city with his grandmother, near the home of Lawrence Keegan, at Wilsonville. The bus which he was following south, stopped at the home of Mrs. Lillian Pizzotti to let off a passenger and Havenere crashed into the right rear of the halted bus. State Officer James Cormody of Danielson barracks said excessive speed and defected brakes caused the accident.

Garde Martial and Garde St. Theresa, military gardes of St. Jean Baptiste society, brought home honors Saturday night. The men's garde captured the first popular prize and the girls were awarded second prize, in the competitive drill held in Danielson. The local drill team competed against four teams while the girls competed against three, the Wauregan girls topping them for the winners' loving cup.

NORTH STERLING

Mr. and Mrs. Jared Hall of Sterling and Alvin Corey of Ekonk were callers at the home of W. R. Spooner one afternoon during the past week.

Callers Sunday at the home of W. R. Spooner were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Benway and family of East Killingly.

There are three new houses going up in this part of the town which makes things begin to look prosperous.

NEW LONDON NEWSBOY CROOK CAUGHT ROBBING HOME OF ATTY. W. T. CONNOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 14—This evening one of a gang of boy crooks was found in the act of robbing the residence of Attorney William T. Connor, 290 Montauk avenue. The youth is being held for a hearing in the juvenile court during the week. He has been a deliverer of papers at the Connor house for two or three years and in that way ascertained where the key to the front entrance was secreted for the convenience of the young son and daughter of the attorney. Going to the house shortly before 8 o'clock tonight, the youth discovered that the attorney and his wife were absent and with knowledge as to the hiding place of the key, the youth unlocked the door. He went to the upper floor where he instituted a search for plunder that he could easily convert into cash. He went to one of the sleeping rooms, stole a trinket, then transferred his attention to another room, where he purloined a gold watch. About that time, Mr. and Mrs. Connor entered the house and a few minutes later they noticed an unusual sound. Mrs. Connor went to the upper part of the house and found the newsboy-youth sitting on a bed, pretending illness. He continued this for several minutes until Mr. Connor entered the room and it was evident from the actions of the youth that he was attempting to pretend illness in order to explain his being in the house. Mr. Connor, upon questioning the youth, was satisfied that his presence there was for the purpose of robbery and the police was notified. At the same time the father of the youth was requested to call at the house. Two officers and the father arrived about the same time and the youth being questioned, resulted in the watch and trinket being taken from him. He was then taken to police headquarters and locked up. It is believed that the youth is guilty of other breaks and before his case is presented in court he will be quizzed vigorously.

An automobile owned by Miss Katherine Avery, 60 School street, Groton, was stolen from its parking place on Granite street this afternoon and has not been recovered although a request was made of the state police and police of cities throughout the state to be on the lookout for the DeSoto roadster, which carries Connecticut registration L-2996.

Forfeited Bonds

In the police court today, three automobile drivers were charged with violation of the city's parking ordinances but the drivers did not present themselves so their respective bonds of $2 were forfeited. The drivers were Sidney Blinderman, 88 Washington street, Norwich; Harry J. Williams, R. F. D. No. 1, Mystic, and Ruby Carpenter, North Main street, East Hampton. All of the drivers parked their automobiles on Pearl street, which is restricted to traffic and they were arrested by Patrolman George McCaskey.

Heard Padraic Colum

Attorney Arthur T. Keefe introduced the distinguished speaker, when last night, Padraic Colum, noted Irish poet and story teller, delighted an audience of about 150 with a program of his own verse and a story, at the headquarters of the Diocesan Bureau of Social service in Jay street. He read several of his early verses, for the most part written around the peasant life of Ireland. A fairy story about Feet in the Ashes, a peasant boy who avenged an insult to his king, followed and he concluded his program with the reading of some of his more recent verses about to be published in book form. By request he read Blades, a poem about knife grinders, which appeared recently in a leading magazine.

One of the second-hand tires stolen from the yard of Samuel Rutberg, Shaw street, recently, has been recovered by the police, for today a young man, formerly a public service operator brought the tire to police headquarters. He, however, was not arrested. Rutberg has made two complaints to the police within a week that he had suffered the loss of automobile tires and fruit, the latter having been stolen from his garage.

An officer of U. S. S. Camden, stationed at the submarine base, this afternoon made request of the New London police to maintain a lookout for two .45 calibre automatic revolvers stolen from the boat within a few days. The police were given the numbers of the revolvers.

Truesdell, of Norwich, has been forwarded to the sailor's former home in Florida, where relatives await its arrival.

THREE CITY GIRLS ARE HELD AFTER NIGHT RIDE WITH TARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 14. — Elida Solander, 19, New York; Beatrice Thompkins, 21, and Olga Wexler, 20, both of Brooklyn, N. Y., were arrested today by State Police Officers John Smith and William E. MacKenzie, charged with lascivious carriage. They were locked up and will be in the police court tomorrow. The girls arrived in New London yesterday afternoon in an automobile, it is claimed, with two Negroes. During the evening the girls formed the acquaintance of three sailors and a ride into the country was taken, the trip occupying several hours. When the return trip was made the girls went to the Neptune hotel, State street, and were given accommodations. This morning when they were found on the street by the state police officers the youthful visitors were questioned, with the result that they were arrested on a charge of vagrancy, for they were without funds or sleeping accommodations. Questioning of the girls revealed their conduct of the night before and the original charge was amended to the more serious offense. The girls have admitted their acts, for they related a detailed story of their movements from the time that they arrived in New London until their arrest.

WM. MASON MAY PROVE RINGLEADER OF BOY THIEVES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 14.—William Mason, a youth residing at 195 Shaw street, was in the police court this morning on a technical charge of trespass. The case was continued until the 29th inst., the continuance being ordered to permit the detective bureau to make a check-up of the movements of Mason. Mason may be charged with a more serious offense, breaking and entering and theft, for this afternoon it developed that a robbery of city property had occurred within a few days and three youths, all under 16, are implicated. The other boys were arrested by Detective Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh and will be presented in the juvenile court.

The police last night received a telephone message from a resident of Jefferson avenue that a man was prowling about the city's boiler room on that avenue. Patrolman Dennis Murphy was sent to the building and inspecting the yard in the rear, found Mason there. Mason was taken into custody and was held a prisoner overnight. After court today the investigators obtained evidence that the building had been entered and that a large quantity of electric light fixtures, plumbing fixtures and brass had been stolen and in a short time the juvenile offenders were arrested. Developments showed that the trio of youths and maybe Mason had entered the building for the purpose of robbery and had disposed of their loot to a junk dealer. In order to commit the thieving the youths seized an iron bar and with it pried from a wall a switch box. That one or more of their number was not killed by electrocution was the result of their good fortune for in using the metal implement to pry the switch, a connection was established, causing the fuse to be rendered useless. The blowing out of the powerful fuse caused a vivid flame that scorched the woodwork. The youth, however, stood on dry wood in wrecking the switch and for that reason the current did not enter their bodies. The youths, in making an admission of thieving, said that they had planned to meet Mason on the premises last night, but failed to keep their appointment and that the thefts had been committed prior to last night. The boys stated that they had sold their loot to a junkman, who will probably be arrested for he has not obtained a license and if he is arrested a second charge of purchasing stolen material will be levied against him.

Quinn, Thomas Manning, Richard Mansfield, Jr., James Manning and John S. Mansfield. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Immediate Relief for INDIGESTION

WHAT most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. Food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention, it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate with no harmful after-effects.

Once you learn this perfect way you'll never deal in any other manner with the headaches, gas, bloating, nausea, dizziness, indigestion, biliousness, etc., due to an over-acid stomach and bowels.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips'. It is always a liquid; never made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle. All drugstores—25c and 50c.

POETRY

Feel Of The Weather

The feel of the weather is wondrous;
We lift to its spell and its chime;
It stirs us and wakes us and startles
Like the infinite tick of a rhyme:
To walk in its singing and laughing,
To toil in it happy and wise;
To live in it loving and gentle
With the light of all love in our eyes!

The feel of the weather, the magic
Of its tingle and snap and its cheer,
To hop and to skip and be stirring
With never a thought of a tear;
To dream in it, struggle and battle,
To set a firm face to the task;
To be glad for the days with their blessing,
And have nothing whatever to ask!

The feel of the weather, the marvel
Of that something in earth and in air
So potent to charm away trouble,
So powerful to lift up our care:
To smile in it, knowing and trusting
The infinite magic it brings—
No wonder that always in autumn
The children of earth put on wings.

ROGERS URGES THAT THERE BE NO CHANGE IN STATE'S BUSINESS POLICY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 14—Republicanism in the 35th district reached a high pitch of enthusiasm at a rally in South Coventry tonight. Making what will probably be his only appearance in Tolland county during the campaign, Ernest E. Rogers, of New London, nominee of the party for governor, delivered the principal address. About 200 attended the rally. Dr. William L. Higgins, secretary of state, was chairman. Other speakers were Sheriff Frederick O. Vinton, of Eagleville; Senator Robert E. Hyde, of Ellington and Dr. Higgins, who again is the nominee for secretary of state.

"State government enters into many different fields. It not only finances but regulates the conduct of the various departments, institutions, and commissions and is itself an independent operator in many branches of technical activity. It builds highways and bridges. It maintains hospitals, provides free education, protects persons and property, it has jurisdiction over health and sanitation, it maintains places of correction, it is a gigantic charitable institution and it provides recreation for its people. The benefits of state government in Connecticut accrue to the individual, to a particular group, or to society as a whole.

"Republican administrations for the past few years have endeavored to strike an equitable balance whereby the individuals and groups who were directly benefited should pay the cost of that particular service which the state renders them and general taxation should pay for those services which are rendered by the state to society as a whole. The state which carefully measures the proper proportions on which the payments and benefits are set up has done a worthwhile job and Connecticut is in that class.

"If such a basis of state income and state expenditure can be developed while at the same time no indebtedness is incurred, bills are paid promptly and the credit of the state is of high standing, then this same job is especially worthwhile.

"I have previously pointed out that general property taxes in Connecticut are lower than similar taxes in 45 other states. As a matter of fact only approximately 5½ per cent of Connecticut's total income is derived from general property taxes. I have also previously referred to the fact that the republican legislatures in both 1923 and 1929 reduced these taxes by $750,000 a year. This is unusual when it is considered that most other states of the Union show increases in this form of tax while we show reduction in Connecticut. Here is the largest item paid by society as a whole.

"It is interesting to analyze the income of the state, comprising tax payments from groups or individuals to whom the state renders some special service Tax income is received from the following sources: public utility companies; automobile owners; inheritance taxes; general corporations; savings bank deposits; insurance companies; non-resident stock taxes; non-resident insurance companies; taxable securities; and unincorporated businesses. The balance of the state's income is derived from fees and licenses of the various departments, courts and institutions, which give a definite service for such business.

"Public utility companies last year paid to the state in taxes (using round figures) $3,000,000; foreign and mutual insurance companies paid $1,500,000; corporation franchise taxes totaled $2,900,000; taxes on banks, $1,600,000; on stock insurance companies, $1,500,000; receipts from motor vehicle licenses, $7,800,000, and from gasoline taxes, $4,200,000. Receipts from the last two tax items go directly into our highways and almost entirely pay for their construction and maintenance

"Taxes collected from banks in the state allow our state banking department to carry a force of examiners who periodically audit the affairs of every state bank, thereby protecting the business of the bank and the money of the people who are its depositors. There is income derived from insurance companies. There is maintained an insurance department which keeps a careful check upon all agents and brokers of the state, thereby protecting the people against misrepresentation or error in the sale of various insurance policies. Of course these departments render other valuable services and have many other responsibilities but these brief references will indicate in a small way the effort of the state to collect its income from groups and individuals who derive direct benefit from the state's activities. The same illustrations could be used in all of the classifications I have mentioned.

"Since 1921 when the department of state agencies and institutions was established, representatives of that department have checked all cases in state institutions and all cases where state aid was concerned. Where patients and inmates were financially well situated or relatives having a legal liability to do so were financially able to pay for their care, the state has required a payment for its services. This is only fair to those charges of the state who cannot afford to pay anything and to the taxpayers who pay the bills. In addition to this, many of the institutions engage in revenue activities such as printing, making garments, automobile markers, and so on. It is interesting to note that the income to the state in the past year from board and care at medical and corrective institutions, and the sale of articles and commodities produced by state institutions amounts to $1,600,000.

"I believe the present basis of collection of income and its disbursement in Connecticut is one of the best that can be provided. It is equitable and fair and our people as a whole are burdened in no way as are the people of some of our neighboring states where state income taxes and other such methods of state income are resorted to.

"Our democratic friends are not spending a great degree of time upon these subjects for reasons obvious. The people of Connecticut year after year have retained the republican party whose representatives have been responsible for the present businesslike conduct of the state, and of course there seems to be no desire to take any chances at this time with any new theories whose worth might be questionable and whose cost prohibitive. There is no question but that the representatives of the republican party now running for office will again be entrusted with the responsibility of continuing this sound and businesslike mangement."

Broadway Theatre

The return to active dancing of the famous Russian ballet star, Theodore Kosloff, is one of the interesting features promised in Cecil B. De Mille's "Madam Satan," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy with music which opens today at Warner's Broadway.

For several years Kosloff has been devoting his time to the supervision of his dancing schools in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Dallas, Texas.

However, when Leroy Prinz of Earl Carroll's "Vanities" conceived the idea of an elaborate "Ballet Mechanique," there was no other choice for the powerful central figure, "Electricity," than the talented Kosloff.

Out of courtesy to his old friend De Mille, who introduced him to pictures in "The Woman God Forgot," Kosloff stepped into the part and made this ballet one of the outstanding features of De Mille's new picture.

"Madam Satan" largely concerns the matrimonial adventures of Bob and Angela Brooks. Its locale is the wealthy Brooks home, and the Zeppelin of Jimmy Wade. On this airship there is a masked ball, featured by the appearance of a mysterious "Madam Satan"; and ending in the mid-air crash of the craft, and the descent to earth in parachutes of the guests.

Palace Theatre

One of the finest double-feature shows which has ever been billed at the Palace theatre comes tomorrow with the showing of "The Squealer" staring Jack Holt and a large cast and "Maybe It's Love" with the well-known comedian, Joe E. Brown.

"The Squealer" is the story of young man with a beautiful wife and child who is in the real estate business to all appearances. In reality he is involved in a scandal with some notorious bootleg competitors and when they double-cross him he delivers swift justice to one of them.

In order to avoid vengence from the rest of the gang his wife does the thing which she believes to be the best for him with the result that he is landed in jail. He misinterprets her action and becomes embittered. He stages a jail break and is on his way home to settle with her. His discovery of her bravery and the great thing that she has done for him changes his mind and a thrilling climax in the result.

Joe E. Brown as football player is one of the funniest sights in the world. This is the role which he portrays in his latest production "Maybe It's Love" which is a story of collegiate football.

Joan Bennett portrays a campus belle who has great influence on the team and cheers them to victory for the alma mater.

"Whoopee" with Eddie Cantor and a cast of Ziegfeld beauties will be shown at the Palace for the last times today. Here is a production which no theatre-goer should miss with its excellent settings, beautiful cast, gorgeous costumes and peppy music played by George Olsen and his band.

A war on cats has been started by the Oklahoma game commission, the the pets being held menace to birds and the health of children.

MODEL OF HENDRICK HUDSON'S HALF MOON DISPLAYED

Much attention has been attracted by the beautiful boat model on display in the window of Reardon's pharmacy. This model is one of several made by Wilford A. Sutthill and is the Half Moon, the boat in which Hendrick Hudson, Dutch navigator and explorer, crossed the Atlantic about 300 years ago. While no authentic plans of the actual Half Moon exist, this model represents what the ship must have been like, according to contemporary accounts and plans. The time to make this model was about 200 hours. For the rigging, about three hundred small pulleys were used and yards of linen thread. Some interesting features of the model are the hand-carved lion in the bow and the decorated stern, the small companion-ways or ladders leading from deck to deck, and the small pieces of deck furniture. The original boat was from Holland, sailing under flags of the Dutch states general, the flag of Amsterdam and the flag of the East India company (Ost Indische Cie Van Amsterdam). The entire boat, including pulleys, anchors, lights and decorating show the patience as well as the skill of the maker.

NORWICH TOWN

DELEGATES APPOINTED TO STATE K. D. CONVENTION

The October meeting of Home chapter of The King's Daughters was held at the Johnson Home Monday afternoon with a good attendance. After the reading of Scripture and prayer, the study of Hebrews II was taken up, with the leader, Mrs. William E. Manning in charge. The third chapter of Hebrews will be considered at the November meeting.

Notice was given that Home chapter sewing society would meet Thursday, October 23, with Mrs. Herbert R. Branche, of Washington street. At the meeting Monday, Mrs. Frank L. Arnold gave two piano solos, The Wayside Chapel and Stars and Stripes Forever. Mrs. Manning read a humorous story about Making An Apple Pie. Two new members were received into the chapter. The call for The King's Daughters' convention was read and delegates were appointed. The convention is to be held Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 5th and 6th, at the Second Congregational church, New London. From Home chapter the delegates are: Mrs. Aubrey W. Jarvis, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche, Mrs. Edward Briggs, Mrs. Harry Bjurstrom, Mrs. William H. Whiteman, Mrs. Homer D. Gager, Mrs. William Hall, Mrs. Frederick S. Armstrong, Mrs. Roswell J. P. Brown, Mrs. Robert Hull. Mrs. Manning, who is county president as well as leader of Home chapter, will attended also.

Those who expect to attend both days and would like to secure overnight reservations, were asked to notify Mrs. Charles F. Chittenden, 293 Huntington street, New London, not later than October 25th.

At the close of the meeting cake and coffee were served by Mrs. David M. Dean, chairman, assisted by other members of the entertainment committee.

Called On Miss Nye.

Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Miner of Norwich Town had as auto guests Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver, when a call was made on Mrs. Weaver's niece, Miss Ruth Nye, who is under the care of Mrs. F. H. Stanton, R. N., of East Hartford, following several weeks' illness. Miss Nye recently spent two weeks at a private convalescent hospital at South Glastonbury. From there she was removed to Mrs. Stanton's home, 102 Orchard street, East Hartford, where she is pleased to hear from friends.

During the early part of the summer Miss Nye spent a number of weeks in Norwich Town at the Weaver home.

Pauline Mayo of New York, a reader of national reputation is to give a public reading of the play "Sun-Up" in the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening. "Sun-Up," a play by Lula Vellmer in three acts tells an illuminating story about the mountain people of North Carolina, who are descendants of Anglo-Saxon pioneers. The play is full of fine humor, pathos, tense situations and climaxes. Miss Mayo studied the play with the original compan in New York and Chicago. The reading will be at 7:30 Sunday evening. Later Miss Mayo will give a reading of the play "Pollyanna" by Eleanor H. Porter. To most people Pollyanna has come to mean looking on the bright side of life. Miss Mayo has given "Pollyanna" over five hundred times and is known as the "Glad Girl."

Attended C. L. Of C. Convention.

Among those from Norwich attending the annual convention of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus held at New London, Friday and Saturday, were the Misses Margaret Sullivan, president, Loretta Gadle, honorary president, Marguerite Delaney, secretary, Helen Barry, financial secretary, Katheryn Lynch, treasurer, Miss Mary O'Neil, vice president, and Miss Lucy Murphy, state treasurer. The convention opened Friday evening at the Diocesan Bureau rooms on Jay street by the state president, Margaret Crane, of Hartford. The guests of honor were Rev. T. M. Crowley, Rev. D. O'Callahan and His Honor Mayor Morgan.

Study Club Holds First Meeting.

On Monday evening the Study club of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, met at the home of Ann Stockdale for the first meeting of the fall.

The regular business meeting was followed by a study hour. The rooms were prettily decorated for Halloween. During the evening refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed. The next meeting is to be held Monday, Oct. 27, at the home of Bertrice Mitchell, 12 Oak street.

California is considering ground courses in aviation for all secondary school students.

FATHER'S SUIT AGAINST SON FOR $30,000 DAMAGES PARTLY TRIED

After partial trial of two suits for a total of $30,000 damages brought against Theodore R. Staplins of West Haven by his father, Edwin W. Staplins of Gilead road, Waterford, there was a postponement in the superior court at New London Tuesday until Wednesday, Oct. 22.

The trial proceeded during the morning before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury, but as Judge Avery was urgently needed in the afternoon and for the rest of the week on court business, the case was continued until the time named and the jury was excused until then.

The plaintiff, who is represented by Hull, McGuire & Hull, is bringing suit for $15,000 for injuries he received in an automobile accident near Burlington last September and $15,000 as administrator of the estate of his wife, Rosa M. Staplins, who died from injuries received in the accident.

The accident occurred on Shelburne hill on the Rutland-Burlington road. The son, who is the defendant, was driving the car containing his parents when in attempting to avoid running into some cows on the road, he lost control of the machine and it plunged down an embankment, turning over three times. The defendant is represented by Attorneys Arthur T. Keefe and Leon Beisheim.

Mrs. Staplins died at the hospital five days after the accident and Mr. Staplins was confined to a hospital for several months.

Dr. Lyman Allyn of the University of Vermont and Theodore E. Hopkins of Burlington testified Tuesday as to the physical layout of the place where the accident occurred and as to the injuries received by those in the automobile.

No evidence was introduced attempting to establish liability and in excusing the jury Judge Avery warned the jurymen to refrain from discussing the case or reading about it.

The jury consists of the following: New London—Samuel B. Darrow, Clarence Jeffrey and C. Oscar Tracy; Groton, Charles W. Gildersleeve, Carroll W. Bliven; Stonington, James Cooper and Joseph H. McGuinness; Montville, John J. Doyle; Waterford, George Gallup; East Lyme, Fred H. Smith, Walter Crocker and Frank Harris.

PRESENTED MIRROR TO CLARA BARTON HOME

A delegation from Clara Barton tent, No. 7, Daughters of Union Veterans, went to North Oxford, Mass., Saturday, to present the beautiful antique mirror which the Norwich tent has given to the Clara Barton home there. This mirror had been finished with a suitable silver plate, but was the gift of the president, Mrs. Elizabeth Bogue, who made the presentation as follows: "Sisters and friends: As you know, Clara Barton was born in this home in 1821. She entered the hospital service at the beginning of the Civil war and was placed in charge of the hospitals at the front of the army of the James in 1864. She organized the American Red Cross society in 1881 and became its president. As president of the National Red Cross society she also went from the United States to Constantinople to administer the funds of the National Armenian relief committee Jan. 22 to Sept. 12, 1896. There are many more wonderful things I could tell you about her, but time will not permit me to. And now in the name of Clara Barton tent, No. 7, D. of U. V., of the Civil war 1861-1865, I present this mirror and may its clear glass always reflect the glory of the life of Clara Barton."

The chairman of the Clara Barton home committee was present to accept the gift and accepted it with the thanks of the organization.

The committee in procuring and finishing this mirror were Mrs. Alice C. Brinkman, Mrs. Annie B. Turner, Mrs. Lucy MacDougall and Miss Gladys Newberry. They were also accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Newberry, Miss Lucy MacDougall and Miss Dorothy Brinkman.

LEBANON D. A. R. HEARD STATE REGENT'S LETTER

Gov. Jonathan Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., met this week at the home of Mrs. Wm. Clarke, in Lebanon for their October meeting with the regent, Mrs. Marjorie Ayer presiding. The meeting opened with the Lord's prayer, salute to the flag and singing of America. The reports of the secretary, Mrs. A. R. Race, and treasurer, Mrs. G. T. Chappell, were read and approved.

It was voted to secure 500 post card pictures of the war office and other historic buildings and to send $2 toward the fund for the Sailors' monument to be erected in Washington. A letter was read from the state regent, Miss Katherine A. Nettleton, in regard to the D. A. R. convention to be held in Boston in December.

A rising vote of thanks was given to the S. A. R. for the improvement around the war office and the secretary was instructed to write a note of thanks to them.

The regent gave a report of the meeting at Windsor. It was voted to send a Christmas box, also $5 to the Tammasee school in South Carolina. The chapter voted to send a note of congratulations to one of its members Mrs. Calvin H. McCall on the birth of a son.

A very interesting paper on "Tallow Dips and Candle-Sticks", was written and read by Mrs. A. R. Manning. The meeting closed with the D. A. R. pledge. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Hewitt. Fourteen members and one visitor were present.

IN ATTENDANCE AT LIONS' REGIONAL CONFERENCE

Among those attending the regional conference of the third district of Lions Tuesday night at Willimantic were President Louis M. Crandall and Dr. K. K. Markoff of the Norwich Lions club.

President Crandall later spoke to the class in salesmanship which is held at Willimantic high school and is sponsored by the Willimantic merchants.

After a talk on the theory of selling, Mr. Crandall explained and demonstrated in a very forceful way that meeting competition or selling the hard customer is an easy task if one but puts himself in the position of the customer. He quoted one of Emerson's sayings, "Man is as lazy as he dare be," and said that this trait had always been with the human race, and probably would continue until the end of time; that many times the salesman takes the line of least resistance, does not like to be bothered to get prepared to meet the customer on his own ground—expects too much of the customer and not enough of himself. Many times the salesman does not realize that if he were in the customer's place he would do just as the customer does, in other words, the practice of the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you," will sell merchandise to the most difficult customer so that it will not come back because it has been satisfactorily sold. When the salesman realizes that confidence and satisfaction are the basis of all trade, he will study hard to know his business and his merchandise and to thoroughly anticipate and appreciate the desires of his customers, that he may be in a position to render the most pleasant kind of satisfactory service and to convince the most stubborn customer of the value of the merchandise and service that the salesman is rendering. The salesman who wants to meet competition successfully and satisfy the most exacting customer will devote a large part of his spare time to the study of his business, the customer's wishes, his own peculiarities and then, through patient practice, learn how to apply this knowledge so as to bring the greatest amount of satisfaction to his customer, to his employer and to himself.

GIRL SCOUTS TO ATTEND BOY SCOUT HONOR COURT

The Boy Scouts of Norwich are to have the privilege of having the Girl Scouts of Norwich witness their court of honor at the town hall this (Wednesday) evening. According to reports every troop plans to attend. Rev. P. A. Kilmister will give the address of the evening; Troop 7 will furnish an entertaining campfire stunt; Troop 5 will lead the entrance of the Scouts with some fifes and a drum and there will be other interesting features of the program.

Every parent of every Boy Scout in Norwich has been invited to attend the court and it is hoped by the officers that quite a number will be present. A number of merit badges and other awards will be presented. Due to the fact that the board of review found all candidates for the rank of first class Scout unprepared in some phase of their subject, there will be no awards of this rank at this court.

Given Birthday Surprise

Miss Gladys Ericson was pleasantly surprised at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ericson of 41 Convent avenue, in honor of her birthday Tuesday evening. The house was prettily decorated in autumn colors of black and orange and Halloween placecards marked each guest's place at the table, with a huge birthday cake in the center. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Oscar Ericson assisted by Miss Ella Ericson. A number of vocal selections were rendered by Miss Ruth Ericson with Miss Gladys Ericson at the piano.

Guests were present from Providence, Hartford and Norwich. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Brakes Wouldn't Stop Car

In the city court Tuesday morning, Moses Widrowitz, 29, of this city was fined $15 for driving a motor vehicle with defective brakes. Motor Patrolman Clifford Crary arrested him Monday. Widrowitz was ordered to stop the truck he was driving but was unable to obey. After he applied the brakes his truck was forced to travel for over 100 feet.

A local garageman testified that the brakes on the Widrowitz truck had been repaired late last week.

Gifts at Birthday Surprise

A pleasant birthday surprise party for Mrs. Peter Manliess was given Monday evening at her home, 314 Franklin street, when she received many pretty gifts. The rooms were decorated with sweet peas and roses, there was music for dancing by an orchestra and refreshments were served by Mrs. Manliess, Mrs. Leo Guertin and Mrs. James Demaino.

Wants All the World to Know

"About ten years ago I got so weak and rundown that I felt miserable all over. One day my husband said, 'Why don't you take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' When I had taken two bottles I felt better so I kept on. My little daughter was born when I had been married twelve years. Even my doctor said, 'It's wonderful stuff.' You may publish this letter for I want all the world to know how this medicine has helped me."—Mrs. Horten Jones, 208 48th Street, Union City, N. J.

Return From Automobile Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoffman and the Misses Ella and Florence Hoffman returned home Saturday, having enjoyed a 1,900-mile auto trip. While away they visited Washington, D. C., Mt. Vernon and other places of interest. The return trip was made by way of the Delaware Water Gap, Port Jervis and Bear Mountain bridge.

HAS HAD 31 YEARS IN THE LIGHTHOUSE SERVICE

Thomas P. Stebbins, who has just retired from the government lighthouse service in which he has spent 31 years, is to make his home in East Lyme, the town of his birth. His home has been in Portland, Me., in the last period of his service which was as chief engineer aboard the lighthouse tender Hibiscus and he severed his connection with the vessel and the service at Portland.

He was formerly stationed on the Cornfield Point lightship and while there made his home in New London, where his daughter, Mrs. Emerson Wheeler, resides at 132 Jefferson avenue.

Mr. Stebbins is 65 years old. The early part of his government service was spent on lightships. Besides the one off Cornfield Point, he was aboard the Winter Quarter lightship, Overfalls lightship off Cape Henlopen, Five Fathoms lightship off the Delaware capes, and Ambrose, Fire Island and Brenton reef lightships.

Mr. Stebbins was transferred to the First district of the lighthouse service, which extends from the Isle of Shoals to the head of navigation in the St. Croix river, No. 14, 1913. He had moved from New London to East Lyme, just prior to being transferred, and from that town went to Portland. His first service in the first district was as chief engineer aboard the tender Zibania. He was chief engineer aboard the Hibiscus for the last 13 years.

He made numerous trips along the Maine coast aboard the Hibiscus as the vessel called on various isolated stations to deliver winter supplies and also when the craft was proceeding to the assistance of disabled vessels or to rescue fishermen lost in their dories. The Hibiscus was also used in breaking ice in the St. Croix, Penobscot and Androscoggin rivers, and on these missions Mr. Stebbins watched the controls in the engine room.

Attend Conference on Preaching

Be sure
when you buy sanitary pads specify Kotex

No sanitary pad can give you the same wonderful absorbency, perfect fit and lasting softness.

TAKE no unnecessary chances in this important matter of sanitary protection — specify Kotex.

Kotex — first of all sanitary pads — remains best of all sanitary pads. Every month, every year, scientists add details to perfect its comfort, to give you the feeling of being well groomed, at ease; to offer you inconspicuous protection.

First, its amazing absorbency

The absorbent of which Kotex is made—Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding—is unique. It is five times more absorbent than surgical cotton, by actual test. Five times more lasting for that very reason.

Kotex is guaranteed to last longer, to stay soft longer than any other sanitary pad.

Hospitals use it

Do you know that 85% of our leading hospitals use Kotex absorbent today? Yes, they specify Kotex, they insist on Kotex absorbent in cases where the utmost safety and delicacy are necessary. Never is safety more vital, never is comfort more essential. Specify "Kotex." Accept nothing else.

Kotex Company, Chicago.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a special process.

4—Disposable, instantly, completely.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

The NEW KOTEX BELT
brings new ideals of sanitary comfort! Woven to fit, on an entirely new patented principle. Firm yet light; will not curl; perfect-fitting.

PAUL LOEBE RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF REICHSTAG

Immediately Following the Ballot the Fascists Began Obstructive Tactics Which if Continued in the Weeks to Come Will Make Parliamentary Procedure Impossible—In the Diet Fascists and Communists Blocked Real Work by Engaging in Altercations—Metal Union Has Called 126,000 Workers From Their Jobs

BERLIN, Oct. 15.— (AP) —Confusion was added to an already muddled political situation today when the German reichstag and the Prussian diet held stormy sessions and the Metal Workers union successfully called 126,000 workers from their jobs.

President Paul Loebe was re-elected by the reichstag, but severe clashes on the floor preceded and followed the balloting. Hardly had he resumed his chair when the fascists began obstructive tactics which if continued in the weeks to come will make parliamentary procedure impossible. President Loebe, who has served nine years in that office, polled a final vote of 229 against 209 for Dr .Ernst Scholz, German people's party candidate.

Other candidates were eliminated under the constitution from receiving ballots in the second vote taken, when the original poll had failed to show a majority for any candidate.

Election of Franz Stoehr, national socialist, as first vice president, was the single feature of the reichstag election which the fascists could claim as a gain for their party.

The diet session was tumultuous, the fascists and communists engaging in sharp altercations and blocking any real work. Even the proposed vote of non-confidence against the government had to go over until tomorrow when the delegates became hopelessly entangled in a squabble over the government's refusal to lift prohibition of the wearing of communists and fascist uniforms.

The strike of the metal workers was linked with the political situation in its economic significance. The walk out grew out of the refusal of the workmen to accept wage cuts ordered by the government as a part of its new economic construction policy. Such obvious opposition was taken in political circles as making the government's situation more precarious. It now is up to the government to find some way out of the new situation or else give up all hope of getting even tacit socialist support for its continuance.

Apparently nobody today for the moment knew what to do next. The reichstag's council of elders was making efforts to secure adjournment of the house for several days. Right after the government's declaration is read tomorrow afternoon by Chancellor Bruening. It is hoped by the time the reichstag reconvenes that the metal strike might be adjusted at least temporarily.

There were no disorders in Berlin today other than the disturbances within the two houses of government. Heavy police guards were maintained at strategic points and tonight patrols were established so that the authorities might not again be taken by surprise as they were in the fascist anti-Jewish riots and communists activities on Monday.

PROGRESS BY GRAND JURY IN CASE OF JUDGE BERTINI

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—An extraordinary grand jury investigating the appointment of General Sessions Judge Amedeo A. Bertinin, started a new line of inquiry today. It questioned former Sheriff David H. Knott, who was chairman of the democratic committee which nominated Bertini for his post on the bench.

In summoning Knott, Special Prosecutor Todd was understood to be attempting to trace the steps leading to the nomination. Todd said he intended to ask later for testimony of Supreme Court Justice Cotillo, who has been quoted as saying he understood at the time of the committee's deliberations that former Assemblyman Frank A. Galgano was to get the nomination that went to Bertini.

Meanwhile the trail of $100,000 Bertini allegedly withdrew from bank and brokerage accounts about the time of his elevation to the bench was further scrutinized by the grand jury. It heard testimony from Mrs. Bertini and former Judge Francis X. Mancuso, whose place on the bench was filled by Bertini.

COAST-TO-COAST AIR MAIL AND PASSENGER SERVICE

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Giant tri-motored transport ships took the air at Los Angeles, Dallas and Atlanta today in an inauguration of the first regularly scheduled coast-to-coast air mail and passenger service over the southern route

Four ships flew westward from Atlanta, eastern terminus of the Southern Air Fast Express Co., carrying, among others, Postmaster General Walter F. Brown. From Los Angeles, west coast terminus of the route, another plane took off with Atlanta as its destination.

At Dallas, Tex., two other planes took off in opposite directions, one for Los Angeles and the other for Atlanta. Each carried mail and passengers

Dallas, lying approximately midway between Atlanta and Los Angeles, will serve as an overnight stop for both east and west-bound planes until a portion fo the route between Dallas and Los Angeles can be lighted for night flying.

The schedule from coast to coast is 19 hours actual flying time.

PROCLAMATION TO THE SUGAR GROWERS OF CUBA

HAVANA, Oct. 15.—(AP)—In a proclamation to the sugar growers of Cuba, President Machado today asked full cooperation with the plan recently submitted by Thomas L. Chadbourne, chairman of the Cuban-American sugar committee, for the disposition of a 1,500,000-ton estimated surplus, which will be carried over into next season.

The Chadbourne plan, calling for the retirement from the market of this carry-over for five years, and the issuance of government bonds to cover its purchase, had previously received the private sanction of the president.

Stating that the present situation in the sugar industry was "acute," and that "drastic action" was necessary, the executive declared he had faith in the "patriotism of producers and the good-will of foreign interests" to make the segregation of the carry-over possible

NO REPORT ON DRY STATUS BEFORE THE NOV. ELECTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Hope for an announcement on prohibition before the election was abandoned today by the law enforcement commission as it found its task "tremendous" even after digesting the reports of investigators.

After today's session, which three members were unable to attend, Chairman Wickersham said an adjournment would be taken on Friday until Nov. 5, the day after the election. At that time, in response to a demand by a group of commission members, prohibition will become the order of business.

TWO KILLED IN CLASH AT ELECTION IN ANTALIA

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and 30 seriously injured at Antalia today during the municipal election as partisans of Fethi Bey's new liberal party and the [illegible] clashed.

SKIPPERS ANGRY AT CALLING OFF OF FISHERMEN'S RACE

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Two angry skippers returned to port tonight, angry with a race committee that called off a fisherman's race in a 40-mile wind, a heaving sea and successive rain squalls that at times limited visibility to 200 yards.

The angry skippers were Captain Angus Walters, skipper of the schooner Bluenose, champion of the Canadian fishing fleet, and Captain Charlie Johnson, who sailed as substitute skipper for Captain Ben Pine aboard the Gertrude L. Thebaud, pride of the Gloucester fishing fleet. Captain Ben was confined to a Boston hospital, suffering from a sinus infection, but he left his sick bed to listen to a radio broadcast of the race.

Captain Angus had the greater cause for complaint, for in the bad going Bluenose had piled up a lead of more than two miles at the 12-mile mark. The committee called the race off as the two schooners and the committee itself were searching for the 18-mile mark in a rain squall. Bluenose's inability to find the mark gave Thebaud time to come up and it was then that the committee hoisted the recall signals.

Some idea of the stormy conditions that prevailed may be gained from the fact that two members of Thebaud's crew went by the board. One sea that boarded Thebaud carried Corlin Powers with it. The next carried him back. It was just a recurrence of a miracle that has saved the life of more than one seaman. Kellogg Birdseye, was carried overboard, tangled up in a halyard, and his shipmates were able to haul him back aboard.

BRITISH CONSERVATIVES FOR PROTECTIVE TARIFF

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—An advance showing of the conservative party's probable platform for the impending general election was made today by Stanley Baldwin, who issued what was termed a manifesto on the need of an emergency tariff in an open letter to Neville Chamberlain, chairman of the conservative party.

The one-time premier demanded immediate application of "an emergency tariff on manufactured goods which would preserve the home market" while the necessary investigations and negotiations are proceeding for a scientific tariff plan.

Observers gained the impression that because of Mr. Baldwin's statement protective tariff would be the basis upon which the conservatives would meet their enemies at the polls.

MISSING BANKER BOB FACES POSSIBLE ARREST

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Assistant Attorney General Washburn announced today that Charles V. Bob, missing banker, capitalist and engineer, faces possible arrest unless he returns to New York state within the next two days. The state wants to question him concerning Metal and Mining Shares, Inc., and Rainbow Luminous Products Co.

Washburn said examination of two officials of the Metal and Mining Shares, of which Bob was chairman of the board, had disclosed that a list of stocks filed with his office by the corporation, showing securities on hand to the value of more than $6,000,000 as of Dec. 31, 1929, had been falsified.

RAIN ASSURES OPENING OF HUNTING SEASON OCT. 20

HARTFORD, Oct. 15.—(AP)—In view of today's drenching rains, Gov. Trumbull declared, there seems to be little necessity to close the hunting season in this state. The season for partridge and woodcock opens Monday morning and owing to the drought it was feared that it would be necessary to close the woods until rain fell in sufficient quantity to eliminate the danger of forest fires.

McADOO ON LAST LEG OF TRANSCONTINENTAL FLIGHT

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15.—(AP)—William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, left Port Columbus at 3:45 p. m. (EST), today, for Washington on the last leg of his transcontinental flight to determine the speed with which the "average businessman" could cross the country in comfort and safety.

Communists Insult Sec'y Of War Hurley

Two Men, Under Arrest in Oklahoma City, Are Charged With Rioting

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Following an alleged communistic demonstration against Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, riot charges were filed against two men here late today.

The accused are J. I. Whitten and R. T. Pierce, admitted communists. They were arrested by police as they boarded an automobile in which Secretary Hurley rode, hurling jibes and insults at the cabinet member from Oklahoma.

A crowd of more than 200 followed the pair to the city jail, but made no effort to stage a further demonstration.

The charges were brought by Harlan T. Dupree, assistant county attorney, under a statute providing a penalty on conviction of from 2 to 10 years in the state penitentiary.

Allegations are that Whitten, a former Denver, Colo., labor agitator, and Pierce "forcibly climbed onto the car occupied by Secretary of War Hurley, assaulting him, cursing and threatening him, bemeaning him personally and as the secretary of war of the United States." The charges were signed by policemen who made the arrests.

The demonstration came as the secretary's motor car was leaving the chamber of commerce where he addressed a luncheon gathering. Hurley proceeded to the airport and took off for Fort Worth, Texas, to participate in ceremonies incident to the inauguration of the Atlantic-Los Angeles air mail service.

He planned to return here for a banquet tonight. To cope with any further attempts to annoy the secretary, Clarence Hurt, assistant chief of police, ordered all policemen in the city on duty tonight. Riot equipment would be available in case of any trouble, he said.

A heavy rain aided in dispersing the crowd that assembled in the vicinity of the jail after the arrest of Whitten and Pierce.

WOUND PROVES FATAL TO GANGSTER FLEAGLE

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The wolf of the west, Jake Fleagle, is dead.

This modern bad man, the leader of a pack of ruthless robbers and killers who shot their way through bank and postoffice holdups in the west and middle west, died at 9:56 a. m., today, in a hospital here. The abdominal wound inflicted Tuesday when Fleagle was shot as he was surprised by federal and other authorities as he boarded a train at Branson, Mo., little Ozark mountain town, caused his death.

With his passing, federal officers continued the hunt for other members of the gang. Two alleged Fleagle associates were arrested—Joe Miller at Las Vegas, New Mexico, and Dr. George O. De Moss at Streator, Ill.

It was also disclosed today that Fleagle had been hiding in the Ozarks for about a year. He leased a cabin near Branson and fitted it as an arsenal and hideaway. Residents in the section were convinced now that many visitors he had probably were members of his gang.

Any doubt that the man was Fleagle was dispelled late today when instructions were received from the Fleagle family at Garden City, Kansas, to send the body there, and fingerprints taken by federal officers checked unquestionably.

CONFESSES SLAYING OF GIRL LAST AUGUST 17

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Mystery surrounding the disappearance of Miss Avis Woolery, 17, last Aug. 17, dissolved today with the confession of Paul Kauffman, 31-year-old ex-convict, that he strangled the girl to death and buried her body in a shallow grave in Swope park.

The body of the comely Webb City, Mo., girl, who came here in response to Kauffman's false promise of employment as a nursemaid, was found Sunday with a pair of women's hose bound around the neck.

Kauffman admitted in a written confession that he met the girl at the union station here last Aug. 17 and that they had gone to the park together. Police said he told them he assaulted her.

He said he killed her in fear of the law and because "of drunken passion."

GAIN IN THE NUMBER OF WORKERS EMPLOYED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.— (AP) —Seasonal increases in industrial operations were credited today by the federal employment service for a gain in the number of workers employed during September.

This advance was noted in certain sections of the country, the employment service said, offsetting to some degree a slackness in labor demand attributed to slower pace of building operations and the reduced rate of operations in the automobile and accessory industries.

An increase in coal mining, rather steady work in boots and shoes, certain improvement in textiles, and a "somewhat brighter aspect" in the steel industry was described as existing at the beginning of October.

EDNA WALLACE HOPPER TO RETURN TO VAUDEVILLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Edna Wallace Hopper, who is 65 years old according to the books and has the "heart of a girl" according to the doctors, returned on the liner Homeric today to take another whirl at vaudeville with her young dancing partner, Ferninand Grip.

Miss Hopper said she hoped to appear soon in an acrobatic act, but that American managers would have to be convinced that she can "do her stuff." She weighs 92 pounds, she said, and physicians at Vichy, France, recently pronounced her health perfect. She was the third wife of De Wolf Hopper.

PILOT AND PASSENGER KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

OLATHE, Kas., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Gail Dawson, Napoleon, Ohio, pilot, and Ralph H. Yeager, of Defiance, Ohio, his passenger, were killed today when their airplane crashed into a field eight miles north of Olathe.

MISER DIES OF HUNGER IN STREETS OF HAVANA

HAVANA, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Manuel Fernandes Calero, Spaniard, fell dead of hunger on the streets of Havana today although in his pockets there was enough money to feed a regiment of men.

When Calero's emaciated body was lifted from the gutter three $1,000 bills and $832.30 in change tumbled from his pockets.

Investigation showed that the Spaniard had withdrawn this money, representing his life's savings, from a local bank two weeks ago, when a financial panic threatened banks.

JUDGE BERTINI HAS NO INTENTION OF RESIGNING

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—General Sessions Judge Amedeo A. Bertini, whose elevation to the bench is under inquiry by an extraordinary grand jury, declared tonight he had no intention of resigning. "I was elected for 14 years," he asserted. "I expect, if God spares me, to serve for that period."

Equally blunt was his denial that he had "paid anything or caused anything to be paid" to obtain his post.

NO "PUNK" CIGARS FROM CANDIDATE SEYMOUR

HARTFORD, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The hackneyed suggestion that the cigars so freely offered by candidates for political office are pure Manila hemp, will not be in order as far as the smokes furnished this year by Col Clarence W. Seymour, republican nominee for congress in the first district, are concerned. He announced today that he will buy only cigars in the manufacture of which is used the Connecticut broad leaf wrapper, raised here in the Connecticut valley.

ACTOR ROBERT AMES IS BEING SUED FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Robert Ames, stage and screen actor, was sued for divorce today by Helen Muriel Oakes Ames, former New York society girl whom he married in February, 1927. BRAZILIAN GOVT. REPORTS REPULSE OF INSURGENTS

Federals Say the Rebels Have Been Driven Back On Three Fronts—Revolutionaries Are Worrying Over Lack of Supplies—Mobilization of Federal Resources Continues—Federal Operations North of Rio De Janeiro Have Removed the Menace to the Federal Capital

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 15.—(AP) —With Brazilian rebels being driven back on three fronts and mobilization of federal resources continuing, the Brazilian government today left the rebellion to the soldiers while it studied a plan to keep the country's finances in hand pending the outcome of the revolution.

A bill which would do this was presented before the chamber of deputies. It provides that at the end of the present enforced banking holiday, which expires Oct. 21, only the Bank of Brasil will be permitted to make any exchange transactions.

The government also would be given power to restrict the outflow of capital, the measure providing that money may leave the country only for certain legitimate business transactions or for payment of Brazilian interest obligations. This would curb the imports of luxuries, which would further be retarded by orders to Brazilian consuls abroad, warning them not to approve shipments of luxury goods.

There was little news of actual fighting from the war sectors today but the government claimed that it is steadily pushing the revolutionaries back in three areas—the Sao Paulo-Parana front, which extends for 200 miles in almost the entire state of Minas Geraes, and in the region around the north of Rio De Janeiro state.

More than a dozen towns each are claimed in the Sao Paulo-Parana and Minas Geraes regions, with the rebels falling back and worried by lack of supplies. At the same time the federals feel that by their operations north of Rio De Janeiro they have removed the menace to the federal capital, as have the successful engagements below the city of Sao Paulo.

The principal fight above Rio De Janeiro was at Itaocara, where the rebels were said to have withdrawn after heavy fighting, leaving three machine guns, 4,800 rounds of ammunition and other arms. This city lies on a direct rail route to Nictheroy, which is the capital of the state and lies directly across the strait from the federal capital. Possession of Itaocara would have placed the rebels in a strong strategic position to the north.

The federals claimed other victories in the same region, principally at Porto Velho, San Antonio Do Chiador and Mar D'Espanha, where they pushed Minas Geraes rebel contingents back into their own state.

The government claims possession now of almost all of Minas Geraes, particularly in the western and southern parts. This restores many railway systems, which are necessary to carry food into Rio De Janeiro. Federal sources also say that the people of the state are not sympathetic with the revolution.

Word was received today that Captain Firmino Silveira, commanding the seventh battalion of military police, had captured Jaguary. This lies in the extreme south of Minas Geraes, just across the border from Sao Paulo.

Dispatches from Sao Paulo today said that more volunteer battalions were being raised there for active service, while the Red Cross there had prepared 130 beds for wounded men and had arranged to care for 100 more at a children's hospital in Indiana, same state. Food was said to be plentiful.

Since the Sao Paulo police are fighting the rebels routing police work is being carried on by 2,000 civil guards, 200 traffic inspectors and 500 city inspectors.

REVOLUTIONARIES CLAIM CAPTURE OF ITAPERUNA

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 15.—(AP) —Brazilian revolutionary headquarters here tonight claimed the capture of Itaperuna, a city far to the north of the state of Rio De Janeiro and also declared that in all battles so far the revolutionary soldiers had defeated the government troops.

The capture of Itaperuna would indicate that rebels are crossing the border from Minas Geraes and are planning a drive upon the federal capital, which lies about 400 miles to the south. Dispatches from federal sources, indicate, however, that a number of cities have been captured in the middle of the state, with the rebels driven back into Minas, this would hinder a drive from the north.

The information was contained in a telegram sent to Lindolfo Collor, revolutionary representative here, by Dr. Osvaldo Aranha, who is acting president of the state of Rio Grande Do Sul during the absence at the front of Dr. Getulio Vargas.

The statement that the rebels have won all battles thus far is widely at variance with federal dispatches reaching here. The latter assert that the revolting troops are being driven back consistently on three fronts.

Dr. Aranha's telegram added that the revolutionists were purchasing military equipment in both Europe and the United States.

U. S. FRIENDLY WITH PRESENT GOVT. OF BRAZIL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. — (AP) — While an American naval vessel moved closer today to Brazilian territory to take off Americans if their lives became endangered in the revolt in the republic, Secretary Stimson announced the continued friendliness of the United States toward the present government headed by President Washington Luis.

Ordered several days ago from Norfolk, Virginia, to Guantanamo to shorten the sailing distance to Brazil, the U. S. S. Pensacola has been directed to proceed to Trinidad, still nearer the Brazilian coast, to refuel and stand by. It is due there tomorrow morning.

Clarifying for the first time the position of the Hoover administration regarding prospective purchase of munitions in the United States by the Brazilian government, Secretary Stimson in a brief statement announced that government "has a perfect right" to buy munitions in the United States.

Negotiations were understood to be going on for the purchase of certain military equipment by the Brazilian government. The only purchase so far made was one for $94.74 of airplane brackets, the order for which was not a result of the revolutionary outbreak.

"Nothing has come to the notice of the department in the news from Brazil which changes the attitude of this government of exercising the same friendly offices towards the government of Brazil which we would exercise toward any government with which we are in friendly relations," the secretary's statement said.

"Under those circumstances the government of Brazil has a perfect right to buy munitions in this country."

JACK DIAMOND DEFIANT AS HE RALLIES FROM WOUNDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Jack "Legs" Diamond, the gangster, rallied sufficiently today from the wounds that were expected to kill him, to fling the traditional underworld defiance at authorities in search of his assailants.

District Attorney Crain visited him in the Polyclinic hospital where physicians said Diamond was on his death-bed and asked the racketeer if he knew the men who shot him down in a West Side hotel room Sunday morning.

In a voice whose healthy timbre belied the physicians' death sentence Diamond replied:

"Judge, I don't know, and if I did I wouldn't tell you. They were all strangers to me. They came to my room in the Hotel Monticello and shot me."

After scrutinizing every scrap of information that has been unearthed by detectives in the 72 hours since the gunmen "got" Diamond, Police Commissioner Mulrooney announced he has become convinced the shooting resulted from an argument over money.

Mulrooney said he had definitely established that Diamond talked with his visitors for an hour and a half before the shooting started. Evidence to support the contention that Diamond was in financial straits, the commissioner said, lay in the discovery of only two $100 bills and some small change in the gangster's room and the plea of his wife, Alice, to be given the money when she came from her home in Acra, N. Y. to visit her stricken husband.

DROUGHT MOST PROLONGED AND WIDESPREAD IN HISTORY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The most prolonged and widespread drought in the history of the nation's weather records was credited today by J. B. Kincer, agricultural department meteorologist, with having reduced the average rainfall of the country to [illegible] per cent. of normal between January and September.

Prompted by the continued severity of the drought in Middle North Atlantic and New England states, the meteologist computed the average rainfall to date this year and for the growing seasons.

During the growing season from March to August, average rainfall amounted to 81 per cent. of normal and during the important crop months of July and August, 70 per cent.

While conditions in the drought areas between the Rocky and the Appalachian mountains continued to improve generally, Kincer reported that in the Middle Atlantic area, especially in the Virginias and Maryland, "the drought continues unabated, with springs and streams showing further decline and the water situation serious in many localities."

TO STOP NIGHTWORK FOR MINORS IN COTTON MILLS

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Action was taken today practically ensuring elimination by March 1 next of night work for minors under 18 and for all women in most of the country's cotton textile mills.

Delegates to the fifth annual convention of the Cotton Textile Institute which represents the majority of both southern and northern mills, today unanimously approved a document presented by the directors in which it was agreed to eliminate such night work provided that a progressive acceptance of such a policy could be obtained in the industry as a whole.

As the institute already had approval of the plan, by voluntary mail expressions, from mills operating 20,000,000 spindles it was the opinion of the delegates that there would be no serious opposition and that the plan would go into effect on or before the date set.

DESCRIPTION OF MAN ESCAPING FROM SUNKEN SUB

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—Description of the reactions of a man escaping from a sunken submarine is to be broadcast from the United States navy base at New London, tomorrow.

The half-hour program will be transmitted by WJZ and National Broadcasting company chain at [illegible] p. m. (E. S. T.) as the official navy test of the newly developed "Momsen lung" is to be used for escape of crews from disabled submarines.

Two microphones will be used, one in a miniature "submarine compartment" at the bottom of a huge tank and the second at the top of the tank. Lieut. Charles B. Momsen, inventor of the safety device, will be heard from the compartment as he gives instructions to those taking the test.

Part of the broadcast will be made from a diving bell. It consists of a report on the progress of the men as they leave the compartment for the surface.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 15.—The new board of assessors inaugurated the work of receiving property tax lists for 1930 today. The first taxpayer to file a list was Ralph U. Wolmer of 345 Lewiston avenue. The board will be in session until November 1st for this purpose.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Melina Arbour

The funeral of Mrs. Melina Arbour was held this morning from the home, 202 South Park street, with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. The funeral was largely attended. Rev. J. J. Papillon was celebrant; Rev. Ubald Laurion, deacon, and Rev. E. A. Mathieu, subdeacon. Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau was at the organ for a special musical program. Interment took place in the family plot, of St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal service was conducted by the three priests. The pall bearers were Alexis Caisse, Dieudonne Riquier, Joseph Lefebvre, Henry Girard, Adolphe Lafontaine and Louis Samson. The Hurteau Corp. was in charge of the arrangements.

A meeting of the local chapter of the D. A. R. heard an inspiring address on colonial history by Mrs. Charles C. Hammer of Hartford yesterday. Introduced by Mrs. Carrie Larrabee, programme chairman, Mrs. Hammer also talked on the importance of good publicity in promoting activities. A lunch was served following the address.

Reception For Priest

A reception will be tendered Rev. H. C. Belec, now of the Sacred Heart church, Taftville, but formerly of St. Mary's church here, in St. Mary's hall on Valley street, Sunday evening. The executive committee in charge of the arrangements comprises Joseph F. Gaudreau, chairman; Napoleon Bacon, treasurer, and Miss Louise Pepin, secretary. An attractive program is being prepared. The Peerless orchestra will play and there will also be solos by Arthur Roy of this city, and Miss Doris Menard of New Bedford, Mass.

Anderman Louis C. Vegiard announced today that he and his family will in the near future move to Danielson, where he will work for the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. Due to this fact, he has submitted to Valentine L. Murphy, chairman of the democratic town committee, his resignation as chairman of the third ward committee.

The rain of Tuesday evening and today brought an end to the drought from which this locality has suffered since September 9th, when the last rain storm took place. The present rainfall cooled the atmosphere appreciably but did not do much toward replenishing the water supply in the various streams.

Building High Tension Line

The Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company is making excellent progress in the construction of the high tension service line between this city and Stafford Springs. The work has had the advantage of fair weather. A stretch of 9 miles from Coventry to Willington Hill has been completed.

Clarence and Janet Rathbun, twins, were the attendants. They are on a wedding trip through Massachusetts and Vermont and upon their return will reside in Hartford. She has been employed by the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company. The groom is employed by A. C. Peterson, West Hartford dairyman.

Denies Suicide Attempt

Edward Beaudette of 199 Main street said today that his father, Peter Beaudette, 42, did not attempt suicide in New Haven earlier in the week but slipped and fell about 40 feet from a cliff. The man is in a serious condition in the Grace hospital there. The son also said his father had not lost his job.

Because of the fact that the democrats have held no caucus, the town committee selected Merritt Usher as a nominee for representative and endorsed the candidacy of Dr. F. B. Converse on the republican ticket. The committee also endorsed George P. Bugbee for judge of probate.

The chamber of commerce today issued a warning to the local public concerning receipt of unordered boxes of Christmas cards through the mails. People receiving such boxes are requested to put them away and not to surrender possession of them unless an authorized agent calls for them within a reasonable time. In the event that such an agent does not call for the boxes in a reasonable period, those to whom they are addressed may charge storage.

Get Rid of PIMPLES

Perhaps you have every reason to be discouraged after trying all sorts of high-priced salves and lotions which failed to bring help to your pimply skin.

One thing's certain — you never used Peterson's Ointment because Peterson's is the one sure method that won't fail to eradicate the worst, most obstinate case of blemished

One application—your pimples and blackheads start to go—in a couple of days eruptions have healed your face is remarkably cleared! Continued use gives you a complexion utterly free from any irritation—delicately smooth—clear.

Mary Metinko of Rankin, Pa writes: "Ever since I can remember I have had pimples on my face but after I got a box of Peterson's Ointment I found that it works like magic I recommend it to all my friends."

Ofttimes pimples entirely disappear in three days and one 35 cent box will prove it —All drugstores.

DANIELSON

COUNTY GAME WARDEN TO WATCH HUNTERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 15.—Hunters are advised that their operations afield will be closely observed by County Game Warden Thomas Daniels of Plainfield and his staff of deputy wardens during the bird hunting season that opens next Monday. Hunters will be required to live strictly up to the letter of the law. As to this, it is suggested that huntsmen would do well to read over the laws pertaining to the hunting of such game as they may be seeking, that they may avoid erring on some of the strict, if lesser known, rules. Hunters must carry their licenses when afield and display the license buttons issued to them for such purpose.

OBITUARY

Edward G. Cook

Just a week after he had been a bearer at the funeral of a friend in North Foster, Edward G. Cook of that place died today at the Memorial hospital in Pawtucket. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker A. F. Wood of this place.

Mr. Cook, 61 years of age, had lived in Glocester and Foster all his life. He became ill about a week ago, his condition becoming so grave that he was entered as a patient at the hospital in Pawtucket. He leaves no relatives nearer than a nephew, Walter Cook, of Foster.

Two new-comers as candidates for office in the ranks of the democrtic party in Killingly have the nominations for representatives—John M. Dowe and Francis T. Gagnon. Both are well known and well liked. They are of the younger generation of the party here. The democrats at their caucus last evening endorsed Judge Sabin S. Russell, the republican nominee and encumbent, for judge of probate and designated the following for justices of the peace; Frederick E. Bitgood, John W. Gallup, Arthur Gauthier, Louis O. Stone, Charles W. Trudeau, John Welch, William Moran, Augustus Piche, Amos E. Hall and James Kent. The town committee as appointed for the ensuing year is made up of A. J. Cavanagh, chairman, Patrick Riley, Fred I. Racine, Andrew Jaworski, Louis O. Stone, Charles Trudeau, Arthur Viens, Frederick E. Bitgood and James P. Aldrich.

About 175 attended the caucus, Patrick Riley presiding as chairman and A. J. Cavanagh acting as clerk.

Rev. Charles A. Downs, Goodyear, chaplain of the Connecticut state grange, and Miss Laura Pike, Brooklyn, Pomona, were at Newington this evening to assist in the conferring of the sixth degree upon a large class of candidates. In anticipation of the annual session of the national grange to be held at Rochester the second week in November, at which time the seventh and highest degree in the order is to be conferred, the Connecticut state grange is holding three special sessions to confer the sixth degree. A class of 97 received this degree at New Milford last Saturday. For the grangers of eastern Connecticut a similar meeting is to be held at Lisbon, in the community hall, next Saturday night.

Rev. Mr. Downs and Miss Pike will assist at this meeting as they did at New Milford and Newington.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Emma Kelley

From the home of her son, Henry Kelley, on Franklin street, this morning, the funeral of Mrs. Emma Kelley was held. At 9 o'clock there was a solemn high mass of requiem at St. James' church, the officers of the mass being, Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S., and Rev. Fr. Tobin, M. S. The service was attended by relatives and many friends. Burial was in St. James' cemetery. The bearers were Joseph, Frederick, Henry and Peter Gamache, brothers of the deceased, Peter Lacombe and Wilfred Poirier. Rev. Fr. Mollard conducted the committal service. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

There were no special developments today in the holdup case. Local state officers and Providence police continued to work on it, checking on various leads they have obtained on it and the personnel engaged in it. The major part of the investigation at this stage is being made in Rhode Island.

Hunters were more relieved today, following the heavy rain, and confident that there will be no ban placed on hunting prior to the opening of the season on Monday next.

There were 62 prisoners in the Windham county jail at Brooklyn this afternoon. Two of them are women. Three of the prisoners are being held awaiting trial.

The new building being erected on the West Side for the A. T. and T. company is of thoroughly fireproof construction. Concrete, stone, brick and steel are being used.

To Enter Convent

Miss Andiana Bernier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Bernier of 29 Reynolds street, left this afternoon to enter the convent of the Sisters of St. Joseph at Hartford. Miss Bernier formerly was kindergarten teacher in St. James' school here.

A downpour of rain between 2 and 4 o'clock this morning following lighter rains during the early part of last night wet down the countryside thoroughly and for the time being relieved the danger of forest fires. It was the first good rain to fall here in more than a month.

Mrs. E. Perreault and family of Manchester, N. H., former residents of Danielson, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hamilton.

Norman Lasch, Ray Landry, Anselm Bernier, William Veillieux and Kid Brouillard, Danielson boxers training under the direction of Louis Peloquin, will appear in bouts against a group of boys from Worcester at St. John's hall in Putnam Thursday evening. A large number from here has arrang- large number from here have arranged to attend the bouts.

Yesterday at a meeting of the New London Archdeaconry Clericus at Trinity church, Norwich, Rev. J. Rees Jones, rector of St. Alban's parish here, was elected president for the ensuing year. Rev. Leonard R. Richards of Christ church, Pomfret, was elected vice-president, and Rev. T. H. Ockford of Poquetanuck, secretary. A dinner was served the members by the Ladies' Parish guild.

Though the playing of baseball on Davis park was forbidden during the summer complaints have come in that the boys have been using the park for football practice, and Chief John McFarland has given his attention to the matter.

For the first time this fall drivers of cars had their experiences with skidding today, when the streets and nearby highways were covered with fallen wet leaves.

DANIELSON COUPLE CELEBRATE 56TH ANNIVERSARY OF THiER MARRAIGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 15—Today was the fifty-sixth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Milner, residents here for many years. They observed the event in quiet manner at their home on Reynolds street.

Mr. and Mrs. Milner were married at Glenham, N. Y. Prior to her marriage Mrs. Milner was Miss Elizabeth Northrop. She was born Jan. 22, 1851, at Astoria, N. Y. Mr. Milner is a native of Norwich, born in the Rose of New England, April 20, 1852.

Both continue in a fair degree of health. Mrs. Milner has been unable to get about excepting in a wheel chair for the past eight years, this affliction being due to injuries she received when she was struck here in Danielson by an automobile.

Mr. Milner, who was engaged as a painter in his active years, is a member of the vestry of St. Alban's church.

There are two children, Mrs. Arthur W. Logee, resident here, and Harold E. Milner of Bergenfield, N. J., a representative of the American Screw company.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Milner, a very gracious couple, have many friends here who will wish them many more years of happy married life.

CROSS UNABLE TO SPEAK AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 15.—The town hall was fairly well filled tonight at a rally, marking the formal opening of the democratic state campaign in this town. A. J. Cavanagh, Dayville, chairman of the democratic town committee, called the meeting to order and introduced Napoleon J. Fournier of Moosup, the party candidate for sheriff of Windham county. Mr. Fournier spoke briefly. The next speaker was P. B. O'Sullivan, of Orange, member of the democratic state central committee.

It was left to him to express his disappointment and explain why Dean Wilbur Cross, the party candidate for governor, who was scheduled to speak here this evening, was unable to be present. Mr. O'Sullivan said that Mr. Cross did not finish campaigning and reach his home until 2 o'clock this morning. After a few hours sleep he left at 7 o'clock for New York in an endeavor to persuade Alfred E. Smith, presidential candidate two years ago, to come into Connecticut and do some campaigning for his party.

The dean was too exhausted to make the trip here tonight. The various speakers at tonight's rally made out a strong case for their candidates for various offices. Prior to the rally, the speakers and the leaders of the democratic party here had dinner at the Attawaugan hotel. St. James' band escorted the party to the town hall.

Louisiana sugar cane fields are expected to yield a crop of 185,972 short tons this year.

PUTNAM

FORMER WORCESTER CHIEF ADDRESSED ROTARY CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 15.—Former Chief of Police George H. Hill of Worcester, Mass., addressed the Putnam Rotary club, following the close of its weekly noonday luncheon held at the Putnam Inn today. "For Safety," was the subject of a most interesting talk in which the retired police executive pointed out the various safety campaigns being conducted throughout the nation in the common cause of lowering the enormously great accidental death rate in the United States. One hundred thousand deaths were caused by accidents in 1929, Chief Hill said, and reports of statisticians indicate that the number of deaths occurring through carelessness and sheer negligence, is ever on the upward trend.

Although no longer head of the Worcester police, former Chief Hill is now head of a bureau of paramount importance to citizens of Worcester, namely—The Worcester Safety council. The council, an organization of men of executive ability, is making a careful study of ordinary hazards and with the cooperation of the state legislature and the people of the commonwealth is advocating and placing in practice safety programmes which are enjoying great results in the lowering of the number of accidental deaths, when the term is strictly applied to the city of Worcester.

The effect of the methods is visible elsewhere, Chief Hill said, since other communities are continually observing the success of the practices, are copying them and introducing similar programmes in their respective communities. The "Save a Life" campaign initiated this summer throughout New England is the result of careful planning and research of New England safety councils. During the past two months that the campaign has been carried on in the interests of permitting only automobiles equipped with adequate braking systems on the highways has aided immensely in the lowering of the death toll.

In concluding, Chief Hill stated that he expected to see safety conditions in general improved during the course of another year, due to the great advances being made along these lines by the safety councils of towns and cities throughout the nation, members of which are working diligently and incessantly to elevate standards of efficiency and safety.

Visitors at today's luncheon and meeting were Rotarians Henry Johnson and William Clark of Danielson, Everett J. Baker of Norwood, Mass., and Walter Harvey of Holyoke, Mass.

Daniel Whittemore, who lives at 47 Walnut street, although well over the four score year span of life, is "still in the saddle." Mr Whittemore is not a horseman, but his fancies run to velocipedes and the construction and perfection of these vehicles, to suit his tastes of comfort and not appearance, he has made his life hobby. At 80 years, Mr. Whittemore still pedals his home-made, three-wheeled cycle about the city daily, finding his way with apparent ease over the heavily trafficked streets, through what appears to the casual onlooker, marveling at his sense of accuracy, to be a faculty raised to a highly developed pitch, through his years of travel over the same routes. In recent years, Mr. Whittemore has abandoned the use of his bicycle, putting this aside for the three-wheeled vehicle which he constructed himself in the little workshop outside his home.

An ordinary bicycle frame serves as the body of the strange mechanism. The hind wheel is like that of a common bicycle. A sprocket gear attached to the pedals in the center of the frame is bound by a chain to a smaller sprocket attached to the rear wheel. This combination of gears, chain and pedals, serves as the source of propulsion.

Two small, hand-wrought wheels which are bound with iron tires, are on each side of the forepart of the wheel. A steering device constructed along lines of the automobile steering system, is attached to the handle bars which guide the bicycle.

DOROTHY JONES BARTLETT CANDIDATE FOR SENATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct 15.—Mrs. Dorothy Jones Bartlett of Main street, well known in political circles in this city, has been prevailed upon to become a candidate for the office of senator from the 28th senatorial district, filling the vacancy created last week by the refusal of Alexander Gilman, Putnam business man, to run. She will oppose Senator Walter E. Brown of Ashford, who has been nominated for re-election by the republicans. The selection of Mrs. Bartlett as a candidate marks the first time in the county's political history, that a woman has been nominated for the state senate.

Members of the state central committee were in Putnam yesterday and invited Mrs. Bartlett to accept the responsibility, which she has accepted with an air of confidence. Mrs. Bartlett is by no means a novice in politics. She is a veteran campaginer and during the hectic days immediately preceding the granting of the women the right to vote, Mrs. Bartlett played a prominent role in the cause of woman suffrage.

Mrs. Bartlett is a member of the town school committee and has served as city court probation officer, president of the Chautauqua association, and has been actively engaged in many other forms of civic and social work, aside from her political pursuits.

Stockholders and directors of the Waterman Worsted Co of New York, owners of the Waterman Worsted mills in this city, held a meeting yesterday for the purpose of considering the offer of Manchester, N. H., owners of idle and empty mills, to locate in that city. The decision of the stockholders was not made known here today, although some news of the results of the conference is expected to be received Wednesday. Rumors to the effect that the worsted concern is contemplating the removal of its equipment to Manchester have been current in Putnam for some weeks, but as yet none have been confirmed by local officials of the concern, who are reticent.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marlow of Farrows street were in Providence today.

Alvin Jarvis of Providence street has returned from New York city, where he attended a series of professional boxing bouts staged at the Madison Square Garden.

Deputy Sheriff Lester E. Blish of Willimantic was in Putnam today, attending the civil session of superior court.

Heavy rains here last night put an end to the drought which had, until yesterday, threatened a winter water shortage in the country districts. Farmers reported, however, that a rain period of several days is necessary before conditions can be restored to normal.

Party leaders said today that rallies will be held in this city in the near future at which candidates for state office on each ticket will speak.

Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol tried the cases of Edith F. Robinson vs. Herman J. Barnes, executor; E. B Mead vs. Herman J. Barnes, executor, and Carl Habercoss and Anna Habercoss vs. Andrew Dugel and Mary Dugel, at a civil session of superior court held in this city today. An appeal of Dora Blumenthal of Danielson from a justice court decision in favor of Alphonse Guibeault of Killingly was settled out of court. Court will convene in Willimantic on Friday, when a short calendar and civil session will be held.

Continued improvement in the condition of Mrs Edgar M. Warner of South Main street was reported noted by officials of the Day Kimball hospital today, where she is a patient.

PLANES IN ALASKA CUT DAYS OFF TRIPS

FAIRBANKS, Alaska—(AP)—The airplane has become a vital factor in the life of northern Alaska because it is the only means of getting from one town to another the same week a start is made.

By dog sled, the fastest competitor of the plane during a northern winter, it takes four to six weeks to go from Nome to Fairbanks the head of the railway which leads "outside." From Point Barrow, northern tip of Alaska, which is frozen-in most of the year, to Fairbanks is an all winter mush over a hazardous trail. Either trip can be made in six hours by air.

The plane is the ambulance, the treasure ship, the produce train, the newsboy, the pullman of the north, all rolled into one.

RAIN CAUSED POSTPONEMENT OF FOX HUNT AT PUTMAN YESTERDAY

PUTNAM, Oct. 15.—General disappointment reigned in fox hunting circles at Nightingale farm on Ragged hill in Pomfret this morning when Thomas J. Bennett, master of the hounds for the Brunswick Foxhound club, announced that due to adverse weather conditions the first heat of the all-age trials had been postponed until Thursday morning. The huntsmen were on hand bright and early this morning, eager to unleash their restless dogs who were finding no difficulty in picking up scent on the trails, which were thoroughly wet down last night from the downpour of the first rain of the season. Although the heavy showers of Tuesday night rendered tracking conditions ideal for fox hunting purposes, the wetness of the shrubbery and foliage made it impossible for judges to observe the activities of the dogs sufficiently close enough to warrant fair posting and scoring of their individual merits.

Following announcement of the postponement of the trials, members of the Brunswick club posed for photographs.

The final heat of the derby stake for dogs under 20 months old was held at the Nightingale farm yesterday, where 28 hounds took part in an exciting morning's run. The heat went off more to form than did the first heat run on Monday, when the inexperienced dogs gave up the chase of fox and devoted their efforts to the putting up of deer.

The event was won by Red Run, the hound owned by John A Nolan of South Easton, Mass. Hounds owned by J. V O'Shea of Babylon, N. Y., took second and third places and Colonel Jack Mansfield's entry took fourth honors.

As the pack cantered through the open country yesterday it overlooked the intersecting scents of deer and remained hot on the trial of fox, until a gray fox had been run down and killed. Later in the day a fox was detected but his execution of deceptive back-tracking tactics and other feats of slyness soon put the dogs to rout and enabled the animal to safely elude its pursuers.

The Nightingale farm of Landlord E. C. Rogers of the Putnam Inn, which is the daily gathering place of the visiting sportsmen, members of the Brunswick Foxhound club, who are holding their 40th annual field trials this week, is alive with thoroughbred species of foxhounds who are being entered in the series of competitive events. While much of the color of a fox hunt is absent in the fact that the trials are being made without the use of horses, the pack is either followed by the hunters, who travel afoot, or those who are content to stand at the starting point and witness the activities of the dogs through field glasses. However, the pageant to the real sportsman is a romantic one and is serving to attract county-wide attention from huntsmen and dog lovers. About 150 are in attendance. Each morning at 6 o'clock the clubmen leave their rooms at the Putnam Inn where they are guests, and travel to the kennels at Ragged hill to prepare their dogs for the events.

CONNECTICUT ROADS

With delegates from 60 countries in the United States in attendance at the road congress, it is a capital idea that has been put in operation of having them make a personal inspection of the highways of this country, with a view to seeing as well as hearing about what is being done in that direction.

This permits not only an opportunity to see what the conditions are where road construction has to be done, but it furnishes a clear idea of the manner in which engineers have solved the problems, and likewise shows how dangerous conditions are handled and how the task of getting traffic around cities is being accomplished.

It is gratifying to know that the survey which has been made by the delegation coming into New England prompted them to declare that at no place, either at home or in this country, have they found a system of highways which surpasses that of Connecticut.

In traveling about the country it is the experience of Connecticut residents that, while there is much excellent road construction, there is reason to be proud of the layouts, the curve eliminations, the grade reductions and the removal of bad highway conditions in our own state.

Connecticut has been building highways for many years. It has put much money into them and it still finds much that needs to be done. While there may be a disposition to feel that certain improvements ought to take precedence over others, those who cover the state find that there is being provided a distribution of road improvement which takes into consideration the various sections of the state and when the next legislature gets a chance to act upon the betterment of the country highways, as it is certain to do when it assembles in January, there is good reason to believe that the needed additional attention will be devoted to those roads.

It is through the study and inspection of road construction work in such manner as the visiting engineers are doing that valuable aids to better road building are obtained. If Connecticut has set a pace and an example, it is getting no more credit than it deserves when the visitors from other countries extol its road work.

SPEEDY JUSTICE

While it is frequently stated that the delay in the administration of justice is one of the reasons for indulgence in lynching so freely, whether that is actually so or not, it is apparent that such cannot be advanced in connection with the disposition of the case of two bank robbers who shot and killed a state policeman near Sturgis, Michigan.

They robbed a bank at Battle Creek in the afternoon, were halted by the state trooper who was shot down by one of them, later caught by other state police and within 12 hours after they had committed their crimes had confessed and received life sentences from the circuit court.

That represents more than the customary speed in most states for disposing of such cases and certainly there could be no complaint on the part of enraged citizens that there had been any needless delay. They were caught red handed, so much so that they recognized the uselessness of trying to avoid conviction, and they were put away in such rapid time as to make it apparent that there is no disposition to coddle criminals in that commonwealth. If others get the impression it is a good place to keep away from it will be in accord with the intentions of the authorities in that part of Michigan.

It is unfortunate that there cannot be a similar speeding up of justice in more cases of that character. If there were greater efforts to impose the proper penalties upon those who are responsible for so much crime and a corresponding decrease in the help and leniency handed out the gangsters and gunmen, there might be that much desired decrease in the crime for which they are responsible

Michigan has taken a proper course in dealing with these two murderers and it will doubtless recognize the desirability of seeing that the protection of the public is properly furnished by making it sure they stay where they have been sent. Such justice has a wholesome effect.

CAMPS FOR THE SCOUTS

In making available a 40-acre tract of land for the establishment of a week-end camp, the Connecticut Light and Power company has recognized and responded to a situation in connection with Scout activities in this vicinity which should have good results.

In connection with Scout work and in maintaining the interest of the boys in it there is need for some such objective. It provides a place where various efforts which are close to the hearts of boys can be set in motion, where certain accomplishments can be made and where they can see and participate in developments that permit them to display their ingenuity and ability. And while these developments are going on they will have the opportunity to participate in the pleasures which inevitably go with them.

There are many chances for the Scouts to put their week-end camp into most attractive shape. Scouting isn't confined solely to the summer time. It goes on throughout the year and with such a camp easy of access at any time in the year the uses to which it can be put are many. It should have the effect of stimulating interest in this work among the boys of this part of the state.

While this camp will meet certain requirements, it is not to be thought that it eliminates the effort to obtain a permanent summer camp. At the present time it is necessary to hire camping facilities from the owners of a camp at Gardner Lake. The situation is excellent, but crowded conditions exist, and there is the desire for possessing a camp for the Norwich troops that will furnish a greater incentive for attendance at such a camp and for the development of the same.

In a region which is so rich in sites for ideal summer camps there ought to be little difficulty in making such a selection, and if it were simply a case of picking out the one that meets all requirements there would be little difficulty ahead. The embarrassment at present lies in the lack of funds The hope is that those interested in the Scouts will rise to the occasion and make it available, and it is not unreasonable to think that with the right thought being given to the matter the hope will be realized.

TIME FOR ACTION

While disasters are in many instances looked upon as needless, it is certain that when they do occur there is furnished one of the most convincing reasons for seeing that there are no repetitions.

No one wants to read about any more steamships colliding off the Massachusetts coast with such a loss of life as occurred when the Fairfax rammed the Pinthis, the latter sinking with all on board and its cargo of oil catching fire and enveloping the Fairfax in flames. No one wants to hear of vessels colliding in the fog under such conditions, even if there is no loss of life and no fire.

That marine disaster disclosed that there was no negligence on the part of the captains of either ship. It showed that, while the vessels were going in opposite directions, they were using the same lane. Though there was a heavy fog, they were trying to travel the same channel, pick up the same buoys and keep out of the way of other ships. It has been done before and it might have been done then, except that both tried to occupy the same space at the same time. It was by that collision that attention was directed to the fact that there is plenty of water so that there can be a separate lane for the south and north-board traffic.

It is the establishment of such an arrangement that offers the means of preventing any more such distressing crashes. It is action that would seem to enlist the support of steamship men in the interest of increased safety, and yet there appears to be a disposition to avoid any delay. Efforts to bring about a conference have experienced a month's delay. Inspector General Dickerson Hoover declares that there will be no further postponement. He believes that action should be taken as quickly as possible and, so far as known, there doesn't appear to be any good reason for doing otherwise.

Safety at sea as well as on land is of the utmost importance. A two-lane arrangement might not insure every ship getting safely to its destination, but there are reasons for believing that it would eliminate the apparent hazards of a single lane.

KEEP THEM MOVING

Notwithstanding the repeated instances where swindlers have separated individuals from their hard-earned and much-needed money, there continue to be those who yield to the weakest sort of propositions and fail to recognize what is taking place until someone brings them to their senses.

When a band of gypsies enters a town it has come to be recognized as a signal for trouble. Invariably it means a lot of complaints because of their acts and practices. Because of it, the policy in certain places is to speed them on their way by refusing them permission to remain, and it is an act for the good of a community when such a course is followed. It is preferable to prevent them from getting into their usual trouble than to try to prosecute them after the acts have been committed, many of which are never revealed.

Just why it is that so much faith is placed in this class of people, in view of their reputation, is hard to understand. A Massachusetts man has strangely parted with $526 at the suggestion of a gypsy woman who told him alarming tales concerning his health and promised to cure him by some of the most fantastic methods.

The gullibility of such persons passeth understanding. Completely hypnotized, they put implicit faith in such strangers, even to parting with their bankrolls and property. They believe everything they say, they do everything they ask, without smelling a rat and, in many instances, friends have the hardest time in convincing them of their folly. And the worst of it is that it happens over and over again without warning being gained from the experience of others. While it might seem unnecessary, the towns and cities which are refusing to let gypsies remain are rendering a wise public service.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Every tree has about three times as many leaves as expected.

There always comes a time when those who think it cannot rain find they are mistaken, and happily so.

If that mid-west boy of 14, who is charged with stealing five autos, were in Connecticut he would probably be telling the police, "I ain't afraid of you and you can't touch me!"

There appears to be no disposition to mistreat Americans in Brazil, but the despatch of the cruiser Pensacola means that protection is going to be at hand if needed.

BIRD BEATEN

Patricia threw the lovely parchment card onto the table. There were pictures on it of birds. That was enough to kill it for her. Would Gerald never learn that she detested birds? They were such ominous harbingers. He certainly had shown some foresight—she'd tell the world not—to pick that card in remembrance of their wedding anniversary. But it was sweet of him to send it through the mail when he could have handed it to her that very morning. That was something.

The rest of the letters were addressed to him, typewritten. Bills, she supposed. Served him right. Nothing good ever came, even in the mail, with birds.

This was a fine way to start the day of days; and she had planned such a wonderful surprise for him, too. Actually, she was going to cook corned beef and cabbage for dinner because he loved it so.

She tried to think. Yes, he had given her a peck for a kiss when he left. Well, anyway, she would bake an anniversary cake; put some candles on it; they would have place cards—all the fixings.

At the corner stationer's she could find no cards, however, that hadn't birds on them. "It's only canaries that bring bad luck," the clerk told her. "Blue birds are for happiness." Such happiness! She had some water colors; she'd paint her own cards and have flowers on them. She took home a bottle of gold ink.

Six o'clock! The table was ready. And the telephone—"Yes? . . . But, darling, I have dinner all ready." There were sob tones in Patricia's voice. "Yes? But—but I have a surprise for you. Well, how soon can you get here, then? O-oh!" Two hours to wait. Hang all the birds!

Patricia sat down and tried to read; she cried. The telephone again. This time it was Dolly Marsden, her neighbor. After a lengthy confab as to what ought to be done and what ought not to be done about this late business, Patricia hung up the receiver. Dolly had been married a long time; perhaps she knew best. Anyway, Patracia'd try Dolly's remedy.

Hurriedly she slipped into her bright blue chiffon, dashed on some powder and lipstick. She would go to the movies, let Gerald wonder a bit. His key in the lock deterred her as she was reaching for her hat.

He set the large bundle he was carrying on the library table, after he had relegated the lamp and other accessories to the floor. Then he embraced his wife. "My, but you're a chipper little blue bird tonight! I congratulate myself," and he kissed her—magnificently.

When Patricia could break away from him she scolded at the top of her voice. Shrilly a vibrant note peeped from the bundle on the table.

"I almost forgot our anniversary present, feasting my eyes on you, sweetheart; come, look. I'm sorry I'm so late, but Carol shipped this marvelous bird up from Florida. At first I was puzzled over its coming to the office, but a wire informed me that I was to get him into a suitable cage before you saw him. Tilden had this one out at his house and said we could have it if I'd drive out after it. Why, Pat, you're crying!"

The bird was singing ever so softly.

"Take it away, take it away before it spoils all our happiness," wailed Patricia. "So, this is what we get for having lent Carol the money to go into the bird business."

Louder and louder came the bird's song.

"Never mind, honey," consoled Gerald. "We'll get rid of the bird tomorrow."

After dinner Patricia handed Gerald his mail. He ripped open the envelopes, one after another. Then of a sudden— "Oh, honey, look! A check for five thousand—from Carol—return with interest on our loan."

"You really mean she made all that money on—on birds? Oh, darling, I'll never, never ever hate birds again. Let's call him Carol, shall we?" Thus twittered Patricia as she carefully took those awful wrappings from the precious little creature's cage.—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

Earache And Its Complications

By L. E. Hetrick, M. D., New York City.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Earache, is not in itself a disease, but merely a prominent symptom of disease. This disease is technically known as an inflammation of the middle ear, and we must keep this in mind when we speak of earache. Associated symptoms are deafness in varying degree, temperature, loss of appetite, etc. This clinical picture usually is associated with, or follows an acute infection of the nose or throat, as for example, a severe cold in the head.

The ear may be divided into three parts: The outer or external ear, or that part which is visible, and the external auditory canal, which carries the sound wave into the drum membrane. On the inner side of the drum membrane there is a cavity. This cavity communicates in the front part with the nose and throat by means of a tube known as the eustachian tube, and posteriorly toward the back of the ear, with a series of boney cavities known as the mastoid process. These three structures, the eustachian tube in front, the cavity of the middle ear proper, situated internally to the drum membrane, and the boney cells which are lodged in that prominence that we can feel behind the ear known as the mastoid process, constitute the middle ear. The middle ear contains three small bones, the hammer, the anvil and the stirrup, which carry the sound waves across the cavity of the middle ear to the internal ear, or the receiving station.

The internal ear which lies still deeper in the temporal bone, contains the organs of hearing and equilibrium; hearing being only a part of the function of the ear.

Practically all infectious diseases are carried from one person to another through the air. And as we breathe in and out through our nose, which is the main organ of respiration outside of the lungs themselves, it is obvious that germs in the air must attack the nose and its membranes first. Such simple diseases (as they are called) as colds, are transmitted in this way. Colds, influenza, pneumonia, scarlet fever, measles, and so on attack these membranes of the upper respiratory tract first.

Probably the most serious complication of inflammation of the middle ear, from the economic standpoint, is chronic deafness. Repeated colds in the head, with or without associated earache, are frequently overlooked. As they do not incapacitate the individual, they are looked upon by many persons as of no importance. Recurring attacks of this sort produce, sooner or later, marked diminution of hearing function, or deafness, and this in turn reduces markedly, the earning capacity of the individual, to say nothing of the severe handicap to his personal enjoyment. The economic loss estimated in dollars amounts to millions annually in the United States alone. So, when we are preventing earache, we are also preventing much mental, physical and financial discomfort.

In closing, let me stress the fact that earache is a symptom of an infection of the middle ear, that it is almost invariably secondary to a nose and throat infection, that its complications may vary from chronic deafness or mild mastoiditis to a meningitis or brain abscess, or both, that attention to the toilet of the nose and throat under the advice of a physician will in many cases, prevent these serious complications. In all earaches, therefore, consult your doctor at once.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—Out in the great open spaces of the northwest they take their politics mighty seriously. Perhaps the climate does it; perhaps nordic racial stocks helped mold regional habits of political thought.

Offhand it's difficult to recall a Scandinavian jokesmith among the numerous and noted literati of that blood.

Also, it might be noted, these northwesterners take to politics mighty young. Witness the brothers LaFollette and Gerald P. Nye, born also in Wisconsin but an immigrant to North Dakota. All are on the sunny side of forty. Presumably they'll be around, vexing republican regulars for a long time to come.

Serious? No

Young Nye distinctly has a sense of humor. It leavens his political seriousness. He hardly takes himself as seriously as he does his political philosophy.

And if Nye did not have the faculty of grinning cheerfully, even when the joke is on himself, what he insists happened to him in his campaign expenditures tilting with Mrs. Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick in Chicago would have a very sour taste.

For recollect that Nye, young as he is, was a lifelong newspaperman before he became a senator. His father was that before him, so it runs in the family. And Nye supposed he had acquired wisdom in the ways of press agents in his newspaper career.

So when it happened that what Mrs. McCormick had to say off the committee stage at Chicago seemed, he thought to get more into headlines than did details of committee delving into her campaign costs, Senator Nye felt certain he detected the odor of clever press agenting. Yet he could grin about it. That's the main thing.

Squeezed In

No doubt Senator Nye would be helping out irregulars like Norris but for his committee job. He certainly owes very little to the old-guardsters.

When he came up to the senate by appointment five years ago, they were all against him on a technicality. He just squeezed in by a vote of 41 to 39. Twenty-six democrats voted for him while 31 republican regulars opposed.

Since then Nye has consolidated his position. He has won two elections, which is a unique amount of campaigning for a senator within so short a time.

And when he looks over the list of republican regulars who voted against seating him that first time, Nye has reason to grin some more.

About half of them are gone or going.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Stranger Slinks Away

When one is humbled in his pride
'Tis natural he should seek to hide.
—Old Mother Nature.

There was great rejoicing in the Green Forest. Yes, indeed, there was great rejoicing in the Green Forest. Lightfoot the Deer was free. He was no longer threatened with a dreadful death. You know, he had been locked by his antlers, head to head, with another deer. They had been fighting. They had been fighting for the affections of pretty Mrs. Lightfoot. They had come together head to head and their wonderful branched antlers had somehow become locked together. They could not separate. They would have died a dreadful death of starvation or thirst but for Farmer Brown's Boy. Having found them thus locked together he had gone home for a saw and with this he had cut the antlers of the strange Deer. This had set them free.

While there was great rejoicing on the part of all the little people of the Green Forest at the sight of Lightfoot once more free, there were two or three who did not share in the rejoicing. One of these was the other Deer, the stranger whose antlers had been cut. At first he did not realize what had happened. He knew that he had all the fight taken out of him. He no longer desired to quarrel with Lightfoot. But he didn't know that he had lost part of his beauty. It wasn't until he saw his reflection in the Laughing Brook as he put his head down to drink that he really understood what had happened. No longer were his antlers a crown of beauty; they had been cut. They were worse than none at all now. A feeling of shame swept over the big Deer. He had come down from the Great Mountain stepping proudly, sometimes rattling those antlers against the trees just for the sake of hearing them. Now they were practically useless. He could no longer fight with them.

He had come down from the Great Mountain, the picture of pride. He was going back slinking. Yes, sir, he was going back slinking. He didn't want to be seen. He didn't want to be seen by anybody. Especially did he want to keep out of sight of any other members of the Deer family. He was heavy of heart. It seemed to him that the losing of part of those antlers was a very dreadful thing. He quite forgot that the time was coming, and was only a few weeks agaw, when he would lose those antlers altogether. He quite forgot that in another year he would have just as fine a set of antlers as he had this year. All he could think of was his present loss.

There were one or two others who did not rejoice with Lightfoot the Deer. One of these was Yowler the Bobcat. There had been no pity in Yowler's heart when he had discovered those two Deer locked together. Instead there had been a fierce rejoicing. Yowler would not have thought of attacking either of those Deer when they were free. Even when they were locked together he did not think of attacking them. He could wait. But he did think of the feast he would have when they had starved to death. So when Farmer Brown's Boy separated them and he saw the dinners he had planned to have scrambling up and going away he was filled with disappointment and anger.

Ol' Mistah Buzzard had a little bit of feeling of disappointment

I suspect that even Ol' Mistah Buzzard had a little bit of feeling of disappointment, for Ol' Mistah Buzzard would have had his share had those two Deer starved to death. Every one else, however, rejoiced, especially those who were fond of Lightfoot the Deer. As for Lightfoot himself, he was for a time rather humble; his arrogance and pride had received a terrible blow, which on the whole was a good thing. It usually is.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Norwich Needs Industrial Expansion

Dear Editor: Sometime ago you had a good editorial on Toledo's industrial expansion. It made us reflect on local conditions. Although the Norwich chamber of commerce gave recently an excellent report, we still believe there is much room for improvement by way of greater activity by the chamber as well as by way of greater co-operation by the city.

We also recall a letter to you by a representative of the newly organized air plane corporation, which we thought was very timely. Fitchburg's latest development also ought to be stimulating.

Gentlemen of the chamber and city fathers, as well as other civic leaders: Let no stone be left unturned to improve local conditions and success will be the result. The little attractive booklet containing the recent Norwich broadcast will also go a long way to boost Norwich if sent out to friends and relatives by the Norwich people.

Dry In Trading Cove

Mr. Editor: Tell the folks its dry down here at Trading Cove. Most of our wells and springs are drying up. Lawns are brown and lifeless, the orchards and other trees are giving up their leaves earlier than usual. The birds and other wild things are having a hard time to get a drink. I have had to give up my semi-annual bath and one of our fair neighbors who keeps a pig says she has to put him to soak so he will hold swill. A friend of mine who is building Fort Henry, says the stones have shrunk so much that he had to buy several wagon loads more than he figured on. Our dairy man says he is having trouble with the hoops falling off of his milk jars, and that his cows are in the same condition. All of us are determined to vote for the first wet ticket that's put in the field. Yes sir! It's sure dry in Trading Cove.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Coiffures That Have Charmed Through the Ages.

From the Grecian queens to movie queens and from Broadway to far off Africa, women of all ages and colors have used ringlets, curls and plaits to heighten their charm. The made-to-order wave is by no means a modern beauty device, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society, for even in ancient times curled hair was considered more attractive than straight and if nature did not provide waves, art supplied them.

"The fair Poppea Cabino, empress of Rome (A. D. 65), and domineering influence over the boy king, Nero, had her hair made into a mass of small ringlets, plastered close to her head by the use of slaves, ungents and often a kind of mud. Observe almost any statuary of women in the Greek style and you will find this stonelike wave predominant—and most notable of all, the familiar Statue of Liberty.

"Crude curling irons, combs that resemble stiff paint brushes, crushed henna leaves and other herbs for dyeing, were the accessories used. Long hairpins and brilliantine in the form of oils and ointments usually completed the coiffure.

"Hair and hairdressing is also 'women's glory' among the uncivilized women of African tribes, who subject themselves to endless suffering to perfect their headdresses. In the Belgian congo a beauty spends several days erranging a coiffure which lasts six months or more Literally hundreds of tight, small plaits resembling the every day dust-mop fall from the center of the head.

"Another tribe starts in infancy to change the shape of the skul by binding it with bands of giraffe hide and hair. These are tightened from year to year as the head grows larger and longer, enabling the women to make an unusual and striking headdress. A sort of wooden framework of circular bands is placed on the back of the head and the long woolly hair is closely woven and bound around the frame. The result is an inverted basket which flares at the edge.

"Most picturesque of all is a black Psyche who combs her frizzes straight up, then parts them in the middle and works them into two horn-shaped projections. The effect is of long, stiff rabbit ears.

"Decorating the hair with feathers, flowers and ribbons has been a custom followed through the centuries. In the French courts such favorites as Isabella of Bavaria, LaDuthe and the Countess of Artois stripped the ostrich and killed the shellfish to supply plumes and pearls for their hair. It took a headful of ringlets and curls to anchor the large plume-bedecked cart-wheel hat worn by Gainsborough's famous 'Duchess of Devonshire.' The celebrated queen of world tragedy, Marie Antoinette of France, wore a curled-all-over hairdress, with ingenue shoulder curls, and for originality the English poet and novelist, Letitia Landon parted her dark tresses and tied them in a bow for a topknot.

"Fearful and wonderful were the coiffures of the gay nineties. They reached the extreme in their profusion of puffs and area of softly waving surface, made possible by concealed 'rats.'

"Women have worn their hair long because they have always been taught to believe that the hair is the 'crowning glory' of their appearance. In the past the bobbing fad was popular at the court of Louis the Fourteenth and the 'Dutch Cut' at the court of James the First. But the bob of today which originated in war-time is hardly a fad. American women declare they retained it as a custom of comfort and convenience and as a symbol of freedom. Masculine taste in Biblical times dictated the assertion 'If a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her.' But twentieth century women defiantly established leaders of the bob with the shapely shingle; the difficult long bob; the free windblown style; and the still freerer boyish bob."

GLIDER STUDENTS LEARN TO FLY BY AID OF POLES

BRADFORD, Pa.—(AP)—Glider students once learned to fly much in the same manner as boys learned to swim at the old swimming hole where some older boy just tossed the student in to sink or swim. But C. L. White, local inventor, has arranged it so the glider students of the future may go up in safety and receive instructions while in the air from an instructor who sits in the shade of a hangar.

The ambitious pupil attains altitude by means of cables attached to four tall poles, instead of being hurled into the air by a shock cord or towed behind an automobile. The lesson completed the student and ship are carefully lowered in safety to the ground.

The device allows the suspension of the full size glider in a position of free movement above the earth so that wind currents may be utilized to enable the student to become accustomed to the free use of the controls without encountering the danger of actual flight.

FRENCH AIR CONGRESS TO DISCUSS SAFETY ALOFT

PARIS—(AP)—An international congress on air safety, convened by the French air ministry, will be held in Paris, December 10 to 23.

The object will be to arrange for the joint study of scientific technical and general questions relating to safety aloft and in the various branches of aviation.

Methods of compiling data for newspaper publication on development of aerial safety will be an important subject.

FUNERALS

Alfred Goyette

At 8:20 o'clock Wednesday morning the funeral of Alfred Goyette was held at Hourigan Bros.' funeral home, with many relatives and friends present. At 9 o'clock there was a requiem mass at St. John's church, Montville, Rev. Thomas Lynch, celebrant. Miss Helen B. Ganey presided at the organ. At the offertory Miss Ganey sang Pie Jesu and as the waiting hymn, Jesus, Lover of My Soul. The burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, Montville, Rev. Father Lynch conducting the committal service. The bearers were John B. Goyette, Adelard Goyette, Zephr Breault, Tennis Breault, the latter of Taftville, and Lendre Goyette of Hartford, all nephews, and Paul Demers of Montville.

Patrick J. Brennan.

With a very large attendance of relatives and friends, the funeral of Patrick J. Brennan, member of Engine Co. No. 6, who died in the line of duty, Monday afternoon, was held Wednesday morning at 8.15 o'clock at his home, No. 12 North Thames street. At 9 o'clock there was a requiem mass at St. Patrick's church, Rev. Terrence Finnegan, celebrant. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ and Mrs. Bernard Coyle assisted in the singing.

Chopin's Funeral March was rendered at the processional and at the offertory Mr. LaFontaine and Mrs. Coyle sang De Profundis. They sang as the waiting hymn, Lead, Kindly Light, and the recessional number was Abide With Me.

The burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery and Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May conducted the committal service. The following members of the fire department were the bearers: Captain Archibald Cochrane, of Engine No. 6; Captain P. J. Tracy, of Engine No. 6; Captain P. J. Tracy, Nolan, William Burns and Julian Gale. There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes. Among those present was a delegation from the fire department, comprising Chief Henry R. Taft, Lieut. Arthur Porter, Thomas Kearney, Forest Lewis, Harry Blackburn, Francis Brennan, Joseph Buckley, John Ulrich, Daniel Falvey, James Clifford, Marvin Hanna, William Confrey, Albert Harris, Stanley Osik, and a delegation, Sergt. Myron O. Morgan, and Officers John Carroll and William Ryan of the police department. Chief Reynolds and Lieut. Barber, of the Willimantic fire department, were also among those present. The delegations from the fire and police department marched in the funeral procession from the church to Burnham square. J. J. Lyons & Co., had charge of the funeral arrangements.

OBITUARY

Henry Giddings

Following an illness of several months, Henry Giddings died Tuesday at his home in Franklin. He was born in Montville in 1892 and was the son of the late Charles H. Giddings and Lucy Palmer Giddings. When he was four years of age his parents moved to Franklin, where he had since lived. He attended the Franklin and Willimantic schools. Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Lucy Giddings, and one sister, Miss Alice Giddings, both of Franklin, by whom he was tenderly cared for during his long illness.

Roger Bartlett Nelson

(Contributed)

The young life of Roger Bartlett Nelson, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Nelson, came to a peaceful end about midnight Oct. 14. He suffered for some time past with an affliction of the throat which required several operations, but under all of these he was most patient and uncomplaining

Roger was one beloved by all of those who knew him, and one whose love went out in genuine affection to all whom he knew. He has entered into that better life where all is peace and joy, and while he will be greatly missed we know that our loss will be his gain.

Marriage License Application

The following application for a marriage license was filed Wednesday at the office of Town Clerk Harold S. Burt:

Walter Urynewicz, 84 Franklin street, weaver, and Miss Esther C. Franklin, 69 Franklin street.

SCOUTS GATHER AROUND CAMPFIRE FOR COURT OF HONOR AWARDS

One hundred and six Boy Scouts and 50 cubs played hosts to over 100 Girl Scouts Wednesday night at the town hall in the opening session of the court of honor. Principal H. A. Tirrell, chairman of the court of honor for the Boy Scouts, presided and welcomed the Girl Scouts and parents. Starting promptly at 8 o'clock the Girl Scouts marched into the large hall first and were quickly followed by the Boy Scouts. Both boys and girls stood at attention and gave the oath of allegiance to the flag of the United States.

Eagle Scout Nick Tarrant led the Scouts in several Scout yells to which the girls responded with a song which was warmly applauded. Mr. Tirrell called the roll by troops. It was found that Troop 1 had 12 Scouts present, Troop 2 had eight Scouts present, Troop 4 had two Scouts present, Troop 5 had 25 Scouts present, Troop 6 had ten Scouts present, Troop 7 had 15 Scouts present, Troop 8 had 11 Scouts present, Troop 9 had seven Scouts present, Troop 12 had three Scouts present, Troop 21 had four Scouts present, Elizabeth street school had six Scouts; there were two Scouts from the old American Legion troop and one Scout from Baltic. Following roll call the Scouts gave the oath and law.

Merit badges were awarded to John Friswell in personal health and pathfinding, Lewis Sussman in pathfinding, Charles Romanowski in life saving, Cecil Weatherbee in camping and hiking, all of Troop 1. Merit badges in carpentry, public health, personal health, first aid, and cooking were awarded to Donald Olsen of Troop 2. Merit badges were awarded to Nicholas Tarrant in marksmanship and first aid to animals to Russell Yerrington, of Troop 5, badges in bird study pathfinding, cooking, firemanship, civics, were awarded to Ed. Lichenstein of Troop 6. Scoutmaster Walter Weidman was presented with merit badges in handicraft, first aid to animals, firemanship, personal health, camping, civics, photography. Art Collins, chairman of the Scoutmaster Round Table, was awarded badges in automobiling, music, handicraft, carpentry, surveying, camping, first aid, electricity, photography and civics and a forest guide badge. Deputy Scout Commissioner William Wyman was awarded badges in first aid, life saving and swimming. The rank of Star Scout signifying the winning of five merit badges was awarded to Edward Jordan and Donald Olsen of Troop 2. Charters were presented to Troop 8 through Committeeman Lichenstein and to Baltic troop through Gordon Johnson. Jean Keiffer led the boys and girls in songs.

Rev. P. A. Kilmister gave the address of the evening. With the relation of many incidents of boys and girls he had known, with a great deal of humor and a tone of seriousness throughout, Mr. Kilmister held his audience and gave a splendid address. He stressed the fact that we all start with nothing and can for the most part make or break our lives. He emphasized knowing oneself and the meaning of patriotism to one's country and to the world.

Troop 7 gave the camp famous stunt of the automobile and the court closed with the scoutmaster benediction, "May the great Scoutmaster of all good Scouts be with us until we meet again."

The setting for the meeting was picturesque, a campfire having been set in the middle with the benches grouped in semi-circle around it. During the singing only the campfire light burned and the girls and boys caught the atmosphere and sung responsively.

Assisting Mr. Tirrell in the presentation of awards were: C. B. Gilbert, Charles Colt, Jean Keiffer, and Mr. Sellman. Miss Marion L. Bishop was responsible for conveying the invitation to the Girl Scouts and having it accepted so heartily. Practically all the Girl Scouts wore uniforms and were accompanied by their leaders. They made a splendid showing. Many parents were present.

STATE LEASES ON 4,197 ACRES OF HUNTING LAND

An official report from the Hartford office of John W. Titcomb, superintendent of the state board of fisheries and game, indicated that 4,197 acres of woodland has been leased in New London county for a period of four years to be used for public hunting grounds.

The figures showed that leases had been closed on 3,212 acres and that papers for the leasing of 905 more acres were to be delivered Wednesday.

The state is leasing the land at the rate of 10 cents an acre for one year or 40 cents an acre for the four-year term. At this rate, the land already under lease will cost the state $1,678.80 for the four years.

All payments on land leases for this project are made in a lump sum covering the whole four years.

The state board has not set a definite limit on the amount of land that may be leased in this county, but indications are that the tracts will total more than 6,000 acres and will probably reach 8,000 acres.

FINES ARE IMPOSED IN BILL COLLECTORS' CASES

On their pleas of guilty to charges of embezzlement, when presented in the city court Wednesday morning, Fred Dulenschneider, 23, and Richard Brownell, 25, both of South Manchester, were each fined $50 and costs, and given suspended jail sentences of six months. They were the "bad bill" collectors who collected a number of accounts for local merchants and, according to the charges, embezzled the money they collected. Since their apprehension early in August the pair have made restitution, and the disposition of their cases had been continued from time to time while they were making restitution.

There were five separate counts against each of the men, but they were fined on only one count, the other counts being nolled. The Bogue Auto Co., it is understood, brought the original charge against the men.

CARDS AND DANCING FOR K. OF C. LADIES' NIGHT

White Cross council, No. 13, K. of C., held a delightful ladies night programme Wednesday evening at the K. of C home on Broadway. There were 25 tables of cards in play, and the prizes were won as follows:

The standing to date: Lewis 15,085; J. Jordan, 14,770; Schuler 13,700; Peckham, 13,695; Parker 13,205; A. Jordan 12,985; Underwood 12,810; McNaught 12,735; Pettis 12,505; Bailey 11,925; Ellsworth 11,120; Boynton 11,320.

CANCER SPECIALIST DIES IN NORTH STONINGTON

A. Stanley Maine, 82, widely known through his work in treatment of cancer, died Wednesday morning at his home in North Stonington from illness incident to advanced years.

He was not a registered physician, but had built up an extensive practice in the treatment of cancer.

A native of Salem, he was born Sept. 3, 1848, the son of Sidney O. Maine and Freelove Edwards Maine. Most of his life had been spent as a resident of North Stonington.

The deceased is survived by his sister, Mrs. John M. Merriss of Westerly, a niece and two nephews.

Waterford Republicans Will Rally

Lieut.-Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, the republican party nominee for governor, is to be the speaker at a republican rally in Waterford on Friday evening. The republicans of that town are anticipating a large attendance at the rally and a winning vote for the party ticket.

NORWICH FARM PRODUCTS CHIEFLY DAIRY, POULTRY

Seventy-five per cent of the products of the Norwich farming area are in poultry and dairy lines, according to Professor I. J. Davis of Connecticut Agricultural college, who was the speaker Wednesday at the luncheon meeting of the Norwich Rotary club at the Wauregan hotel. Professor Davis spoke upon The Possibilities and Resources of Norwich and Surrounding Area, which he said included about 1,800 farms, each of which spent annually nearly $1,000 for goods, clothing, food, and other articles. He defined this area as consisting of Norwich, Franklin, Lisbon, Griswold, Preston, Bozrah, Montville, half of Lebanon, half of Colchester, half of Ledyard. In this there are 137,000 acres, of which 31,000 acres are used for crops, 46,000 acres are forest lands and 60,000 acres are used for pasturing or are waste.

President H. D. Larrabee conducted the business meeting and the song leaders were Bert Gager and Goffe Briggs.

The club voted cooperation with the Lions in putting over the "Confidence Week" programme sponsored all over the country by the Lions. The Rotary committee named for this is Albert L. Lillibridge, Frank G. Aubrey and Charles B. Gilbert.

The subject of "Confidence Week" was presented before the meeting by Louis M. Crandall, president of the Norwich Lions' club, who read the following letters:

STATE OF MINNESOTA

Mr. H. A. Hill,
Lions International,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mr. Hill:

Let me commend the work which the International Association is doing in strengthening the morale of the people during these trying times.

Although there are deep-seated and world-wide economic conditions which are basically responsible for the present depression, nevertheless there can be no doubt that it is aggravated by an unsound psychology.

Anything that will restore confidence will help.

It would be well if the American people could be induced to assume an intelligent rather than an emotional attitude toward their economic problems.

A little over a year ago, emotional optimism induced them to buy recklessly, in utter disregard of economic facts.

This year emotional pessimism is causing them to retrench just as recklessly. There is a happy medium. The old Roman philosopher was right: "You walk most safely in the middle."

I can see how service and fraternal clubs, religious and educational associations and others of similar kind can do a great service to the people by upholding the idea of the golden mean.

Very truly yours,
THEODORE CHRISTIANSON.

Chicago, Oct. 3, 1930.

Dear Lion President:

The International Association of Lions clubs' "Business Confidence Week" has already attracted world-wide publicity, and articles have been carried in practically all of the big dailies in our large cities.

You would probably be surprised to know that in addition to this practically all the wholesale houses have notified their publicity departments and their salesmen to give as much publicity as possible to this proposition.

We just learned since starting this letter that the National Chain Store association has asked the chain stores to also cooperate in making this a real international event, and we know that the local merchants in all individual stores will assist in every way possible in the rejuvenation of business.

We have letters from Forbes, Arthur Brisbane, the editors of the Wall Street Journal and the Chicago Journal of Commerce, and hundreds of letters from other people requesting additional information; and it is expected that as a result of this week, between one and two hundred millions of dollars will be spent, and that business confidence will be absolutely restored.

At the present time we are trying to make arrangements with the president of the United States to broadcast along with others, and we really feel that this will be an outstanding event.

SECRETARY.
Lions International.

GAVE AUTOMOBILE HEARINGS FOR SUSPENDED DRIVERS

Before Inspector Philip Devnew of the state motor vehicle department there were 11 hearings here Tuesday in the common pleas court room for drivers who had had their licenses suspended.

In cases in which the suspensions had been for wet driving the following action was taken:

Elwin L. Wilkinson, 9 South street, Stonington, license return refused; Roy F. Shippee, 147 Church street, Putnam, decision reserved; Simon Green, 24 Lincoln street, Putnam, license not returned; George Woodworth, 9 Anthony street, Jewett City, and Edward Demers, 14 Marshall street, Putnam, reinstated.

Other cases were disposed of as follows:

Archie Bourgeois, of 39 Middle street, Putnam, was ordered to furnish proof of financial responsibility. He was summoned with Harry E. Wells, of Putnam, following an accident.

Daniel Katz, R. F. D. No. 1, Jewett City, was allowed to keep his license. He was warned in connection with having improper markers.

Edmund Lyon, of 20 L'Homme street, Danielson, was ordered to secure Class C insurance before his license would be returned to him. Lyon lost his license for evading responsibility.

Decision was reserved in the cases of Lawrence G. Drescher, of Hill street, Baltic, and Henry Rothstein, of North Franklin, both of whom were summoned jointly to determine who shall furnish proof of financial responsibility.

12,303 MARRIAGES IN CONNECTICUT IN YEAR

The perilous closeness in the ratio between the number of marriages and divorces is by no means as acute in Connecticut as in the country as a whole, analysis of figures made public Wednesday by the department of commerce reveals. For every divorce decree handed down in Connecticut during 1929, 10.1 marriages were performed, in contrast with the 6.1 to 1 ratio reported for the nation as a unit, the figures show.

Marriages in the state last year numbered 12,303, an increase of 5.6 per cent, over the 11,650 marriages effected during the previous year, and divorces meanwhile decreased from 1,276 in 1928 to 1,230 last year, a fall of 4.4 per cent. In the United States marriages increased 4.2 per cent, and divorces rose 2.8 per cent.

Neither marriage nor divorce takes place as frequently among the Connecticut population as in the nation at large. In the state last year there were only 7.7 marriages and 0.77 divorces per 1,000 of the population, as compared with 10.1 marriages and 1.66 divorces for every 1,000 residents of the country.

The ratio of marriages to divorces was greater in Connecticut last year than in the other New England states as well as all other states in the Union except New York, Georgia, Maryland, and North Carolina.

WILL BE SPEAKER FOR CONGREGATIONAL WOMEN

Dr. Valeria H. Parker, who is a nationally known figure, is to be one of the principal speakers today (Thursday) at the morning meeting of the eastern district of the Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut. During the World war Dr. Parker was on the state council of national defense, having particular charge of the police women representing the various cities of the state.

The programme for the morning and afternoon sessions at the United Congregational church will be as follows:

Morning session, 10:30 o'clock — Mrs. Carl Holdridge presiding. Hymn, Holy, Holy, Holy. Invocation, Miss Pullen. Doxology. Report of the secretary, Mrs. William G. Park. "Our Work in the District," Mrs. Allen Latham, vice chairman eastern district; "One Nation Indivisible," Mrs. Lawrence Howard, member of the administrative committee of the A. M. A. Hymn, America the Beautiful. "The Church and Social Hygiene," Dr. Valeria Parker, the American Social Hygiene association. Hymn, Lead On O King Eternal.

12:30—Luncheon.

Afternoon session, 2 o'clock—Hymn, Spirit of God. "The Individual's Part in Worship," Dr. Theodore Shipherd. "The Woman and Her Church," Miss Amy Welcher, president of the council. Chorus, Lift Up Your Heads O Ye Gates, Frank Lynes, Girls' choir of the United church. Offering. "India, A Land of Contrasts," Miss Gertrude Avery, Bombay, India, mission. Prayer and benediction, Rev. Alexander Abbott.

THREE NORWICH CASES ON SUPREME COURT DOCKET

Three Norwich cases are on the list of four which will comprise the docket for the supreme court when it meets in this city next Tuesday. It is expected all the business of the court can be concluded in one day.

The three Norwich appeals are Demetroi Chinigo and others against Samuel Ehrenberg, defendant's appeal from the court of common pleas; John J. Somers against William A. Somers, of this city, plaintiff's appeal from the superior court, and the Texas Co., against Jacob R. Slosberg and others of this city, defendant's appeal from the court of common pleas.

The fourth case on the docket is one of great interest in New London, being the case of the city of New London against the Pequot Point Beach Co., and others, which was appealed by the city of New London from a decision of the superior court.

JUDGE BURROWS SENDS RESIGNATION TO PRESIDENT

Judge Warren B. Burrows forwarded his formal resignation from the United States district court of Connecticut to President Herbert Hoover on Wednesday. Accompanying his letter to the president was another addressed to Attorney-General William D. Mitchell at Washington asking Mr. Mitchell to make the resignation become effective October 20. Judge Burrows is a candidate for attorney-general on the state republican ticket.

The name of John A. Danaher, for the past nine years assistant United States district attorney, is being prominently mentioned as his probable successor. Others who have been regarded as likely candidates for the position are Henry H. Hunt of Glastonbury, Judge Samuel C. Shaw of Redding, Lucius F. Robinson, Jr., of Hartford, and Carroll C. Hincks of Waterbury.

CONN. AGRICULTURALISTS PRODUCING MORE GOODS

Connecticut, with its loss of 22.8 per cent, in the number of farms during the past ten years, need not worry over the situation, according to Sidney A. Edwards, director of the bureau of markets of the state department of agriculture. "In spite of the reported decrease in the number of farms in the state, Connecticut agriculturists are producing more goods at the present time than they did when farms were more numerous," said Mr. Edwards.

According to a report of the census bureau, Connecticut has 17,481 farms. Ten years ago the bureau reported 22,659. Real estate developments, expansion of municipal water works and the increased development of parks and recreational centers by both state and private interests are responsible in a great measure for the decreased number of farms. There is also a general tendency, according to Mr. Edwards, for farmers to shift from marginal land to more fertile land where more intensive agriculture is practiced and fewer acres required.

ENDS DIGESTIVE ILLS QUICK AND GAINS 10 POUNDS

Food does not nourish when it is not properly digested. That's why people who suffer from gas on stomach and bowels, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, etc., due to indigestion, often find themselves underweight, weak, with little energy and vitality.

All this is quickly changed when you start using the simple discovery known as Pape's Diapepsin. When people experience for themselves the amazing results of using these tasty little tablets, they invariably feel compelled to tell others.

Mrs. Amber Ross, 140 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn, N.Y., says: "I suffered for many months with indigestion, nervousness and headaches, trying all the time to get relief by dieting and medicines.

"Then I learned about Pape's Diapepsin and began on it. It has been a wonderful help to me. I eat onions now without bad after-effects. How they used to make me suffer!

"Friends that I have told about Diapepsin have been helped in the same way. I have gained ten pounds since starting on it."

All druggists sell it; or if you wish to try it before buying, write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va., for a trial box, FREE.

REFORMATORY FUGITIVES CAUGHT IN WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 15.—Manuel Alvis, 16, Joseph Lupo, 17, and Ernest Bernier, 17, from Providence, R. I., escaped from a reformatory near Cranston last Saturday evening and have been sleeping in the open overnight ever since. They were taken into custody tonight by Capt. Frank W. McLean and Policeman Roderick Lariviere, charged with vagrancy.

The arrests were made near the Willimantic river where the boys were in hiding. They will be taken back to the reformatory tomorrow morning.

Coal Dealer Bankruptcy

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed Tuesday in New Haven with the clerk of the United States district court by John O. Peckham, a coal dealer of this city. Assets are listed at $17,722 and liabilities $21,288.81. Three New Haven creditors are named.

MISS HICKS PLAYS SENSATIONAL GOLF TO DEFEAT MISS LEE, 8 AND 7

(By Russel J. Newland, Associated Sports Writer)

LOS ANGELES COUNTRY CLUB, Los Angeles, Oct. 15—(AP)—Matching the rolling fairways and fast greens of this course with one of the most brilliant rounds ever stroked in feminine competition, Miss Helen Hicks of Inwood, N. Y., claimed the spotlight in the second round of the women's amateur golf championship today. The round saw the elimination of two former title holders.

The 19-year-old star whose advance has been sensational, defeated Miss Barbara Lee of Oakland, 8 and 7 and, in doing so, toured the eleven holes necessary to win six under par. She posted a 36, three under women's par and one under standard figures for men, on the first nine.

Six up at the turn, she won the tenth with a birdie four and annexed a sparkling eagle two on the eleventh. The last hole finish furnished a fitting climax for the large gallery that thrilled to her long shots and keen putting from the first tee. As nonchalantly as though on a practice round, she stepped up to the tee and whaled the ball 222 yards, to within three feet of the pin. Her rival's birdie three was good but not good enough.

The defending champion, Glenna Collett, was off her game, but not enough to affect her status as a contender. She defeated Miss Helen Lawson of Los Angeles, 5 and 3, after having held even on the first nine. Each made the turn in 43. The New York girl, seeking her fifth national title, stepped out to win the tenth with a birdie four and sent an eagle two whistling into the cup to win the eleventh. She had no trouble from then on.

Two former champions, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, and Miss Marion Hollins of Santa Cruz, bowed to youthful opponents.

Mrs. Hurd was defeated by Miss Maureen Orcutt of Haworth, N. J., 2 and 1. When Mrs. Hurd, then Dorothy Campbell, won her first title twenty-one years ago, Miss Orcutt was two years old. Miss Orcutt was four up at the turn, shooting a 40 to Mrs. Hurd's. She went five up by winning the tenth, but Mrs. Hurd came back strong to capture three holes.

Miss Hollins, champion in 1921, lost to Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, 3 and 2. The medalist, Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, disposed of Mrs. Brent Potter of San Jose, Cal., 4 and 3.

Taking the lead at the second hole, Mrs. Leona Pressler of San Gabriel, Cal., runner-up in the national last year, was never pressed and easily removed Miss Hermione Wocker of Burlingame, Cal., five and four.

Mrs. Roy Green of Culver City, Cal., defeated Mrs. Gregg Lifur of Los Angeles, former Californian champion, 6 and 4.

The eighth match saw Miss Peggy Wattles of Buffalo, N. Y., beat out Mrs. Harley Higbee of Detroit, 3 and 2.

Miss Hicks will oppose Mrs. Pressler in quarter finals tomorrow, with the former favored on the strength of her play to date. Another outstanding match will pit Mrs. Hill against Miss Orcutt. The defending champion, Miss Collett, is not expected to find strong opposition in Miss Wattles, although the latter's game today was superior.

OVER EMPHASIS WILL KILL FOOTBALL GAME SAYS ROPER

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 15—(AP)—In the opinion of Bill Roper, Princeton's football coach, intercollegiate football should return to the status of a "boys' game played by boys in a boy's way."

"Over emphasis will kill the game in a few years," Roper said today, in an address to sports writers of New York and Philadelphia. Three ways in which the Tiger mentor believes football is being over emphasized are spring practices, night games and publicity for individual stars.

Roper pointed out that the decline in the interest in college baseball in recent years may be traced to spring football practice. "Football should be a virile game played in the fall and not an all year round business," he said.

"Night football is brutal and outrageous and is likely to result in serious permanent injuries to the players," Roper said. "It puts them under serious eye strain and revolutionizes their whole college program. It necessitates practice at night and this interferes with the players' meals and with their sleep at night."

The Princeton coach attacked the amount of publicity which is given individual stars, saying that it was greater than that accorded to Mussolini or to U. S. senators. "The result is to give the players a dwarfed perspective which handicaps them all through life."

ROCKNE PREDICTS TARTAR WIN BY 9 TOUCHDOWNS

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 15—(AP)—After watching his Notre Dame regulars vainly attempt to stop Carnegie Tech plays in scrimmage today, Knute Rockne tossed up his hands in despair and predicted the Tartars would win by "eight or nine touchdowns."

Rockne's original prediction was a Tartar victory by "two or three touchdowns.

Against the Tartar plays, the Notre Dame regulars looked pitifully weak today. Jack Chevigny, assistant Notre Dame coach who watched Carnegie Tech defeated Georgia Tech last week, impersonated Harry McCurdy, Tartar quarterback, and tossed numerous passes over the Irish line for substantial gains as Rockne shouted and groaned.

Fullback Larry Mullins' leg is slow in healing and he may not get into the game after all Saturday but "Gallopin Joe" Savoldi, hero of the Navy game, will be back there anyway.

MAY TRANSFER FOOTBALL GAME TO SOLDIERS FIELD

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—(AP)—The Notre Dame - Northwestern football game of November 22, may be transferred from Dyche stadium in Evanston to Soldiers field, and the bulk of proceeds turned over to the Chicago charities.

Officials in charge of Soldiers field, the largest football stadium in the world, today said they would give free rent for the game while President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern said he approved the transfer.

Notre Dame officials are expected to approve the transfer.

SITUATION IN "BIG SIX" FOOTBALL TOPSY-TURVY

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—The football season still is young but a nationwide checkup today revealed that already some of the sectional champions of 1929 have gone down to defeat while ambitious rivals press forward to take their place in the van.

Nowhere is the situation more topsy-turvy than in the "Big Six" where Nebraska, the champion of 1928 and 1929, was soundly beaten by Oklahoma last week and Missouri, the runner-up last season, has bowed to both Colorado university and St. Louis outside the conference.

Nebraska will attempt to retrieve some of its lost prestige this Saturday in a game with Iowa State, tailender of last year, while Kansas and the Kansas Aggies clash in a game that may stamp one or the other a favorite in the title race.

Oklahoma A. & M. coached by Lynn Waldorf, former Syracuse tackle, will have to be reckoned with in the championship race in the regular Missouri Valley conference.

In the far west the sensational victories of Washington State over California and last season's champions, Southern California, and the tie game played by Stanford with Minnesota have thrown consternation into the ranks of the California "Big Three".

Washington State, which finished only fifth last year, now has an excellent chance to beat out the highly-rated California combinations as well as its northern rivals and take the title home to Pullman.

Purdue, the Big Ten titleholder, met defeat in its first conference game at the hands of Michigan's aroused team last Saturday. Illinois, runner-up last year, and Northwestern, which tied for third, come to grips this Saturday in one of the most important games of the Big Ten race.

In the south, Tulane, winner of the Southern Conference honors last year, has bowed to Northwestern outside the conference. Tennessee, runner up, is riddled with injuries and expects to be hard pressed by Alabama this Saturday. Georgia, conqueror of Yale, and Vanderbilt, which overwhelmed Minnesota, are rated among the best, with Georgia clashing Saturday in a "make-or-break" game with North Carolina, another contender.

Chattanooga, defending its Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association supremacy, has been beaten twice by 7-6 margins at the hands of Presbyterian and Centre.

In other sections the leaders of last year have fared better.

Texas Christian, although tied by Simmons, smothered Arkansas last week in its conference opener and now will tackle Texas A. & M., while Southern Methodist, runner-up last year, opposes Baylor.

Utah university, in its first game in defense of the Rocky Mountain conference crown, swamped Wyoming.

In the east the leading teams of last year were Pittsburgh and Colgate and both have been highly impressive to date, Pitt gets its big test this week at the hands of Syracuse as two other strong contenders for eastern honors clash in the Harvard-Army game and such teams as Cornell, Dartmouth and Brown take on their first major antagonists.

Among the independents throughout the country Notre Dame again stands out by virtue of two brilliant victories but its path this week crosses that of Carnegie Tech, one of the mighty teams of the east. Detroit, Marquette and St. Mary's of California are other "teams-at-large" which rank with the leaders.

MAYS AND PILKINGTON IN STAR BOUT AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 15—With a brisk advance sale of tickets reported, boxing fans in this section have their eyes turned towards the Thames arena where on Friday, Oct. 17, at 8:30, a five-bout star boxing card, arranged by Matchmaker Al Weill will be offered for public approval.

The star bout of 10 rounds at 136 pounds between Bobby Mays, New London's home pride, and "Irish" Jackie Pilkington, Meriden born but lately fighting in and around New York, has all the earmarks of a fast, furious swatfest.

Mays and Pilkington were hooked up for a match on boat race night two years ago but the match was never consummated because of the fact that the chairs for the customers did not arrive in time.

Pilkington says that he has been waiting since then for a crack at the redoubtable Mays and that this time he's getting Bobby inside a ring where the seats are stable, hinting that the fans will see him give the local pride a shellacking.

Mays says that he expects to win also, and with the both of them holding the same view one of them is bound to be wrong, thus their argument in the ring should provide the well-known fireworks.

In the semi-final of 8 rounds at 154 pounds, Joe Russo, Westerly, meets Johnny Woods, New York slugger who holds a kayo verdict over his opponent. There are two other six rounders at 138 and 118 pounds, respectively, in which Johnny Mack, Seminole Indian, clashes with Sid Taylor, Coast Guard boxing instructor; and Artie Weinberg, New York, tangles with Young Lizzio, Westerly clouter.

In a four-round opener at 137, the sensational Carman Knapp, New Haven, meets Jimmy Kearns, formerly of Nebraska and now of New London, and according to the pre-fight dope, this will be some battle.

LOTT IN SEMI-FINALS OF GREENBRIAR TENNIS TOURNEY

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 15—(AP)—George M. Lott, Jr., Chicago, member of the Davis cup team, entered the semi-final round of the Greenbriar autumn tennis tourney today. He advanced by defeating Alexander Kelles, Baltimore, 6-1, 6-3, after having disposed of Edward Brooke, Jr., Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-1. Kelles earned the right to meet Lott by defeating Ehret Howell, Philadelphia, 6-3, 7-5.

John Millen, New York, defeated Lewis Morrow, Memphis, 6-2, and then defaulted in a quarter finals match. F. C. Baggs, New York, defeated Don Johnson, Cleveland 6-0, 6-1, and P. B. Hawk, New York, beat S. H. Voshell, New York, 6-2, 8-6.

Don Johnson won by default from Emmet Pare, Dayton, Ohio, in the round before the quarter finals.

The way of the wise guy is no bed of roses.

There's such a thing as being so wise and efficient that it acts like a boomerang. Just comes back and smacks you under the ear, as it were.

I saw this graphically demonstrated yesterday, shortly after an automobile accident. It seems that two cars collided on the road shortly above Plainfield. One car had been following the other when the leading car swung to the left of the road as if to go into a drive way and then turned back directly into the path of the rear car. A crash was the result.

The driver of the offending car hopped out of his machine with fire in his eye. Something was going to be done and somebody was going to pay. He accused the driver of the rear machine of being in the wrong. Then, without saying a word about adjustment of damage, he ran into a nearby house and phoned for the state police. When asked for his license he refused to show it only to the driver of the machine that hit him, mantaining that he was right and that he was going to get paid for his machine. The other driver told him that the differences could be settled without bringing in the police but he was insistent.

The state officer arrived and after asking a few questions, asked the driver of the first machine if he put out his hand. When he replied that he didn't the officer summoned him to court.

Moral: Don't bring your own rope to your hanging.

UT MAJEUR ADDS ANOTHER VICTORY TO LONG LIST

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Aga Khan, who heads the list of winning owners this season, added another triumph to his long list today as Ut Majeur won the classic Cesarewitch stakes in a canter from a field of 28 of the best thoroughbreds the English turf could muster.

With the king and queen, the Duke of Gloucester and Prince George looking on from the royal box, the Aga Khan's great runner sped over the two and a quarter miles in the fast time of three minutes, 54 1-5 seconds. Back of the fast stepping Ut Majeur trailed J. B. Joel's Friendship in second place with Old Orkney from J. J. Murphy's stable third.

The Cesarewitch, which carried a purse of $5,000 and extras to the winner, has ranked as the leading autumn feature of the English turf since 1839. Today many of the horses that battled for the coveted award last year again started, West Wicklow, the 1929 winner, being the only scratch.

Beary, who had the mount on Ut Majeur, got the Aga Khan star away fast but held him back of the pace setters until the home stretch. He then sent him up even with Friendship and into a lead that never was threatened. At the finish of the gruelling test, Ut Majeur still appeared fresh while the remainder of the field were a tired bunch of thoroughbreds.

McLENNAN WILL NOT START AGAINST BROWN SATURDAY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Coach Mal Stevens was forced to experiment with some new backfield combinations today, when it was announced that McLennan, starting quarterback on Yale's varsity football team, will not be able to start against Brown next Saturday and may be kept out of the game entirely.

Lindenberg, regular left end, was also declared unable to start against Brown today. Both he and McLennan suffered twisted ankles in the Georgia game.

Muhlfeld, who was also injured in last Saturday's game, returned today and was assigned to his regular berth as fullback on Albie Booth's quartet of ball carriers which today included Dunn at right halfback with Austen and Beane alternating at left halfback.

The make-up of the starting backfield against Brown tonight was in doubt. Heim is expected to replace McLennan, while Taylor and Crowley are regarded as probable choices for two of the three remaining posts. Stevens has given no indication as to who the fourth man in the backfield will be.

Madden has been working out at left end in the absence of Lindenberg, while Hans Flygare, an end, was promoted to the blue squad today.

A long dummy scrimmage and work in fundamentals kept the varsity squad busy today.

Y SENIORS TO PLAY IN STATE BASKETBALL LEAGUE

The Y Seniors will again represent Norwich in the state Y basketball league this season, according to an announcement Wednesday evening by Physical Director J. Howard Damarest of the Y and the team's coach. This will be the third year in the circuit for the locals.

The Seniors will be minus three of their 1929-30 mainstays, namely, Aubrey Brown, Roland Harris and Enoch Eccleston, and also maybe Les Pingree, so that Coach Demarest will have to do much rebuilding. Brown and Harris have moved away, Brown being in Toledo, Ohio, and Harris in Philadelphia, while Eccleston, who broke his leg playing baseball this summer, is not expected to touch the strenuous court game the coming season.

It is expected that the club will be recruited mainly from younger talent and Coach Demarest is placing much hope on a few recent Academy players.

NEED OF NEW BALL DIAMOND STRESSED AT BANQUET OF ELKS JUNIOR TEAM

"The Need of a New Baseball Diamond in Norwich" was the keynote of the addresses at the banquet of the Elks Junior baseball club held last night at Thames tavern at Gales Ferry. The banquet was given to the members of the junior team by the Norwich lodge of Elks, who sponsored the team during the past junior twilight season, in appreciation of the ideal sportsmanship displayed by the youngsters who wore the Elk uniform.

Covers were laid for twenty at an attractively decorated table in the banquet hall of the tavern. The following menu was served:

Fruit Cup
Olives   Celery
Chicken Soup
Roast Turkey
Giblet Dressing   Mashed Potatoes
Green Peas   Cranberry Sauce
Tomato Salad
Ice Cream
Assorted Wafers   Coffee

Jackie Wilson, chairman of the sports committee, presided as toastmaster and made the opening address of the evening speaking of the pleasure it had given him to be associated with the boys in their drive for the city junior honors. He said that although they did not finish in first place, they had played the game and shown themselves to have the right spirit of sportsmanship. He expressed the hope that the same team that represented the Elks this season will again do so next season.

Mr. Wilson then called on Lefty Dugas, outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Mr. Dugas spoke a word of encouragement to the young ball players saying that if they put their hearts in the game and played it for all they were worth they would be sure to make the grade. He said that a youngster never knew when his ability would attract attention of some big league scout and cited his own career as an example. He admonished the boys about clean living and abstinence from liquor which he said had stopped many a big league career when it was just started. In conclusion he said that right here in Norwich there were just as good ball players as anywhere in the world and that if the youngsters would apply themselves to the game they would go far.

Henry G. Bamber, who was actively associated with Mr. Wilson in the piloting of the team, complimented the boys on their showing in the league. Mr. Bamber in his talk advocated the raising of the age limit in the junior league so that those boys who had reached the age of 18 but were not quite experienced enough for the senior twilight league might have another year or two in the junior loop.

The congratulations of the Elks lodge were conveyed to the members of the team by Exalted Ruler James P. Egan who spoke of the pleasure it gave the lodge to sponsor a team of such a calibre as this one. He also expressed the hope that the same boys would be back on the diamond next summer and that they would finish the league at the top. He paid tribute to the pitching of Fuller and LaVarge and the catching of Young Chip Dugas, as well as the teamwork of the club.

Myles E. Standish, sports editor of The Bulletin, spoke briefly of the success of the team, the value of sportsmanship and the need of playing the game for all it is worth. He cited the meteoric career of Lefty Dugas as an example of what a boy could do, a boy whose playing began to attract attention in the grammar school league several years ago and culminates in a berth on a major league club. Mr. Standish complimented the Elks on their work in promoting baseball among the younger players of the city and the encouraging of good sportsmanship.

Daniel Driscoll, a member of the sports committee of the Elks, sounded the keynote of the evening when he advocated a better baseball diamond in the city for the junior league. He said that while the Duwell field was better than no field at all it did not tend to promote such good baseball. He suggested that a movement be started in the interests of securing a new field before the opening of the 1931 junior league. He spoke of the work of the recreation commission in taking over the junior league.

Ernest S. Bean, another member of the committee, also spoke on the need of a new field for the junior loop. He in turn made the suggestion that various organizations get together in an endeavor to promote a new diamond for the youngsters. He also suggested that the recreation commission appoint a special committee to look after the affairs of the junior league next season so that both the junior and senior loops would get equal attention.

John P. Shea, James P. Hayes and C. V. Pendleton also spoke along the same lines, Mr. Hayes and Mr. Pendleton recalling the baseball games of many years ago.

Speaking for the Elks team, Capt. Cliff Hamil, in a very neat way, expressed the appreciation of the club for the interest shown by the lodge. He said that the Elks team was the best equipped team in the league and that the boys were exceptionally pleased with the way they had been treated by the Elks. In conclusion he said that he hoped his team could bring the pennant to the Elks next season.

Entertainment of the evening besides the speaking included several French songs by Lefty Dugas, dancing by Chip Dugas, Jr., and Jackie Wilson, and a duet by the Dugas boys. Scotch songs were rendered by Jackie Wilson.

Those present were the following members of the team: Cliff Hamil, Capt., Bill Fuller, Chippy Dugas, Johnny Sullivan, Tony Ulewicz, Charlie LaVarge, Carl Fritz, L. Guiotte, James Houghton, Raymond Gallagher and Johnny Wilson, Jr., mascot of the club. The members of the sports committee in attendance were: John E. Wilson, chairman; John P. Shea, Daniel Driscoll, Henry G. Bamber, Ernest S. Bean, C. V. Pendleton and Exalted Ruler James P. Egan. Guests of the team were Lefty Dugas and M. E. Standish.

BURKE AND BARRON TIED FOR MEDAL IN MET. P. G. A.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 15—(AP)—Billy Burke of Greenwich, Conn., and Hermon Barron of Portchester were tied for the medal in the thirty-six hole qualifying round of the Metropolitan P. G. A. championship played today over the links of the Gedney Farms Country club, the former with rounds of 76-71 for a total of 147, while the latter was 72-75 for 147.

Burke's afternoon round was best scoring one of the day going out in 36 even par and back in 35, one under par for a 71, while Barron's morning round was 35-37—72 even par.

Bobby Cruickshank of Purchase, N. Y. was second with 74-74—148. Bert MacDougall of Mt. Kisco was third with 149. Tom Creavy a young unattached pro of Tuckahoe, N. Y., was fourth with 150.

Gene Sarazen of Flushing, a former title-holder was fifth with 151.

Walter Kozack of Douglastown, N. Y., the present title-holder, did not have to qualify today being eligible due to winning this event last year. The rounds today were played through a heavy downpour of rain which made the course heavy and hard for low scoring.

The qualifiers:

17-YEAR-OLD LOUISVILLE BOY RIDES FIVE WINNERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—In the most brilliant exhibition of reinmanship of his short but sensational turf career Eugene James, 17-year-old Louisville boy, today rode five winners, four in succession, at Churchill Downs, Kentucky.

James, who less than a year ago was peddling papers on the streets of Louisville, has turned in four winners daily on two separate occasions and many times has he booted three home in front of their fields but today's performance far outclassed anything yet shown by the youthful riding sensation of the year.

The five triumphs today boosted his list for the year to 77, the first of which was registered on July 11 at the Latonia, Ky., summer meeting. Today's performance came on top of Monday's brilliant exhibition, when James rode four winners. He tried desperately to sweep the card but failed in the second and seventh races.

Here is how James' string of victories looked today with the price paid by each in the mutuels.

First race—Kenashaw	$24.24
Third race—Overlay	$6.80
Fourth race—Fairy Ring	$4.40
Fifth race—Vera C	$19.34
Sixth race—Western Princess	$11.86

BROWN GRID MEN PUT THROUGH TWO HOUR SESSION

PROVDIENCE, R. I., Oct. 15—(AP)—Inclement weather failed to dampen the ardor of the Brown squad as Coach Tuss McLaughry sent the squad through a two hour practice here today in preparation for the Yale game Saturday at New Haven. A long dummy scrimmage and signal drill constituted the bulk of the work for the varsity while the second and third string teams scrimmaged with the freshmen. No changes are slated to be made in the Brown team and the same eleven men who started against Princeton will again get the call for the Yale game.

WORCHESTER MAN SERIOUSLY INJURED, RUN OVER BY HORSE AT STAFFORD FAIR

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Oct. 15—(AP)—Jacob Levinsky, 35, of Worcester, Mass., a salesman employed by Brodenski-Kaplan, Worcester grocers, was run over by a horse and critically injured today during the harness races at the Stafford Springs fair. He suffered a fractured skull and his name was placed on the danger list at the Johnson Memorial hospital.

The horse, Star Echo, owned by J. Dodge, of Laconia, N. H., fell after striking Levinsky and unseated its driver, Jack Langley. Neither the horse nor Langley were injured.

The accident occurred during the second heat of the 2:16 trot and was the second one of the day. In the first heat of the 2:22 pace, Ray Brooke, driven by Whitman, threw the driver and ran around the track for two and a half miles before he was captured. The driver was unhurt.

Three unfinished races will be run off today.

DEADLOCK OVER CONDUCT OF OLYMPIC SKATING EVENTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—A deadlock between the Scandinavian countries and the United States has developed over the methods under which the skating events of the 1932 winter Olympic games at Lake Placid will be conducted, Godfrey Dewey, president of the winter games committee, revealed today.

Under the Scandinavian system which has been followed in the two previous winter Olympics, skaters compete in pairs and the winner is determined on a basis of comparative times.

Norway, Finland and, to the lesser extent, Sweden, have blocked efforts thus far to have the events run under the American system of heats and finals, Dr. Dewey said, and no reply has been received to an invitation extended Scandinavian skaters to come over this winter to compete and judge for themselves whether the American system is preferable.

Issuing a long statement pointing out the advantages of the American method, the Amateur Skating union announced its intention of endeavoring to obtain favorable action by the International Skating union at its congress in Vienna next May.

AL BEAUREGARD WINS VERDICT OVER GRENADA

(Special to The Bulletin)

GARDNER, Mass., Oct. 15. — Al Beauregard of Taftville, bantamweight champion of New England, jabbed out a clean cut decision over Young Grenada of New York in the eight round main bout of the Gardner A. C. card here tonight. The bout was the best on the card with fierce fighting holding the fans on edge all the way. Beauregard's verdict came through his aggressive attack to Grenada's head and body which kept the New York lad on the defensive all the way. Grenada, although a clever boxer, could do little against Beauregard except to jab and occasionally slip over a hook.

Grenada, substituted for Buster Nadeau of Holyoke.

CITY BASKETBALL LEAGUE MEETING FRIDAY EVENING

Final organization of the new City Basketball league is expected to be made at a meeting that has been called for Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. by the physical director, J. Howard Demarest. The circuit, which will be composed of at least four and possibly five teams, was tentatively organized last week. The present members are the Ideals, Shymas, Polish Citizens and Dahl Co.

Play is expected to start during the latter part of November and all games will be played on Thursday evenings at the Y court.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Westerly
N. F. A.
Stonington
Bulkeley
Windham
Chap. Tech

That's the way we're going to rate the six schools in the local conference to finish this football season.

Westerly, the champs, figure to repeat if they put on any more games like they showed against Windham last week when they came from arrears in the last quarter to win, 12 to 7. Stonington surprised everybody with their 6-6 tie against Bulkeley last Saturday during which they showed that Coach Leo Smith has an outfit that will make trouble for all. In Eddie Goyette Stonington has one of the best backs in the state. The team is a bit too light, however, to finish on top.

The two old arrivals, the Academy and Bulkeley, look pretty even this year on their work so far. Bulkeley has beaten Meriden and Fitch and has tied with Stonington while the Academy has won from Chapman Tech and Hartford Bulkeley and lost to Harding. The Academy, in its three starts, has shown a lack of scoring power, which may mean the loss of the league championship as the season progresses.

Windham's team almost upset Westerly, and will probably make it hot for some of the others during the coming weeks. Windham, in its opening league tilt, defeated Chapman Tech, which, incidentally, was the second loss in as many appearances for Tech, as the Academy had won the opening game of the conference season on Sept. 27 at New London.

So, the above are our predictions, and we have faith in them, notwithstanding the fact that we picked the Reds to win the National league pennant the past season, the Cards to win the series, etc.

The Academy has a fairly large representation of its former players on college football teams this season, probably the largest in the last ten years and practically all of the local boys seem to be getting their full share of time in the regular lineups.

Around home there are Jim Moore, regular center, and Jim Williams, reserve back, on Conn. Aggies varsity, then skipping over to Midletown we find Billy Tirrell cavorting at a halfback position for Wesleyan and doing the punting in the bargain. Up to Worcester and we see Gordon Cruickshank, at a tackle berth for Worcester Tech, then to Hartford where Arthur Disco is a halfback on Trinity. Last but not least, we skip down to Williamsburg, Va., where Jack Marks and Buck LaCroix are doing things and going different places on the varsity and Gink Barber, is with the freshmen.

Norwich boys were divided against each other last Saturday when Worcester Tech beat Trinity, 19 to 6, at Worcester and on the coming weekend there will be another conflict when Trinity meets the Aggies at Storrs.

THERE and HERE—The season is about one-third over and there is only one unbeaten and untied team in the section, namely, Westerly—Westerly plays Bulkeley Friday and maybe the list will be reduced by one or more by nightfall of that day.—memories of some of the great Academy-Westerly baseball battles of a few years ago were revived a bit last Sunday when the Westerly Indies lost to Dugas' All Stars—Eddie Sawyer, former Westerly high pitcher, and Walter Dabrowski who with his brother Teddy, made up that great keystone combination, were playing against Lloyd Jarvis and Steffy Cimikoski, Academy heroes of "the good old days"—Sawyer played with one of the House of David teams all summer—one of the Eastern Connecticut high schools, at a recent game passed out tickets for a game two weeks hence—which is not going to do the box office any good.

Eastern Football Briefs

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 15—(AP)—"Gloomy Gil" Dobie unlimbered a few words of praise for the Cornell team today after its final scrimmage in preparation for the Princeton game. "We have a fair Cornell team this year," he said. We are regarding our game with Princeton as a tough assignment and we expect to put up a battle."

HAMILTON, N. Y.—Andy Kerr, Colgate coach, told his marauding Maroons today that they would encounter stiffer opposition from Michigan State at East Landing Saturday than he expected in any other game of the schedule.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—(AP)—A rainy afternoon gave Major Ralph Sasse an excellent opportunity to test the ability of the Army backfield in handling a wet ball in the final scrimmage session before the Harvard game.

Army's squad of 36 players is to leave here early tomorrow afternoon, going to Newtonville, Mass., where they will stay at a country club the night before the game. A light practice will be held on Soldiers field Friday afternoon.

SYRCAUSE, N. Y.—(AP)—Intensive drill aimed at improving the quality of the punting was the order of the day here as Syracuse's Orange football squad prepared for the Saturday game with Pitt.

Coach Hanson's original plan of using his "pony backfield"—Titmus, Stevens, Moran and Fishel—was unchanged. The line will be the same too, under his present plans.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15—(AP)—Mike Milligan will take Hart Morris' place at guard next Saturday when the University of Pittsburgh football team encounters Syracuse at Syracuse.

The team had a long drill today in breaking up Syracuse plays as run off by freshmen.

The Ideal of a Craftsman

In every age men have striven with untiring patience for the achievement of an ideal. The name "STRADIVARIUS", on a violin immortalizes a master craftsman who lived true to his ideals.

Making a cigar of the finest quality was the ideal upon which in 1874, at Manchester, N. H., Roger G. Sullivan—starting with one cigar maker—founded 7-20-4. Today because of its ideal quality, 7-20-4 has grown to the largest hand-made cigar industry in the World.

Quality workmanship and the finest tobaccos are traditional with 7-20-4. The unswerving tenet of its founder—to keep faith with the public—has remained unchanged for over half a century. It is this firm principle which today refuses to alter that method of manufacture which has made 7-20-4 Cigar—FAMOUS FOR ITS CHOICE QUALITY.

We cordially invite you to visit our factory

MILL WATCHMAN MUST ALSO WATCH RATS THAT TAKE LUNCH

Watchman in a great mill is a position that many may hear about, but few there are who face the actual experience. The steady hourly rounds, up and down the long, near-human, rows of silent machines, that stretch away in the distance, are made alone. There are at least three separate conditions that apply directly to these duties which are mandatory by the insurance underwriters. The first may be considered in a mill where the cards, looms, speeders and spinning frames are bare, that is, they carry no warps, roving or filling, as is the case in the local Fisk mill, where operation is indefinitely suspended. In the dead of night the long aisles, the skeleton machinery and the resonant floors, answer to the passing tread with a peculiar hollow echo. As the watchman, lantern in hand, passes from station to station and turns his key in the box, he tarries a moment until is heard the muffled "peg-peg-peg" of the electric mechanism that is registering in the office the exact time when he indicated his presence at that box.

A different experience is that of night watchman in a mill that has been in steady operation through the day. A long room where the machinery has been running is even more scary than the first. Friction has heated and expanded the thousands of cast steel pulleys. Whirling jacks and spindles, together with belts and bobbin frames, have been relieved of their tension. All these, as they begin to cool, and assume normal conditions, let out shrieks and groans that reverberate through the long lines of shafting in a manner that is hair-raising. Just as one opens the door and follows his lantern's dim rays into the great carding room, a contracting belt slips across the smooth surface of a cooling pulley. There are no words coined that can express that peculiar groan. The lone watchman who can walk down to the end of the long battery of moaning machines, register his station, and not turn a hair, is possessed of the stuff that real men are made of.

All mills of any sort, anywhere, have their quota of rats. These are not the same sort as the little, blue, good-natured chap that sits up on his tail and blinks as one passes by. They are regular fellows, of the Western front trench breed—long, sleek, gray and hungry; some of them are as big as a Tom cat. The watchman sits on a beam end to eat his midnight lunch. There are a half dozen sandwiches, two hard boiled eggs, a piece of pie and a chunk of cake, maybe with a pickle and a piece of cheese which the good wife has tucked in. With keen anticipation all these good things are spread out. A window over in the next aisle rattles; he steps across to fix it. Presto! Within a second the repast has vanished. He rushes back to hurl the lunch box at the disappearing marauders, only to see the last great gray boy climbing up the main line belting, with the napkin trailing along behind.

Strangely, the watchmen declare it is, since the big Fisk mill has been shut down, not a rat is to be seen anywhere about the plant.

Economics Committee Meeting

At the meeting of Pachaug grange this (Thursday) evening, a program arranged by the Economics committee will be presented. As it is expected that the degrees will be conferred next month, the members have been urged to present applications for membership either at this meeting or at the first meeting in November.

Have your eyes examined by Dr. C. A. Spear, optometrist; hours, 7 to 9 Friday evening. Anthony block.—adv

RAIN CAME JUST IN TIME TO WARD OFF FOREST FIRES

The first rain in this section since the 7th of September, began at 8:30 Tuesday evening. During the night, the precipitation as reported by P. Weaver at the Stone Hill reservoir of the Jewett City Water Co., was three-quarters of an inch. Although this rainfall will not figure in the raising of water supplies, yet what did come has proven of much benefit, as it has set aside the almost unprecedented fire menace that threatened outlying districts. Fire Warden Irving O. Burdick said Wednesday that never in his years of experience has he seen the woods and brushland as dry as he found them Sunday. One Stone Hill resident said that if a forest fire, which started Saturday, had gotten away, the entire territory would have been swept as there is no water in the total area of sufficient quantity to put up a fight against a bad blaze.

Supper For Three Brides

The World Wide guild girls held the first meeting of the season in the Baptist vestry Tuesday evening. The president, Mrs. Winifred Young, presided at the business meeting. The program was in charge of Mrs. R. A. Wilbur. The topic was Progressive Bible Women and Evangelists, based on the new study book, A Cloud of Witnesses, the theme of which is India. Seven girls told about the lives of Harisinma, Kondubal, Old Lady Wang and Christina Psal. Three of the members have become brides, Winifred Scates Young, Sarah Gill Robinson and Verna Tarbox Cregan, and were given a bridal party after the business meeting. As Mrs. J. P. Post played the march from Lohengrin, the 14 members marched around the room and were seated at a beautifully decorated table. The color scheme was yellow with runners across the table and yellow napkins. Yellow cups and roses containing after dinner mints were the favors. The place cards were cupids holding large wedding rings. Yellow candles lighted the table. The three brides' chairs were marked with yellow bows, and a wee bride and groom stood at their plates. Mrs. Floyd Ray arranged these table decorations most effectively. Chicken salad, potato chips, jelly, olives, pickles, bread and butter sandwiches, cookies and cocoa were served. The brides received exquisite pink-frosted sandwich plates, as remembrances from the guild girls.

The delegates to the State King's Daughters' convention in New London from Dorcas circle are the leader, Miss M. A. Burdick, Mrs. Everett H. Hiscox, Mrs. Leon James and Mrs. F. E. Robinson.

Local members will attend the district meeting of the American Legion and auxiliary units in Ponemah hall at Taftville tonight (Thursday).

Attorney and Mrs. Frank R. Keeshan and family, of Albany, N. Y., have been guests of Mrs. Keeshan's mother, Mrs. Timothy Driscoll.

Mrs. Jacob Wechsler is mourning the loss of an immense geranium which was stolen from her garden in front of the house Wednesday night. She has been carefully nurturing the plant which was of extraordinary size and beauty. During the night the plant was stolen, a large hole being left unfilled. Possibly someone is stealing flower pans from the cemetery and then visiting gardens and appropriating plants to fill them. That's one way to plant a window garden.

STAFFORD FAIR CLOSING DAY HAD CERTAIN POPULAR ATTRACTIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Oct. 15—Wednesday, the third and final day of Stafford Springs Agricultural society's fair the attendance record lagged considerably in comparison with the two previous days. The rain of the night before and the heavy mist early all morning discouraged many who had been planning to attend. The fair grounds and track were in a fine powdered dust condition and the rain was quickly absorbed by the soil. The sun appeared several times during the forenoon and with the light winds helped to dry up the surplus moisture.

Many of the concessionists were preparing to leave and the midway was minus several of its booths.

Fine Cattle Exhibits

The cattle exhibit this year was one of the best ever seen on the grounds and as the blooded stock was led past the grand stand Tuesday afternoon there were many outbursts of applause. Girl Scouts assisted in leading the animals around the track.

The Foot Guard band of Hartford furnished music during the three days of the fair and helped to make things lively between the heats.

Governor Pleased

Governor John H. Trumbull and staff occupied the guest box in the grandstand on Tuesday, and his excellency and party seemed to enjoy the racing as well as the stage performance. After the party left the grand stand they strolled about the grounds and visited the exhibition booths.

Poultry Awards Made

Local poultry fanciers take much pride in the poultry show at the fair and they feel that the national interest shown in this department has been one of the steps in making the fair in general pre-eminent. All premiums in this department were in place Wednesday after having been judged by Judge H. S. Rich of Springfield, D. D. Cavanaugh of North Windham, Conn., and A. Mowll of Mathews, Virginia.

The 4-H exhibits were judged in an individual class by Miss E. Trabue, home making; A. L. Mann, livestock and E. S. Walford, poultry. Some very fine exhibits in each department of the 4-H club work were shown, in the special 4-H club tents.

Shot From a Cannon

One of the big numbers on the program Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons was that of Victor Zacchini who was shot from a cannon. Zacchini climbed into the mouth of the big cannon and was instantly hurled out through space and alighted in a net about 200 feet from the mouth of the cannon. This astounding stunt which was performed directly in front of the grand stand was a real thriller.

All premiums were awarded and notices placed on articles in the different divisions and departments. The exhibition hall was one of the liveliest places on the grounds, exhibitors eagerly watching to learn if any of their exhibits had won premiums.

Efficient Committees

The following committees helped to make the fair a success: Reception, Robert W. Smith, Alexander L. Mitchell, Charles B. Pinney, Frank H. Baker and Frederick G. Sanford; racing, Robert W. Smith, W. H. L. McBee, Alexander I. Mitchell and Michael O'Halloran; grounds and buildings, Alexander I. Mitchell, Robert W. Smith, Charles B. Pinney; entries and exhibits, Frank H. Plumb, Donald P. Mitchell, R. J. Leonard; vaudeville, Dr. Claude B. Tschummi, Francis C. Luce, Ronald A. Mitchell; advertising, Charles H. Meyers, Anders Jacobsen, Ernest Cady and Frank Johnson.

PASTOR BLAMES TRACTORS, AUTOS FOR FARMERS' ILLS

KULM, N. D.—(AP)—The Rev. Peter Ruder, a Congregational pastor who believes tractors and automobiles "have ruined the farmer," expounds the Gospel on Sunday and on other days takes a turn at the plow or helps parishioners with economic problems.

In 23 years' ministry among farm folk of Colorado and the Dakotas Rev. Ruder has come to grips with some of the fundamental causes of agricultural ills.

Self-sufficiency is his formula for farm relief.

He urges members of his flock to reduce wheat production and practice a more diversified agriculture, to eliminate loans as fast as possible, stop buying the unnecessary—which he describes particularly as the latest model automobile and farm machinery—and return to horse power.

"The tractor has resulted in too much wheat," he says, "and the automobile consumes a product the farmer does not produce.

"The farm is not a place to get rich quickly. It is a good place to make a good living in a quiet way.

"The farmer can be independent only so long as he keeps out of debt, buys what he needs and pays for it as he buys it. He must not spend money until he has it. Liberal credit has ruined many a farmer."

The 50-year-old minister, a graduate of the Chicago theological seminary, plans group meetings this winter for discussion of farm problems.

FISHERMEN ADOPT RADIO TO COMBAT LOSS AT SEA

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain — (AP) — Radio has been adopted for the first time to combat heavy annual loss of life among thousands of fishermen in this region.

Alarmed by the ascending number of drownings, the provincial deputation approved the installation of a powerful broadcasting station atop Igueldo mountain to transmit meterological data to fishermen.

The government is supplying reception apparatus free to owners of small craft. All fishing boats leaving the port will soon be required to carry radio equipment.

STATION POWER INCREASES RECOMMENDED BY R.M.A.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A proposal urging the federal radio commission to increase the number of high-power broadcast channels is being presented by the Radio Manufacturers association.

Morris Metcalf, president in a letter to the commission declared that better broadcasting—better reception for the public—could be achieved by increasing the number of cleared channels and by permitting stations on such channels to use higher power under adequate regulations.

ENGINEERS HEAD SURVEY OF 100 U. S. AIRPORT

NEW YORK —(AP)— The American engineering council, cooperating with the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce, is organizing more than 100 local committees to study airports with a view to "preventing wasteful expenditures and safeguarding life."

The work of the committees is linked with a world investigation of the problems of airport drainage and surfacing which is being conducted by a general committee composed of experts of the council, the American road builders' association and the department of commerce.

Listeners Find Errors

CHICAGO —(AP)— More than 50 per cent of the intentional errors in history, music and grammar injected into a CBS program, "What's Wrong?" were detected by listeners a summation of letters showed. Five deliberate errors are in each Tuesday program.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

BACTERIA ARE BOTH GOOD AND BAD, SCIENTIST SAY

"Not all bacteria are harmful. In fact, many are distinctly beneficial to mankind," says Dr. A. C. Hunter, head of the bacteriological unit of the food and drug administration, United States department of agriculture. "I make this statement to dispel what I understand is a widespread belief that all bacteria are injurious to health."

Doctor Hunter divides germ life roughly into three groups. The first group, microbes beneficial to mankind, includes those which produce through fermentation such foods as pickles, sauerkraut, and some varieties of cheese. The second group of bacteria is composed of organisms which are harmful or destructive. In this group are included the germs which cause poisoning and disease and those which rot or sour food, making it unfit for use. Between these two germs is a third containing hundreds of kinds of bacteria which play no part in food production, poisoning, or spoilage.

"For the purpose of an illustration of the first group," suggests Doctor Hunter, "consider the bacteria used in producing the fermented milk product known as acidophilus milk. It is produced by growing bacteria of a certain type in milk. Bacteriologists in the food and drug administration frequently examine acidophilus milk and similar preparations to ascertain whether these products actually contain true acidophilus bacilli and, if so, whether sufficient numbers of living microbes of the type are present.

"There is no need to be alarmed about the harmful bacteria," assures Doctor Hunter. "It is possible to keep them out of food and such prevention is more evident today than ever before. Some of the precautions taken today are the pasteurization of milk chlorination of water, the growing of shellfish only in clean water, and the generally improved methods of food handling. Even the dreaded botulinus, an outlaw which causes food poisoning, is not now the menace it was once."

BARRACKS SYSTEM ON POULTRY FARMS

The so-called barracks system, which has been practiced with excellent results by a number of poultry farms for several years, involves building extra laying houses. These may be used as dual purpose houses for both breeding and laying flocks. They can be used for brooding during the early spring and can be used to excellent advantage from August 15th until about the first of January for carrying over the laying hens which would otherwise be crowded out because of the necessity for housing pullets.

IWth this system, culling or selection should be done about August 15th. Birds to be kept over for breeders should be left or transferred to the houses where they are to stay through the winter. All the remaining birds except the culls should be transferred to the barracks house.

Artificial light should be turned on at the time of moving, and the rations should be "stepped up" as much as possible, to offset the tendency to stop laying because of the disturbance. The lights should be turned on at 3.00 standard time the morning after the birds are moved. The amount of light may be slightly decreased later in the season, but good results can hardly be obtained with less light at the beginning.

The birds should be fed liberally early and late, with extra meat-scrap given unless the ration is already high in protein. A wet mash feeding at noon would be advisable (unless this is already an established practice. Birds already out of condition or showing a slight molt should react to the lighting and feeding, stop molting, and come into production. Such a flock should be held close to 50 per cent production for several months.

The barracks system should not be practiced in a half-hearted way. It takes a good poultryman and good management to get maximum results, but the results are amply worth the extra effort.

FALL START FOR VEGETABLES.

While most of the flowering annuals can be sown this fall to good advantage, not so much can be done in the vegetable garden except put the soil in shape. A good spading, turning in compost or manure, is the best move that can be made for next spring's vegetable planting. The perennial vegetables, asparagus and rhubarb as well as multiplier onions can be planted to excellent advantage this fall.

Spinach is the one early spring vegetable that may be planted in advance of the season to advantage. Prepare the bed and scatter the seed in the rows as late as possible and dodge frozen ground. The idea is to get the seed sown so late that it will not germinate until next spring but will be ready to sprout as soon as the first favorable weather swells the germ in the seed.

Spinach must do all its growing in cool weather. The earlier it can be started the better and longer the crop. So fall sowing is a real advantage. Mulch the bed well after the seed is sown and remove the mulch early next spring, as soon as the ground starts to thaw. There is no use planting the old-fashioned small-leaf spinach. The modern inventions in the spinach line are so far superior, both in size of leaf and quality that it is a foolish waste of space and time to bother with any but the newer sorts, mostly of Danish origin. It is more heat resistant and less prone to race up to seed at the slightest suspicion of warm weather.

Multiplier, or potato onions as they are sometimes called, give the first young onions in spring. A few bulbs put in this fall will give you a crop before the onion sets can get into action. They are perfectly hardy.

The asparagus bed should be set this fall, getting two-year-old plants from dealers. The main requisite is deep rich soil for asparagus and ample root room for each hill, giving the plants three feet of space each way. Rhubarb roots should be set out now. Half a dozen plants will be sufficient to provide an ample supply for the average family.

SPARROWS CONTROLLED BY VARIOUS METHODS

Where English sparrows become too numerous in a locality is is often necessary to control them. Economical and effective methods of controlling these birds where they become overabundant are described in a leaflet, 61-L, "English Sparrow Control," just issued by the U. S. department of Agriculture.

Recent studies of the food habits and economic status of the English sparrow under present-day conditions show that the adult birds are essentially vegetarian, says the bureau of biological survey. More than 56 per cent of their food is mixed feed, various grains, weed seeds, and garden products. The nestlings subsist largely on insects, but the beneficial work the sparrows do in catching bugs lasts for only 10 to 12 days, after which the young become quite as vegetarian as the adults.

Methods of control outlined in the new leaflet include the following: Destroying nests and eggs; shooting; trapping by means of nest-box or other types of traps described and illustrated; and poisoning with a strychnine-grain bait, directions for the preparation and distribution of which are given.

"Though poison," says the leaflet "is an economical and effective weapon in controlling English sparrows, its use is fraught with certain dangers. For this reason sparrows should be poisoned only by persons fully aware of the danger to poultry, livestock and other farm animals from the careless handling of poisoned baits. Poisoning English sparrows in sections abounding in native seed-eating birds should be avoided since carelessly exposed poisoned baits might endanger beneficial birds, many of which are protected by state and some by federal laws."

FIELD CORN CAN NOT BE SOLD AS SWEET CORN UNDER FOOD LAW

There is no objection from the standpoint of the federal food and drugs act to the canning of sound, wholesome field corn," says W. G. Campbell, head of the food and drug administration, U. [illegible] agriculture, in a letter to the canners of corn. "But it is [illegible] that practice necessitates a form of labeling which plainly designates the canned article as 'field corn' and which is otherwise free from misleading features that tend to confuse the identity of this product with that of the usual canned sweet corn of commerce."

This letter was issued upon receipt of reports that corn canners, finding a shortage of sweet corn as a result of drought and other conditions, were canning corn of the field varieties. The interstate or export shipment of canned field corn or any other foods under false or misleading labeling is in violation of the federal food and drugs act.

INSECTS PROVE USEFUL IN CONTROLLING WEEDS

The popular idea that nearly all insects are injurious to man in one way or another is entirely wrong, according to entomologists of the United States department of agriculture. In some parts of the world insects have been imported for the sole purpose of controlling weeds which have threatened to crowd out useful plants.

Entomologists of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association have introduced from Mexico a number of insects which feed on the lantana plant, a troublesome weed, and recent reports state that this plan of control is meeting with success.

Scale insects, plant bugs, caterpillars, and beetles are now being introduced into Australia to feed on the prickly pear cactus, a plant which has spread over the country at an alarming rate. A few years ago it was said that 60,000,000 acres of land in Australia were overgrown by this cactus, and the rate of increase was about 1,000,000 acres a year. After other methods of control had failed the plan of importing insect enemies was adopted, and it is proving successful, according to recent reports. The species of cactus which ranks second in importance is expected to be brought under complete control within 10 years.

SOME CORN SHEDS TEARS WHEN COOL NIGHTS COME

Like the grasshopper that mourned the passing of summer, some strains of corn seem to "shed tears" on the first chilly nights in autumn, agronomists have observed. Some strains of corn are not injured by temperatures as low as 3 or 4 degrees below freezing and others are injured severely at 10 degrees above the freezing point.

For several years the University of Illinois and the United States department of agriculture have been cooperating in studies of the effects of cold on the development of corn plants. James R. Holbert, of the Bureau of plant Industry, and W. L. Burlison, of the university, say that "the killing of tissues of corn plants by cold, particularly at temperatures above the freezing point of water, seems to be the result of the inability of the tissues to retain water at such temperatures." They relate their experience with two corn plants the first night they were able to operate their refrigeration chamber in the field. With this chamber they were able to subject corn plants to artificial frost and to unseasonably cold conditions.

"When the temperature inside the chamber dropped to 36 degrees," they say, "we noted that the leaves of one strain of corn, Strain A, were all wet. Our first thought was that this was the result of a condensation of moisture from the air around the leaves, but examination revealed that all the leaves of another strain, Strain B, were dry, although the leaves of the two strains mingled. As the temperature dropped, the leaves of Strain A became wetter. It seemed as though the water was almost running out of the leaves. The leaves of Strain B were dry until the temperature reached 28 degrees. We knew that Strain A, the one that 'shed tears' at a temperature of 38 degrees, was comparatively susceptible to cold injury. Strain B, whose leaves remained dry, seldom was injured by cold until the temperature dropped to 28 degrees for several hours."

The investigators are not now able to account for this difference in behavior. They hope their experiment will reveal the reason. Knowledge of strains resistant to cold is a valuable aid to corn breeders.

Larger Chestnuts.

When future generations harvest chestnuts they may gather much larger nuts, for several varieties of chestnuts that bear large nuts have been imported from Japan by the United States department of agriculture for experimental planting in the Appalachians. But the most delicious of them all, our American chestnut, is nearing extinction from the ravages of chestnut blight. For centuries the Chinese and Japanese chestnuts have grown in the presence of this disease so that those trees which have survived are more or less immune to it.

THE MAN WITH THE HOE SAYS—

Plant lilies this fall. Many of them do not arrive until late from Japan. Cover the ground selected for them with a heavy mulch so it will not freeze and plant them when you get them.

Narcissus bulbs should be planted as soon as you can get them. They require a longer growing season than the other spring bulbs. American growers can get them to you earlier than imported bulbs.

Give the garden a spading for luck this fall. It will ease the work next spring.

The fritillarias, crown imperials and guinea hen flowers, respectively F. imperials and meleagris, are attractive and curious bulbs. The crown imperial is the largest of the spring bulbs. The huge, evil-smelling bulbs should be planted only two inches deep. Planted deeper, they will not bloom and will gradually disappear. Plant some guinea hen flowers, also known as checkered lilies from their peculiar marks.

Don't waste any autumn leaves. Remember the compost heap.

Save all ashes from garden refuse and wood ashes from the grate and spread it on the garden, particularly the bulb beds.

California dog tooth violets, erythroniums, are beautiful bulbs and hardy all over the country. You will have a group of unusual beauty if you plant a hundred or so of them.

Clear off all old and dead vegetable stalks and burn them. They harbor insect eggs for next year.

Ordeer and sow annual seeds. No use crowding yourself next spring.

Use peat moss to mulch late set plants in danger of heaving. It keeps off wet and protects the plant well.

IT RAINS 57 INCHES YET FARMERS IRRIGATE

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP)—The average annual rainfall in this part of Florida is 57 inches—yet the farmers resort to irrigation.

Irrigation is chiefly used by strawberry growers. Sometimes it is necessary to "water" the strawberry fields several times a year, especially during transplanting season. Fields are equipped for irrigation in case rains do not come when needed.

The crop begins to ripen just before Christmas, with later crops continuing the season for several weeks

COFFEE TREES TO BE TRIED IN CITRUS BELT OF TEXAS

HOUSTON, Tex. —(AP)— The lower Rio Grande valley of Texas, which already furnishes the nation with much grapefruit, soon also may help fill its breakfast coffee pot.

Commercial coffee raising in the citrus section is to be introduced by L. T. Warden of Pharr, Tex., whose two-year experiment with coffee-tree growing has convinced him the crop would become perhaps more profitable even than grapefruit, which in some instances has netted $1,000 an acre.

Warden has ordered 1,000 coffee trees from Mexico City and final tests will be conducted in January and February. A solitary tree planted by Warden at the beginning of his experiment yielded nine pounds of coffee.

Try Heating Soil

DAVIS, Cal.—(AP)—The University of California farm here is heating soil in an experiment to force truck crops to maturity for early markets.

Many Homes Without Sets

NEW YORK —(AP)— It is estimated that there are 12,000,000 homes in the country which are wired for electricity but which are not equipped with radio receivers.

"My 'WIND' isn't good any more"

Puffing . . . panting . . . tired in the knees? Wondering where your energy's gone?

Maybe you're keeping company with tobacco that's too strong and harsh.

Maybe you and your cigarette are not getting along as you should.

Maybe you need a change of brand . . . say a fair workout of coughless OLD GOLDS.

You'll find it a pleasant change.

In fairness to yourself, why not try the Old Gold 10-DAY TEST?

Old Gold CIGARETTES

Millions of smokers have found relief in "coughless" OLD GCLDS . . . new throat-ease, new freedom from after-effects. They're honey smooth . . . kind to the disposition as well as the throat . . . because there's nothing in them but pure selected heart-leaf tobacco!

Why not make this sporting test?

For the next ten days smoke as much as you like . . . but smoke OLD GOLDS exclusively.

Watch results. See what OLD GOLD'S irritant-free tobaccos can do for your throat . . . energy . . . disposition. Enjoy yourself for 10 days. Then check up. Then decide.

PENDLETON HILL SAWMILL BURNED LAST NIGHT WITH $8,000 LOSS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 15.—An $8,000 fire loss resulted from a blaze which started some time before 9 p. m., tonight, in the sawmill of George Bennett in the town of Stonington, on the Pendleton Hill road to Voluntown. Mr. Bennett, who had retired, upon looking from his bedroom window saw the flames, which he thought must have started from an overheated bearing in the mill, which had been operated all day.

A telephone call was sent to the Pawcatuck fire department and the pumper with force of firemen went to the scene and laid a length of hose from a nearby brook. Before their arrival the flames had gained considerable headway and lighted up the horizon for miles around. Much of the danger from falling sparks was lessened by the heavy rains of the day. The mill was located in a large barn, which was entirely razed. The firemen prevented the spread to surrounding buildings, however.

A telephone call to the Westerly fire station brought out the Westerly pumper with Fire Chief Robert Bonner and a large force of firemen. They arrived too late to be of any help.

WESTERLY

JURY SELECTED FOR AUTOMOBILE CRASH SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 15.—Court session in the second day of the Westerly adjournment of Washington county superior court was held Wednesday at the Union street courthouse, when the trial of the case of Byron Champlin vs. Medusa Portland Cement Co. was started before Justice O'Connell and a jury. This is an action growing out of an automobile collision at the junction of High and Oak streets, on May 1, 1929, in which the plaintiff seeks to collect damages.

Attorney John Gallagher, representing the defendant, asked for a view by the jury and it was granted by the court. Court recessed at 12:05 o'clock until 2 o'clock.

The following jury drawn was found to be satisfactory and empaneled:

South Kingstown—William H. Kennedy, storekeeper; George Stedman, contractor; Charles H. Tucker, farmer. North Kingstown—Samuel C. M. Wilson, laborer; Ziba O. Young, carpenter, foreman. Westerly—Edwin Barber, Jr., manufacturer; Walter S. Price, insurance agent; Benjamin G. Richmond, Jr., core maker. Richmond—John F. Beers, weaver. Exeter—James B. Brown, farmer. Charlestown—Clarence W. Church, watchman. Narragansett—Joseph H. Marshall, laborer.

Dr. Ronald Dove was a Westerly business caller in Wickford, R. I., on Wednesday.

Fred D. Sisson and son-in-law, Russell Francis, are Westerly vacation visitors in New York city.

ORCHARD CANKER OUSTED BY PARASITES IN OREGON

HOOD RIVER, Ore.—(AP)—Perennial canker, a scourge of apple orchards is fought here by employing parasites to destroy aphis.

The chief carrier of the pest is woolly aphis which in itself constitutes a menace to trees. The aphis congregate in tree wounds, suck the sap and permit the canker to start.

A wax covering protects the aphis but the University of Oregon agricultural station has imported its natural enemy, aphelinus mali, a minute parasite.

The experiments, started two years ago, have practically cleaned up the canker carrier.

Farmers in several sections of Georgia have made plans for "live-at-home" programs next year.

Easy to look at

BEAUTIFUL and CHARMING! It's an added special quality that makes the beauty of a pretty girl. But she's a natural favorite to begin with. And for the same reason Camels are favorites with the modern crowd. Scientific principles govern their manufacture; but the mildness, the fragrance, the delicate flavor are natural qualities of the tobacco.

There's enjoyment in the smoking of a Camel. Camels go with happy faces . . . a lift of spirits with the opening of every fresh, fragrant pack. For Camel's delightful mildness holds all the natural goodness of choicest tobaccos. Don't confuse it with the flatness or insipidness of "over-treated" cigarettes.

AVERAGE RISE IN PRICES OF STOCKS WAS ABOUT 2 POINTS IN QUIET MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—Stocks drifted quietly higher today. Tape followers who had believed that yesterday's loaning rates forecast the flight of the shorts were disappointed, for there was no stampede to buy and in only a few instances, notably U. S. Steel and Westinghouse, did the net gains exceed 3 points. The average rise was about 2.

When the market closed there was again an active borrowing demand and once more a sizeable list of stocks, including Steel common, loaned at premiums. This unusual situation, coming at a time when the pros and cons of short selling are being widely discussed and just after the exchange president's visit at the white house, was interpreted in some quarters as meaning that brokerage houses which normally lend stocks had withdrawn them during the excitement last week. In these circles it was pointed out that the scarcity of shares for loaning purposes was probably due to such a cause rather than to a concerted attempt to curtail short selling.

The consensus in brokerage house circles was that the current advance in prices represented a technical recovery and that sustained improvement was hardly to be expected until the business skies show further signs of brightening.

Business news was moderately reassuring. Steel operations declined. One trade review estimated the decrease at 3 per cent, but the peak of the seasonal demand has passed. The surveys noted that buyers had assumed a cautious attitude, that interest in forward buying had waned and that inventories were again being reduced. The "Iron Age" composite prices for pig iron, heavy melting scrap and finished steel eased to new lows, although the publication "Steel" asserted that producers were making "the most positive effort in months" to firm quotations.

A gain of 22,111 cars in freight loadings for the week ended October 4, was the largest increase since the last of August; the total was the lowest for the same week since 1922, but represented a loss of 17.6 per cent from the corresponding week of 1929 against the 21 per cent drop shown in the previous report. Larger coal shipments accounted for a substantial part of the improvement.

The expansion in September foreign trade over August was moderate and less than seasonal. Exports were up six per cent, while imports rose nearly 5 per cent, due to purchases of raw materials. Not since 1926 had September imports gained over the preceding month.

The stock market's course was somewhat similar to yesterday's, except that there was no violent break at the opening; instead, initial quotations were higher. A reaction from the highs followed promptly and the market was irregular throughout the earlier hours, swinging into the gradual upturn when the afternoon trading got under way. U. S. Steel closed at its best price, 152 3-8, up 3 7-8 net. Westinghouse, at the final price of 117 3-4, was up 4 1-4, and Vanadium gained 4 1-2 on covering stimulated by announcement that the extra dividend had been omitted.

Net advances in other active shares ranged generally from 1 to nearly 3 points. Rails, particularly Atchison, Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, Union Pacific and New York Central, firmed. Among the industrials and specialties there were gains of a point or two in Bethlehem Steel, American Can, Case, Gillette, Woolworth and Union Carbide. American Telephone and International Telephone closed more than 2 higher, while General Electric, Montgomery Ward and National Biscuit were up fractionally. General Motors was heavy. Total sales were 2,377,490 shares, about 1,000,000 less than Tuesday.

Wheat rallied after early weakness and closed virtually unchanged on reports of large exports and storms in Canada. Corn eased, losing one to two cents on the bearish government weather forecast. Cotton was quiet, 3 to 8 points net higher.

The German mark held steady in a mixed foreign exchange market. Sterling firmed a trifle.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—South American bonds made a substantial rally today. Showing a definite reversal of the trend of the past few weeks, a wide list of issues registered advances and imparted a better tone to the entire foreign group.

Domestic bonds moved higher, although modest gains were the rule. Some of the larger advances were in stock privilege issues that move in sympathy with the share market, and bonds that have been depressed by unsettling developments.

The disappearance of liquidation in foreign bonds and the strong upturn of stocks were the principal influences in the marked improvement displayed by the market. The averages showed an advance of 1-10th of a point, the first upward revision in two weeks.

A large offering expected tomorrow is a $30,000,000 note issue of the Edison Electric Illuminating company, of Boston, which plans to retire an equal amount of 4 1-2 per cent notes due November 1, the new notes being offered at interest rates that will provide a distinct saving to the company.

The rise in some American issues in an active market was as sharp, as some recent declines. Bolivia 7s of 1969 soared 10 points, Chile 6s, of May 1963 advanced 9 3-4 and many issues gained 2 to 4 points. Minas Geraes 6 1-2s, were about the only active Brazilian issues that failed to advance. Brazil 6 1-2s of '27-'57 gained 7 1-2 points and the 6 1-2s, of '27-'57 moved 3 1-2 higher. Sao Paulo State bonds, were 4 points higher on an average, and Rio Grande Do Sul 8s and 6s gained several points.

The demand for Chilean governments and mortgage bank issues, was particularly strong, and every active issue scored a vigorous advance. Argentine, Colombian, Peruvian and Uruguayan issues all showed improvement. The rest of the foreign list was firmer. German governments were steady. Poland 7s were weak, dropping 7 points to 70, a new low, and the 8s yielded 12 points on a few sales.

A sharp upturn in American and Foreign Power 5s and International Telephone and Telegraph bonds, both having extensive interests in South America, was attributed to the strong recovery of Latin American issues. The domestic utility group, was generally firm. American Telephone 5s, were very active and up 1-2.

A better inquiry for high grade railroad issues resulted in many small advances. Convertible rails were very active and a majority followed the strong trend of stocks. Chicago and Northwestern 4 3-4s, a convertible, sold off 3 1-4 points, and other bonds of the road were weak. Big Four 4 1-2s, Colorado and Southern 4 1-2s A, New York Central 3 1-2s, Erie 5s, of 1967 and 1975, and Pennsylvania 4 1-2s were strong.

U. S. governments were steady. Most of the activity centered in the Liberty 3 1-2s, which were a shade lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—(AP)—Anxiety over reports of blizzards damaging unthreshed grain in Canada led to higher prices here for wheat and oats much of the time today. A big falling off in domestic receipts of wheat northwest was also a notable feature. Wheat, however, failed to hold gains well in the face of profit taking sales which developed quickly on bulges in quotations.

The close for wheat was irregular, ranging from 1-2c a bushel decline to 1-2c advance, compared with yesterday's finish. Corn closed 7-8 at 1 7-8c down, oats unchanged to 5-8c higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 32c.

Provisions reflected upturns in hog reports showing diminished stocks of values and responded also to official lard.

MONEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—Call money steady, high 2; low 2; ruling rate 2; close 2 per cent. Time loans easier 30 days, 2 at 2 1-4; 60 days, 2 at 2 1-4; 90 days, 2 1-2 at 2 3-4; 4 months, 2 1-2 at 2 3-4; 5-6 months 2 3-4 at 3. Prime commercial paper, 3 at 3 1-4. Bankers' acceptances unchanged.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—Futures closed steady, 3 to 8 points higher; spot quiet; middling 10.40.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15— (AP) — Treasury receipts for October 13 were $6,246,188.58; expenditures $12,891,991.41; balance 256,099,430.40.

The daily gold statement of the federal reserve bank of New York, today showed imports of $575,000 from Argentina. There was no gold withdrawn for export, but gold earmarked for foreign account increased $4,000,000.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—The curb market made broad and substantial recovery today, in belated response to the rally on the big board which reached extensive proportions in the previous session.

Volume of trading was maintained at a fair pace, the day's sales aggregating 687,200 shares, against 715,300 yesterday, although transactions on the big board fell off to about two-thirds that of the previous day.

The utility shares moved forward in a body. Electric Bond and Share, Associated Gas A, Electric Power and Light warrants, United Light and Power A, and Hydro Electric Securities, gained about 2 points each. Northern States A, rose 3, and Utilities Power and Light B, nearly 4. Middle West was one of the few of the more active issues to fail to make progress, but it closed off only 1-4.

Industrials, which have been under quiet liquidation for some time, made fair recovery in spots. American Cyanamid B, rose about a point in a large turnover, and Dow Chemical and Aspanaug company each gained 2. Fractional advances in this group were numerous. There were a few more comparatively inactive issues dropping to new lows in light sales, including Ferro Enamel and American Meter, off 4 and 6. In the chain store issues, Great Atlantic and Pacific jumped nearly 13 points in a few sales, and Lerner gained 3.

Oils were largely steady to firm, although Vacuum lost a point. Gulf sold up more than 2, as did Union Oil Associates, and Indiana was actively traded fractionally higher. Cities Service, selling ex-dividend, closed unchanged at 25. Newmont Mining sagged fractionally to a new low, but Noranda was steady.

In the investment company issues, Prince and Whitey Trading rallied, the preferred closing at 17 3-5, up 5 3-4. The common finished 7-8 higher at 2 7-8. Goldman Sachs moved up a point.

Demand to borrow stocks to deliver against short sales again found a scarcity of shares for that purpose after the close of the market, Electric Bond and Shares, Cosden Oil and National Investors loaned at premiums as high as 1 per cent and most of the active stocks loaned flat. Short covering was said in brokerage circles to have been extensive during the day, but unhurried.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—Frank Purnell, president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, said today that there are plenty of evidences that the "steel industry is looking up." "We have passed through many months of depression, but that is all behind us," he said. "Stiffening of prices shows that many consumers have nearly exhausted their supplies. Industries consuming steel are increasing activities."

Ellery W. Mann, president of Zonite Products corporation, said that sales for September exceeded the same month last year, and that October sales to date are 15 per cent ahead of the peak period of 1929. There has been no falling off in demand, he said, and added that the corporation will spend more than $2,000,000 in advertising this year.

The Edison Electric Illuminating company, of Boston, has sold to a banking syndicate, $10,000,000 one year 3 3-4 per cent coupon notes and $20,000,000 two year 4 per cent coupon notes, all to be dated November 1, 1930. The new financing has been arranged to retire $30,000,000 4 1-2 per cent notes due November 1, next.

New life insurance production in September, was relatively better than in August, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents' compilation forwarded to the U. S. department of commerce shows. The report combines the records of new life insurance production, exclusive of revivals, increases and dividend additions, of 44 member companies having 82 per cent of the total life insurance in all United States legal reserve companies. The aggregate of all classes of new insurance for September was $894,396,000, a decrease of 1.2 per cent from $905,026,000 for September last year. The decline in August was 8.7 per cent. The total written for the first nine months this year was $9,572,397,000, an increase of .02 per cent over $9,556,527,000 for the like period last year.

American Public Utilities company, has called for redemption on November 15 at $110 and accrued dividends, all of the outstanding prior preferred stock, and at $105, and accrued dividends, all of the outstanding participating preferred. At the same time, Midland United company, which controls American Public Utilities, reopened its offer to preferred stockholders of the subsidiary company for an exchange of their stocks for stocks of Midland United.

To widen the scope of their Boston activities, E. A. Pierce and Company, will acquire the business of E. M. Hamlin and Company, members of the New York Stock exchange, Boston exchange, New York Cotton exchange. Mr. Hamlin and others of the Hamlin organization, will become associated with E. A. Pierce and Company.

Visited Newgate Prison

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dean, Mrs. Edith Hatfield and Mrs. Martha Handy have been in East Granby, where they visited the fire-swept ruins of historic Old Newgate prison, located on the western declivity of Talcott mountain. Underneath this site the first chartered English Mining Co. in America dug for copper—and on this spot, the first colonial prison was established. Later it was enlarged and became the first state prison in Connecticut. It is now owned by the Newgate Historical Corp. The grave of Captain John Viets, first keeper of Newgate prison, and his wife, is located east of the highway about 100 feet north of the prison walls. Among the interesting sights are the sentry box or guard tower and the main prison gateway, completed in 1802. The keystone bears the name, "Newgate Prison." There are remains of the chapel, interior of prison yard section, of blacksmith, wheelwright, nail and cabinet shops, where the prisoners, after making false keys from pewter buttons on their clothes, at a given signal unlocked their fetters and attacked the guard; window of sleeping room, showing the cut bar sawed by a prisoner by night with a watch spring; interior of mines, showing foot of ladder and steps to the bunks, where the British tory and state prisoners slept for over 50 years. The prison cemetery is situated about one-half mile from the prison. Visitors go down a ladder to the caverns, where there is a solitary confinement or sounding room, 45 feet below the surface. There is a fine collection of antiques and other things of interest.

MATTERS BEFORE ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE A. F. OF L

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—A comprehensive plan of unemployment relief action which embraced provisions for the cooperative participation of public and private groups to be headed by President Hoover was adopted here today by the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

The convention referred to the federation executive council, the entire unemployment insurance problem as embodied in a group of resolutions dealing with the subject. The resolutions committee which recommended such action clearly indicated its objection to existing methods of alleviating unemployment distress in this manner.

The unemployment relief program provided for the appointment of committees by President Hoover, governors of all states, mayors and other similar officers of cities and towns and by the state and local labor bodies. These committees, working with the assistance of federal and state government departments, would initiate recommendations in their respective localities to provide means of minimizing unemployment. The procedure would be carried to the territories of Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico and Canada by the unions.

The executive council was instructed to start the federal movement as far as President Hoover was concerned and state and municipal campaigns would be initiated by local and state labor organizations.

Dr. Jose T. Baron, Cuban charge d'affaires, asked officials of this government to take necessary steps to have all reference to Cuba stricken from the current film entitled "Her Man" and purporting to be a dramatic picture of life in Havana's underworld.

DEAN CROSS REPLIES TO LIEUT. GOV. ROGERS

prohibition, the care of tubercular, and rural roads improvements and indicated that in another letter tomorrow, he will take up old age pension and the business depression.

In reply to Mr. Rogers' assertion made in a letter yesterday that prohibition repeal was entirely a matter for the federal government, Dean Cross tonight pointed out that the demand for repeal of the 18th amendment may originate at a constitutional convention requested by two-thirds of the state legislatures and adopted by three-fourths of the states. He pledged himself to do his best "to start a movement for such a convention" if he were elected governor.

The text of Dean Cross' letter follows:

"My Dear Mr. Rogers: I received today your letter of reply to my offer to debate the more important issues of the campaign in any Connecticut hall and under conditions agreeable to the republican state organization. I am most regretful that you are unwilling to accept my challenge so that the voters of Connecticut might hear our first hand ideas of the vital questions to be settled in the forthcoming election.

"As you have seen fit to let this opportunity pass, I must presume that you prefer this discussion to be carried on through the public press. It is acting on this assumption that I now reply to three of your arguments and will discuss the remainder tomorrow.

"I am amazed that you have apparently followed the example of republican governors of the past in failing to read either the federal or the state constitutions. I had always assumed that one of the first duties of a governor was to read and study both of these constitutions and to be thoroughly familiar with their content. Had our former republican governors read the state constitution they would not have found it necessary to spend the public monies to call a special session of the legislature to validate statutes. Had you read the federal constitution you might have discovered that there is more than one way to handle the question of the repeal of the 18th amendment. I am amazed and somewhat startled to discover that a man who aspires to the office of chief executive of Connecticut does not know that there is more than one way of amending the federal constitution.

"To save you from too much labor I will tell you now that this second method may be found in article five of the federal constitution, which you will find on page 34 of the state register and manual of 1930.

"Perusal of this article will reveal to you that the repeal of the so-called prohibition amendment need not originate in congress, that prohibition is not entirely a federal problem needing federal solution. The demand for repeal of the 18th amendment may originate at a constitutional convention requested by two-thirds of the state legislatures and adopted by three-fourths of the states. I do not presume to know if 32 states will authorize such a constitutional convention, but if I am elected governor, I will do my best to start a movement for such a convention. This is my solution of the prohibition evil. This is why I insist that the republican prohibition plank with its policy of inaction is a vicious straddle of an important issue.

"I will next discuss the question of care of the tubercular. You express entire satisfaction with the manner in which Connecticut is dealing with this problem and repeat the words of your publicity bureau that Connecticut is first among all the states in per capita expenditures for this work. Again I ask, what of that? Do you think that enough is being done when it is an acknowledged fact that hundreds of victims of this dread disease are waiting admittance to state sanatoriums and that many cases which would have been cured with early treatment have become fatal before such treatment were available? Money and credit possessed by the state or individual means nothing if that state or individual does not take care of its own. If I were governor I would not be content until there was a bed in state sanatoriums for every tubercular victim.

"Discussing rural roads you write that the state is spending millions for state aid roads. Let me ask you right now for a plain statement of facts, do you believe that the rural roads as they exist today, are good enough for the residents of the rural district? I don't. Apparently the Connecticut Rural Roads Improvement association agrees with me. If conditions are as favorable as you declare, it is unfortunate that the members of the association are spending money to prepare a legislative program and demand the expenditure of $50,000,000 on rural roads during the next 10 years.

"Tomorrow I will discuss with you the old age pension and the business depression, two subjects of absorbing importance to the voters of Connecticut.

"Very sincerely yours,
"WILBUR L. CROSS,
"Democratic Canddiate for Governor."

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT ON BOSTON POST ROAD

WESTPORT, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Julia Cronshaw, 35, of New York city, was killed today and four others injured in an automobile accident on the Boston Post road.

The woman, a passenger in a machine bearing four others, suffered a fractured skull when the car skidded into a stone wall and overturned. Her husband, John, their 11-year-old son, Allan, and Eugene S. Hajas, the driver, and E. Guy Robertson, both of Fairfield, were admitted to Norwalk hospital and were expected to recover.

Police said that Hajas will be arrested following his discharge from the hospital.

The party had attended the wedding of a brother of Hajas in Fairfield and at the time of the accident was trying to locate another automobile bearing several other wedding guests.

Mrs. Cronshaw and her companions were thrown out of the machine as it overturned, after skidding across the trolley car tracks into the wall.

CAROLINA PAYS MILLIONS FOR COTTON FERTILIZERS

RALEIGH, N. C. — (AP) — Cotton growers in North Carolina last year spent more than $11,000,000 for fertilizer.

This was learned from the results of a study of fertilizers in the state by Dr. J. J. Skinner of the United States department of agriculture.

The average cost per acre was $6.12 the report showed. A total of 390,258 tons of fertilizers was applied to the 1,782,000 acres of cotton grown.

Omer Labonte, of Holyoke, Mass., and Waterbury, Conn., charged with carrying a concealed weapon, was sentenced to one year in jail by Judge Walsh in superior court in Providence.

POETRY

The Wish Recalled

"Oh, for Aladdin's lamp of long ago!"
The poor clerk in his stuffy hall-room cried,
"I'd wish I was John Rockefeller"—Lo!
Aladdin's servitor was by his side!

"Whatever wish you name," the genie said:
"But I have power to grant no more than one.
A moment since I heard the wish you made;
Repeat it and, behold, it shall be done!"

The poor clerk paled. A film bedimmed his sight;
He felt age withering his youth and health,
"Oh, no, no, no!" he cried in sudden fright;
"I wish to be myself, but have his wealth!"

Aladdin's servitor, with scornful laughter,
Went upward with the lamp's black reek of smoke,
"Man's wishes die of wishes crowding after,"
He shouted . . . And the wishful clerk awoke.

Walls

The walls of Jericho fell down,
The walls of Troy gave way,
The Roman walls of London town
The walls of old Cathay.

And walled in cities as of old,
Of Babylon and Tyre,
Could not protect the heaped-up gold
Gainst conquerors' desire.

But there are standing still today,
Defiant and unscaled,
The walls of pride that ever stay
With posterns bolted, nailed.

These walls keep men apart, and foes,
No peace shall come to men
Until these walls in rows on rows
Are razed to earth again.

—Clarence P. Milligan, in the Detroit News.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Kind Old Lady—Do any of your friends ever come here to see you?

Prisoner 474747—No, ma'am; they're all here wit' me.—Exchange.

"And would you like some nice horse-radish, madam?" asked the shopman.

"I think not," replied the young wife. "You see, we keep a car."—Birmingham Gazette.

Judge—Here again! How many times have you been before me now?

Prisoner—Don't know, your worship. I—I thought you were keeping the score!—Willesden Chronicle.

"Is Belinda's father the kind of man who would go after you if you eloped?"

"No, he's the kind of a man who'd move so that you couldn't find him when you got back."—Every Week.

"What makes you order ice cream for the first course and soup for the last?"

"Well, my stomach is upset, so I eat my meals backwards." — The Pathfinder.

"Does smoking offend you?" asked a landlady of her newly-arrived boarder.

"Not at all, ma'am!"

"I'm very glad to hear it, as you will find this chimney is given to the practice!"—Press Notes.

Lawyer (handing check for $100 to client who had been awarded $500)—There's the balance after deducting my fee. What are you thinking of? Aren't you satisfied?

"I was just wondering who got hit by the car, you or me."—Border Cities Star.

The little boy was gazing pensively at a gooseberry bush.

"What's the matter, darling?" asked his mother.

"Have gooseberries any legs, mother?" asked the little chap.

"No, darling, of course they haven't," said his mother.

The boy's look became more pensive than ever.

"Then I guess I must have swallowed a caterpillar," he said.—Tid-Bits.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED WITH ALICE BRADY CO-RESPONDENT

DETROIT, Oct. 15— (AP) —Alice Brady, noted actress and daughter of William Brady, producer, is named co-respondent in a suit filed by Mrs. Bernice McClelland today in Wayne county circuit court, seeking a divorce from Donald C. McClelland, actor.

Mrs. McClelland is a daughter of Michael Wiesman, wealthy Detroit automobile dealer.

McClelland and Miss Brady are in Atlanta, Ga., trying out a new play, according to Mrs. McClelland. In her suit Mrs. McClelland charges cruelty, non-support, violence of temper and association with other women.

Flies Without Steering

FUERTH, Bavaria —(AP)— Flying a new airplane for two and a half hours without touching the steering gear was the feat accomplished by Pilot Wiehler of the Focke-Wulf works of Bremen when he recently delivered a machine of the "Buzzard" type here. As soon as he reached the desired altitude he set the wheel according to his compass in a straight line for this Bavarian city. The plane never swerved.

LEGAL NOTICES

THERON E. MORGAN VS. TANYA Jackson Morgan, Supplemental Order of Notice.

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss. October 14th, 1930.

Upon the complaint of the said Theron E. Morgan claiming for the reasons therein set forth a divorce and custody of minor children now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of December, 1929.

It appearing to and being found by this Court that Tanya Jackson Morgan, formerly of Norwich, Conn., the said defendant, is gone to parts unknown and that notice of the pendency of the complaint was given as required by order of notice heretofore issued, and now the plaintiff asks for a further order of notice in the premises.

Therefore ordered, that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, Conn., two successive days commencing on or before the 14th day of November, 1930.

By order of Court,
WILLIAM H. SHIELDS JR.
Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 15th day of October, A. D. 1930.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Elizabeth Haswell, 2nd, late of Westerly, R. I., deceased.

The Executor appeared in Court and filed a written application alleging that said estate is now in settlement in said Court, and praying for an order to sell certain real estate belonging to said estate, fully described in said application.

Whereupon, it is Ordered, That said application be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, on the 20th day of October, A. D. 1930, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said application, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to the Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 15th day of October A. D. 1930.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Domenico Ginese, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.

Natale Fusaro of Westerly, R. I., appeared in Court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that administration be granted upon the estate of said deceased, alleged to be intestate.

Whereupon, it is Ordered, That said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, on the 18th day of October, A. D. 1930, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order one time in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least two days prior to the date of said hearing and that return be made to this Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

TAX NOTICE

To the Taxpayers of the Town of Sprague:

All persons liable to pay Taxes in the Town of Sprague, State of Connecticut, are hereby notified that I have a warrant to levy and collect a Tax of Ten (10) Mills on the list as made by the Board of Assessors and perfected by the Board of Relief of said Town, for the Year 1929, due and payable November 1, 1930. All persons neglecting this notice will be proceeded against as directed by the Laws of this State.

For the purpose of collecting this Tax, I shall be in my place of business, known as Caron's News Store, every day during November, from 1:00 P. M. to 8:00 P. M., and at the Parish House in Hanover, in the village of Hanover, from 4:00 P. M. to 7:00 P. M., November 21st; also, at Versailles Post Office, November 28th, from 4:00 to 7:00 P. M.

After December 1, 1930, interest at the rate of 9 per cent. will be added from the time these Taxes became due. All Taxes must be paid direct to the Tax Collector and all bills receipted by him. If sent by mail enclose postage if you wish a receipt.

Dated at Sprague, Conn., this 10th day of October, 1930.

E. J. CARON, Collector.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that a hearing will be held by the Zoning Board of Appeals for the Town and City of Norwich at the Mayor's Office in the City Hall in said Norwich on Friday, October 24th, 1930, at 11 a. m., for the purpose of hearing the appeal of Arthur Brailsford, Jr., asking for permission to conduct a riding academy upon his premises abutting on New London Turnpike in the Town of Norwich.

Dated at Norwich, this 15th day of October, 1930.

The Zoning Board of Appeals for the Town and City of Norwich.

By WALTER T. CAMP, Secretary.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 14th day of October A. D. 1930.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Mary Jane Case, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.

Ordered, That the Executrix cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having a circulation in said district, and make return to this Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE

All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at 51 Sachem St., Norwich, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.

NEW LONDON CROSSING TENDER FOUND DEAD BY WAITING DRIVER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 16.— Cornelius Sullivan, about 70, employed as crossing tender by the New Haven railroad, died suddenly of heart disease this evening, his lifeless body being found by an autoist. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Leslie Sullivan and Mrs. John Flanagan and by four sons, Charles, John, Stephen and Michael Sullivan, all of New London, besides grandchildren. Mr. Sullivan was born in County Kerry, Ireland, but had resided in New London many years. He had been employed by the railroad about 42 years. Mr. Sullivan was employed on the second trick and had evidently descended the stairs of the gate-house to procure coal. After stepping from the stairs, Mr. Sullivan was undoubtedly stricken. His body was found by a motorist who alighted from his automobile after a long wait for the gates to be lifted, only to find Mr. Sullivan on the ground, dead.

George King was arrested this evening upon orders of Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer. King was recently presented in court, and when a fine was imposed he was given opportunity to pay, but on the installment plan. When King did not keep his promise, the prosecuting attorney ordered the arrest of the man and he was locked up tonight.

John Bowden, formerly of Norwich, for he said that he had resided there several years, was arrested tonight by Patrolmen Dennis Murphy, charged with vagrancy and intoxication. He was locked up and will be in court tomorrow.

George Hapeny, restaurant worker, who spends most of his time drinking and then engaging in a row, was arrested tonight by Patrolman Dennis Murphy, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. Hapeny was locked up and will be in the police court tomorrow.

OBITUARY

Falk Hollandersky

Falk Hollandersky, 94, died last night at his home, 247 Huntington street, after an illness of about two weeks. He is survived by three sons, Sol Hollandersky, Ottawa, Canada; Harry and Jacob Hollandersky, this city; by four daughters, Mrs. Gussie Lifshutz, Newark, N. J.; Mrs. Nathan Hollander, Astoria, L. I., and Mrs. Simon Plattus and Mrs. Samuel Abrahamson, both of this city, and by two grandsons, Perry J., and Meyer H. Hollandersky. Mr. Hollandersky, who was born in Russia, had resided in New London about 40 years. He was the oldest Hebrew resident in New London and was a member of Ahavat Chesed synagogue.

Norwich Woman in Accident

Maude M. Harvey, R. F. D., No. 4, Norwich, escaped injury last night when the automobile she was driving overturned on the Military highway in Ledyard. Although the auto was damaged the woman did not sustain injury more serious than bruises and contusions. She was driving a coupe which collided with a car driven by Leon Mortenson of the submarine Base. Mortenson also escaped injury, although his car was badly damaged. The accident was investigated by State Police Officer William E. MacKenzie, who arrested both drivers on a charge of failing to grant right of way.

Double Wedding

There was a double wedding this morning at the rectory of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, when Donald H. Hays, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hays, of Groton, and Miss Esther Ryley, daughter of Mrs. Agnes Perkins, of this city, were married and Henry Dougherty, son of Mrs. Margaret Dougherty, Waterford, wedded Miss Clara Wilbur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilbur, of Groton. Both ceremonies were performed by Rev. Michael Reagan.

Faraci—Thompson

Joseph Faraci, son of Mr. and Mrs Manuel Faraci, Waterford, and Miss Helen V. Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Thompson, of Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach, were married at 8 o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's church, the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. Thomas Faraci, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Gertrude Thompson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Upon their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Faraci will reside at Mago Point, Waterford. Mr. Faraci is engaged in the auto repair business.

Baldwin—McMahon

William J. Baldwin, son of Mrs. Mary C. Baldwin of Meriden and Miss Margaret A. McMahon, daughter of William McMahon, Lincoln avenue, were married at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church by Rev. Francis X. Baldwin of Danielson, brother of the groom. Luke D. Phillips was best man and Miss Carol Kane attended the bride. Mr. Baldwin is a member of U. S. coast guard stationed at Cape May, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin will reside at Cape May upon the termination of a wedding trip.

Kohl—Williams

Frank J. Kohl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Kohl, Clement street, Waterford and Miss Jessie E. Williams, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Leslie W. Williams, of Colman street, were married at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley. William F. Kohl, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Gertrude E. Noyes, instructor at Connecticut College for Women, attended the bride. The ushers were Robert C. Lonergan and Francis E. Gallagher. Mr. and Mrs. Kohl are to reside in Noank.

OPIUM AS TUMMY ACHE CURE DID NOT EXCUSE GUN LAI

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 15.—Gun Lai, Chinese laundry employe residing at 119 Main street, was charged with illegal possession of opium. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs. Lai was arrested by H. H. Wombers, of Providence and in charge of the New England division of narcotics, together with Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Frank Philopena Monday afternoon. The narcotic division had received information that Lai was receiving numerous supplies of opium and when the officers entered Lai's house a quantity of the drug valued at $50 was found and seized, together with a smoking outfit. Lai said that he smoked the drug for the purpose of alleviating abdominal pains from which he had long been sufferer. He said the smoke of the drug always brought him relief.

Hartwell Baxter, of the Golden Spur, East Lyme; Mrs. Joseph Moore and infant daughter, 46 Allen street, Groton; Mrs. William Rose, East Haddam; Mrs. Stephen Brodesky and infant son, 132 Winthrop street; Henry Holdridge, Mystic, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

FUNERALS

Joseph T. Moore, Jr.

Joseph T. Moore, Jr., infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Moore, 36 School street, Groton, died at Lawrence Memorial hospital last night. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence of the parents, the services being conducted by Rev. J. J. Allen, pastor of the First Baptist church. Burial was in Ledyard cemetery, Groton.

Dennis O'Neil

The funeral of Dennis O'Neil, of 19 Clover court, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including a delegation of members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The bearers were John McCarthy, Michael Corcoran, John Connell, Hugh Shannon, Timothy Ahearn and Thomas Quill. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Clifton H. Topping

The funeral of Clifton H. Topping was held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at his residence, 14 Alger street, and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Miss Moxley, first reader of the First Christian Science church. The bearers were James R. Marshall, Fred J. Smith, Albert B. Hart, Harry F. Myers, William N. Bellamy and William L. Spicer. Burial was in Cedar Hill cemetery, Hartford.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of Charles H. Sternberg, 130 Riverview avenue, and Fred C. Haldeman, United States coast guard. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the return of the licenses of Larry Bove, 877 Bank street, and Edward J. Walsh, 194 Shaw street.

An automobile owned by Katharine Avery, 66 School street, Groton, stolen while parked on Granite street last evening, was recovered several hours later by State Police Officer James Dyggert, who found the car abandoned in Waterford.

Fred R. Shasterny, 730 Main street and Leroy Buffington, 59 Connecticut avenue, reported to the police this afternoon that their Chrysler touring car had been stolen from its parking place on Bank street, near the corner of Jefferson avenue. The state police and the police throughout the state have been requested to be on the lookout for the automobile.

BAD BOY PISCATELLA GOING BACK TO MERIDEN

John Piscatella, 17, of 144 Norwood avenue, one of four youths arrested yesterday charged with a series of burglaries, is locked up at police headquarters and tomorrow he will be taken to the state reform school for boys at Meriden. The boy's crimes have made him a violator of parole at the school to which he was committed several years ago. Piscatella, it developed today, was the brains of the gang who stole from buildings and residences and where money was not obtained, other loot consisting of metal and electric light fixtures and equipment was sold to Max Adel, a junk dealer at 100 Howard street. The boys entered the city's store house on Jefferson avenue Monday night and stole metal which was disposed of to Adel. Today, it was revealed that Piscatella last August gained entrance to the home of Edward Lathrop, 280 Montauk avenue and stole $200. He has admitted all his thefts. The other youths, who are minors, will be in the juvenile court during the week.

PATROLMAN H. WATTERSON HAS BEEN SUSPENDED

Charged with being intoxicated while on duty, absent from his beat and failing to report at specified intervals, Patrolman Harry Watterson is to be given a hearing by City Manager William A. Holt. Last night the patrolman was suspended following his being found drunk. City Manager Holt has not assigned a date for the hearing, but probably will do so within a day or two. Watterson is one of the youngest members of the department, but he has been tried several times on charges, principally for intoxication and absenting himself from duty without permission.

Last evening, about 6:15 o'clock, Sergeant Samuel Hick detected a strong odor of liquor from Watterson's breath and reprimanded the patrolman, at the same time advising Watterson to refrain from indulging in liquor, especially while on duty. The officer was supposed to report over the police signal box hourly and this he failed to do at 9:30 and 10:30. His beat is on Bank street and when the officer failed to make the two reports, Lieut. James Sullivan and Sergeant Hick started a search for Watterson. After making a tour of Watterson's beat and failing to find him, the officers went to the malt and hop store of Robert Murray, corner of Bank and Howard streets, and there they found Watterson intoxicated in a rear room. Watterson was taken to police headquarters and there suspended, being relieved of his badge and revolver.

Fined $100 And Costs

Robert Burgess, 48 Henry street, a carpenter and the father of six children, was charged in the police court this morning with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving while under the influence of liquor. A demurrer entered through counsel was overruled and the driver was fined $100 and costs. Burgess was driving his automobile on Bank street Sunday afternoon and at the corner of Denison avenue it crashed with a car driven by Barney Belgrade, 202 Montauk avenue. The crash resulted in Belgrade's auto overturning, injuring the driver. Burgess jumped from his car and ran away, but he was arrested an hour later on Willetts avenue by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh while attempting to go to Waterford.

Taken Back To The City

Elida Solander, 19, of New York; Beatrice Thompkins, 21, and Olga Wexler, 20, both of Brooklyn, N. Y., were charged with lascivious carriage. Their cases were continued until tomorrow, but the girls will not be presented in court again, for a sister of the Solander girl, who holds a secretarial position in a New York law office, was to come to this city this evening and will be given the custody of the girls and take them to their homes. The girls came to New London last Monday night and immediately sought the companionship of sailors; in a short time the trio went to Waterford in an automobile and with three bluejackets as companions. Upon the return to New London the girls went to a down town hotel. Yesterday, the girls were observed loitering on the street by State Police Officers John Smith and William Elmer MacKenzie and were arrested, charged with vagrancy. Events revealed that the girls had been guilty of misconduct and the charge against them was amended to the more serious offense.

George Mather, Mather court, charged with reckless driving, upon recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer had his case nolled. Mather was arrested three weeks ago.

For intoxication, a resident of Jewett City was fined $5 and costs and a man of 55, employed as a laborer at Fishers Island, was given suspension of judgment.

MAX LONG TELLS CLUB OF BIG GAMES IN PHIL.

Max Long came back from the two games of the world series played in the Quaker city (where Ben Franklin shot the electricity) that had the world on the go. Max went all the way by auto, an open-air car. On Monday night at the Aunt Sarah Peabody club, known as the non-tobacco users, 100 members gathered to hear all about the Philadelphia White Elephants and St. Louis Red Birds, the fan Long being presented to the non-tobacco users by President Leo Harris.

Max, who has not missed a world series in 15 years, with a smile, said: "Well, ladies and gents of this famous club, I am here tonight to tell about baseball games as played in Philly. I sure saw some real playing on both sides. Take Gelbert, one of the greatest shortstops that ever put on a pair of shoes; he is in a class by himself, and some fast, throwing a ball to first base like a bullet. Everybody can tell at the Stovepipe club that he will be the world's best player in another year!

"I could sit all day and see him play —like clockwork! And Al Simmons is a sure hitter! When he hits one, you can tell them back home it is out of the ball lot! Gee! I had to laugh once. When Hafey hit one into the stands, right near me, and about 1,000 hands went up, trying to get the ball! I had a claw-hammer coat on with my pocket open and by accident the ball dropped in there, never to return! Gee! Those fans was mad, but I had the smile that never came off, to get a world series baseball without sticking up my good right hand!

After the battle was over I went to the hotel where the St. Louis players were staying and went and saw Gelbert, the 21-year-old star player for the Cards and asked if he'd put his name on the ball. He said, 'I will sure do that for you!' Then up steps Chick Hafey and says, "I will do that also, and you can tell them back in Connecticut all about the baseball that will be kept on your shelf for years to come!"

"Gelbert said, 'Are you yelling for us Red Birds to win over the House-of-Mack players?' So I came back with ready to ask, 'Why not place your money on the Cards with Manager Street at the helm, who knows baseball like a book and he will deal the deck a little out in St. Louis and win a couple of games and it will be the best series in the history of this North America! It will go seven games for the Cards are not licked until the game is over! I sure was happy to get those two names on that baseball. Also those two games were the best ones I've seen in many years—full of thrills and many good laughs with those two funny men that would make hair grow on a bald-headed man!

"Well, everybody, I think I have told you all now. Hope you like the talk. Here is the baseball that each one can look at!"

What an ovation he got—like the hero, Lindy, got when he flew among the clouds to Paris. For ten minutes he was cheered and the talk was like listening to Billy Sunday.

A light lunch was served with cocoa; then the Prospect Hill orchestra played for dancing until the moon got up high and was shining on the floor, meaning time to go home. The Aunt Sarah Peabody club members will not soon forget that talk on the world series by Max Long.

FERGUSON'S NEW JEWELRY STORE FORMALLY OPENED

Ferguson's new jewelry store, located at 189 Main street, opposite the Wauregan hotel, was formally opened today. During the day the handsome new store was visited by a large number of friends and everyone marveled at the moderness and beauty of the new place. Cigars were passed out to the gentlemen visitors and flowers were given the ladies.

John H. Ferguson, one of the oldest jewelers in the city, in point of service, conducted a store at 239 Main street for a period of 35 years and during that time gained the confidence of a very large patronage. These many customers will be given the same reliable service at the new store and in addition everything possible will be done for their comfort. One of the features of the new store is a diamond room. Here the customer may be seated in comfort and may select in the strictest of privacy a diamond and mounting, or may consult with Mr. Ferguson, the remodeling of some favorite pieces that they may possess.

All of the cases in the new store are of mahogany, standing on bases of black marble. Another feature of the store is the radio department which is stocked with the latest of General Electric and Brunswick machines.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut.

Goodyear's India Rubber Glove Mfg. Company, Naugatuck.

Naugatuck is best known as the Rubber town not only because of its present position in the rubber industry, but chiefly, because of the early history of the industry, its growth and development is so closely associated with it. It was to be expected that these companies should bear the name of Goodyear.

It was in Naugatuck, in the year 1843, that the first pair of rubber shoes was made and vulcanized. Goodyear had provided the material and lasts, and brought with him his eldest daughter who made the shoes, afterwards vulcanized in a little shop just above the present plant of the Goodyear's Metallic Rubber Shoe company.

The Goodyear's Metallic Rubber Shoe company was founded in 1843 in the town of Naugatuck and began in a very small way the manufacture of rubber shoes. The business promised success, so in 1845 the organization of the company took place. From that year to the present time there has been an uninterrupted and continuously successful business. The company was first to introduce "Arctics", the invention of Thomas C. Wales. On account of his connection, the company has become widely known as the "Wales-Goodyear" plant. It manufactures boots, lumbermen, artics and gaiters.

The Goodyear's India Rubber Glove Manufacturing company, organized in 1844 and incorporated in 1847, starting operations with seven employes in what was called "the little red mill." Rubber gloves were originally made. This company now manufactures waterproof footwear, druggist sundries, bathing shoes, and caps, water toys, and other bathing supplies.

In 1919 the companies, although retaining their corporate identity, were merged under one management for practical and economic reasons, and since that time have been operated as practically one plant.

These companies employ at the present time 3,000 operators.

The present officers of the company are:

Charles T. McCarthy, treasurer; Walter H. Norton, factory manager.

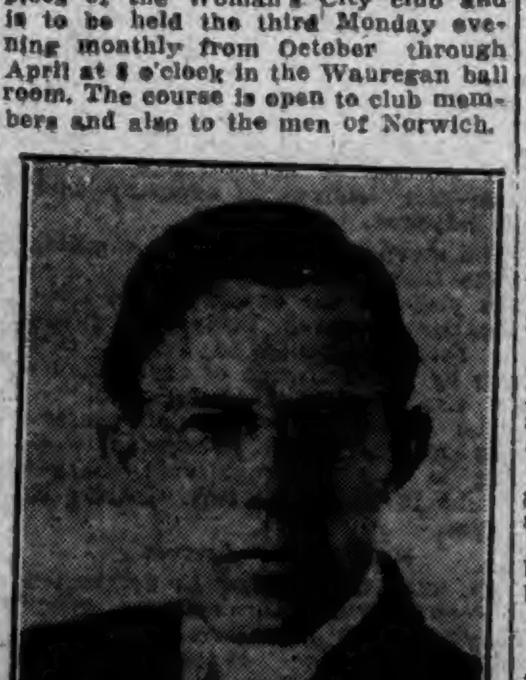
Lawrence Course of Lectures

This coming season there is to be a series of seven talks on "Current Events and Their Historical Backgrounds," given by Henry W. Lawrence, Ph. D. (Yale) who is head of the dept. of history at Connecticut college. This course is given under the auspices of the Woman's City club and is to be held the third Monday evening monthly from October through April at 8 o'clock in the Wauregan ball room. The course is open to club members and also to the men of Norwich.



DR. HENRY W. LAWRENCE

Dr. Lawrence is a frequent contributor to newspapers and periodicals and the author of "The Not Quite Puritans." He has been for twenty years a teacher of history in New England colleges and universities and is a member of the American Historical association, The American Political Science association, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the National Economic league and the American Association for Labor Legislation.

The Woman's City club cordially invites the men of Norwich to attend this interesting and enlightening course, given by one who is well qualified to interpret world events, and whose pleasing personality and delightful sense of humor combine to add much pleasure to a truly worth-while series.

Palace Theatre

One of the finest double-feature shows that has ever been presented in any theatre is now playing at the Palace theatre where it will be shown through Saturday of this week. The pictures which are combined on this program are "The Squealer" with Jack Holt and a fine supporting cast and "Maybe It's Love" with Joe E. Brown, Joan Bennett and many favorite stars.

"The Squealer" is a story of New York's underworld and is a thoroughly gripping drama. It tells the story of a man who is in a perfectly respectable business apparently but who, in reality, is involved in a series of underworld affairs. He takes vengeance on a gang member who has made trouble and through his wife's interference is put in jail. Here he ponders the situation and decides that she is a terrible sort of a person and he stages a great jail-break and goes home to mete out her punishment.

Famous as the man whose face is his fortune, Joe E. Brown goes through all his usual contortions in "Maybe It's Love" much to the delight and amusement of the audience. Cast as a football hero he does his stuff to perfection and leaves nothing to be desired.

Joan Bennett plays the part of the campus belle and proves to be the magnet which draws the college football stars to her alma mater's field. Laura Lee adds more fun to the picture in her role as Joe's sweetheart and they are both simply dizzy.

Here is a show which will thrill you with its spine-tingler and which will make you roar with laughter at its comedy. Do not fail to see it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Thrills, color, clever dancing, tuneful songs, and an absorbing story of an affectionate husband and a too-perfect wife make Cecil B. De Mille's "Madam Satan," which opened at Warner's Broadway last night, an attraction of great entertainment merit.

It is De Mille's second M-G-M picture, and his first with music. The story concerns the marital differences of Bob and Angela Brooks, a masked ball aboard a zeppelin at which an exotic and mysterious "Madam Satan" appears, the mid-air crack-up of the airship, the descent of the hundreds of guests via parachute—all linked together with songs by Herbert Stothart and Clifford Grey; Jack King and Elsie Janis; and the dance creations of Leroy Prinz, borrowed from Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

The principals are Reginald Denny, who sings with power and force; Kay Johnson, a perfect "Madam Satan"; Roland Young as Denny's blundering friend; and "Trixie," ex of the vaudeville stage, the modern and gold-digging "other woman." It has all the exotic feel of a typical Cecil B. De Mille production. The story is by Jeanie MacPherson with dialogue by Gladys Unger and Elsie Janis.

What Is Going On Tonight

Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. E., meets in Elks' home.

Canton Oneco, No. 3, I. O. O. F., meets in Odd Fellows' hall.

Victory lodge, No. 4, I. O. O. L., M. U., meets in Steiner hall.

GOSHEN

Misses Mary and Elizabeth Randall and Miss Mabel Noyes, of Lebanon were callers here last week.

The sermon Sunday was based on Ps. 107. A girls' quartet sang at the offertory. The C. E. meeting was conducted by the citizenship committee and was held at the home of Miss Clara Gillette.

Miss Annie Gillette will entertain the Ladies' Aid society at an all-day meeting, Friday.

Miss Pauline Mayo, of New York, a professional reader, who tours the country every year will be in this section and take part in the morning service next Sunday, Oct. 19th, with religious readings. She does not usually visit country churches and it is a rare privilege to have her here.

Birds of prey and wild animals are reaping benefits from the drouth, as fish scales in quantities, mostly of pickerel, are noted on the rocks along the brookside.

A number from this place attended the one hundredth anniversary observance of the Baptist church in Colchester, Sunday evening.

Work has begun on changing the course of the Glenelg river in western Victoria, Australia, so that it will run through the wheat and sheep country of the Wimmera district. The project calls for a twenty-five-mile channel through mountain.

Red, Itchy Pimples Disfigured Face. Healed by Cuticura.

"My brother's trouble started with pimples on his ear and later developed into sore eruptions. They spread to his face very rapidly. The pimples were hard and red and some of them were large. They itched and burned and made him scratch, disfiguring his face. During the period that his face was covered we kept him from school.

"We began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment he was healed." (Signed) Miss Albertine Albert, 21 Pearl St., Franklin, N. H., Feb. 15, 1930.

GREENEVILLE

BULLETS ENTER FINISHING CO., MISSING EMPLOYES

Two bullets believed to have been shot from across the Shetucket river crashed through windows of the United States Finishing company Wednesday morning at about 10 o'clock, barely missing employes of the factory. The police were immediately advised and Officer Patrick Murphy was detailed to conduct an investigation. The officer scoured the territory in the vicinity of the mill and later went across the river but was unable to apprehend the guilty persons. He did learn, however, that three boys had been seen with rifles on the Preston side of the river.

The police will make a determined effort to apprehend the boys and if they are caught there is little doubt but they will be severely punished. About this time every year the same trouble prevails for the young men with rifles do not realize that if they fire at objects in the river the bullets sometimes glaze off the water and hit the mill. If the violators do not use caution in the matter some one may be seriously hurt.

WEDDING

Sample-Ring

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's Memorial church Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock when Miss Lillian T. Ring of 211 North Main street was united in marriage by the pastor, Rev. George J. Donahue, to Robert J. Sample of 6 River avenue, this city. Miss Julia Savage, of Taftville, a personal friend of the bride, was maid of honor, while Mathew McGee of Hartford acted as best man. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of brown chiffon velvet with hat to correspond and carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses. Miss Savage wore a gown of green crepe and velvet hat to match and her bouquet consisted of butterfly roses.

Following the church ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's mother, Mrs. Daniel Sample of 36 River avenue. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Sample left on a wedding trip to St. Petersburg, Fla., by automobile. On their return they will be at home to their many friends at 211 North Main street. The bride was the recipient of numerous and beautiful wedding gifts. As a going away costume Mrs. Sample wore blue and gray. Mr. Sample is a carpenter by trade and his wife is a trained nurse, being a graduate of St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic. Their many friends wish them happiness and prosperity in their newly married life.

Double Birthday Party

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clovis Charbonneau on Boswell avenue Tuesday evening a double birthday party was held in honor of their daughter, Miss Irene Charbonneau, and their son Clovis Charbonneau. During the evening many games were played and enjoyed. Both Miss Charbonneau and Master Charbonneau were the recipients of many gifts. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Oat and Mrs. LaBelle.

Among those present were Miss Marguerite Shea of Jewett City, Dorothy Daley, Yvonne Boucher, Alice Cote, Mildred Brodeur, Mary Driscoll, Charles Robinson, Wilfred Roberts, Edward Fenton, Joseph Hartnett, Arthur Cote, Thomas Smith, William Casey, Joseph Cummings, Richard Cummings, James Cormier, Richard Sullivan, Jerry Gleason, James Selvido, Rosellie Cummings, Alice Roberts, Marguerite Grady, Catherine Sullivan, Margaret Lord, Clovis Charbonneau, Irene Charbonneau, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Oat, Mrs. LaBelle, Mr. and Mrs. Merton Parkhurst, Miss Ruth Parkhurst, Florence Parkhurst, Mr. and Mrs. Clovis Charbonneau, and Robert Parkhurst. The party broke up at a late hour.

Williams Simms has returned to his home at Slatersville, R. I., after spending a few days with Richard Seed on Baker avenue. Mr. Simms was formerly an overseer at the United States Finishing Co.

Opening Reception at Y. M. C. A.

Friday evening of this week the local Young Men's Christian association will hold its annual fall reception for the adult members and their friends. Invitations are being mailed, and the programme will be a most attractive one.

The management has engaged the Rotary band and it will render a fine musical programme under the leadership of John M. Swahn, whose excellent training will be demonstrated on this occasion. In addition to the band music, Physical Director Demarest will lead the senior, intermediate and junior groups in brief and interesting gymnastics.

STATE TEACHERS WILL HOLD THEIR FALL MEETING

The historical significance of 1930—by presidential proclamation "the Covered Wagon Centennial"—will be the theme of the 84th general fall meeting of the Connecticut State Teachers' association, to be held at Hartford, New London, Bridgeport and New Haven, October 24th.

The general meeting in Hartford, will be held at the Bushnell memorial, in the morning at 9.30 o'clock. Carrying out the program of honoring the heroic part played in the western migrations by New England pioneers, the speaker, Dr. Charles A. Beard of New Milford, will give a talk on "The Frontier and New England's Contribution to Its Advance."

There will also be a motion picture, "From Clay to Bronze," which is sponsored by the Museum of Fine Arts at Boston.

Suit Against Neighbor

In a suit brought in the common pleas court by Joseph Sipolski, alias Sipulenski, against his neighbor, Bertha Golumb, alias Bertha Golub, an injunction is asked for to oblige the defendant to remove two sheds and two retaining walls from the Sipolski land. It is claimed these were erected ten years ago. Damages of $1,000 are asked in the suit.

NORWICH TOWN

Friends and acquaintances in Norwich Town have expressed deep sympathy for Ellery E. Weeks of Willimantic in the sudden death of his wife, Effie M. Weeks Monday evening at their home in Prospect street, who suffered a hermorrhage while horse-back riding in company with her husband.

The meeting of the work committee of the League of Service, scheduled to take place in the chapel of the Congregational church Friday afternoon has been postponed to Friday, Oct. 24th, by the chairman of the committee, Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington.

The mid-week service of conference and prayer this (Thursday) evening in the Congregational chapel will be in charge of Rev. Charles E. Reeves.

New Pastor Arrives

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington of Peck's corner had as dinner guests Tuesday, Rev. and Mrs. Wilfrid M. Wilton and two daughters, from Cornwall, where Rev. Mr. Wilton has held a pastorate the past few years. Rev. Mr. Wilton is to become pastor of the First Congregational church, having recently accepted the call.

Relatives, friends and neighbors attended a month's mind requiem high mass for John Joseph White, of West Town street, at the Sacred Heart church Tuesday morning at 7:30 o'clock, sung by the pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn. Mrs. William A. Murphy, the organist, was in charge of the music. Miss Mary Buckley sang De Profundis at the offertory and at the conclusion of the mass she sang Abide With Me.

The fall coating of tarvia has been spread over the state highway, from the town line on Washington street, through Norwich Town to Yantic. The work was under the supervision of Foreman Ernest Gadbois.

Rev. Charles E. Reeves was the officiating clergyman at the First Congregational church Sunday morning "The Harvests of God" was the theme of the sermon. Revelation 14:16 was the text, And he that sat on the cloud thrust in his sickle on the earth, and the earth was reaped. When Rev Frank A. Fuller, of Putnam, preached at this church Sunday, October 5th, his theme was "Faith." Hebrew 11:1. Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.

In attendance at the Old Home day exercises at Montville Center church Sunday from Norwich Town were: Mrs. Letitia Comstock, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, Mrs. Charles W. Chapin, Henry T. Frazier, Mrs. William H. Whiteman and her automobile guests, Mrs. Edwin Lathrop and Mrs. Andrew Gardner and Mrs. Francis Herrick, who was a guest of Miss Alice Bishop, and Mrs. Bishop, of Bozrah, also Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb.

Callers Saturday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Frank D. Coles of 169 Harland road were Dr. Coles' sister, Mrs. E. M. Bitgood of Middletown, and her guest, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. E. M. Bitgood, Jr., of Los Angeles, Cal. They were accompanied by Mrs. Maynard, also of Middletown, being en route to North Attleboro, where the younger Mrs. Bitgood is to visit for several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Miner. Mrs. Bitgood, who came to Connecticut to visit her husband's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Bitgood, is returning to Massachusetts where she was at first called by the illness of her father. She expects to be away from her California home two months.

Mr. and Mrs. George Geer and Mrs. Josephine Parker, of the Plain Hill road, had as guests Sunday Mrs. Parker's cousin, Mrs. Ella Montgomery and daughter, Mrs. Christiana Doe, also her daughters, Hazel and Ruth Doe, of Providence.

Miss Teresa Raney of Malden, Mass., was the guest Tuesday of Dr. and Mrs. Frank D. Coles.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stafford of Mystic have been spending a few days with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Pike, of Norwich Town. They came expressly to see their first great-grandchild, Vivian Marie Pike, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vincent Pike, of West Town street.

American exports of playground and amusement park equipment have doubled since 1925.

BABY GIRL LEFT BY WOMAN IN OFFICE OF NORWICH SELECTMEN

The selectman's office in the court house received an unusual gift Wednesday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock when a woman left a baby girl there and hurried away without telling either who she was or to whom the baby belonged.

Selectman William S. Murray was busy in conversation with a caller when the woman with the baby in her arms came in, passed through the gate into the space behind the iron grating which makes a partition in the room, and laid the baby on a table with the remark, "I was told to bring this here."

Then she turned and darted out of the room, slamming the gate behind her to prevent any attempt to detain her. Selectman Murray sprang after her to stop her, but the closed gate barred his way and she was out of the building before he could reach her.

With the baby, a girl between five and six months old, the woman left a bottle of milk on which the little one dined contentedly during the afternoon under the care of Miss Nellie Harrington, bookkeeper in the selectman's office. Later Selectman Murray arranged to have the child sent where it could be taken care of, first having it examined by Dr. W. T. Driscoll, who pronounced her somewhat undernourished and prescribed a course of feeding that included orange juice and cod liver oil.

The baby was well clothed, with a knitted cap and sack, and had apparently been given good care. Besides the clothing she wore she had a baby blanket around her when she was left on the desk in the selectman's office.

Efforts to find out who left the baby in the selectman's office resulted in finding that the woman was Mrs. Nellie Edwards, a widow, residing at 564 North Main street, and the selectman learned that she had had the child since Saturday night, when it was left in the entry of her home by a woman whose name is said to be Cummings. She formerly resided on Franklin street but is now said to be in New Haven.

The police were requested to bring Mrs. Edwards to headquarters and early Wednesday night Selectman Murray with Sergeant Matthew Delaney went to the home of Mrs. Edwards on North Main street to interview her. For some time she refused to answer the door, but she finally let them in and was brought to the selectman's office, where she was questioned at length. Later her son, John, a taxi driver, who is understood to have been keeping company with the Cummings girl, came to the selectman's office with Attorney G. C. Morgan and departed again with the attorney after being questioned. According to the attorney, Edwards denied the paternity of the child. Sergeant Delaney took Mrs. Edwards back to her home after her conference with the selectman was over.

Selectman Murray later consulted with Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis and City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy as to any further steps to be taken in the matter.

BAPTISTS OF STATE TO MEET IN CONVENTION

Preceded by a series of gatherings and conferences today (Thursday), the 107th annual meeting of Connecticut Baptist convention will be held Friday and Saturday at the First Baptist church in New London. Delegates from 155 Baptist churches in the state will attend the session of the state convention of which Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt, of this city, is president.

Among the outstanding figures on the program will be William Lyon Phelps, Lampson Professor of English Literature at Yale, who will deliver the convention sermon Friday morning, around the convention theme: "The Church a Home Builder;" Dr. James W. Baker, veteran Baptist missionary to South India, and recognized as an authority upon political, economic and religious conditions there; Princess Ataloa, converted Chickasaw Indian, and contralto of nation-wide repute who has devoted her life to fostering Indian education and culture at Bacone university, a Baptist institution in Oklahoma; Rev. Bruce Jackson, head of the department of field activities at National Baptist headquarters, New York, who will lay the plans and projects of the denomination before the meeting, and Dr. John N. Lackey, pastor of Central Baptist church, Hartford.

The program also will include several missionaries representing various Baptist home and foreign projects. A special feature of the convention will be the layman's banquet in Second Congregational church, Saturday evening, which will be addressed by C. C. Tillinghast, of New York, principal of the Horace Mann school for the training of teachers and a prominent figure in the Baptist laymen's movement. Following the banquet he will conduct a conference on the place of laymen in the religious life of the community.

There also will be a Saturday evening banquet for young people, at which Dr. Thomas Wearing, dean of Colgate-Rochester Divinity school, will be the principal speaker.

ROUND TABLE BEGINS MEETINGS FOR SEASON

The season for the Norwich Round Table was opened Tuesday evening with a well attended meeting in the Norwich Town chapel, the hostesses being Miss Jennie L. Congdon, Miss Bessie M. Grant, and Mrs. Edward A. Smith.

The roll call was answered by naming a picture and the artist and an illustrated talk on art was given by Miss Mary G. Henderson. The music was by the Jubilee Singers, a group of five, one of whom gave readings, and three poems were given as follows: Pictures of Memory, Mrs. John E. Fanning; Order For a Picture, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Davis; and A Portrait, Mrs. M. E. Genter.

NOLLE ON PAYMENT OF $10 IN COURT

Clifford La Rochelle of 66 Meyers avenue paid the flat sum of $10 in the city court Tuesday morning, when City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy made the recommendation that a charge of failure to grant right of way made against La Rochelle be settled in this manner.

La Rochelle was summoned in by Constable Lucius Fenton of Norwich Town following an auto accident at the intersection of Washington street and Harland road Monday morning. A machine that he was driving struck another operated by Richard P. Gregson of Harland road. As a result, three persons suffered slight injuries. The drivers of both cars, together with Miss Grace La Rochelle, were hurt.

MACHINES IN COLLISION ON MILITARY HIGHWAY

After colliding with a coach owned and operated by Leon Mortensen, of the U. S. Submarine base at Groton, a sedan driven by Mrs. Maude M. Harvey, of R. F. D. No. 6, Norwich, overturned on the Military highway, in the town of Ledyard, Tuesday evening. The drivers escaped injury but the machines were considerably damaged.

State Police Officer Elmer McKenzie arrested both drivers on charges of failure to grant the right of way. They will be presented in justice court in Ledyard.

BEQUESTS IN WILL OF MISS JENNIE M. CASE

Bequests to relatives are made in the will of Miss Jennie M. Case, late of Norwich Town, a school teacher for many years in Norwich, which has been filed in the probate court. The will was made Jan. 27, 1925, being witnessed by Herbert L. Yerrington, Anna H. Yerrington and Frances D. Young. Gertrude Browning of Norwich is named executrix.

To a cousin, Virginia Taylor Cooley of Norwich, is bequeathed the sum of $500. To nieces, Gertrude Browning of Norwich, Elizabeth Browning Rathbone of Boston, Mass., Ruth Browning and Catherine Browning of Brooklyn, N. Y., is left the sum of $1,000 each.

To a sister, Hattie L. Browning, of Norwich, is left the furniture and household effects.

"All the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, both real and personal, of whatsoever the same may consist and wheresoever the same may be situated, I give, devise and bequeath to my sister, Hattie L. Browning, of Norwich and to my niece, Elizabeth H. Fuller, of Wichita, Kansas, to be theirs absolutely, share and share alike. In the event the said Elizabeth H. Fuller shall die before my decease, then I direct that the share she would have taken if she had lived, shall be paid and delivered to my said sister, Hattie L. Browning. In the event the said Hattie L. Browning shall die before my decease, then I direct that the share she would have taken if she had lived, shall be paid to my four nieces, the said Gertrude Browning, Elizabeth Browning Rathbone, Ruth Browning and Catherine Browning, in equal shares, to be theirs absolutely. In the event that Hattie L. Browning and Elizabeth H. Fuller shall both die before my decease, then I direct that the said rest, residue, and remainder of my estate shall be paid and delivered to my four nieces, Gertrude Browning, Elizabeth Browning Rathbone, Ruth Browning and Catherine Browning, in equal shares, to be theirs absolutely."

HARVEST SERVICE FOR FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH

The service Sunday morning at the First Evangelical Lutheran church, in which the Sunday school will participate is to be a harvest service to which fruits of field and garden will be brought to the altar and will be distributed after the service to the poor or given to the Salvation Army. The Sunday school staff will act as a committee for this work. Special offerings will also be brought to the church and the pastor, Rev. Carl Storek, has invited the young women of the church to arrange for decorations. There will be a special sermon and special music.

BUYS $70,000 SEA SLED FOR DUCK HUNTING TRIP

Col. William Haywood of New York is visiting in New London for the purpose of completing arrangements for the delivery of a $70,000 sea sled which he and a small group of sportsmen have had equipped with a stern paddle wheel for duck hunting on the Mississippi river.

The palatial sea sled, which is 55 feet long, is to be launched from the plant of the Sea Sled Co.

The boat is to be driven to Buffalo under its own power and it will then be shipped to Chicago, where the hunting party will be organized and the trip down the Mississippi river started. After the hunting season is over, Colonel Haywood will run the sea sled to Palm Beach.

Andrew Giguerre in Navy

Andrew L. Giguerre, of this city, is attached to the U. S. S. Salt Lake City and holds the rating of pharmacist's mate. Giguerre recently held the position of ship's photographer and is known for his good work in both capacities. Giguerre furnished pictures of the recent fleet review to the assistant secretary of the navy and possesses a letter of acknowledgement from Hon. Earnest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy. The ship is now at Hampton Roads, Va.

A. M. BINGHAM TO WRITE FOR BULLETIN ON INDIA

Alfred M. Bingham of Salem sails from New York today (Thursday) for an extended tour of Europe and the Far East. He intends to make a study of political and social conditions in parts of the world which are in a condition of great unrest at the moment, especially India, China and Russia. The Bulletin has secured his services as a special correspondent, and during the coming winter will publish monthly letters about the situation in India.

Mr. Bingham is a son of Senator Hiram Bingham. He graduated from Yale college in 1927, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic society, and was otherwise active in college affairs. Last spring he graduated from the Yale Law school, where he was an editor of the Yale Law Journal, and was shortly afterwards admitted to the Connecticut bar.

ALFRED M. BINGHAM

Political activity has already attracted Mr. Bingham. He was a delegate from Salem to the state republican convention last month, where he seconded the nomination of Ernest E. Rogers for governor. It is understood that his present trip is to include a study of political systems and economic conditions in other parts of the world. On his return, Mr. Bingham is expecting to enter the practice of law in New London.

REVOLUTION SONS NOW FAVORING CONSOLIDATION

The directors of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution in Connecticut at a meeting Tuesday at the Hartford club went on record as favoring a consolidation of that historical organization with the Connecticut society of the Sons of the American Revolution and a committee was appointed by the president, Charles B. Whittlesey, to draft a letter calling for a referendum on the question.

Various steps to merge the two societies have been made since 1892 and the Sons of the American Revolution recently appointed a committee on the matter. It consists of George S. Godard, state librarian, Herbert H. White and Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers.

The committee that will draft the letter to be sent by the Sons of the Revolution includes Clarence H Wickham, chairman, John Marvi Parker, Jr., Harry W. Reynolds and Mr. Whittlesey.

Those who attended the meeting were, in addition to those on the committee, Seymour P. Bradley of Nev Hazen Rollin L. Tyler of Tylerville William A. Knapp of Bridgeport, B. L Lawton of East Haddam, Daniel Nas Morgan of Hartford and Charles F Chase of New Britain.

Similar unions have already taken place in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana and, according to Mr. Whittlesey, other mergers are expected to bring both societies together nationally.

In Connecticut the Sons of the Revolution is the older organization while the Sons of the American Revolution antedates it nationally. The former society now has about 80 members in the state while the latter has more than 1,300.

Being fond of cocktails is not necessarily a feather in a man's cap.

WORKERS DISCOVER QUICK METHOD TO OVERCOME FATIGUE

They Take a Moment to Eat or Drink Something Sweet

Salesmen who cover miles each day, and business folks who go at top speed at their desks and counters, know that mid-afternoon is the zero hour as far as energy is concerned.

Since rest and relaxation are out of the question at this busy time of the day, countless workers have found to their delight that a piece of candy, a cookie, ice cream, or a sweetened drink—even sugar dissolved in water—restores vigor almost immediately.

The reason for this is that the sugar content of these "snacks" supplies the system with quick nourishment without taxing the digestive system. When the body is thus nourished, fatigue is materially lessened.

Recent tests among workers have proved the value of this practice of eating something sweet in mid-afternoon. A well-known physician in Philadelphia often advises business men to drop in at a soda fountain at 4 o'clock and drink a flavored milk shake. Nervous exhaustion is overcome and the evening meal is eaten later with calm enjoyment.

The demand of the system for refined sugar should not be denied. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN AS A YOUNG MAN

Franklin's early life was full of hardships and difficulties, as is commonly known. His first position was as a printer's helper, which was by no means lucrative, but it was the only business he was adapted to. Later he started a printing shop of his own and founded the Pennsylvania Gazette. The Saturday Evening Post of today was also founded by him.
The courtesy and tact shown by our representatives is just another appreciated feature of our service.

BRUENING GIVES WARNING TO THE GERMAN PARLIAMENT

Informs Friends and Foes Alike That Germany Must Put Her Own House in Order Before Looking Ahead For Aid—The Chancellor Was Unable to Start His Address Until President Loebe Warned Some of the Delegates by Name That They Would Be Suspended From Membership if They Continued—Dr. Bruening Was Heckled by the Communists—The Fascists Occasionally Were Boisterous

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—(AP) —Chancellor Heinrich Bruening today outlined to the reichstag the government's plans for economic reform, warning friends and foes alike in parliament that Germany must put her own house in order and cure some of her own ills before looking abroad for aid.

The astute statesman, the cabinet's hope in its present business stringency and political confusion, avoided any direct thrust at Adolf Hitler and his 107 right wing delegates, but he spoke sympathetically of youthful Germany's discontent with the way President Wilson's fourteen point peace and even the Versaillies treaty itself affect foreign countries as compared with Germany.

Amid a din of shouting from both communists and national socialists, the chancellor was unable to start his address until President Loebe warned some of the delegates by name that they would be suspended from membership if they continued.

Government spokesmen said by inference that the pathway of the nation to peaceful prosperity and real national independence lies half way between Adolf Hitler, with his outspoken defiance of the republic, and S. Parker Gilbert, former reparations agent. Gilbert, before leaving Germany at the conclusion of the repayment program, declared Germany's ills were largely the result of her failure to put her own financial house in order.

"Away with reparations," had been the campaign slogan of the Hitlerites, in last month's election which swept nine times as many fascists into the reichstag as had been there in the previous session.

The meeting of the parliamentary body at times took on a solemn aspect. The presiding officers and the cabinet were present in their government capacity rather than merely as reichstag members, for the first time.

Dr. Bruening pointed out that only after the budget had been balanced, an operation over which the last reichstag crashed on the rocks of dissolution, could the fatherland "as a result of her crisis invoke those measures which, according to treaty, Germany has at her disposal forwarding off danger to her economy and exchange."

The chancellor evidently wished to convey a definite impression that he felt certain Germany's creditors would not consider granting her a moratorium unless they should be convinced she was doing all possible in the way of internal economy. This economy, he held, is the crying need of the hour and the whole nation "must cut out its frills and return to Spartan simplicity."

Thus without mentioning Hitler by name the chancellor parried the fascist leader's anti-Young plan agitation with constructive proposals. He also alluded pointedly to failure of the allies to live up to the Versailles treaty, especially as it applied to disarmament.

Dr. Bruening said the bank for international settlements at Basel had not pointed the way to new possibilities for exports for Germany as the German signers of the Young plan had expected the bank would do.

Dr. Bruening was heckled largely by the communists; the fascists only occasionally were boisterous.

Outside the reichstag building everything remained quiet.

POLICEMEN INJURED BY COMMUNISTS IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—(AP) —Three policemen were slightly injured tonight in breaking up a communist demonstration in the Wedding industrial district. Six men were arrested.

When demonstrators threw stones at police they were dispersed with blackjacks, whereupon others rained down flowerpots and crockery from the upper floors of adjacent tenement house. The police finally quieted the community.

HERBERT HOOVER, JR., TO WINTER AT ASHEVILLE, N. C.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. —(AP)— A bungalow overlooking Asheville, N. C., today was selected as the home of Herbert Hoover, Jr., during his convalescence from a tubercular infection this winter.

The 27-year-old son of President and Mrs. Hoover is to leave the presidential camp in the Virginia mountains early next month and occupy the home of Henry Berger on Sunset mountain.

Captain Joel T. Boone, in announcing the selection, said the decision was based largely on Asheville's proximity to Washington, affording easy accessibility to the patient's family.

The bungalow is built at an altitude of about 2,500 feet, the same as that at the Virginia lodge. It overlooks a golf course and the city of Asheville, and in the distance Pisgah mountain is visible.

A six months' lease has been taken on it with the option of a similar extension.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., who has been at the Virginia camp with her husband, is expected to precede him to North Carolina early in November and arrange for occupancy of the house, which has been vacant for some time. Their three children are to remain in California.

The son of the president took an indefinite leave of absence from his work after his health broke down early in September. At the time of the diagnosis Dr. Boone said a complete and early recovery was probable. Today he said the patient had shown satisfactory progress.

PLANNING $100,000 STOCK BUILDING AT STORRS

STORRS, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Trustees of the Connecticut Agricultural college are planning to sell the Gilbert farm in Fairfield county, bequeathed to the college by the late Edwin Gilbert, manufacturer, and from the proceeds erect a $100,000 livestock building here.

The Gilbert farm, which was given for the purpose of teaching agriculture, is too far from the college to be of practical value. It has been used for experimental purposes in raising livestock, although at one time the Gilbert Farm School of Practical Agriculture was started there.

The trustees are now negotiating with six heirs of the Gilbert estate and will ask court approval for the sale. The total value of the farm and stock left by Mr. Gilbert for maintaining it is valued at $300,000.

COAST GUARD BOATS IN QUEST OF DISABLED SHIP

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Two coast guard patrol boats today searched the northeasterly edge of Georges Banks for the Marietta B, Boston auxiliary dragger, which was reported disabled 190 miles east of Cape Cod last night. The boats were immediately dispatched to her aid but no report had been received from them today and as high seas were running it was assumed the two were having difficulty establishing contact with the dragger.

POLICE INDICTED FOR DRY LAW CONSPIRACY

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Oct. 16.—(AP) —Chief of Police Ray H. Gaunt and five other police officers were indicted by the federal grand jury today on charges of conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition laws.

COSTE AND BELLONTE RECEIVE CHECK FOR $25,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, who sowed the seeds of daring on the ocean air, reaped a golden harvest today.

At a luncheon in their honor they were presented with a check for $25,000 representing the prize offered by William E. Easterwood, Jr., of Dallas, for extending the flight from Paris to New York on to the Texan city.

Yesterday they had privately received a check for almost twice that amount, the unexpended balance of the fund raised by the good will flight committee, composed of Col. Charles A. Lindberg and various other wealthy men interested in aviation.

The presentation today was made by Col. Easterwood. Coste responded in French, telling of the receptions he and Bellonte had been given in many cities and saying that from now on he and his comrade would consider that they had two countries, France and America.

Tomorrow Coste and Bellonte sail for home on the liner Grance, to rejoin their wives.

BOMB THROWING IN THE DANVILLE TEXTILE STRIKE

DANVILLE, Va., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Serious violence made its first appearance in the Danville textile strike early today in an explosion at the home of the mill overseer, apparently the result of a bomb hurled from a speeding automobile.

Nobody was hurt by the explosion, which was heard in nearby sections of the city. Jerry Wentz, the overseer, and four other persons were asleep in the residence at the time.

The explosion tore a large hole in the ground and shattered the windows of the house.

Union pickets who were posted about a block from the Wentz residence said shortly before they heard the explosion an automobile carrying a Danville license sped past them and turned into an avenue leading past the Wentz home.

$50,000 BOND TOO MUCH FOR VAGRANCY CHARGE

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—(AP)—A third member of the "Public Enemies club" was removed from the streets of Chicago today, but a supreme court decision that $50,000 bond was asking too much of an alleged vagrant made easier the lot of James "Fur" Sammons.

The high court at Springfield ruled that Judge John H. Lyle of the Chicago municipal court disregarded and openly violated constitution and law in fixing prohibitive bond and reduced the figure to $5,000. Sammons' attorney was expected to furnish the money and obtain his freedom shortly.

WHISKEY VALUED AT $1,000,000 SEIZED IN NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Whiskey valued by federal agents at $1,000,000, the largest haul in the history of Newark, was seized by police and firemen today at an old factory in Rome street. Four men found in the building were arrested.

Police also held for questioning Abraham Aronow, whom they said they found in a garage at the rear of the plant in a truck marked "ice cream." He said he made daily trips to New York with ice cream. Police declared ice cream cartons in which liquor jugs fitted were found in the building.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Several morning newspapers said that Captain J. Errol Boyd and Lieutenant Harry P. Connor were planning to fly their veteran monoplane Columbia back to Canada in the near future.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Having braved one crossing of the Atlantic ocean, Captain J. Errol Boyd and Lieutenant Harry P. Connor now are planning a return trip to North America in the airplane Columbia some time next month.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The belief that personal intercourse between England and the United States is the royal road to a better understanding between the two peoples was expressed at a banquet by Viscount Grey of Fallodon, veteran English statesman and wartime foreign minister.

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 16.—(AP)—One American is almost certain to witness the ceremony uniting in marriage Princess Giovanna, daughter of the king and queen of Italy, and Boris, bachelor king of Bulgaria on October 25 in the historic cathedral here. He is Father Thomas a Franciscan monk, whose family name is Braitsch. He was born in Philadelphia, and became a Franciscan at the Franciscan institute, Syracuse, N. Y., in 1886.

NEW WOMEN'S RECORD TRANS-CONTINENTAL FLIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Keith Miller, British flier, clipped nearly five hours from the women's trans-continental flight record today. Leaving Valley Stream, N. Y., Monday morning, she made the coast to coast transit in 25 hours, 44 minutes flying time and arrived at municipal airport at 10.53 a. m. (P. S. T.)

The previous women's record, 30 hours, 27 minutes, was made last week by Miss Laura Ingalls, St. Louis aviatrix, who is now flying eastward to set a west-east record. Mrs. Miller, who won fame by flying with Captain Lancaster from London to Australia three years ago, will leave here "in two or three days" in an attempt to lower whatever record her American rival sets.

"I've been up at 4.30 every morning for a week," Mrs. Miller said at her hotel. "Now I'm going to have the luxury of sleeping a few mornings. The start of my return flight will depend largely on weather conditions. I want to be sure I'm not going to hit anything like I did coming over the Alleghenies and the midwest."

INVESTIGATING $200,000 FIRE ON BATTLESHIP COLORADO

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Suspicious circumstances surrounding a $200,000 fire on the battleship Colorado last June are being investigated by the navy department.

Secretary Adams said today "events surrounding the fire led us to believe that there might have been some tampering" and that "when any suspicion arises a thorough investigation is conducted."

Explaining that there is "generally some natural explanation for those things," the secretary added he had received no report of the investigation and expressed the opinion that if anything out of the ordinary had happened he would have been notified.

He disclosed the investigation today in commenting on published reports that the department believed the fire was started deliberately, which he characterized as "exaggerated."

MT. VERNON MAN CHARGED WITH MURDER OF HIS WIFE

NORWALK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Solomon Subshein, 50, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., declared insane by physicians, tonight was charged with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Subshein, 47, who earlier in the day, was found dead in her bed at Pleasant inn, Rowayton.

The woman's death was attributed to a heart attack induced by strangulation. Marks on her face and neck led police to believe that she may have been choked to death by human hands, while a set of false teeth found lodged in her windpipe also gave rise to the theory that the woman may have been the victim of accidental strangulation.

Dr. William H. Slaughter, medical examiner, performed an autopsy this afternoon, but withheld his report.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE THE PRICE OF PROHIBITION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Urging the churches to "eternal vigilance" on the prohibition question, Dr. Alva W. Taylor of Vanderbilt university today told the international convention of Disciples of Christ that "if we nap at the gate, the enemy will take it."

Taylor, one of the two secretaries of the disciples' board of temperance and social welfare, also asserted that educated Negroes "will not tolerate our Uncle Tom attitude," and that unless the race question is dealt with "there is serious trouble ahead."

FATALLY INJURED IN DOUBLE PARACHUTE TEST

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Fred Cole, professional parachute tester, died in Nassau hospital tonight several hours after suffering serious injuries in a double parachute test.

He carried two parachutes. The first he opened at a height of 2500 feet and reached the ground.

But he landed on a concrete roadway feet first. The impact rolled him over backwards and his head struck the ground.

BURGLARS CRASHED WINDOW IN BRIDGEPORT JEWELRY SHOP

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 16.— (AP) — Crashing a window of the G. W. Fairchild and Son, jewelry store at 997 Main street, early this morning, daring burglars grabbed approximately 50 gold watches, valued at $2,000 and made their escape.

Although the robbery occurred in the heart of the city, no one had been found up to press hour this morning who saw the robbers at work.

PLEADED GUILTY TO ROBBING NATIONAL BANK

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Harry Lee Watson, described by postal officials as one of the cleverest bank and postal robbers captured in many years, pleaded guilty in federal court today to robbing the Grove National bank at Grove Ill., and was sentenced to ten years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Communists Routed By Police In New York

Four Disturbances Within a Few Hours Reached a Climax in City Hall Park

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—A series of four communist disturbances within a few hours today reached a climax in an outbreak in City Hall park in which demonstrators were dispersed by charging mounted police. The communist candidate for lieutenant governor, as well as three women and two other men, was arrested.

Communist spokesmen entered City hall to read a petition concerning unemployment and to protest to Mayor Walker against what they called police brutality. In the disturbance which accompanied their ejection one man was beaten with blackjacks and kicked by detectives, bystanders said.

The delegation that went to City hall to read the petition before the mayor and the board of estimate was headed by J. Louis Engdahl, candidate for lieutenant governor, and included three other men and a Negro woman. They were ordered out after Sam Nesen protested against an increase in the budget for the police department, on the ground the police were brutal to the working class.

The delegation was pushed downstairs. One man, attempting to escape, shattered a glass door, and Nesen was badly beaten. The whole delegation was held for questioning.

The disorders in the park broke out when Engdahl, who is also secretary of the International Labor defense, was ejected from the building.

Engdahl's efforts to make a speech to his followers in front of City hall were stopped and he was borne on the shoulders of the crowd to the sidewalk in front of the Woolworth building. He made another attempt to speak, and in the confusion a young woman jabbed a pin into the flanks of a mounted policeman's horse. It kicked, knocking out a plate glass window in a drug store.

A girl, about 16, fell directly in front of another policeman's horse and was trampled and slightly hurt.

Another plate glass window in the store collapsed under the pressure of the crowd.

The demonstration was finally ended when police carried off Engdahl and those arrested with him.

Earlier in the day, a small demonstration in front of the city employment agency and two minor riots at Sixth avenue and Fortieth street were broken up by small groups of police with little disturbance. Six persons were arrested for disorderly conduct.

SMALL TIME RACKETEER SLAIN IN PATERSON, N. J.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Morris "Mushy" Friedman, known to police as a small time racketeer, turned an afternoon stroll into a run for his life today and lost.

Two men jumped from a car and one started firing as "Mushy" ran toward his home. He fell dead with several bullets in his body.

Johnny King, former pugilist, was arrested and Morris "Fat" Berliner, King's alleged beer running associate, was sought. Police said Berliner fired the shots and that later King drove him to Bergen county where another automobile was waiting.

PAGE & SHAW STOCK SALESMAN SENTENCED

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 16—(AP)—Pleading guilty to the fraudulent sale of securities, George F. Williams, of Boston, Mass., one of several arrested a few months ago in connection with the sale of Page and Shaw and Holland Far East stock, was sentenced to sixty days in jail by Judge Arthur F. Ells, in criminal superior court this afternoon.

The sentence was given upon the recommendation of Assistant State's Attorney Lorin W. Willis, who said that he understood Williams had made restitution in every case where fraud had been charged.

She was a granddaughter of Peter Cooper, philanthropist and founder of Cooper Union. In 1897 she founded the Museum of Fine Arts at Cooper Union in collaboration with her sister, the late Eleanor G. Hewitt.

Cross Repeats His Challenge To Rogers

Third Le[illegible]als With Old Age [illegible]n and Business D[illegible]on [illegible]AVEN, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Dean [illegible] Cross, democratic nominee [illegible]vernor, in a third letter to his [illegible]blican opponent, Lieut.-Gov. Er[illegible]t E. Rogers, dealing with campaign issues tonight charged the republican party with having "grossly deceived the American public in its claim that prosperity follows only in the wake of republican rule."

Having disposed of the questions of prohibition, care of the tubercular, and rural roads improvement in a letter last night, Dean Cross tonight took up the issues of old age pension and the business depression. He also repeated his challenge to Mr. Rogers for a public debate on the issues of the campaign and added that if the republican nominee is "personally reluctant to make such an appearance, we will be glad to name a member of our party to meet any member of your party in such a debate."

Discussing the cost of the old age pension system, which Mr. Rogers said he believed would run into millions annually, Dean Cross asserted that the cost of the plan "is less than the discreditable system of the poorhouse." Even if this were not so, Dean Cross said he would still favor the system, since he believes "in adequately providing for our citizens when they have lost the ability to be producing units of industry."

Concerning the business depression, Dean Cross said:

"It is not a question of how far the republican party is responsible for the coming of hard times, but rather, did the republican party deal fairly with the people in constantly assuring them that such a thing could never happen during a republican regime."

"HINDU MYSTIC" CREDITED WITH FINDING OF BODY

MADILL, Okla., Oct. 16.—(AP)— A self-styled "Hindu mystic" tonight was credited by members of the dead man's family with finding the body of Alton Edgar, 34-year-old farmer, in a lonely ravine southwest of here, a bullet wound in the head.

The discovery of the body ended a search of eight days by relatives and county officers and resulted in the arrest of Edgar's wife, Ruth Nicholas Edgar; her brother, Hardy Nichols, and Harlan Sullivan, a brother-in-law. They were held in the county jail tonight without charge, Sheriff Ed Long said.

Edgar disappeared October 7. Clues were lacking and relatives and friends scoured the countryside without finding any trace. Finally John Edgar, brother of the slain man, appealed to a self-styled seer, "Doctor Kelly" of Ada.

"He is dead!" the doctor told John Edgar. "In a lonely creek near a schoolhouse you will find!" A search of places fitting such a description revealed the body.

A. F. OF L. RE-ELECTED ENTIRE SET OF OFFICERS

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor in convention here, today re-elected its entire set of officers headed by President William Green and selected Vancouver, B. C., as the 1931 convention city.

The selection of Vancouver was preceded by serious debate on the convention floor on the merits of holding the meeting in the United States or Canada. The opposing cities were Columbus, O., and Salt Lake City, Utah. The vote was Vancouver, 24,386; Columbus, 4,005, and Salt Lake City, 54.

During the debate, insinuations were made and denied that the delegates were placing sentiment and "thirst" ahead of judgment in determining the winner. William P. Clarke, of the Flint Glass workers, who urged that the convention be given to a United States city, told the delegates that "those of you who may be thirsty, exercise your manhood to right the wrong done in the United States and not run away to northwest Canada."

FISHING SCHOONERS READY FOR RACE TODAY

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 16.—(AP) —Repairs completed, Bluenose, champion of the Canadian fishing fleet, tonight was ready to resume her battle with the Gertrude L. Thebaud, fastest schooner out of Gloucester.

Ships carpenters worked all day, high at the fore masthead of the big Canadian salt banker, replacing the trestle trees that were broken yesterday in a race that was sailed in a 40-mile wind and a stormy sea, a race which resulted in no decision because the sailing committee felt visibility too poor to go on after the half way mark.

PASSENGERS AND CREW ESCAPED FROM SINKING SHIP

HAVANA, Oct. 16.—(AP) —The two passengers and 28 members of the crew of the Cuban steamship Antolin Del Collado, which sank early today after a collision with the Munson liner Hallmoor, in the fog outside Mariel harbor, were brought to Havana this afternoon aboard the Hallmoor.

The rescued sailors said the Antolin, with the regualtion lights burning, was proceeding slowly toward Mariel port when the Hallmoor suddenly loomed up. Before the smaller craft could swing out of the way she had been struck amidships and almost cut in half, they said.

MAKING FLIGHT FROM ENGLAND TO AUSTRALIA

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlement, Oct. 17. (Friday)— (AP) —Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith took off this morning for Surabaya, Java, beginning the ninth day of his flight from England to Australia.

The Australian aviator now is five days ahead of the record for the same distance of Bert Hinkler, English flier who set an air record of 15 1-2 days from his homeland to Australia.

Kingsford-Smith reached here last night after making the first non-stop flight over the 1,400 miles separating Rangoon from Singapore. He hopes to [illegible] Sunday.

TROOPS CONCENTRATING IN BRAZIL FOR MAJOR BATTLE

Federal and Insurgent Armies Are Mobilizing Along the Parana-Sao Paulo Frontier—Rebels Claim That 60 Companies of Federals at Catharina Have Joined the Revolutionaries—Federal Reserves and Volunteers Are Gathering at Various Training Camps

PORTO ALEGRE, Oct. 16.—(AP) —Progress in the state of Minas Geraes with the surrender of an entire regiment of federal infantry and claims of the defection of large federal forces to the insurgents were reported today in an official rebel communique.

The communique stated that a heavy concentration of troops was in progress along the Parana-Sao Paulo frontier, where the federal and insurgent armies have been gathering for a major engagement. Observers today expressed the opinion that the present massing of troops along this line was the greatest concentration ever seen in South America.

While not stating the number of soldiers involved, the insurgents made the claim that 60 companies of federals at Catharina, under the command of Captain Mario Carvalho, had gone over to the revolution. Two machine guns and other material were taken over.

The federal regiment reported to have surrendered was described as the 11th infantry, stationed in the state of Minas Geraes. These troops had been surrounded by the insurgents and their surrender was said to be without condition.

The official rebel communique declared that thus far the rebels have not met with a single reverse in Minas Geraes.

Reports received during the day told of scattered engagements along the Parana-Sao Paulo line.

(Newspaper dispatches received in Montevideo said that a battle was being fought along this frontier, but no confirmation of this was received. These reports said that the federal army had defeated the insurgents, inflicting 400 casualties).

While the rebels today were claiming progress in their campaign against the government, the official government statement said the positions of the forces on the Parana-Sao Paulo line were unchanged. The government also asserted the loyal troops were advancing on their objectives in the southern part of Minas Geraes.

Federal reserves and volunteers have been gathering steadily at various training camps and men from half a dozen cities reported for duty yesterday.

PRACTICAL TEST OF SAVING MEN FROM SUNKEN SUB

NEW LONDON, Oct. 16.— (AP) —Practical tests of the Momsen lung, a device which enables men to escape from submerged submarines, were held at the U. S. navy base here today and described by the National Broadcasting company over WJZ.

Lieut. Momsen and the three enlisted men entered a "miniature submarine compartment" at the bottom of the tank. After the compartment had been flooded with water to an armpit height, they donned the lungs and escaped through a safety hatch. George Hicks, announcer, gave a description of the men as they left the compartment, while Captain S. N. Ives with a second announcer, James Wallington, at his side were on top to pick up the description as the men appeared on the surface.

The three enlisted men left the compartment first. A buoy to which a line had been attached preceded them to the surface. With the line to guide them, the men stopped after completing 70 feet of the climb for decompression as a safeguard against the "bends." From then on a stop was made every ten feet until the surface was reached.

Lieut. Momsen followed the enlisted men. He stopped at the 70-foot mark to transfer into a diving bell bearing Captain Ives and Wallington which had been lowered to meet him. From the bell, Lieut. Momsen spoke through a microphone and then left the bell to continue his ascent.

ARMY OFFICER LOSES LIFE IN CRASH OF PURSUIT PLANE

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Speeding across the continent on a mission of peace, Lieutenant William W. Caldwell, army flier, lost his life in the crash of his fast pursuit plane in a raging mountain blizzard yesterday.

Crushed and broken in the wreckage of his plane, Caldwell's body was found today on a hill top near Lookout in the rugged country, 70 miles west of here. It was apparent his plane had plunged to the ground at terrific speed during weather characterized by veteran mail fliers as "zero-zero"—no ceiling and no visibility.

Caldwell's flying companion, Lieutenant Irving A. Woodring, whose plane bore the document of Japanese ratification of the London naval treaty, made his way through the storm and continued on his mission to New York from Victoria, B. C.

Army officers from Fort Francis E Warren claimed the body of the dead airman.

SHOT WIFE'S AUNT DEAD, THEN COMMITTED SUICIDE

DAVENPORT, Iowa, Oct. 16.—(AP)—M. H. Dawson, executive manager of the Mississippi River association, today shot and killed his wife's aunt, Mrs. Jessie Horwood, and then committed suicide.

Friends of Dawson, who was 52, said they believed financial worries caused mental derangement.

Coroner J. D. Cantwell pronounced the case murder and suicide and said he would hold no inquest.

Dawson was a brother of A. F. Dawson, executive secretary of the national republican senatorial committee, and was a prominent business man.

$50,000 ALIENATION OF AFFECTIONS AWARD

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 16.—(AP) — A circuit jury today awarded Mrs. Elva F. Foster, wife of Dr. Alan C. Foster, prominent Birmingham physician, $50,000 in her suit against Mrs. James M. Fears for alienation of her husband's affections.

The alienation suit was filed several days after Mrs. Fears had filed suit against Mrs. Foster for $5,000 damages, alleging assault and battery.

Mrs. Fears' suit charged Mrs. Foster struck her with an umbrella when the two met in the physician's office.

DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — (AP) — Loans to brokers an dealers held by New York federal reserve member banks for the week ending October 15 were announced by the federal reserve board today as $2,752,000, representing a decrease of $153,000,000, as compared with the preceding week.

NEW OFFICERS FOR PRINCE WHITELY TRADING CORP.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)— Partners in the brokerage firm of Prince & Whitely, recently suspended from the New York stock exchange for insolvency, today resigned as officers of Prince & Whitely Trading Corp., and a new board was elected. The trading corporation is an investment trust formed by Prince & Whitely a year ago.

Members of the new board are: Matthew C. Brush, president of the American International Corp.; William Cutler, vice president of the American Brake Shoe & Foundry Co.; Clarence J. Dauphinot, president of Hibernia Trust Co.; Frank C. Ferguson, president of the Hudson County National bank; George K. Morrow, chairman of the board of the Gold Dust Corp., and H. E. Talbott, Jr.

A statement signed by Philip De Ronde, president, and issued after the election said that the action was taken "to protect the interests of the many thousand stockholders of the Prince & Whitely Trading Corp., through a conservation of their existing assets and to attempt a conservative rehabilitation of the corporation's affairs."

"A preliminary examination of the affairs of the Prince & Whitely Trading Corp.," the statement added, "discloses certain transactions with the firm of Prince & Whitely, now in receivership, which will result in loss to the corporation.

"A further communication will be made to stockholders as soon as more definite information is available as a result of the investigation of the corporation's affairs about to be made."

INVESTIGATING STORY OF THE SHOOTING OF DIAMOND

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—An underworld story that the shooting of Jack "Legs" Diamond last Sunday was in reprisal for the gangster's alleged retention of $50,000 paid him last August to obtain protection for a Brooklyn brewery, was under investigation today by the district attorney and the police.

District Attorney Crain said he was informed that "Waxie" Gordon, Broadway hotel owner and reputed beer racketeer, gave Diamond the $50,000. Detectives are looking for Gordon.

Diamond, the story goes, went to Europe on the money and the brewery was raided while he was gone. On his return, "Legs" was reported to have been notified he would have to pay up before noon last Sunday. Just about noon, Crain pointed out, Diamond was shot by gunmen in his room at the Hotel Monticello.

Physicians at Polyclinic hospital said for the first time today that Diamond has a chance to recover. He was placed on a liquid diet preparatory to removal of the three slugs his assailants pumped through his crimson pajamas.

COLD WAVE IS DRIVING DOWN MISSISSIPPI VALLEY

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 16—(AP)—Snow in the northwest and a cold wave driving down into the Mississippi valley states gave a forewarning over a broad expanse today that winter soon will be here again.

Snow fell in the Dakotas and Minnesota and cloaked the northern Rocky mountain region to a maximum depth of seven inches. A trace fell in Denver.

Temperatures in the section first hit by winter's advance foray ranged far below the freezing point. Through Montana and Wyoming the mercury hovered around 10 and 15 degrees above zero and skies were clearing after a storm last night.

STATE CONG. CONFERENCE TO BE HELD HERE NOV. 4-5

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 16.—The annual conference of the Congregational churches of Connecticut will be held here November 4th and 5th. About 350 delegates will attend and the sessions will be held in the First Congregational church on Valley street. Attorney E. Frank Bugbee will be moderator.

Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of this city is in charge of the program for the meetings. Speakers engaged include Professor Robert Seneca Smith of Yale university, Dr. Robert W. Barstow, new president of the Hartford Theological seminary; Hubert C. Herring, secretary of the social service commission of the national council, and Dr. John M. Phillips, new pastor of the Center church, Hartford.

Mrs. Robert H. Fenton is chairman of the committee on hospitality and Mrs. Edward J. Tryon will have charge of a dinner to be served on the Tuesday of the conference.

It was announced today that the short calendar session of superior court scheduled for this city Friday has been postponed by Judge Newell S. Jennings who will come here Friday of next week for that purpose. Clerk of the Court Curtis Dean of South Coventry will, however, assign cases for trial tomorrow.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Effie M. Weeks

At the funeral services for Mrs. Effie M. Weeks held at 62 North street this afternoon at 2 o'clock, there was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock officiated. Burial took place in the new Willimantic cemetery. The pall bearers were Mayor Walter E. King, Sheriff Charles A. Gates, Louis N. Ayer and Albert E. Welch. Friends from Norwich attended the funeral. Avery and Van Zandt were in charge of arrangements.

John H. Lucas of 20 Spruce street, who is assigned to the U. S. S. Salt Lake City, was honored recently at Bar Harbor, Me., when he was a member of the whaleboat crew that received a cup for winning the whaleboat race in which the entire light cruiser division competed in the international maritime tennis meet.

Because there is dissatisfaction with the manner in which the affairs of the Taxpayers' Protective association are being administrated, there will be a meeting of the organization in the town hall Monday evening, according to a call issued today by the publicity committee.

Action is possible to a change in administration. The call sent out by the committee is to the effect that many members are dissatisfied because every move to reduce town and city expenses has been defeated and that the gradual reduction of taxes, one of the main reasons for the formation of the association, has been relegated to a secondary consideration.

The water committee of the common council has selected Alderman Herbert I. Sanderson to patrol the tributaries of the Natchaug river and thereby determine if the water in any of these streams is being held back through the damming process, thereby affecting the local water supply. The work will be completed within a week. The amount of $75 was appropriated for this purpose. The announcement was made today that the water in the pumping station pond has risen 3-4 of an inch. It is still 30 inches below normal.

Every dollar given by the public in the $500,000 campaign for a new Windham Community Memorial hospital will be used in the construction and equipment of the institution, said James B. Fullerton, general campaign chairman today. It was explained that the expenses incidental to the drive will be met from a separate fund furnished in advance.

Employment conditions at the American Thread company plant here are practically unchanged, it was announced today by a local official. The finishing department is on a full-time schedule of 48 hours a week with the exception of several sections and the manufacturing department is working 4 days or 35 hours.

A discussion of the value of the small claims court will take place at the October meeting of the chamber of commerce to be held in the Nathan Hale hotel next Monday evening. Attorney Thomas Hewes and Judge Herbert A. Rose, both of Hartford, will deliver addresses. Acceptances thus far indicate that there will be a large attendance. The matter of establishing such a court in this city has been under consideration for some time.

Following the annual meeting of the Willimantic Camp Meeting association, extensive improvements are being made at the Camp Grounds, the foremost of which is repairing and reconstructing of the several streets by Contractor Archa S. Walker of Eastford. The main thoroughfares will be recovered with gravel and tarvia. Six cottages on the Grounds were recently transferred in ownership.

Albert F. Young, of 255 High street, Wednesday afternoon picked three Baldwin apples in his orchard aggregating in weight 3 pounds and 6 ounces. The apples are on display in a Main street business house. The heaviest was 19 ounces and was 13 1-2 inches around.

Dr. Charles C. McCracken, president of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, spoke on "Methods of College Studies" at a meeting of the Exchange club in the Nathan Hale hotel Tuesday evening. Dixon Van Zandt was in charge of the meeting.

Arthur R. Jones of Wallingford was fined $15 and costs amounting to $26.40 in the Mansfield town court Wednesday evening for speeding. When presented before Justice of the Peace Byron M. Houston, he pleaded not guilty but was convicted on the testimony of State Policeman Victor Clark of the Stafford barracks. He was driving a truck that figured in an accident.

The entertainment committee of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps will stage a public whist, the date of which will be announced later. At the corps meeting this week, Mrs. Helen French was awarded the mystery package. The entertainment committee is planning to stage a Halloween feature.

At a meeting of the South Coventry Men's club Wednesday evening a committee including Herman LeDoyt and Walter Brooks was appointed to make arrangements for a series of entertainments during the winter. The committee will submit a report at the next meeting.

The board of selectmen and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton will meet in the G. A. R. hall Saturday to admit new voters. This will be the final opportunity before the state elections next month. Out of a total of 269 applications filed but 102 new voters were made last Saturday.

The State Trade school athletic plant, which is located at "The Ridges" and will be finished late next month, will include a baseball and football field, two tennis courts, two out-door basketball courts, running track, volley ball court quoit lanes, trapeze and horizontal bars. It is also planned to install a miniature golf course for students, and an artificial lake is also a possibility. The property is skirted by the Willimantic river. The athletic funds is derived by monthly fees of 10 cents for a student and $1 for a faculty member.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Potter of Church street spent the day in Putnam.

Mrs. Margaret B. Church of Lewiston avenue entertained the Hill Bridge club Wednesday afternoon. Four tables were in play and the game was followed by luncheon. Mrs. Ralph U. Wolmer and Mrs. Kenneth N. Hillhouse were awarded the prizes.

Dr. J. A. Girouard of Pleasant street is attending the clinical congress of the College of Surgeons in Philadelphia. Next week, he will attend the International Medical congress in Minneapolis, Minn., while the third week he will attend the Mayo brothers' clinic in Rochester, Minn., returning the first of November.

Stafford Springs

Jacob Levinsky, of Worcester, who while standing near the track at the fair grounds Wednesday afternoon was knocked down and trampled by Star Echo, one of the race horses at the fair, received several scalp wounds and a fractured skull. At Johnson Memorial hospital he continues in serious condition. The horse had thrown her driver as she came down the home stretch and was racing for the barn when Levinsky was struck. Langley, driver of Star Echo, was injured when thrown to the ground.

Miss Josephine Gilligan has returned to her duties as teacher at Staffordville school, after a few days' visit with her sisters, Misses Helen and Corinne Gilligan, in New York.

Sold Cider With a Kick

Clarence Gibbons, of Staffordville and Wales, arrested by state troopers at the fair grounds Tuesday afternoon for selling hard cider, was before Judge Heald in the borough court Thursday morning. He was found guilty of selling fermented cider and was fined $25 and costs of $11.60. Gibbons claimed that he bought the cider from another man, supposed it was sweet cider, and did not know that it had such a kick in it.

Aid Society Meeting

The Hospital Aid society will meet at its room in the Nurses' Home Tuesday afternoon when the annual dues will be collected. The officers of the Aid society are: Mrs. Emma Ekstrand, president; vice-presidents, Mrs. Delia Russell, Mrs. Ethel Wickes; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Annie Engley; ways and means committee, Mrs. Ethel Wickes, chairman, Mrs. James Sheppard, Mrs. Frank Doyle, Mrs. Katherine Melbourne, Mrs. Harry Pownall, Mrs. A. Miss Edna Crescio, of New York, has been spending several days with borough friends and relatives.

George Clancy, of New York, a former resident of Stafford Springs, was a recent visitor with relatives in town.

WESTMINSTER

FREAK TWO-BODIED CHICKEN FOUND DEAD BY OWNER

The freak six months' old White Leghorn pullet of the Goodrich farm in Canterbury, described in a recent issue of The Bulletin, which had two bodies, four legs, two wings and one head, is dead. It was found dead by its owner Sunday. The pullet had reached laying age and something in the peculiar formation of its anatomy is believed to have caused its demise. A well known surgeon, Dr. Rodney Rowell, of Stamford, while visiting in town read the account and being skeptical, decided to go and see the freak. The pullet had died a few hours before but examination proved it to be just as described. Dr. Rowell pronounced it a most extraordinary freak and advised Mr. Goodrich to send it to the state laboratory for examination.

The Political Situation

With town election over, the republican caucus Thursday evening and the democratic caucus Friday evening, the residents are all set for the state elections in November, after a spirited contest. The Republicans nominated Clinton E. Frink, of Canterbury Green, who has served for three consecutive terms as first representative and Howard Rix of Westminster who has also served in that office in his former home town. The democrats nominated Carleton E. Lovell and John Cone candidates for representatives. A. Hale Bennett, democrat, who was elected first selectman at the recent town election, will retire this year as judge of probate, having reached the age limit for that office, which he has retained unanimously on both tickets for years. His son, Arthur Bennett, received the nomination to succeed him. Mr. Bennett and Michael Shea elected first and second selectmen, are the first democrats to succeed to that office in the past 16 years in Canterbury. Dwight Bushnell, republican, was third.

There were 70 in the congregation at the Sunday morning service at Westminster Congregational church. Mrs. Green and several other members of the family of the late Deacon Albert E. Green were present. At the close of the service, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George Weeks was baptized by the pastor, Rev. Harry Small.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Woodraska of New Rochelle, N. Y., are visiting Mrs. Wodraska's father, E. A. Gooding.

Several members of the Koch family motored up from New Rochelle to spend the week end at the family summer home here.

Everett Moulton is doing jury duty at the superior court in Putnam.

Week end guests at the Colt home, Weedwell farm, were Miss Patty Hines, Miss Gladys Munier, Dr. Rodney Rowell, Mr. and Mrs. Jamison and Mrs. Jamison's mother, all of Stamford. The party motored up, calling on friends in Willimantic en route.

The family collie of the Gardiner family on the Plains was hit and injured so badly by an automobile that it had to be killed one day this week.

Severe colds have been epidemic up this way. Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Galloway, Will Davis and Albert Pellett are among recent patients.

Rain Most Welcome

The rain of Wednesday was welcomed as a solution to the troublesome brush fires which have persisted in breaking out anew after the removal of the patrol. Over in the vicinity of Woodchuck hill the fire has been burning intermittently for over a week.

COLUMBIA

The local 4-H Sewing club made a fine showing at the Stafford fair this week, the members winning many prizes in the state 4-H exhibit. Miss Adella Badge took first prize for kimona, first prize for record book, second prize on a dress, third prize on a slip. Her sister, Ahlene, won first prize for her sewing kit, and Margaret Badge third prize on a kitchen set of holder, apron and towel. Eleanor LaBonte won second prize for pajamas and third prize for her club uniform. Dorothy LaBonte won second prize for a nightgown and third for pajamas. Miss Adella Badge and Eleanor LaBonte also represented the local club in a sewing contest with other teams from other clubs, the winning team to receive a sewing machine for their club. The winners have not yet been announced. Miss Adella Badge is to broadcast through Storrs station, WCAC, Oct. 27 and will talk about the recent style revue held by the 4-H clubs and the clothing work as done by the club.

Those attending Stafford fair Tuesday from Columbia were Mr. and Mrs. Charles LaBonte, George LaBonte, Misses Eleanor and Dorothy LaBonte, Adella Badge, Margaret Badge, Mary Szegda, William Wolff and Henry Isham.

Miss Mary Williams is visiting friends in Stafford Springs, and will remain there until Sunday.

Mrs. Ruth Jacobs, Mrs. Bessie Trythall and Miss Marie Field went to Groton Long Point Sunday, remaining in Mrs. Jacobs' cottage until Wednesday afternoon.

The Latham place on Chestnut Hill has recently been sold to Mr. Zmutski, who formerly lived on the other side of the road, he having sold his property to Mr. Tashlik last summer.

Mrs. Anna Dart, who has been spending the summer at Mrs. Curtis Holmes', returned Thursday to her home in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Casper Reising of New Haven were recent guests of Miss Harriet Fuller.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fuller, Mrs. William Geer and Miss Prudence Geer of New London and George Fuller of Pittsburgh, Pa., called Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Harriet Fuller.

Mrs. Elbert Little of Willimantic, Mrs. Harriet Little and Miss Harriet Fuller of Columbia motored to Glastonbury recently, taking dinner at the Hale house.

Donald Woodward and Miss Margaret Hutchins went to Mansfield Wednesday evening to attend the meeting of the executive committee of Willimantic C. E. union.

The lecturer's subject for Wednesday evening at the local grange was "Music." Classical music was in charge of Gladys Rice and Raymond Lyman, sacred music, Mrs. Clayton Hunt, assisted by a quartette, jazz, Mrs. Elsie Collins and Miss Gladys Lowman, vocal music, Mrs. Edith Isham. Sides were chosen for the competive program which will be held at the second meeting in November. At the next meeting, by vote of the grange, supper will be at 7 o'clock instead of after the meeting, as usual.

COLCHESTER

A large number attended neighbors' night at Colchester Grange No 78 P. of H. in Grange hall Wednesday evening. Worthy Master Elmer H. Foote presided. The members of Bozrah and Lebanon Granges furnished the entertaining program, the Bozrah delegation offering several vocal solos with piano accompaniment and the Lebanon people presented a series of musical tableaux. Interesting brief addresses were made by Worthy Master Littlefield of Lebanon Grange and Worthy Lecturer Gilman of Bozrah grange. Due to illness in her family, the Bozrah grange master was unable to be present. At the close of the program, Mrs. Samuel Noyes Morgan was presented, on behalf of the local grange, a five dollar gold piece and a handsome bouquet of yellow and white chrysanthemums. Mrs. Morgan is a charter member of the local grange and is to move soon to her new home in New London. Much regret was expressed at her leaving the community. At the close of the meeting a lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee was served. Visitors were present from Preston City, Pachaug, Lebanon, Bozrah, Hebron, East Providence and Norwich Granges.

Road Repairs By Contract

At a largely attended special town meeting held Thursday afternoon in Grange hall, Charles F. Brown was chairman and John Condren was clerk. After much discussion it was voted to let the repair of the town roads out to contract. The recently appointed road committee is to confer with the selectmen in preparing the contract specifications which are to be completed by November 1. F. O. Brown, Hyman London, Leon Broder, Edward T. Peck, Chauncy G. Markham and Dr. E. M. Clifford are the road committee which will confer with the selectmen. It was also voted to continue to rent the Dublin district school building, the suggestion to purchase it being voted down.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Wales of Amherst, Mass., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George B. Miller.

Mrs. Susan B. Congdon, of Mystic, is visiting for several days with Mrs. Jennie S. Plum, at the old Staples homestead.

WAUREGAN

At a well attended meeting of the local P. T. association Wednesday evening Edwin Hill of Danielson gave an excellent address on "Leisure." Many useful suggestions were given to the parents for dealing with the leisure hours of pupils. At the business meeting a delegation was appointed to attend the county meeting at Hampton Oct. 22. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Edward Burns and Mrs. M. Fitzmaurice.

Religious Education Meeting

Plans are complete for the county religious education meeting the coming Sunday. A conference for Sunday school teachers will be held at 3 p. m. and a public meeting at 7 p. m. At the evening meeting there will be an address on "The Dimensions of Christianity" by Dean Luther Weigle, Yale Divinity school.

An address on missons and life in Bulgaria will be given by Norman Kilpatrick at the six-church conference at Westminster Tuesday next, Oct. 21. Rev. William Williams will deliver the sermon at the morning session.

Clement Meyhew has returned to his duties at the Wauregan store after an absence of three weeks due to illness.

FOOD CANNED, FEED SAVED BY KILLING CULL ANIMALS

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Many farm families in the drought area are solving the livestock feed problem by slaughtering cull animals and canning the meat.

In one instance a calf, for which the owner could get only $10, was converted into 262 cans of roast steak, hash, chile, and soup stock. One family canned 98 quarts of chicken.

The movement is well advanced in Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and other southern states. It has the twofold purpose of providing food for the family and saving feed for the better animals left in the herds.

TOBACCO TO WRAP CIGARS PRODUCED IN NEW ENGLAND

HARTFORD, Conn. —(AP)— Georgia and Florida aren't the only sections of the country where the shade-grown tobacco for cigar wrappers is grown. New England shares in the industry.

About 6,000 acres of Connecticut valley land is devoted to tobacco, about 70 per cent of which is used for cigar wrapping purposes. Both Broadleaf and Havana seed tobacco likewise are grown in the valley, and this also is used for wrappers.

Approximately 20,000 bales of Sumatra tobacco also are imported from Holland each year. This tobacco is used exclusively for cigar wrappers.

Preserve Old Lighthouse

NORFOLK, Va.—(AP)—The old tower at Cape Henry, Va., first lighthouse to be built directly by the government, will be preserved as a historical monument.

Only two deaths from smallpox occurred in North Carolina during 1929.

Divorces are prohibited by the state constitution of South Carolina.

DANIELSON

FARMERS TO HEAR HOW TO RAISE 300 BU. SPUDS AN ACRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 16.—Those who would like to get the knack of raising 300 bushels of potatoes to the acre will have a chance to hear considerable about the subject when members of the Three Hundred Bushel club meet at Grange hall in Brooklyn next Tuesday evening. It is announced that nine out of fifteen men grew over 300 bushels per acre the past growing season. Yields off acres of club members varied from 198 bushels to 357 bushels per acre. The results of the club measurements will be discussed at Tuesday evening's meeting, and an effort made to point out the reasons why some of the yields were lower than others. The measurements have brought out quite forcibly many facts regarding production of a larger yield per acre, which in turn reduces the cost of production. The Brooklyn Vegetable Growers' club is cordially inviting anyone interested in growing potatoes to come to the meeting and to bring along their friends.

Lions' Club Provides Milk

Through the generosity and foresight of the Danielson Lions' club a number of children in the first grade of the Danielson grammar school are now being supplied each school day with a bottle of milk and two or three wafers.

There are 44 pupils in this grade. Some of these are provided with money by their parents to purchase milk. Some do not care for this valuable liquid food. Others not in a position to pay are being supplied it by the Lions. This club hopes to extend this work as time goes on so that it will include other grades of the school.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary Pakulis

After an illness of a number of years Mrs. Mary Pakulis died this morning at home in Brooklyn. She was a native of Lithuania and the greater part of the 44 years of her life had been spent in this country. She leaves her husband, Augustus, who for a number of years has conducted what was long known as the Scarborough place; two daughters, Mrs. Charles Kane of Newark, N. J., and Viola, and two sons, Alexander and Charles. All of the unmarried children are at home.

Leave For Arizona

Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Atwood of Broad street left today en route to Arizona. They are to motor across the country by easy stages. Mr. Atwood has been in an impaired state of heatlh for several years past and the trip to the southwest is in the hope that he may be benefitted. Their stay in Arizona will be for an indefinite period. During the absence of Mr. Atwood his filling station interests here will be supervised by Mrs. Atwood's father, A. P. Burns.

Chief John McFarland came into possession of a pair of curious little instruments of torture this morning, and incidentally and in connection with them some school boys listened to a rather stern lecture on deportment. A creative youthful mind must have been back of the idea of taking matches and inserting in one end of them common pins with the business ends protruding about half an inch. A net job was made of it, too. It might be mentioned that these devices were taken to school and used to jump other boys out of their seats while they were quietly engaged with their studies.

When the poultry division of the Windham County Farmers' association holds its 24th quarterly meeting at Brooklyn Friday, Roy E. Jones, poultry extension specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural college, will be one of those to be heard at the morning session. His lecture will have to do with observations he made on a recent European trip, and his subject will be The Poultry Industry in Europe. The talk will be illustrated by slides. Mr. Jones and other speakers will be heard at the afternoon session.

State Officers George Martin and Henry Mayo were in Plainfield today checking up on a case concerning a stolen automobile found abandoned in that town. This car is the property of J. W. Fitzpatrick of Willimantic, who reported its theft in that city to the state police a few days ago.

At Jewett City and in the vicinity of Preston City today State Officer H. Theodore Strand was investigating relative to thefts of parts from a Ford truck owned by Millette Ratti of Moosup. This truck has been parked near where some road construction work has been in progress in the vicinity of Preston. From time to time someone has been engaged in stripping it, part by part. The tires and wheels have been taken, also the battery, and the final raid marked the disappearance of the steering wheel. In view of the fact that some of the stolen parts already have been recovered arrests are to be expected.

Marjorie Urquhart, 5-year-old daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. Ross V. Urquhart, suffered a broken arm today while in attendance at a private kindergarten school here. The little girl was using a swing when her arm struck against a post, causing the injury.

Many owners of radio sets are beginning to plead again for some action that will eventually make it possible for them to use their sets without the constant interference to which reception is being subjected. In some areas of the borough, particularly around the central section, reports have it, it is just about impossible to use a set. Rasping noises distort and some cases utterly destroy the value of the programs the owner would like to hear. Last fall there was some talk of concerted action to clear up a similar situation. Not much came of it. Now the subject is up front again.

There is little doubt that the interfering noises are hurting radio sales, as well as ruffling the tempers of owners of sets. There is little doubt, either, that the interference could largely be cleared away if those most concerned in revenue from radios, in one way or another, would take some joint action in the matter.

Joseph Lapelle, Spanish war veteran, is ill and a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

In connection with the duties of his office as grand master of the Grand Lodge of Masons in Connecticut, Attorney E. L. Darbie was in New Haven last night.

Those applicants who are now over 21 years of age who fail to appear here Saturday and have their qualifications examined by the selectmen and town clerk will have lost their last chance to be made voters this year.

A fortunate few residents here have obtained tickets for the Harvard-Army game to be played Saturday at Allston. Still another group have tickets for the Yale-Army game a week from Saturday, at New Haven.

Postmaster E. H. Keach said this morning that receipts at the post office have been very satisfactory at the Danielson office this year, and to many this will signify that business conditions here have been somewhat better than in many places of similar size throughout New England.

Lyonell Gauthier has been elected a member of the Danielson Lions' club, which is becoming an active agency for good.

Louis Peloquin, boxing promoter, announced that the next card of bouts here will be staged on a Saturday night, a change from Tuesday, in order that night workers in local mills will have an opportunity to attend.

Having both the republican and democratic nominations, Judge Sabin S. Russell is assured in advance of the coming election of another term as judge of Killingly's probate court.

The town is now engaged in making needed repairs, in advance of the cold weather season, to streets in Danielson. Another application of oil is being made to North street on the route to Westfield and Holy Cross cemeteries.

SIXTH ARREST MADE IN CONNECTION WITH HOLD-UP OF SILVER SHIPMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 16. — Clinton Jackson, familiarly known as "The Kid," was brought here tonight from Providence by State Officer Henry Mayo and is Number Six among those arrested in connection with the hold-up of a ByRolly truck on Hall's hill at South Killingly a week ago last Monday morning. Jackson, who is about 20 years of age, was picked up today by Providence police. He will be charged in court here with being implicated in the hold-up. He agreed to come into Connecticut without the formality of extradition proceedings. While it is not admitted, the assumption may be drawn that Jackson's arrest followed revelations that have been made to state officers here either by Doris Silva, alias Doris Bell, former Norwich girl still detained here, or from some one of the original trio arrested in connection with the case and now held prisoners at the county jail in Brooklyn in default of bail. It was not indicated here this evening by state officers what the exact nature of the charges against Jackson will be when he is presented in the town court here, if that is intended, and it presumably is in view of the fact that he was brought here tonight.

Silver Disc Mystery Solved

The puzzling mystery of the finding of a dozen silver discs scattered along the state highway at almost the exact point where the hold-up of the silver-laden truck occurred, was cleared up today. It is a strange coincidence that another truck — this time an armored one—lost the discs on Hall's hill last Friday night, four days after the hold-up, while en route from Bridgeport to Providence. The armored truck was carrying disc silver in boxes, a shipment of Handy and Harmon's, the firm that owned the first lot of silver that figured in the hold-up.

This truck hit a well known bump at the bridge over Snake Meadow brook while traveling at high speed while making for the steep Hall's hill. When the truck reached Providence one of the boxes of silver discs was found broken open and discs scattered all over the floor of the vehicle. Some of them evidently slid out beneath the bottom of the door of the truck and into the highway, where they were picked up Saturday by Patrick Coffey and Fred Gomeau, two South Killingly residents. The discs were traced by markings on them.

HOW A $3.50 HAYFIELD JUG HAS AGED TO BE WORTH $40

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 16.—Some of the local weather sharps are now stepping forth with the prediction that from now on until freeze-up time there will be plenty of rain. Many wells in the farming districts, which have not been dry for years, also have not been cleaned out for a corresponding period. One man, in performing this cleaning job Thursday, said he found in the dry bottom of a well, where the sand had not been in sight since the Civil war, a variety of traps and plunder that he didn't know were ever on the place. Old dippers, milk jugs and butter jars, have been recovered from where they have reposed for 50 years. A South Griswold man declared that he was going to put the bottom back in his well now and have better water than before the drought.

The best one is told by the farmer, also a Griswoldite, who recalls how his father used to serve a "tot of grog" to the men in the hayfields on hot summer days, when a little extra effort was needed to get in the last load. The father always kept the jug hanging down the well at the end of a long length of clothesline. Here the contents kept cool, never failing to touch the spot, always nearby, yet not too handy. The man who sponsors this story has gray hair now, and recalls that one day when he was a little toddler, and following a recent filling of the red eye jug, the line parted. Nobody heard the kerchug, but the howls of disappointment were distinctly audible when father laid hold of the empty line. There was ten feet of water in the well then and recovery was out of the question. A new full jug was bought the next day—best stuff, Golden Wedding, only $3.50 per gallon. The incident was forgotten and passed into history's saddest pages. Thursday afternoon the jug was recovered from the dry well bottom, full, sound and solid. O. Boy! O, Boy! It's an ill drought that brings nobody good luck. Three and a half bones when the line broke in 1870; 40 good bucks today!

Attended Red Cross Conference

Those who attended the state Red Cross conference at the Mohican, New London, Thursday, were Miss M. A. Burdick, Miss Margaret Driscoll, Mrs. J. H. Tracy, Mrs. W. A. Richardson, Mrs. F. I. Ray, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, Dr. G. H. Jennings, P. W. Chase, all members of Jewett City chapter executive board, also William LaPointe and John Bensuk, Junior Red Cross members. William LaPointe, Jr., was one of the children who spoke at the Junior Red Cross meeting in the afternoon, winning praise for himself and compliments for his instructor, Miss May K. Driscoll, who has charge of the local Junior Red Cross.
